Not only the act (which truly in that case spoke louder than words,) but the clearly expressed words, also, as written to Gen. Sherman, prove the man beyond a doubt a true Republican, standing square upon the National Sacrificial Republican platform. "It had to be done," said he," to save the Republican party." Now this saying is not new. It did not originate with Charles Guiteaut He only repeated the quite stale declaration thas has been repeated over and over by tens of thousands of christian men and Good Templars, as they have fired their more fatal, heart-piercing shots at the innocent and helpless thru the ballot box. The Republican party thus sacrifice upon the altar of Baal not less than 100,000 of our people every year, and the zealous Guiteau only proposed to add one more; and that one not a whit more valuable in the balance of God, or more fondly beloved by friends than the countless thousands already offered, or the vast concourse of hopeless drunkards in various stages, and writhing, bleeding hearts of helpless women and suffering chiidren that are this Sabbath day being dragged to the Baal Republican altar "to save the Republican party." Now, Christian Republican, drop the paper, with a contemptuous curl of the lip, and say "Fanaticism !" Continue the eloquent prayers for "temperance," however until the next election, and then manifest the true Republican, sacrificial spirit by firing, thru the ballot box another shot, more fatal, and a thousand times more cowardly than that from Guiteau's "bull dog in the depot.

Deposit again the strait Republican ticket for the yearly sacrifice of 100.000 more "to save the Republican party." Yes, say "Fanaticism" and then seek for Republican soothing syrup among the whisky ads, and wine puffs in the colums of the Chronicle, the Record-Union, the Oregonians or the Astorian or any other Republican —sacrificial organ, and if with such resources you can refute one syllable of the above, (except by that eloquent argument, "Fanaticism !") I believe there is room in the RESCUE for such refutation. T. J. ALLEY.

SAN JUAQUIN DIST. LODGE.

Held its 4th annual session at Woodbridge, Sept. 15th. G. W. Hill D. D. presiding.

One new lodge added since last session in Wildwood Dist. making now 8 lodges, membershp 468: 2 Bands of Hope, 209 members, cash in lodge treasury $173.

Wm. Jones of Stockton Lodge, No. 182 was recommended as D. D.

Resolutions were adopted calling on Dist. and and city attorneys to strictly enforce the Sunday law: the Dist. Dept. to visit each lodge at least once during his term of office, his expenses to be paid by the D. L.

The D. L. and sub-lodges subscribe for 45 copies of the RESCUE, and the number of individual subscribers is increasing in the District.

The lodge at Woodbridge was warmly thanked for a bounteous and most successful entertainment, and next meeting to be held at Farmington, Nov. 10th.

Members of the order will be glad to learn that Bro. Jones has been selected for D. D. He will make a thoroly live officer and will keep his charge awake all the time too.

OVER 10,000 public temperance meetings held in England in the last 12 months under the auspices of the Good Templars. Our Order is helping them with a lawsuit about a pair of old boots with the legs cut off—no—it is about an old charter with the frame cut off or an old frame with the charter cut off, or something of that kind. Better make them a present of the old boots or whatever it was; better help than hinder them.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

DR. DEPIERRIS ON TOBACCO.

The Doctor, a native and thoro Frenchman has rendered a most important service to his country and ours. Years ago he became an observer and student of the tobacco nuisance. Impressed with the importance of the truth being promulgated as to its ruinous effects upon health and life, and upon the continued existence of the foremost races of this world, he returned some years ago to France from his adopted California home, and after much patient labor published in 1876 a large volume on the poisonous effect of tobacco upon the life of the nation.

Here he has lately published two pamphlets, extracts and synopsis of his work translated into English. Samples are for sale at this office, 25 cents each, and they are heartily recommended to our lecturers, teachers, lodges and superintendents of our Bands of Hope.

Those who read those pamphlets will be immediately impressed with new ideas respecting this "little" vice in which so many people take so much comfort themselves, and so utterly curse the comfort of other people. As it is upon the drink question and the wine question, our people generally are shrouded in the darkest mysteries of ignorance upon the nature and effects of tobacco.

Mr. Wetmore last winter promised the people of this state some statistics by a "Dr. Lunier," of France, showing a marked decrease in insanity in the light wine districts of that country. One may be excused for believing those utterances as well as Dr. Lunier himself were purely imaginary, when we look at the following tobacco table of Dr. Depierris who is a veritable flesh and blood gentleman and no myth.

The first column of figures represents the year, the second the tobacco revenue in millions of francs and the third the number of lunatics in France.

40	95	13 283
50	122	20 061
60	195	28 761
70	244	38 999
80	344	52 440

The correspondence between the increase of the use of tobacco and of insanity is remarkable, and it must be remembered too that from 1820 to 1880, a corresponding increase has taken place in the consumption of strong spirits and other liquors.

We are asked by beer advocates to follow the German example and by wine advocates to copy after France. Dr. Depierris says in answer to those who talk of regenerating France.

"If so many children die, it is because they are so often born unfit to live and those who live after having escaped the mortality of their first years, do not wait for maturity to add a new germ of degeneracy to their enfeebled constitution. Like their fathers, they fall into the sinister habits of tobacco and alcohol, and statistics show that when they are called by conscription at the age of 21 to military service, half of them are unfit."

In France to raise the contingents of our armies, it is necessary to take all the youths seemingly healthy: it was also necessary to sensibly lower the requisite of the stature of the French soldier.

"In Germany the conscription call of 1881 gave this result: 32,123 missing, 94, 546 refractory; 435,-582 too feeble in constitution for soldiers, and held over for future examination: 123,091 only were found fit for service."

Before the era of tobacco in 1830 France had 10,332 inhabitants over 100 years old. In 1877 only 120, of which a majority were women,"

Let our wine and beer and tobacco advocates answer these things. If any smoker or chewer will read the doctor's admirable pamphlets and continue to practice suicidal habits, he is hardened indeed.

GOOD FOR WESTON.

Mr. E. P. Weston, the well known pedestrian, has consented to write a series of articles for the Church of England Temperance Chronicle in which he proposes to show that a total abstainer is capable of doing twice as much (and with less exertion) as a man who indulges in the use of alcoholic stimulants. In the first paper published last week, he says:—"I have now permanently retired from professional pedestrianism: not because I am in any way shattered physically or mentally, but simply because I have been made to realize that an exercise which I have struggled fo elevate has been seized by a clique of unprincipled gamblers in America, and degraded to such an extent that no man can associate himself with it now and retain his self respect.—Temp. Record.

The spirit of gambling is one that has blasted this state most terribly, and threatens awful things for the future. It is a pet ally and companion crime of the grogshop, and naturally so because it is a mean, nasty, filthy, utterly dishonest and devilish crime in all its forms. Whether in the state gambling horse races at Sacramento, in the poolselling iniquities of infamous villainy, in the fashionable card table game for quarters or dimes, its motives, its influences, its tendencies and its ends are altogether thievish, abominable, unmanly, criminal and unworthy of the most degraded type of humanity. Despicable and infamous, ought to be the unanimous, emphatic, loudly proclaimed verdict of every honest man and every virtuous woman. The gambler for drinks, for cigars, for prize packages and for everything which can fairly be brot under the name of gambling should be emphatically reproved at every step.

What else can be as mean as to try to get dishonest possession of a dime or dollar or anything that is your neighbor's? Nothing can compare with the despicable nastiness of gambling except the twin nastiness of other plans and modes of stealing. It is not desired to be severe or unjust upon gambling. It is probably no meaner at all than robbing a friend's pocket of his loose change when he is asleep; and very little meaner than stealing chickens from your neighbor's hen roost at midnight; it would not be any meaner but for the fact that the latter calls for some physical courage which the gambler dont need.

And yet you may say, I know good men who gamble. Yes, of course you do. There are plenty of fine, genial, generous, kindly, obliging, genteel people as can be found who gamble in one way or another. That is admitted, but it dont make gambling right a particle. If every one of the most religious people of this state should sit up every night of this week gambling, and run it on Sunday too, that would not make it right in the least. We should have very few gamblers and drunkards and immoral people, if respectable, good natured people of many good traits of character were not guilty of these immoralities in some shape. The respectable people who attend horse races, walking matches and billiard matches and other games for money, and who smoke in public, exercise an influence for evil that is incalculable—an influence that every young person should not only repel but reprove.

Probably no man could have made so much money out of men's love of gambling as the great total abstinent pedestrian, Weston, who retiring from his profession for the reason named deserves a respectful salute from all good people.

SALOONS AND CRIME.

There are nine counties in Indiana which have not a single saloon. They have 22,366 voters and only 31 state prison convicts, that is one convict for 721 voters.

In 18 other counties of Indiana which have 34, 361 voters there are 1179 saloons or one for every 29 voters, and there they have 405 state prison convicts or one for every seventy-two voters.

That is a very reasonable result, that there should be 10 times as many convicts in saloon communities as in sober ones. And there are dozens and hundreds no doubt of similar instances. Vineland, New Jersey has no grogshop, and for 20 years with over 10,000 population most of that time, it has had but one imprisonment of a citizen of Vineland for crime.

Maine has one convict for 3300 inhabitants: Cal. has one in state prison for every 510. (the papers say one for every 600, but it is worse than that) and it is quite likely that our city and county prisons contain ten times the number that those of Maine do; many of the latter are empty.

That the saloons and wineries are the cause of nearly all our crime and madness and poverty and misery, there is no doubt whatever. That they never once did or can or desire to do any good we all know; that they have but one object, to make money by poisoning the health and morals of the people and ruining the country we all know. That they intend to make as many drunkards, convicts and paupers as they can of the children now in our Sunday-schools, bands of hope and public schools we all know.

And when we say we are going to exterminate the last saloon and brewery and winery and distillery, and save the children of to-day and future generations from drunkenness and crime and beggary, we dont mean or intend harm of any kind to anybody. To save millions of innocent lives it may be justifiable perhaps to kill and destroy some or many of the wicked men who are trying to do this evil; but we dont propose to kill, rob, impoverish, harm a single individual. We intend by destroying one bad business to give a chance to five more people to engage in a good business. We cannot stop a man from selling rum and poison and death without giving him a chance to make more money at an honest business where he can be a better, happier man.

If the traffickers in rum were not perverted and made fools by greed and avarice and Satan they would see that the Rescue and the temperance people and the children of the bands of hope are the only friends they have in the world; the only people that are trying to give saloon keepers and brewers and brandy makers a chance of being happy and prosperous and comfortable here and getting to heaven at last. That is the worst we want to do to them. so there is no danger of our doing too much of this work. And we want all the young folks to help with all their might now, and when they come to vote, never under any circumstance to vote for any one but a solid prohibitionist.

A GRAND MOVE FOR THE YOUNG.

Ed Rescue.—The cheapest S. School literature of the day is the "unsectarian" lesson papers, songs, library books &c of David C. Cook, of Chicago. Some time ago I felt impelled to write urging him to take hold of the Temperance work and issue tracts, lesson papers, songs, books &c on the same marvellously cheap plan & scatter them by the hundreds of thousands as he is doing his S. School productions. It appears others have been similarly urging him and he has consented and is now writing every Sunday School and public school teacher and all interested in the young to send him names of parties who will be likely to cooperate. He feels moved to this by a deep sense of responsibillty to God and love for the cause and drink-cursed humanity. He will issue at wonderfully low rates pledge cards, leaflets, songs &c and instructions to all interested how to carry on the temperance work with the young. He will also publish in pamphlet form a whole juvenile temperance library of books costing $1.00 to $1.50 each, at five cents per volume in paper covers; and a weekly paper at ten per cents per year ! ! ! Is not this a Temperance Literary Revolution ? He has a noble christian and temperance working wife. God grant they may live and labor for many years and find an army of co-workers !

Bro. Cook is doing this in no spirit of opposition to the National Temperance Publication Society or other kindred institutions but publicly recommends them. Any one wishing further information should address "David C. Cook." Temperance Department Chicago. J. W. Webb.

The English Methodists.—The Wesleyan Temperance committee report that there are in G. B. 2033 Wesleyan Methodist Bands of Hope with 202,516 members and 144 W. M. Temperance societies with 9,402 members, a marked increase over last year. That sounds like the "true church" we have heard of.

TEMPERANCE LESSON LEAVES.

BY REV. W. F. CRAFTS.

TEMPERANCE IN ALL THINGS.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things.—I Cor. ix. 25

LESSON.—I Cor. ix. 22--27.

22 To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some.

23 And this I do for the gospel's sake that I might be partaker thereof with you.

24 Know ye not that they which run in a race, run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible.

26 I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air.

27 But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway.

HOME READINGS

Mon.—Gal. v. 19–23. Temperance in all things, the crowning virtue.

Tues.—2 Pet. i. 1—9. What is to be added to temperance in all things?

Wed.—Heb. xii. 1—3. Intemperance of every sort a "weight" or "sin" to be cast aside, if we would win in life's race.

Thurs.—Rom. vii 19–25; viii. I. 2; Prov. xvi. 32. Temperance in controlling what is wrong in ourselves wins a greater victory than taking a city.

Fri.—Acts xix. 23–41. The man who has self-control can control others, as did the town clerk of Ephesus.

Sat.— Prov. xxiii. 15–24. He who is intemperate in eating shall come to harm.

Sun.—Acts xxiv. 24–27. Neglect of temperance in all things brings judgment upon us here and hereafter.

RESPONSIVE READING.

Philippians iii. I3–21.

Leader.—"Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before."

Response.—I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

L.—"Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded; and if in anything ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you."

R.—"Nevertheless, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing."

L.—"Brethren, be followers together of me, and mark them which walk so as ye have us for an ensample."

R.—"(For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ."

L.—"Whose end is destruction, whose God is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame, who mind earthly things.")

R.—"For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ."

L.—"Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself."

For many centuries the Greeks celebrated national games at regular intervals, the Olympic and Isthmian games being the most important. The latter, to which Paul especially refers, were held on the Isthmus of Corinth, in honor of Neptune, and occurred every other year. The Olympic games were celebrated only once in four years, and were looked forward to as the greatest of national events, even war being suspended thruout Greece during the days occupied by the festival.

The exercises on these great occasions consisted of contests in running, wrestling, boxing, throwing quoits and javelins, and leaping. In later times, foot-races in heavy armor, races on horseback and in four-horse chariots were added.

The honors paid the victors at these games were so great that those who won at Olympia were more distinguished men than the rulers of the different countries. They received no prizes in money—only crowns of olive leaves, which the judge of the contests placed on the winner's heads, and which was an honor never forgotten by their fellow-citizens. Their praises were sung by the national poets, and statues of them were erected, to commemorate their names during the coming ages.

It was for these reasons that the contestants spent as long a time as ten months in preparing for these great festivals, undergoing a system of hard and tedious training, and abstaining from every kind of food or drink or pleasure which would weaken their bodies, very much as race-horses and boat-crews are trained now. They were allowed only the plainest food, and in quantities only sufficient to sustain strength without making superfluous flesh. The purpose was to have the body weigh as little as possible, and yet have the muscles full and hard. The foot-race was from one end of the arena to the other, where stood the goal, and the judges beside it with the olive crown. After winning the wreath, the victor was received by his congratulating friends, and escorted with great pomp to his city, where they had prepared to receive him with a feast.

Verse 24.—In the race of life, what should we flee from? (2 Tim. ii. 22; 1 Cor. vi. 18; x. 14.)

Toward what should we run? (Psa. cxlix. 3; Psa. xxxiv. 14; Zech. ii. 4.)

What hindrances do we find in the race? (Heb. xii. 1.)

What "sins" and "weights" most hinder men from success in doing good and getting to heaven? (When men were racing, long robes would seem heavy, and would get entangled about their legs, and so were weights to be cast aside.)

What encouragements are given to Christians in the race? (Heb. xii. 2; Psa. cxix. 32.)

How can our strength for the race be increased? (Isai. xl. 31.)

What do we have to wrestle against in seeking to lead a right life? (Eph. vi. 12.)

What evil habits do men find hard to wrestle with?

What does the word "tempered" mean, when applied to a knife? (That it has been brought to the right degree of handness—neither too soft nor too hard.)

What does "temperate" mean when applied to zones?

What does "temperate" mean in relation to us? (That our dispositions are well mixed—our appetites restrained and controlled, so that we do not get too excited or eat too much or drink too much, etc.)

What part of a man should be king of the other part?—the thinking part or the flesh part? (See v. 25, "I keep my body under." etc. An intemperate man is one whose mind does not control his body, but is controlled by it, so that he eats more than he knows is best, or drinks what he knows will injure him because his perverted appetites call for it, like an unwise parent who lets a pettish child have anything he wants, whether it is good for him or not.)

Can you tell of any persons whose souls have become wrecks and "castaways," because they did not bring the body into subjection?

Are we to allow the body to take even a moderate portion of what is harmful in itself?

Is alcohol in small quantities hurtful? (Any indulgence in wrong is excess. There can be no temperance in thieving, in lying, in poisoning. Temperance is restraining one's self from excessive indulgence in what is good, and from all indulgence in what is harmful or evil.)

Why is intemperance in drinking worse than in eating? Because one who eats to excess brings direct injury only to himself, while the man who takes alcoholic beverages is liable to become so crazed as to abuse and injure others as well as himself. No one ever gave as an excuse for abusing his wife that he had eaten too much turkey.)

What prizes do men win in this life by controlling their appetites for food and drink?

What are the rewards of self-control and of the temper and the tongue?

What is the prize in heaven for temperance in all things? (See v. 25.)

Men insure property because there is a bare possibility of its being burned, notwithstanding that not one building in a thousand is burned. So men insure against accidents when not one traveler in ten thousand is hurt. How much more should men who recognize even the bare possibility of alcohol bringing them to accident or death, as it has so many thousands, abstain from the internal fire which, even if many drinkers escape being drunkards, may possibly bring that disgrace on anyone who uses it. As you insure property against the possible but not probable loss by fire, insure your body, by total abstinence, against any possibility of drunkenness.

THE POOR MAN'S SHEAF.

BY EBEN R. REXFORD.

He saw the wheat fields waiting,
All golden in the sun;
And strong and stalwart reapers
Went by him one by one.
"O, could I reap in harvest!"
His heart made bitter cry:
"I can do nothing, nothing,
So weak, alas! am I!"

At eve a fainting traveler
Sank down beside the door;
A cup of crystal water
To quench his thirst he bore.
And when, refreshed and strengthened,
The traveler went his way.
Upon the poor man's threshold
A golden wheat-sheaf lay.

When came the Lord of harvest,
He cried: "Oh, master kind!
One sheaf I have to offer,
But that I did not bind.
I gave a cup of water
To one athirst, and he Left at my door, in going.
This sheaf I offer thee."

Then said the Master softly;
"Well pleased with this I am;
One of my angels left it
With thee as he passed on.
Thou may'st not join the reapers
Upon the harvest plain,
But he who helps a brother
Binds sheaves of richest grain."—Lever.

WHAT IT COSTS.

A gentleman was walking in Regent's Park in London, and he met a man whose only home was in the poorhouse. He had come out to take the air and excited the gentleman's interested attention.

"Well, my friend," said the gentleman getting into conversation, "it is a pity that a man like you should be situated just as you are. Now, may I ask how old you are?"

The man said he was eighty years of age.

"Had you any trade before you became penniless?"

"Yes, I was a carpenter."

"Did you use intoxicating drink?"

"No, oh, no; I only took my beer; never anything stronger; nothing but beer."

"How much did your beer come to a day!"

"Oh! a sixpence a day I suppose."

"For how long a time?"

"Well, I suppose for about sixty years."

The gentleman had taken out his note-book, and he continued figuring with his pencil while he went on talking with the man.

"Now, let me tell you," said he as he finished his calculations how much that beer cost you, my man. You can go over the figures. "And the gentleman demonstrated that the money, a sixpence a day for sixty years, expended in beer, would, if it had been saved and placed at interest, have yielded him nearly eight hundred dollars a year, or an income of fifteen dollars a week for self-support.

"Let me tell you how much one gallon of whisky costs," said a judge, after trying a case. "One gallon of whisky made two men murderers; it made two wives widows; and it made eight children orphans."

Oh it's a costly thing.

SAD.

The New York Herald gives this pitiful picture. It illustrates the terrible power of intemperance, while it shows too that some good may still survive in the sober moments of the worst victims:

A whole family—father, mother and child—stood in the police court yesterday. The man was there to complain of his wife, whose intemperate habits had ruined his business and made his home miserable; yet as the couple waited for the justice, the wronged man wept over his wife, who seemed equally sorrowful and affectionate, while the helpless child was made wretched by the evident trouble of his parents.

Yet when the woman who had just been so wifely in her feelings was questioned by the judge, she replied, "I will drink as long as I live; I can't help it."—Signal.

THE CANADIAN RAILWAY.

About 8 years ago the Tory managers of the Government of Canada were detected in a scheme of what was declared a stupendous Pacific Railway steal. It was a scheme to duplicate the Union and Central Pacific swindle on a more liberally thieving scale. The fraud was defeated, the political leaders unhorsed and a liberal government elected. Their principal acts were giving an active impetus to the extension of the Pacific Railroad at Government expense and in the ownership of the people, and the enactment of a prohibitory law for one Western province and a local option law for the rest of the dominion. There were poor times all over the continent during the existence of the liberal government who were blamed as the cause by their political enemies. But the railroads were doing splendidly and were an incomparable benefit to the people, who had their transportation at first cost, and owned their own farms in place of being bond serfs of a railroad monopoly.

In 1878 a furor was got up in the interests of the hungry out politicians on the question of protection, and a majority of tory adherents were elected, who returned to power the old heroes of the Pacific scandal, and whitewashed themselves with the new name of liberal conservatives, a term equivalent to Republican Democrats, Union Secessionists, Loyal rebels or Monopolygamists. They were ashamed of the old name, tory, and painted it out.

The question upon which the liberal government was defeated was protection, not local option, which was entirely overlooked and its supporters were ruthlessly unseated, many of them. The restored premier could command a majority of about 86 on every question to which he gave his support; which indicated that the members of that majority were much more loyal to their place giving political leader, than they were to principle or to their constituents, the people. No matter what was up, the vote was 86 majority all weathers for the chief.

It does not appear that a single complaint was raised by one of the people against the railroad system, which belonged to the people and was becoming such a financial blessing to them. But during the recess of parliament a yankee railroad tempter looked over the fence into the Canadian railway Eden and suggested the apple to the too willing teeth not of the Eve but the Adam who was chief minister of the Canadian garden, and who had been so mercifully preserved from a former similar temptation. The apple was no doubt sweet and was accepted: the faithful 86 or something like it endorsed the bargain when called upon, and the people's railroad which had already cost the people 28 million, with a subsidy of 25 million more in cash was handed over as a free gift to a *sin*dicate, or a railroad satandicate, with 25 millon acres of land, which Sir John McDonald, the prime minister and prime agent in this scandal, had declared worth $3.00 an acre and which he had promised in a speech in parliament in 1880, would be of itself sufficient to build the whole road, without the expenditure of any money at all.

Thus Canada gives the syndicate 53 million dollars and 25 to 75 million more in land in a free gift, and then the syndicate owns the road, and it is exempted from taxation forever ! ! ! and no railroad can be built to compete with it ! ! !

The two last conditions alone without one cent of subsidy or land, were enough to convict the bargainers of immeasurable rascality or the profoundest imbecility. They were concessions no one had a right to make, and could not make without entailing a robbery on posterity.

There may be some redeeming circumstances that have not come to light here, but judging from what light has been afforded, this seems to have been the most gigantic fraud, swindle, sell out, plundering scoundrelism that this world has ever witnessed. It is impossible to believe the Canadian parties to the scheme could have done this thing in mere ignorant folly. And to brave the odium of such a villainous monstrous act of treason to the people and country, the bribe must have gone largely into the millions. The bribers could well afford 20 millions but no doubt got away much more cheaply.

If there is no way of repudiating or invalidating that villainous contract, it is to be hoped the new government, which the people are going to put in power, will buy off the sindicate and it will be the best trade Canada ever made, if they can buy back their former independent railway status, at a sacrifice of 100 to 150 millons in cash. It is doubtful if they could now make better terms than at the latter sum or if the syndicate would accept any such sum as that for the gold mine they have dropped into free gratis.

Moral. Never entrust financial or any other interests to politicians or others who have once betrayed their trust.

THE HERESY HUNT.

Everybody who runs a newspaper is of course competent to be a chief justice in any ecclesiastical case of heresy and render a completely conclusive, infallible decision. Most of the papers have availed themselves of their "birthright" in the recent Calvary Church unpleasantness. It is fortunate for that church that there are so many presses and so many pulpits to show it how to settle the case righteously.

If the Rescue had been invited to take a hand in the contest, its sympathies for a good, kind, charitable woman under persecution, would probably have gone far toward blinding it against any inconvenient, legal entanglements which might be produced (if any there are) on the other side.

But it is a little singular that there should be so much pulpit and press activity generated about a matter of opinion as to the doctrinal or non doctrinal character of the religious teachings of one good Christian woman, in one bible class of the city, meeting once a week: while the well known fact that there are 4000 or more anti-bible schools, anti-church, anti-Christ, anti-God, anti-religion, anti-home, anti-American temples of Satan, open not only Sunday afternoon, but all day and all night Sunday and all other days for years back, dont disturb the press or pulpits, or elicit a remark or notice from them, with rare exceptions, once a year or once in ten years.

It kindles a storm of opinion that sets the whole city in a blaze, for some one in the ranks of Christianity to believe or doubt some interpretation of an article of faith or a verse of Scripture; but the palpable reality that 4000 schools are, under government license, countenance and protection, teaching and proclaiming in their very nature, in their business, in their every act, that there is no God, no virtue, no good, blasting and debauching and destroying everything pure and beautiful and of good repute; entrapping and consigning men, women and children by wholesale thousands to all there possibly can be of hell, here and hereafter—dont create a ripple in the sweet calm which rests upon the people and the pulpits and Y. M. C. A. and religious and secular press—the guardians and directors of the people's morals and conduct.

An uncertainty as to the genuineness of an occurrence written 3000 years ago is a Mount Diablo stumbling block in the road to heaven, but the 4000 blasphemy schools of San Francisco which are each and every one a substantial assertion on the part of the whole city that there is no God but beer—are but a grain of sand which has drifted upon the smooth, broad marble paved avenue on which we are all traveling somewhere.

USES OF LAW.

"You cant make men virtuous by act of parliament," has one little corner of truth in it to this extent. If there is a bad man somewhere, the passing of a law or a hundred laws commanding him to be good will not make him good. But in its ordinary meaning it is a miserable lie, a subterfuge of fools, a refuge of thieves and malefactors and cheats.

It is a blasphemy, too, when any one says so who believes in scriptural guidance. If it were true the giving of the decalog was a mistake and all law is folly. Bad laws have never failed to make good people bad and bad people worse; and good laws are of necessity the foundation upon which all good influences must rest to make people better.

The bad laws that have licensed robbery, piracy, slavery, gambling, betting, prostitution, sale of liquor, tobacco, opium etc., have every one and at all times effected not only a criminal demoralization of the individuals and classes most directly affected by those laws, but have every time lowered and degraded the public morality of the peoples, for whose benefit or convenience they were enacted.

On the other hand, the Hebrew race owe their long continued separate existence, their history, their wealth, their physical vigor and the influence they have exercised upon the world to a good law; they believed it all along to be God's law, but its observance made all their good people, not because it was God's or man's law, but simply because it was good law; law calculated to make men virtuous.

All laws which have protected religious belief and practice, encouraged and promoted morality and education and virtuous habits, have improved the general morality of the people every time. The laws which first established schools in England, Scotland and America, gave them a religious color, and in every instance and locality the Christian characteristics which were of old ingrafted as natural adjuncts upon the secular teachings of the schools, exerted a mighty influence and power for good, sowed deep and broad in the minds of the taught, seeds of virtue and truthfulness and honesty and righteousness, whose harvest matured in the best and most virtuous people and the best civilization which the world has ever seen.

The old lie of the deceiver has had its run long enough. Our worst of all laws, the license laws, the most iniquitous laws that ever disgraced a nation, have been degrading our people, and if continued would degrade us to utter extinction. Let us now determine that virtuous acts of Congress shall giv men at least a chance of being virtuous; a chance of which our barbarous and devilish laws have robbed millions of our citizens.

A COSTLY SACRIFICE.

President Garfield is dead. A great nd noble life has gone out and a great blank that can never be filled has been created in the ranks of the good and great sons of the American republic. The manner of his death has never had a parallel. He was twice foully murdered; twice offered up a costly human sacrifice on the altar of our national god, rum; the god which our nation has placed above all other Gods, and whose name no one high or low can assail without a penalty of scorn or hate incurred.

First the bullet of the licensed grogshop, distinctly licensed and authorized by the ballots of civilized and christian men, which commits open murder time and again every day—which murdered President Lincoln, happened to hit a president of the U. S. a second time. Altho it was to all intent a murder, the president owing to his healthy temperate phisique, survived the bullet and would have surely recovered, but for the rum fiend awaiting him in another quarter.

He was handed over to a priesthood of bacchus, in whose hands he was martyred, tortured and crucified for two long months and more, till he died, poisoned, exhausted, worn out, wasted, murdered by an obstinate persistent course of charlatan fetish quackery, that would have disgraced the reputation of a Ceylon shark charmer or an African witch doctor.

Ordinary intelligence knows that a doctor cannot cure a wound: nature does all of that; all the doctor can do is to give the patient rest, curative, wholesome nutriment, fresh, wholesome air, perfect cleanliness in every respect, and watch and assist nature's curative and recuperative operations.

But it was of more importance to advertise the god whisky as a healer than to save the President's life. Better sacrifice a whole generation than surrender an iota of that blind, obstinate devil worship which noses along in the old ruts of bigoted, deluded ignorance, and clings with a death grip to this fetish whisky, the one survivor of a long ago discarded bundle of the most miserable, damnable and death-dealing quackeries.

To rest the patient they fed him on rum and similar atrocities which all the time quickened the action of a heart, making 30 to 60 beats a minute too fast already. Science has proclaimed that a dose of two ounces of alcohol increases the action of the heart, so as to make it do an extra work equal to raising a seven ounce weight one foot nearly 1500 times an hour. That is the way he was rested; almost as well have put him on the treadmill.

To enable nature to strengthen and nourish him, they poisoned his digestive apparatus; poisoned almost every article of his food; fed him on food that was poison itself; poisoned his blood, and the whole treatment was a succession of poisonings and quackeries so far as food and medicine were concerned.

An intelligent reader needs no stronger confirmation of the quackery and ignorance of Dr. Bliss in this matter of whisky medicine, than his own words, when it was thot the President would recover, "some people think prayer saved him but I know it was whisky saved him." No medical man, no matter what his experience, who would say that whisky saved a life after a sixty days dosing should be intrusted with the care of a human patient.

The prayers of a nation never could or did avail to avert any calamity, while the sin that caused it was unconfessed and unrepented of—nor will they ever avail to save a President from dying from poison, till the hand that keeps administering the poison is stayed.

The nation's favorite son, in the prime and vigor of his usefulness, at the outset of an administration of unusual promise, has been immolated on the filthy altar of rum—slain by the agents who to-day and to-morrow and every day will go out from the temples of satan, armed for more murder just the same. Will the nation ever make one step toward repentance? or will it rush on to self-destruction in the face of all this terrible reign of human slaughter?

THE CURSE OF WEALTH.

BY JOHN ARNOUP.

Let some divines and philosophers say what they will, money is a good thing to have.

Not for to hide it in a hedge,
Nor for a train attendant,
But all for the glorious privilege
Of being independent.

But observation teaches us that the great want of communities, and in many cases of individuals, is not money, but the capacity to righteously use such amounts as come into their possession. Millions of men and women pass their lives in feverish longings for wealth that never comes; and it is high time that they should be taught to aspire to a more profitable and dignified use of the hours and days allotted to them in their march through life. Rightfully gained and properly used, money is one of the glories of a state. There are men to whom the possession of wealth gives a generosity, a breadth and massiveness of character that makes them ornaments and blessings to their race.

Upon large masses of men the effects of wealth are of an exactly opposite character. They become rich in pocket but poor in soul. To save money they would snap every tender tie of humanity—crush and trample on the feelings of harmless babes and "shut the gates of mercy on mankind." The cry of these people is, "give us wealth, give us money!" And for what? Simply that they may gratify their preponderating animal passions and pass their lives in luxury, idleness and sloth. Give them money, and they are willing to become Midas-eared or anything else that the furies may exact. Herein consists the tragedy of so many valuable lives. Large numbers of our wealthy people are but wrecks of humanity, men of low morality, coarse instincts and brutal selfishness. As temperance people we must write on the brow of humanity nobler words than "gold."

The saddest, frightfulest condition of society today is not to be found in the increase of Mongolians—the use of opium or drink—nor the fact that so many poor, unhappy women barter their glory for gold. It is to be found in the ready question that falls from all lips and is made the touch-stone for all enterprises, "will it pay?" Not—is it right or kind or true and manly or Godlike; no, but, "will it pay?"

And now the question has gone forth among the mountains and valleys of California, "will it pay to grow grapes to press into wine and distil into brandy?" The ready answer comes and is echoed through the press: "pay? why, it will make this state the richest on the continent; ay! in the world!" And then the financial prophet adds: "we must cultivate vineyards, for we have millions of acres that will grow nothing else." These replies are supposed to be omnipotent. The man who would disprove, doubt or deny them is at once called a fanatic. Then thank God for fanaticism. We will march under that banner despite all hatred and obloquy. Listen, oh ye pompous, would-be rulers of this state, to the voice of the good bishop Heber:

What tho the spicy breezes
Blow soft o'er Ceylon's isle,
Tho every prospect pleases
And only man is vile!

This state is now our home, and we are not indifferent to its prosperity and welfare. What tho our mines give forth their endless stores, what tho the golden grain waves in the breeze, what tho our harbors are crowded with ships bearing the flags of every nation, if the pale image of woe and gaunt poverty stalk everywhere in our streets and are forever blighting our hearths and homes!

Even were it true, which it is not, that this state cannot become rich except through the upholding of the wine trade, and that our mountain slopes must remain uncultivated if not covered with vineyards whose existence can only be maintained by the consuming of wine and brandy, then our cries, our prayers to heaven would be, let the land remain in its pristine beauty; let the sweet flowers bud and blossom; let the wild deer and wolf roam at their own sweet will, and let our mountain fastnesses for ever remain fresh as from the hand of the Creator, rather than be covered with vines—even tho every grape should be worth a ruby to its owner—that are desecrated to the hellish use of placing to the lips of humanity draughts that poison the body and curse the soul.

Oh, ye brewers, distillers and men who become rich at the expense of the peace, virtue and happiness of your fellows, know for a truth that the age will soon be here when men will regard your calling as they now regard that of him who bought and sold slaves. You are traffickers in flesh and blood; in sacred homes, in tears and sufferings, and in the innocent joys of poor harmless children.

So long as you can make money, not a legion of angels could convert you from your unrighteous calling.

There are Quilps and Fagans in all countries and ages—men who are as eminently respectable, as their means of obtaining money are pre-eminently hellish—men whose lives from the cradle to the grave are passed in grasping money and in the endeavor to hide their mean vices under the guise of respectability, and in the hypocritical observance of religious forms. You shall not much longer curse society with your wealth.

If grape growing and wine pressing and brandy distilling should bring all the wealth of Golconda to our shores, we would cry "take it back and close up the vineyards!" This great country must be devoted to the cause of freedom and humanity and the end and aim of this government, if it be true to its mission, is not so much in the erection of mansions, nor in the construction of gigantic public works, nor in building of ships and railroads, but in the growth of free, sober, righteous men and women! If this is not done, then our civilization is a failure, and our boasted wealth a curse. We are neither pessimists nor misanthropes, but believers in the onward march of mankind towards the bright, the true and the good.

GOV. ST. JOHN, MISS WILLARD AND JOHN B. FINCH.

The National Liberator has just published, in No. 15, Gov. St. John's great Kansas speech, Miss Willard's beautiful Lake Bluff address, entitled "The Southern People," and John B. Finch's magnificent "Indictment of the Liquor Traffic." These three great speeches covering nearly twenty colums of solid reading matter, were reported and afterwards revised by the speakers for publication in that issue. They will be sent free of transportation to any part of the U. S. or Canada at the following extremely low rates:

Per thousand copies,.....$6 00
Per hundred copies,..... 70

Remember each copy contains the three speeches. Every Lodge, Division, Temple, and Union ought to supply the public with copies. Sample free. Address the National Liberator. 106 Franklin St. Chicago, Ill.

Every Lodge in Cal. Oregon and W. T. ought to distribute 100 copies of that issue of the Liberator in their community. Any one of these speeches is worth 70 cents. The Liberator is a good rousing prohibition paper and at 50 cents a year is within the reach of everybody. The cheapest temperance paper in the world and second to none in quality and value. Two dollars will get 70 copies of that No. 15 and three copies of the paper for a year. The Liberator is going to be a power for prohibition and we can help ourselves very much by helping it.

PROFESSOR FOSTER is a fine speaker and writer: read his "Signs of the Times" on page 738. He is, and will continue to be a power in the cause. Every State ought to have at least a dozen first class temperance lecturers constantly in the field, and it is hoped that Prof. Foster may ere long be one of our California dozen.

THE Call reports the Rev. Mr. Stebbins as being in a peculiarly happy frame of mind on the heresy question. He said last Sunday that a "heresy hunter is a religious jackal that licks its chops over a heretic's hole, a bigot who sets himself up to lend to Almighty God the weight of his influence.

TEST OF RESPECTABILITY.—A man was elected to the British House of Commons in 1875 who had been committed for felony and his eligibility was questioned but finally admitted. Same year a man applied for license to sell liquor in Yorkshire, but it was proved that he had stolen a donkey 20 years ago, and he was found unfit to enter the elected body of Publicans.—Sir Wilfrid Lawson.

STRIVE TO BE FIRST.

The Good Templars of California have made a better record for liberality and generosity and active work, than those of any other state. This is said to you, not as a boast at all, for we have not done as much good as we ought and might. We have many of us done too much that was not for the best, and too little of what we ought to do; and nothing we could ever do would give us a right to boast or hold ourselves up to admiration.

But the object of keeping this fact before folks, this fact of our success so far, is to keep them alive to the necessity of persevering in our onward course, starting new enterprises for educating the people, getting more and more people to help us in our work, and preparing the ground, as it were, for a larger and wider and richer field of good results in each succeeding year.

What we want particularly, now, is a renewed and wide awake interest in all our juvenile societies and in all our lodges with regard to juvenile work. We want to capture every boy and girl before they grow up and insure their lives; to put the best policy of insurance on them that ever was issued by any society or authority. We want to insure their lives against intemperance and if we do, they will, on the average, live as long again as they would if they were all even very moderate drinkers of poisonous and nasty drinks, and a good deal better than that, this insurance will go to make very happy lives for many, very many, who if they learn to drink, have whole oceans and mountains and infinite depths of misery and agony and wretchedness and beggary in store for them.

The Good Templars of California are very anxious to insure the future welfare of the children of the state, and we want them all, every one, to come in and insure themselves in taking our pledges, joining our juvenile societies and setting out determinedly in a straitforward, decent, honest, sober life, free from the polluting, pauperizing, rag-and-dirt producing influences of the two filthy and hideous monster defilers, beer and tobacco.

Let us make a bid all along the whole line, for clean, honest, pure, virtuous, worthy, happy lives for all the children.

A DOCTORS TALK.

Dr. Andrew Clarke, presiding physician of one of largest hospitals in England gave a lecture in London, on the question of "alcohol as an enemy of the race."

He said he had to enquire into the habits of 10-000 people a year, and the relation of their habits to their health. Professing the extreme of caution as to any possible exaggeration of statement, he says seven of every ten of the patients he has seen owe their maladies entirely to the habit of using alcohol: not to drunkenness but to the daily use of it. The habitual drunkard who is sober between times is by no means the worst abuser of health.

He does not speak as a teetotaller: says he believes there is a minute, an "exceedingly minute" dose that can be habitually taken without any "obvious," sensibly prejudicial influence upon the human frame. But health, altho it may tolerate this very minute dose, can never be improved or benefitted thereby: he repeats the never with an emphasis. And further, he hopes all the rising generation will be total abstainers, because there is a kind of "bloom of health," a capacity to be joyous and happy, to delight in pleasant sights, pleasant sounds, in pleasant intercourse with friends. to be satisfied with life &c—which is always injured by alcohol: it produces always a discord in this happy state. (And here every friend and advocate of temperance and christianity should make a respectful and grateful obeisance to the worthy doctor for the appropriate utterance of that truth.)

He says there are some people born with unfortunate nervous conditions, always ailing, who feel a relief from the use of a little alcohol. They think they feel better for it. He says, he pities such people, and "commits his first and only heresy" in his practice with some such, by saying to them "take your little drop of beer, but take care you never go beyond it," and he says he has not observed that it seemed to hurt them. (It is presumed that is not a very frequent heresy of the worthy doctor.) He says he does not defend it; he only does what he thinks is best for them. But he continued, "health in my opinion, perfectly good health will always be injured even by small doses of alcohol—injured in the sense of its perfection and loveliness." He calls perfect health the loveliest thing in this world, "but alcohol even in small doses takes the bloom off and injures the perfection of loveliness of health, both mental and moral.

THREE FOURTHS.

More than three fourths, he says, of all the disorders in fashionable life arise from the use of this drug, and a greater mass of the evils which afflict mankind. This terrible fact brings a great responsibility upon those who, forgetful of the teachings of common experience, will stimulate people to keep themselves up with glasses of wine and glasses of beer.

And it is not the drinker alone who suffers, the desire for alcohol becomes a part of the drinkers nature, and he is handing it down, not for good, but for the most terrible evil that man can suffer, unto generations yet unborn. He concludes by saying he is tempted at times to give up everything, and go forth upon a holy crusade—preaching to all men,—Beware of this enemy of the race.

It is to be lamented we had not such a physician to attend President Garfield. He wonld doubtless have been out and perfectly restored long ere this. And when we think of Dr. Clarke's warnings about handing down this terrible iniquity and infamy to future generations, it would seem to be a very pardonable heresy, to teach the children of the Sabbath School what the Bible says about wine now and then, and not seal up for them its utterances on that question. Dr. Clarkes lecture would make an excellent tract for general distribution.

VITICULTURAL.

Good Templar Champagne. The inherent and inseparable thievish knavery which is part and parcel of the modern rumseller, has largely advertized in England of late a new temperance drink under the above title. With John B. Gough's name feloniously appended to it, it was advertized in temperance papers too and doubtless found ready sale at 50 cents a pint. It has been analyzed and found to be the most highly alcoholized champagne. It is composed of 13 per cent in volume of alcohol, 6 per cent of sugar, a little tartaric and sulphuric acid and 73 per cent of water; just like all other champagne and quite as intoxicating.

There is money in the manufacture of champagne both in England and California. Exclusive of the bottle, cork and label, and the water, the capital invested in the alcohol, sugar and tartaric acid which make a bottle of first class, high brand champagne wine, is just SEVEN CENTS. Made at that price and sold at anywhere from $1.50 to $3 or $4 a bottle, it is a pleasant and consoling business so far as profit is concerned. If the Sonoma vineyard men can produce it from grapes much under that figure, (7 cts.) they can compete with the glucose vineyards that bloom down cellar in San Francisco, winter and summer alike, and have 365 vintages a year. That is encouraging for the Anaheim, Napa and Sonoma growers of wine grapes.

The Geauga Leader, an Ohio exchange, a secular paper of strictest temperance principles, and an outspoken advocate of thr right side of temperance and morality, says:

"Decidedly the best printed and ablest edited newspaper we have ever seen, is The Rescue, the official organ of the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of California. * * * * *

The Temperanue cause has made glorious advances in California during the past 20 years. In 1861, when we commenced a five years residence in that State, the Good Templars had one lodge on the Pacific coast, at Santa Cruz. Now the order has hundreds of lodges, and owns an institution known as the "Good Templars Home for Orphans" which has cost upwards of $140,000. Over 100 orphan children are now being cared for within its walls. Besides the Good Templars there are the Dashaways—founded by F. E. R. Whitney—the S. of T., the Temperance Legion, Bands of hope, &c. &c., and we wish them all great prosperity."

The Leader's editorial force are W. J. Ford and Jas. A. Davidson. The latter will be remembered pleasantly by many, who like the writer, have heard him hold forth at Dashaway Hall where we sailors used, 20 years ago, to get our temperance principles polished up on Sunday evenings for another voyage. Pity the Dashaways are not up to the old mark. The complimentary allusion to the RESCUE is of course rather strong to be reproduced in this paper, but please let it go as an offset to the Healdsburg lady's opinion given last week, that it never has anything in it worth reading.

THE WATCHWORD, (England) repeats the letter which appeared sometime ago in the RESCUE from the W. C. T. of Wonderdorf Lodge, and somebody thinks its contents may be of interest to some lodges there.

FRUIT CULTURE.

A circular has been handed round, advising people of an enterprise to purchase and cultivate 1770 acres of land in the foot hills of El Dorado Co. where the climate and soil are best adapted for fruit culture. About 500 acres are now planted and doing well, with promise of large future increase. They talk of large money to be made from pears, peaches, apricots, currants &c but dont say wine once, probably because they know better than to be fooled with the wine delusion.

There can be no doubt of a grand future for the fruit interests of this State whenever we get a system of reasonable transportation, that allows the producer of merchantable freight an interest in his own crop.

There is one particular reason why this enterprise is commended to the readers of the RESCUE. This is not a paid or solicited advertisement or complimentary notice. But the name of George W. Frink appears at the head of the trustees; it is pretty sure if there was any wild cat in the enterprise, he could not have been roped into it, and it is more sure that he will never be found roping any one else into a foolish or fraudulent enterprise. It is proposed to sell 15,000 shares at $5 and those who desire further light may apply to 528 California St, office of the El Dorado Fruit company.

REGALIA.

When cheap john began his ministrations in the Good Templar fold, and started to make it a one cent Order, the abolition of regalia was a favorite move. One R. W. G. T. was credited with a promise to smash the degrees first and the regalia next, provided he should be elected, and he did his best to destroy both; but he did not do anything else to build up the Order. Altho he has been one of the ablest and most sincere prohibitionists, he could not see that degrees, signs, regalia helped him any, and supposed they could not be of any advantage to other people.

It may be proper to hope that every California and Pacific Coast lodge will give a unanimous solid vote against this contemptible project of more tinkering: let cheap john keep within the jurisdictions he has reduced from 30, and 40,000 down to 2 and 3000. We dont want to make his acquaintance. In two years if the metallic badge was substituted we should have to vote again on the proposition to substitute sheepskin for metallic, if the former is cheaper.

THE BEER QUESTION.

The National Temperance Society has just published a pamphlet of fifty-five pages upon "The Beer Question." by Mr. A. M. Powell. Among the topics treated are: "Alcohol in Beer"; Beer and the Stronger Liquors"; "Beer and Disease"; "The Beer Waste"; "Beer, Immorality and Irreligion"; "Beer and Crime"; "Beer Abroad"; "Beer and Politics"; and "The Remedy." It is designed to answer some of the assumptions of the brewers, and to meet the need of additional testimony, home and foreign, concerning an important phase of the temperance reform. Price, 10 cents. Address J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

The N. Y. Herald is preaching a temperance sermon every now and then. Is Saul also among the prophets? The answer may be given, yes. This is one of the last:

"Who of us needs to be told that drinking is on the increase? Boys in down town offices swig their beer before they light their cigarets. Laboring men along the wharves take their rot-gut as regularly as they take their pipe. Look in any or all of our great restaurants. The receipts of the bar exceed the expenses of the entire establishment. It does not follow that all men who drink are or are liable to become drunkards, but it certainly is a fact that no man who does not drink can ever become a drunkard. Old-fashioned parents in the country would be apt to open their eyes if they were to spend an hour in one of the palatial barrooms of this city. Can a nation already enfeebled and effeminated by smoking, long endure the strain of drink? What kind of children will the next generation be?

SCOTLAND.—The Grand Lodge I. O. G. T. have petitioned the government of G. B. for total prohibition of the liquor traffic: and that petition will not be in vain: no matter how many follow it, it is the first petition, the first act, the first vote that wins the victory.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c. Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.— By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c. This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c.; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALES ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAITURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,

54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

That some of the weaker sex should be deemed worthy to occupy thrones, and others fully their equals, if not superiors, intellectually, morally and spiritually, be denied a franchise which we grant to professional spoil-seekers, rum-venders and other slime of society, simply for their being males, is certainly not consistent with our "equal rights" theories. If dis-franchisement is expected to be a guardian against corrupt influences, it should be directed against corruption, and certainly not against sex. It is not difficult to find more true patriotism, intelligence and love of principle in a single woman than a ward full of habitual politicians. (Which, by the way, is saying very little.)

It is said, "woman should rule by her virtue and graces; that her weakness is her strength; that her tears (shed on proper occasions) are mightier than the torrents of oratorical eloquence and the tidal waves of political booms; that contact with electioneering ways and by-ways would defile all we hold dear in her, and that she cannot fight for the United States."

It may be answered: that with all these disadvantages and natural differences, she is doubly entitled to vote—vote as she pleases for defense of such rights and privileges as God has endowed her with; which every man should respect; and which envy or cowardice alone questions. It is natural that man should prefer dominion and superior political privileges over woman. It does not appear that he can hold his own without such. Nor always with such. In fact he seems to "wilt" at the very prospect of equal rights with the weaker sex. He chooses martyrdom of utter corruption by monopoly of the polls to honest and square competition with her, whose strength is in her weakness, for political empire.

If no greater prize offers but daily bread and raiment, he will vote it for himself. Woman can weep.

Whoever saw a Digger Indian riding on his pony and his squaw plodding behind with about 200 weight strapped to her back, and is not reminded of our anti-woman suffrage savage?

But some women dont want to vote!

They can leave it undone when they have a legal right to assert their views and opinions thru the polls. Not every one of us goes to law to receive his own. For all this, it is well that we may do so when we desire.

It is very possible that woman suffrage will curtail the liberties of man to make a beast of himself; that it will teach him that there is more power and security in intelligent votes than in bearing arms; that our political cess-pools are of his making, and need, its cleansing influence; and that it can inaugurate reforms he has thus far boasted about bravely.

Nevertheless, it is impossible to tell what Mrs. Brown will not vote for, or against, to spite Mrs. Smith over the way for wearing a bonnet she can't afford. It is this uncertainty which troubles most—regarded from a philosophical standpoint.

J. C. K.

WINE MORALITY.—However bad may be the moral effects of drinking wine, its manufacture and sale seem to affect people very curiously. At Baden the three partners of a large wine house were sentenced to a fine of 1,000 marks each and three months jail and all their stock of wine confiscated for fabricating wine. If all the wine fabricators in the U. S. were similarly treated there would be a large demand for new jail room.

LIVERMORE lodge is reported in lively condition and exercising a good influence in the community. 20 applicants for membership after Mrs. Stevens lecture. Our informant says nothing about a Band of Hope or how much if any temperance literature or other educational material is being made use of.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

The Executive Committee of the Prohibition Reform Party will meet in Vallejo, October 4th, for the transaction of such business as may come before it; and all those who believe in independent political action for the prohibition of the liquor traffic, are cordially invited to attend, and by their presence and counsel give direction to such action as will best accomplish the object above stated.

If any are unable to attend personally, let them communicate with the Corresponding Secretary, Rev. George Morris, West End, Alameda County, Cal.

M. C. WINCHESTER, Chairman.

"WISDOM'S WAYS."

The National Temperance Society has just published an excellent concert exercise, "Wisdom's Ways," by Hope Hazel. Composed of scripture responsive texts and well-selected recitations. It is especially adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, and juvenile temperance and religious organizations. It is deserving of a wide circulation, and those desirous of giving such an exercise would do well to send for a copy for examination. 12mo, 8 pages, 3 cents, single copies; 36 cents per dozen, sent post paid. Address J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dowing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531; Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St., San Francisco, Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Red Bluff, ex-officio.

Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

NOT HYPOCRITES.—The Chronicle and others resent the action of the managers of the Sacramento horse gambling and poker and strap game orgies in continuing their saturnalia of debauchery on Tuesday and paying no regard to the national calamity.

It may be doubted whether they do not rather deserve credit for their absence of hypocrisy on that occasion. With the exception of some honest farmers who went there to exhibit their products and see those of others, and some honest, innocent people who went there under the delusion that the fair had some relation to the encouragement of agriculture—the parties at the saturnalia assembled for a grand gambling tournament; gamblers of every type from the most respectable and moral to the most outrageous outlaws and depraved thieves were congregated from all parts of the state for a grand idol worship and a feast of plunder. They cared nothing for nation or president, and it would have been a hypocritical mockery to drive the gambling all indoors and deprive the out door sharps of their fair share of the booty.

The Chronicle says even the beer halls in this city closed on that day; indicating that even the vilest of vile resorts exhibited a better spirit on the occa than the state Bunco committee.

IT is a great comfort to know that Chicago has 38 temperance organizations against 5000 or 6000 grog-shops.

Dr. Depierris two pamphlets on the Tobacco curse, for sale here 25 cents each; startling facts.

A ROMAN Catholic priest is reported as renouncing the Cath. faith in the Methodist Church in Rome: but it appears the moving principle of the step was the hostility of the pope.

There's no music in a 'rest" that I know of, but there's the making of music in it. And people are always missing that part of the life-melody, always talking of perseverance, and courage, and fortitude; but patience is the finest and worthiest part of fortitude, and the rarest, too.—Ruskin.

That is good news. The very last thing to allow the devil to control is the Sunday schools and the Sunday school lessons. If temperance can be kept out of the Sunday schools, there is little danger to Satan's kingdom to be apprehended from that quarter; from that great center of power that might be used for God and humanity.

Reader, rear your own monument, not of huge piles of granite or marble, but of noble acts. Live not for self alone, but also for the good of others. Seize your opportunities as they pass, so that your good deeds may be as the stars of heaven, or the sand upon the wave-washed shore. "A good name is better than precious ointment.—At Home.

And what monument can ever do you as much good, as the consciousness that your life has made the world better than it was.

PLYMOUTH. church, Chicago, has taken a very practical way of testifying to its belief in the necessity of systematic temperance instruction in Sunday Schools. Finding that the Sunday School Times persistently refused to publish the lessons prepared upon this subject, the school connected with Plymouth church voted to discontinue the use of the Sunday School Times and its helps, and to substitute therefore the National S. S. Teacher, which does publish these lessons.

This church puts the W. C. T. U. upon its list of benevolent objects for contributions alongside of missions, home and foreign, to receive contributions once each year.—Signal.

The Fayetteville District Conference, Arkansas, pledging itself to the overthrow of the liquor traffic says, "We believe that God, in a most signal manner, is now calling upon his church to shake off her complicity, and break her league with this throne of iniquity, in order to the freedom of mankind from a yoke so galling and to the more glorious coming of His Kingdom."

Church after church is coming to adopt the most extreme "fanaticisms" that used to be sole property of the temperance agitators and classed among their exaggerations. By the way we have not heard lately of these exaggerations of temperance advocates, and a reward of $1,000 might safely be offered for one that has ever been made.

TAKE this announcement: The crimnals within prison walls are the true, practical reformers. They do not understand reform but they sense it, and sensing it they act upon it. And the rapid increase of this class is one of the most hopeful signs of the times. ',If this be treason make the most of it." Yes, they sense it. They are so organized in freedom they can do nothing but live it. They are in the position of old John Brown who was a criminal, until society became sufficiently criminal to justify his criminality. What we call the criminal tendency, is inborn scorn of authority; and violation of law is a slap in the face of usurpation. They feel the full meaning of that aphorism—than which nothing is truer—that the world owes every man a living;' and being bolder than the rest of us they dare take it.—Greenbacker.

That is probably so, for in 1869 an inmate of the Stocton lunatic asylum gravely informed the writer (who was only there an hour as a visitor and reporter) that there were no crazy people there on the inside; it was the people outside, he said, who were insane. With such grand reform principles as announced above, the Greenback business is bound to achieve a history.

BEFORE you read an article of a colum or two on the necessity of woman suffrage or woman's rights, with a displayed heading, look near the latter end and see if you dont see the words "safe and kidney Warner" and you will escape a sell.

A LITTLE girl in an English Juvenile Temple has brot 13 men and women, most of the men sailors, into a sub-lodge and a reformed life. A thousand Bands of Hope in good working order in this State would be a better and stronger force than 1000 regiments of military.

J. K. FELIX writes that the saloon leprosy no longer defiles the Sabbath at Sebastopol; the lodge gains every week and good people feel rejoiced at the prospect of peace when the law of God is obeyed. But they ought not to think of rejoicing too much as long as the saloon temple of Satan is licensed to blaspheme God and murder mankind from the President down on six days of the week.

THE little story published in verse by the Monterey Californian, describing a baggage smasher who practiced his vocation on a small trunk,

> But that trunk so small and light,
> Had been filled with dynamite, and the baggage smasher went into instant somewhere without leaving any remains to be scraped up, is one of the most cheerful things ever written: it ends so charmingly and satisfactorily that one is tempted to wish he could see it duplicated almost any day at a safe distance.

IN Great Britain during the year ending Sept. 30, 1881. 73.000 tons of sugar were wasted in brewing beer. In 1856 there was only 895 tons. There is a large amount of sugar used in Cal. to make wine and there will be much more soon if all goes well. Grapes are entirely unneessary to make wine and brandy. Thistles, cactus, potatoes, anything that has sugar in it or starch that can be converted into sugar, will make alcohol when rotted, and with a little doctoring will make all the choice qualities of wine, just exactly the same as the choicest grapes do when they are decayed and putrified.

IT is estimated that thirty thousand people are turned out of the church in England every year, and fifty thousand in America because of strong drink. Christians and the sons and daughters of Christians are just as likely to become drunkards and wrecks if they drink at all, as any other class of people.

And in spite of all this devilish work of rum in and out of the church, there is a numerous class of men in the church so prejudiced against temperance, that they never mention the word favorably but strenuously resist anything being said or done in their churches or Sunday schools to save the rising generation from the fiery furnace of rum which Satan is preparing for them.

The country needs a higher standard of political morality than it has now. It can be had by shattering existing parties to an extent that will convince them that a political party without a moral basis is a political sham. The temperance question now offers the best means within the reach of the people to bring the politicians to their senses. Prohibition is a moral question. It is also a question of political economy. It seeks to prohibit the curse of crime, pauperism, suffering, and of high taxes. Prohibition is the people's friend, the guardian of happiness and peace, and the promoter of true Republican liberty.—N. Y. Sun.

That is an entirely different tune from what the political papers used to sing. It is refreshing to see how many of them are pitching their voices to take a hand in the new music.

OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM.

If it is corrupt, surely it is not the fault of the system. Shallow thinkers are notably hasty in charging every sin imaginable to systems not contributive or apparently antagonistic to their pocket, nerves, self-glory, conceit, or other egotistic interests. Sometimes such people imagine they are actuated by religious or humanitarian motives; and even if they live to see that their favorite hobbies established are no more pooof against corruptive influences than the system "just ousted," it will not convert the fool from his folly.

Now the law is filled with organized frames—skeletons, lifeless and spiritless, hopeless and useless toward changing anything for the better. All these were born, cradled and nourished in and with a spirit which ever flies with the first attempt to bottle it up, and trust for safe keeping thereof, to the intrinsic merit of the system. Earth is covered with wrecks of these idols once deified, then distrusted, next treated as the heathen of old treated his noncomplying wooden gods, or modern scientific hottentots treat their worn out sensational theories.

The government of the United States, desirous of educating its future citzens up to a standard of utilitarian knowledge, ensuring at least a fair prospect to compete successfully with other nations for the good things of earth, has taken upon itself the authority and responsibility of an angel of God. More, it is deity in itself—unanswerable (constitutionally) to no one and nobody for correctness or incorrectness of its means and measures for the above end. It simply trusts in the merit of its good intent for justification and approval by its constituents. It ignores all sectarian gods, and any other in its political creed. It hopes to establish mundane prosperity and happiness, moral integrity and intellectual progress by a system of compulsory education; positively ignoring spiritual culture and instruction. True, it permits all manner of religious teachings and trainings outside of its paternal schoolroom. It never questions competency of teachership for reason of belief or faith. It does not object to the Christian teacher's silent prayer for the pupil, nor yet to the sneers and scoffs of the infidel teacher at all religion before the children. But it expects its pupil to understand the nature of an oath, and keep it a sacred and binding pledge when administered in courts of justice or in allegiance to its authority.

It does not exactly monopolize time and opportunity, mental faculty and capability of the world. But it presumes to punish transgressions against laws it never teaches, against ethics never mastered by intuition and against conscience (as in case of perjury) it virtually slays by masterly inactivity as regards the most paramount object of all bona fide education.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge. And yet our school system lives. Better systems for holier ends have come to grief.

Truly it is not the intrinsic merit of the former that prevents its early demise. Its father may be said was the desire to be just; its mother contempt for sectarian idolatry. U. S. would avenge the blood of martyrs, slain by God-professing and God-hating conceits; would prove the possibility of reconciliation between religious liberty and moral progress by snubbing the spirit of ecclesiastical self-glorification and infallibility; and succeeded in a manner which threatens to swamp sooner or later our penitentaries with educated criminals, and our honorary places of public trust by politicians without conscience, honor or honesty. Show us the least worthy of respect that for his moral integrity, sense of honor or uprightness thanks our educational system. If there be one, he had a god-fearing teacher—one who took more interest in the people than salaries may purchase; gave instruction in things U. S. never pays for.

But we, the majority, love this collective personality for his many (altho so often blundering) endeavors, not only to be just to all, but also good. Thus we bear with his shortcomings in due patience and all his people try to make up deficiencies of our school system by giving good advice to and setting as god-fearing an example as circumstances would admit before our rising generation. To do this for nothing being one of our inalienable rights guaranteed by the constitution of the U. S. and the declaration of independence.

It is natural for those in the outer darkness to gnash their teeth at taxation never more convertible into means to justify the end of sectarian conceits and pious covetousness. Of two evils choose the least. Neither Moses nor Jesus of Nazareth set a price upon his teachings, and bibles can be had for ten cents a piece. The streets of perdition are paved with orthodox and most exemplary sermons.

Nevertheless it would be well to append the sermon on the mount as the sixteenth amendment to the constitution of the U. S., and head the declaration of independence with the ten commandments and the Lord's prayer. The true import of either of those two documents would be thus made clearer and more comforting to those that sit in darkness as to their moral intent and spiritual aspiration.

Next hang a copy of each (thus made perfect) over and above the blackboard in each schoolroom. Then devote two hours each day to impress such upon the minds and hearts of pupils expected to suffer sooner or later for every transgression against the statutes of God or man; if only to let them know what they are punished for.

J. C. Kastner.

A WORD FOR OUR LECTURERS.

Their work is "high and arduous." They ought to have the hearty sympathy, the cordial co-operation and a manifested appreciation of every lodge and of every member. They labor under many disadvantages and difficulties. I know whereof I speak; therefore I mention some of these and of how they may be avoided and overcome.

I presuppose that the lecturer is not only earnest and fluent, but also observant and possessed of tact, foresight and executive ability. He will find one great difficulty to be the want of thoro advertizing. He should not depend wholly on lodge deputies or committees, but send a postal card a sufficient time ahead of his visit, to each Sec. or L. D. editor, minister and teacher; reminding them of his lectures and askiug them to announce them as fully as possible.

The W. C. T. of each lodge should appoint committees on publishing the appointments; on preparing room; on music and program and on reception. An item or two on this last committee. Few who have not tried it, know how chilling and discouraging it is to a lecturer to step off the cars or stage a veritable "stranger in a strange land," with no one to receive or welcome him. To the public and himself he appears to be friendless and without brethren or sisters. Outsiders and new members of the lodge are sure to underrate his standing and ability and the importance of his work, if no one takes the time to be on hand with a friendly greeting. I have more than once been in towns where a G. L. of the Odd Fellows, Masons, Knights of Pythias or Grangers lodge has come to instruct the lodge or lecture to the people, and I have marked the way in which the official has been met, attended, introduced and helped.

An influential committee of one or more, has been ready to meet and take him in charge; he has been shown to comfortable apartments and afforded an opportunity to rest and refresh himself. Brethren have been introduced; he has been taken round and made acquainted with the leading citizens, the editor, doctors, merchants, lawyers &c. At his rooms others have been brot to be introduced. He is driven round to see the town and country and especially the schools; he is made acquainted with the teachers and afforded an opportunity to address the scholars, and his escort or the teacher announces his meetings, if public. So by the time he is ready to lecture the public interest and curiosity are aroused, a good impression is made.

Not unfrequently some of the more active members and officers of the lodge gather and spend some time in posting him as to the status of the lodge, its estimation in the public mind, its advantages, needs and difficulties. And so in speaking he does not have to "draw a bow at a venture."

If the order he represents publishes a paper, an official organ, he has the best possible chance to urge its being taken, and he can soon discover whom he can press into the service to aid him in gaining subscribers. After he has left, his address is studiously made the theme of public conversation by members of the lodge, and the newspapers give a respectable report.

But I have seen Grand Lecturers of the I. O. G. T. duly accredited, visit towns to lecture. Their experience sometimes, happily not always, seems about thus; no one meets them: they go to a hotel and register; no one calls on them; they look over the local paper and find it silent as the grave about any lecture; call on the editor who never heard of it, no one took the trouble to inform him or he would gladly and gratuitously have published it. Goes to the school and advertises his meetings and finds out who are the officers of the lodge; sees no placards, not even a written notice at the post office. At last he finds, or is found by some of the members who accompany him to the meeting, small of course, with no enthusiasm, poor music, and the whole thing almost a failure. And he leaves without reaching the public ear, with no additions to the membership, no subscribers to the Rescue, and with little or no contribution to the lecture fund.

The above is submitted not as a sample of the average, but yet the too frequent way of responding to the Grand Lodges liberal expenditure in sending its best lecture talent to small towns and weak lodges. That it may be a reminder to those who need it, but who, alas probably do not read the Rescue, it is respectfully submitted in F. H. and C. by one who has been in the Lecture Field.

JOTTINGS.

REV. W. C. KING

A few days since we found ourselves at the supper table of a so-called hotel in a town that consisted of three buildings, the hotel, a store and a barn. On our left at the table was the teacher of a school one mile distant, and on the right the clerk in the store. It was Saturday evening, and we were a long way from the R. R line, which must be reached on Monday. The conversation which furnishes our moral in this jotting, began something on this wise. "So your one stage per week to Mt.—— leaves each Sabbath morning! Is there no limit to Sabbath desecration in California?" "Oh, you will soon become accustomed to it; of course when one has just come from the states, it seems strange. I know I used to go to Sunday-school, and be the prize boy at learning verses when back East; but I've got bravely over it. It's been a good many years since I heard a sermon." So said the clerk, and as we looked him full in the face and was noting its really fine features, he met our gaze, colored slightly and added: "Yes, I counted myself quite a model boy back home; but California air is bad for eastern boys. Not that I enjoy this style; I have to do the hardest work of the week on Sunday; but scarce one passes but I long for the old day of rest. "Oh" said I mentally, "another used-to-be."

"Look here, my friend, you are just from the states," spoke up the teacher; "well you will find before you have been here long, that if a man has a weak point or anything bad in his constitution, that California life will make it plain. There are few counter influences here to hold him in check: few inducements to cover up and put the best side out as at the East. Now, about this Sunday observance; I suppose you are a strong believer in the Sabbath of our fathers?" Receiving an emphatic answer in the affirmative, he proceeded. "But what are you going to do? One man cant do anything against the masses; it's all one way."

"Surely," we reply, "he will effect no change by going with them." "Consider this case tho," he quickly added. "Here is a ranch man with 20 men and 40 horses and his grain ripening. Shall he let all lie idle and the day be lost?' We answered by citing the testimony of just such a ranchman with whom we stopped the preceding night to the effect that his men and horses did more and better work for the one day's rest out of seven than his neighbor's who gave none but sought to grasp all. Nor was this all. His teams, he asserted, were in much better flesh, and that after being fed less grain than were those who had been given no respite. "Well, but how about the boys who are herding out on the plains, what will you do with their sheep while they observe the Sabbath?"

"We do not assert that it is absolutely possible for all men to rest; but we do claim that there can be a general cessation of business; that the great mass of this violation of the laws of God and man are both uncalled for and sinful; and added to all this are doing violence to the demands of nature."

"How can I stop while ranch men make it a practice to come for the week's supply on Sunday?" asked the clerk. "That we replied is all a matter of habit, which can and will be changed when the force of influence is brot to bear." "Aye, there's the rub triumphantly asserted the teacher. "With whom is this force of influence to originate? You are a minister, but I cant help that. The church is derelict —is rotten on this very question; the members fall right in, wink at it, try as hard as we outsiders to make it turn to their advantage; they, as a rule, dont try to change the customs, and I believe dont want them changed. Mind you, I am no heathen. I love the Sabbath of my youth and I keep it in the grand old-fashioned way when I am where the preaching isn't too thin; but I assert that the church must shoulder a large share of the responsibility for this Sabbath violation."

"Surely you are prejudiced and are exaggerating," we answered, "and are charging against a majority the faults of a small minority." "Very well; you will see for yourself in time;" and there the discussion rested.

The following morning we were seated near the store door when a ranchman's buggy drove up, and as he passed the teacher he asked, going to S. S to-day. Mr. F.? Receiving a negative answer, he bustled up to the counter and proceeded to order an extensive bill. There was an inconsistency in his course that we found it difficult to reconcile, so we watched him curiously. When a little later he had entered the wareroom with the clerk, the gentleman turned to us and said:

"There is a practical illustration of what I was asserting last evening. That man is the leading member of this church down here. This is no exceptional case, but his usual practice. Now I want to know, to whom are we to look for the force of influence you speak of, to close this store and bring about Sabbath observance in this community? Here is this man professing to be an example, compelling as far as he is concerned, this clerk to violate the laws of God and man against his will, so that he shall have the privilege of being a lawbreaker himself. If you ministers preach one thing and the members practice another, which do you expect us worldlings to follow. What respect can I have, can this clerk have for such a man's prayers or exhortations? And this is not an exceptional member; so what respect can we have for the church?" What did we answer? We simply hoped he was drawing the case too severely, and walked away.

This hope we still cherish; but are also of the firm opinion that the larger responsibility for the crime and Sabbath desecration in this state lies at the door of the church. I could answer my chance acquaintance's arguments, but the influence of that professor's practice upon him and others I could not meet.

It is said that a leading infidel author once pointed out an obscure washer woman whose life was very exemplary, saying, "I can answer every argument these theologians can advance, but that woman's life is beyond the reach of my logic. It is living testimony that I cannot gainsay." What we need is perchance not less preaching, but more true living. We may legislate our statute books full of laws, but the Lord's Day will be no more honored than now until those who profess to serve him revere and keep it. We may pray for the suppression of Sabbath desecration and the drink traffic from now until domesday, but all will be unchanged if we do not live as we pray.

One lately asked in your columns: "why attack the church?" We answer, because the lives of its members in so many cases lay it open to attack. Preaching is one thing; but woe to society when practice is quite another, and the opposite. We would cast no discredit upon the ministers and laity who aid our cause and second our effort; yet when all is said they have simply done their duty. It is the duty of every moral person, peace loving citizen to do this; then how much more of a Christian? When they fail to do this they are especially recreant. When however their practice gives the lie to the teachings of the Bible and pulpit, they are traitors and hypocritical.

An humble, consistent, praying church, such is a power for good and a blessing to any community. A dead, inconsistent, wicked church, such ought to be attacked, is a power for evil that Satan may well delight to wield, and is a curse to pure religion and the best interests of humanity.

To my fellow ministers I say, consider the apostles words: "For if the trumpet give an uncertain sound who shall prepare himself for battle," and from the closet go forth and preach close nipping sermons; sermons that arouse to right action, to noble consistent living. All others are worse than failures.

C. L. S. C. TO GOOD TEMRLARS.

Below is a synopsis of the work of the Chautauqua Circle for 1881–1882. Any number of persons can form a circle, and meet at stated times to read or talk over what has been read. The membership dues are 50 cts. for one year, and the Chautauquan, a monthly paper containing most of the work is $1.-50 per year. If desirable several persons can arrange to use the same books and papers. Circulars and information can be obtained by addressing Miss Mary E. B. Norton, San Jose, Cal.

The work should commence soon and the C. L. S. C. hopes to welcome many Good Templars to its ranks. SARAH M. SEVERANCE.

C. L. S. C COURSE OF STUDY.

The following is the distribution of the subjects and books thru the year 1881–82.

W. C. T. OF WONDERDORF. The complaint of our Dutch friend is answered in the Watchword by W. M. L. a contributor to that paper.

He thinks the W. C. T. assisted by the membership can remedy the matter by firmness and decision in not allowing one member to monopolize the whole of every debate. Call upon some other brother always to give his views, and when "old cantankerous" feels his power to annoy taken away from him, he will settle down, into a decent quiet and really serviceable member as W. M. L. has seen many a time.

JOHN WESLEY preached during 65 years 40,000 sermons, wrote 48 volumes of books, traveled 270,-000 miles, not in a Pullman Car at 50 miles an hour, but in a one horse wagon or a coach or on foot at 2 to 6 miles an hour. He did not smoke; drank no alcoholic liquor; rarely touched tea or coffee. When he was 44 years old he wrote "Dr. Cheyne advised me to leave off meat and wine and since I have taken his advice I have been free from all bodily disorders." Of course he drank wine in his early manhood till he learned better. Scarcely any one in England in his day had at all suspected that wine was not a necessary of life.

THE G. W. C. T. of England has sent a circular to Lodges insisting that the readings, recitations singing &c in the lodges shall have some refereuce to or bearing upon our work. It is thot that the abolition of the tin pan melodies and banjo good of the Order will interest the brains of the order in in the real lodge work and keep the people of taste and culture from withdrawal or non-attendance.

LODGE FURNITURE.

In addition to the above, I will attend to orders for Impression Seals, Blank Books, Special Printing, Regalia or Lodge Furniture. This will be done as an accommodation to Lodges and not as a source of profit either to the Grand Lodge or myself; hence all orders filled will be sent per express by the dealers, with instructions to "collect on delivery," unless the money accompanies the order. Address—

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, G. W. S.,

GREENVILLE.—Under date of 17th, inst. Bro. T. R. Chapin of Greenville, Plumas Co. writes "Col. C. N. Goulding left us yesterday having given us three lectures, Sabbath morning and evening and Monday evening. He has proved to be the right man in the right place, and here at the right time. The meetings proved a complete success in every way. On Monday evening the De Vere sisters attempted to give an entertainment but had to give up, having only seven out we were informed, while the M. E. Church was crowded. Three collections amounted to $51,05, 32 names to the G. T. Our new hall will be completed in a short time, it will be one of the best buildings in the town and I think very few lodges in the State own as fine a piece of property as we will have. The building is 26x60 feet, 26 feet high giving us two stories each 12 feet high in the clear. Main hall 25x43 feet, two anterooms 10 feet wide, one about 10x13 and the other 10x12. The entrance is at the back end of the building by a double door hung with patent hinges so as to allow them to swing either way, stairway 5 feet wide. As we have a corner lot it gives us an entrance from the street. Over the stairway is a little room 5x7 ft. to be used for wardrobe &c. A committee has been appointed consisting of two members from each of the three lodges in this (Indian Valley) to take action in reference to enforcing the Sunday law.

IN MEMORIAM.

Copy of preamble and resolutions adopted at a meeting of No. 291, "International" Lodge, Independent Order of Good Templars, held at their hall in the city of San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 26, 1881.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, in infinite wisdom, to remove by death James A. Garfield, the President of the United States; and,

WHEREAS, The eminent services he has rendered to his country, as a soldier and a statesman; his heroic fortitude under the most excruciating physical martyrdom, as well as his high character as a scholarly and Christian gentlemen, never surpassed in the history of the world; has left to us an example worthy of all emulation; and,

WHEREAS, It is appropriate at all times that, while humbly submitting to the will of Him who doeth all things well, we should make just recognition and acknowledgement in the most ample and enduring form of those exalted virtues illustrated in the life and labor of our dead President. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of James A. Garfield, the President of the United States, the country has suffered a great and irreparable loss; society a beautiful ornament; civil liberty an heroic champion; Christianity a noble exemplar, and the world one of the most conscientious, able and zealous defenders of the right—that adorn the pages of its history.

Resolved, That the earnest prayers and sympathies of the members of this lodge, in their affliction, be communicated to the wife, the mother, and others of the family of the late President.

Resolved, That a copy of this preamble and resolutions be spread upon the records of this lodge.

MILO P. HOLMES, Worthy Chief Templar.

WORTHY DOCTORS:—An instance occurred a few days ago of the beneficent influence of whisky prescribing doctors—A reformed inebriate, one of the first whites born in California, after being a member of a lodge about five weeks, was taken with some disorder of the stomach which caused him painful sensations. He applied to a doctor who knew all about his condition and history, but at once recommended "ginger and whisky," which the patient was fool enough to take, and the result was very soon a crazy mad-man running thru the streets. And a charitable remark running among the Pharisees, "That is a nice specimen of a Good Templar." Such doctors ought to be laid on the shelf as fossil curiosities that used to have a deadly, fatal sting, but now are out of business. Better have no doctor at all, than employ one of them; much better chance of the recovery of the patient with no doctor than with a poison dispensing quack.

Judging from the numbers of old casks being repaired and hauled round and deposited at the various glucose cellars, the vintage of the city wine compounders is going to be productive this season. The grapes ripen in the down cellar city vineyards every day of the year and there is never any danger of a short crop. That is the kind of vineyard to invest in; some of them grow ten or twenty thousand dollars worth of wine a year, on a little strip of vineyard 20x40 feet, and a water faucet; copious irrigation is the secret of success.

SALEM, Oregon, recently met with a serious loss in the death of W. M. Vandevert, one of the pillars of Rosa Lodge No. 39: earnest, active and faithful, he was ever ready to sacrifice self, and to render any assistance to the progress of our great and holy cause. Mrs. E. M. Vandevert his widow is general superintendent of J. Work in Oregon.

By the way it might be a generous and righteous move for our G. L. to lend some little aid to the Band of Hope movement in Oregon. Wont somebody move it at the coming session?

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

J. W. WEBB.

Bro. W D Gould very thoughtfully called a meeting of delegates from all lodges in the county for consultation before I started out lecturing. The plan is to be commended as it brings lecturers and representatives of lodges together in friendly counsel, and all become better posted about what is required of each. Co-operation was thus secured, especially on the enforcement of the Sunday law by the country lodges.

Merrill Lodge has a noble band of brothers and sisters, who work unwearily for its success. They bought an eligible corner lot for a handsome hall; have it graded and a brick foundation partly laid. To increase their funds they secured the privilege of running the restaurant at the pavilion.

At Santa Monica, owing to removals and other causes ihe lodge is not meeting just now.

Invited Good Templars to remain for consultation, and we decided to lecture again on the last Monday of the month and revive the lodge.

Santa Ana is a beautiful place; good soil and climate; an orange, grape, fig and general fruit belt. Good audiences both nights; with more heads of families aiding the earnest band of young folks now in the lodge, and with more readers of temperance literature, the cause would flourish grandly, Hope to hear of increased membership. But few take the RESCUE or any temperance paper. Hall rent is a heavy expense. Brethren met me at the depot, provided a very pleasant stopping place and drove me over to next appointment at Westminster. Here the lodge seems earnest and interested; good attendance. Congregational church well filled at union meeting on Sunday night. Rev. F. T. Robinson and Bro. Jacobus took part in the meeting. This is a temperance colony, but some individual, (I dont say a man) has started a rum or beer shop. He is very little patronized except by transient customers.

They ought to freeze him out, or otherwise get rid of him.

Bro. Clark kindly drove me over to Anaheim and back, on Sunday. This is a forlorn, gloomy looking place, where no lodge or Band of Hope seems able to live. It is given over to wine making, largely peopled by foreigners, who bring and cultivate their wine and lager drinking habits, and involve almost the whole community directly or indirectly, men, women and children in the wine business. There are some good people; two English and one German Sunday-schools that I visited were small but earnestly carried on, and my audiences, tho small, were very attentive. I canvassed the subject of lodge, Band of Hope and RESCUE, but received no encouragement for either.

Oh, this curse of wine making! It grows like an onward rolling death cloud threatening to eclipse other communities besides Anaheim. Grapes are easily grown; a small capital suffices. There is a ready cash market for them at wineries. Many who will not make, buy, sell or furnish wine to others will be tempted to compromise with conscience thus, I only raise the harmless grapes and sell them; it is none of my business what is done with them. But when drunkenness, family misery, idleness, poverty murder and suicide inevitably follow; surely as effect succeeds cause, it will be impossible for those who raised and sold grapes expressly for wine making, to clear ttemselves of a grave responsibility, blood will be found upon their hands and skirts, and guilt upon their consciences. Local option as preparatory to prohibition is earnestly called for by many in those parts.

A good temperance young man, Mr. W. H. Gage, drove me to Orange. I have had no success as yet in starting Bands of Hope, tho I visit all the schools and talk on the subject to those interested. On a second round I think Bands could be organized at most places, as I have prepared the way and am somewhat acquainted. I may safely say the lodges visited were needing some help, encouragement and public speaking.

C. N. GOULDING.

Early in the month of August our G. W. S. informed me that it had been decided that it had been decided by the powers that be to send me on a tour of observation thru the northern counties of the state, and he very facetiously observed, "you can have a good time, and will be enabled to see the country." After riding in the slow going stage coach nearly seven hundred miles, I am decidedly of the opinion that I have "seen the country, and am quite satisfied with the stage coach of our grand fathers and do not wish to add to my stock of information in that regard.

Leaving the railroad at Wheatland on the 10th of August, I gradually worked my way northward thru the counties of Yuba, Nevada, Sierra, Plumas, Lassen into Modoc, have delivered fifty-two lectures, traveled nearly one thousand miles, addressed six thousand people, secured 75 additional names for membership, and upon the whole am well satisfied with the trip. To an old Californian it would be useless to say anything regarding the mining regions and the influences at work, nearly all detrimental to the cause of temperance . There are influences and peculiarities belonging to this state that exist in no other state in the Union. In early days thousands left their homes in the East for California, each one certain that he would acquire immense wealth, thrown together, a mixed population having no law save lynch law, no schools or churches, they became a law unto themselves. Saloons and gambling houses, houses of prostitution, all that was bad and devilish lived and flourished, for years this condition of things existed. Gradually a change was being brought about, and slowly but surely the northern counties are (———?) for the past and coming to the front, and our cause is gaining ground. One very noticeable feature is the desire to enforce the Sunday law, and wherever this is done the friends of temperance observe a change for the better: for the truth is that nearly one half of the saloons could not exist were it not for the Sunday traffic in liquor.

Nearly every place I visit I am asked this question: why dont they send Mrs. Stevens up here? It is gratifying to observe the strong hold that sister Stevens has upon our friends, but until there is some very decided improvement in the methods of traveling, it is safe to assume that sister Stevens will not venture out. It requires a strong and vigorous constitution to journey along by stage, the towns often 50 and 75 miles apart over the roughest of roads.

My usual height is 5 foot 9½: if you should observe (at the Grand Lodge) that I have diminished in stature, you may conclude that it has been owing to contact with rocks, stumps, gullies, ditches, etc., etc.

I had thought of saying a word about the snow capped mountains, about Lassen, Butte and Shasta, deep ravines and mountain grades, canyons, sparkling rills, etc., etc., all of which you will please take for granted as the romance of the trip has been entirely knocked out of me.

In my humble way I have tried to uphold the standard with what result time will tell.

F. J. CULVER.

In my two previous letters several errors occur, some cause me to make false statements. I hope the friends who are acquainted with the facts will not lay the blame to my pen.

I reached Bridgeville on Friday night, August 12th. Here we find a new lodge, organized a few months before by Bro. Brown, D. D. Bridgeville is a mountain, trading and mail point, one store and two hotels, located on the bank of a small creek. But people live in this mountainous country, for by nine o'clock some seventy-five people had gathered, some coming fifteen miles. Here again a public installation, lecture, and then a bountiful repast. After this the Lodge is called together, tho it is near midnight, but they wanted the unwritten work exemplified. The people are enthusiastic here, several names were secured for the Lodge. At this place we had the pleasure of meeting the wife and family of the son of the noted John Brown, they are as enthusiastic in the cause of their fellow men in striving to break the shackles of rum, which enslaves to-day, as the shackle that bound our colored brother in years past. Saturday morning, after a hearty good-by, found us on our way to Blocksburg, arriving here in the evening; found things rather cold and whisky ruling the town; spoke to a small audience in the evening; preached Sunday morning and lectured in the evening. This town will stand another visit. Monday we move homeward, after traveling some twenty miles on the Humboldt road, we turn to the right and pass over a new road which leads down the mountains fifteen miles to Garberville, but darkness coming on ere we reached the burg, we were obliged to put up at the sheep range of Mr. Davis, two and a half miles from the mountain city. We were very hospitably entertained. Tuesday morning drove into town. No notice of our coming had been given. We looked the town over, saw quite a number of men about three-sheets in the wind, two saloons, two stores, a hotel, blacksmith shop, harness shop and a shoe shop. On inquiry we found that Mr. Harris, the harness man, had a hall; we saw him, asked if we could get his hall, and how much he would charge. He replied by extending his hand and giving us the G. T.'s grip and a "God bless your coming to our place." This was enough, we posted our notices; my friend, Prof. Thomson, who was with me, went to the town schoolhouse, two and a half miles out, and gave notice there. On farther visits, we found Mr. Gamble, from Santa Rosa, also Mr. Garber, who turned out to be a brother of Ex-Governor Garber, of Nebraska, with whom we were acquainted. This evening we had a pleasant meeting. Next morning packed up to leave, but in bidding the friends adieu we were stopped by a Mr. Asborn and Mr. Garber, and asked to stay and give another lecture, and try to organize. I said, I would, if they—two of the leading men—would give me their names. They said, "Where is your pencil?" They gave me their names, with thirteen others, that they thought would join. We stopped, put out our team, worked all day, and at night, after the lecture, secured thirty-four names, organized with J. C. Garber, W. C. T.; Mrs. J. C. Gamble, W. V. T.; D. L. McCharles, W. Sec., and a Mr. Alonzo, Mock, L. D. This was a victory. Word comes that the lodge is adding new members every night. It is estimated that this will save from $2,000 to $3,000 to the community each year; in other words, take it from the saloons.

The 22d lecture at Cahto, 23d at Wiletts. This closes our work in the field for the G. T. We now wish to return our thanks to the friends of temperance whom we met on our trip for their kindness and cordiality, and if our visit aided them in the glorious work I am well paid. To the executive committee for the trust reposed, hoping their expectations were partially realized in the result of my work. I endeavored to do all I could, but fell far short of my own desire. With a prayer that God will bless the work and speed the day of freedom from rum, I make my bow for the present.

H. R. HUGHES.

On the 11th inst. met with Columbia Band of Hope, Bro. McNeal and Sister Dealy seem to carry it right along, Bro. Peters being absent most of the time. It is a sad fact that only two or three in a lodge can be found to help keep up a Band of Hope. We groan and deplore our slow progress, and go to sleep and let the devil have the great mass of children. This State will never be redeemed if we do not do more for the young. We can educate them to read; half our Good Templars have no taste for temperance literature, and will not read when it is put in their hands. Plenty of them will argue that a prohibitory law never has and never can be enforced! Blissful ignorance?

On the same day went down to meet a faithful few who hold the fort at Jeffersonville. It requires courage and zeal to hold out as they are doing, but fidelity will tell.

On the 13th, met with Bear Mountain Lodge and the D. D. of our county. The now famous Sunday Law was the subject of discussion. The Templars of Calaveras have resolved a great deal, planned much, talked more, and have done but little as yet. The Mountain may bring forth a mouse by and by.

On the 18th had the pleasure of attending divine service, S. S. and B. of H.

Angels can boast of a few good workers, and tho darkness has long reigned, the day of better things is at hand.

Started overland on the 20th for Grand Lodge—alone, in private conveyance.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

Placer Co. District Lodge will meet at Auburn. Monday Oct 3rd at 10 o'clock A. M.

We expect to hold two sessions A. M. and P. M. and have a grand open meeting in the evening. G. L. delegates can attend D. L. Oct 3rd and be at Vallejo Oct 4th, A full attendance requested.

THE Washingtonian (Chicago) is surprised to see an editorial commendation of Hostetter's Bitters, in the "Christian at Work." Everybody knows that those "Bitters" are only a vile and seductive form of whisky, and utterly destitute of any medicinal property. But we cannot charge the Crosby religious papers with any inconsistency in advertizing whisky. In commending Christianity however their record is assailable.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

BAND OF HOPE LESSON.

LESSON SIX.

Subject—Intemperance, Disease and Death.

1. The drinking custom is largely responsible for poverty, penniless insanity, death and crime.

2. Drinkng not only tends to make men poor, fuel for pestilence, and insane, but it also hastens death.

3. Taking the average, those who drink do not live as long as those who do not drink; neither are they so well and strong while they do live.

4. Some people tell us that we need to take liquor to keep off diseases, but the truth is exactly the opposite.

5. All intoxicating liquor poisons the blood, weakens and inflames the stomach, and dries up the juices of the body.

6. Testimony from leading physicians in all parts of the world agree in saying that this is so.

7. Professor J. B. Kirk, M. D.. says that more than fotry different diseases are brought on by drink.

8. Over two thousand physicians in New York city recently signed a paper, saying that they believe total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors would make people a great deal healthier.

9 The Medical Association of the United States in 1874 passed a resolution, saying that they would "welcome with joy any change in public sentiment that would confine the use of alcoholic liquors to science, art and medicine."

10. Ninety-six physicians in Montreal agreed to the following: "That total abstinence is the best, in order to be the most healthy and vigorous."

11. Dr. Richardson, the greatest of English physicians, says that if England was all temperance the average life of the people would be one third longer.

12. Dr. Kirk adds that Mr. Richardson can not be far from right, for there are more than one hundred thousand deaths every year in England caused directly or indirectly by drink.

QUESTIONS.

1. For what five evils is the drinking custom largely responsible?

2. Besides causiug poverty, pestilence and insanity, what else does drinking do?

3. Who live the longer, those who do or those who do not drink?

4. Do we need to take liquor to keep off disease?

5. What effect has all intoxicating liquor upon the blood, the stomach and the juices of the body?

6. The testimonies of what class of people agree upon this?

TRUTH.—Drinking brings on disease snd hastens death.

7. How many different diseases does Dr. Kirk say are brought on by drink?

8. What did two thousand physicians in New York city do recently?

9. What resolutious did the Medical Associations of the United States pass in 1874?

10. To what did ninety-six physicians in Montreal agree?

11. What does Dr. Richardson say would happen if England was all temperance?

12. How many deaths are there each year in England from drink!

GOLDEN TEXT.—Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow?—PROV. 23: 26.

LESSON NOTES.

2.—Drinking a cause of sudden death.

A celebrated physician says: "From a careful observation of this subject during many years of practice, I am persuaded that tens of thousands of temperate drinkers die annually of diseases through which total abstainers would pass in safety.

An Indian chief on a visit to England said: "Many of my forefathers did live one hundred years, before your countrymen did bring fire-water amongst them, but now very few do live sixty years."

Many instances of sudden deaths as the result of taking intoxicating drinks are known. It is said that in St Louis, in the hot summer of 1878, nearly all the people who suffered from sunstrokes were tipplers or drunkards.

Dr. Sewell says, "From the fact that the heart sympathizes strongly with the stomach, and is so easily agitated by the passions which alcohol excites, and from several cases that I have dissected, I am inclined to think that it seldom escapes uninjured in the habitual drunkard." As proof of this, he gives one or two cases of sudden death from the use of alcohol.

"A large, athletic man, an old toper, drank a glass of raw whisky and fell instantly dead. On dissection, it was found that the heart was spasmodically contracted and the blood all squeezed out of it. Again, a drunken man while making a public speech, his passions being somewhat excited, fell instantly dead. Upon examination, his heart was found cramped and pinched down to the smallest compass, and the blood all pinched out of it. The blood itself was loaded with alcohol, and the heart was making a herculean effort to throw it out, when the man perished."

3.—DRINKING TENDS TO SHORTEN LIFE.

Judge Pitman says: "That the use of intoxicating liquors to such an extent as to produce drunkenness is a cause of disease and death, is too obvious and universally admitted to allow of argument. Of course, it shortens life if it renders health less perfect while it lasts."

As a class drunkards are short-lived. No life insurance office will accept an insurance on an individual whose habits are known to be intemperate.

From careful observation it has been found that the average duration of life, after the commencement of intemperate habits, among mechanics and laboring men, was eighteen years; among traders, dealers and merchants, seventeen years, and among professional men and gentlemen fifteen years only.

It appears, then, that drinkers shorten their lives just in proportion to their means for gratifying their inordinate passion. Professional men and gentlemen, on account of their larger means, are able to obtain more drink than the mechanic or laboring man, and consequently die earlier.

W. A. Guy, M. D., says: "It has been ascertained that in men peculiarly exposed to the temptation of drinking, the mortality before thirty-five years of age is twice as great as in men following similar occupations but less liable to fall into this fatal habit. It has also been shown that the rate of mortality among persons addicted to intemperance is more than three times as great as among the population at large. The greater number of these deaths are due to delirium tremens and diseases of the brain, and to dropsical affections supervening on diseases of the liver and kidneys."

Mr. Wakely Coroner of Middlesex, says: "The amount and variety of disease produced by this drinking system are most horrible to contemplate. Indeed, none can have any idea, save those who have paid special attention to the subject, of the vast amount of disease occasioned by the use of intoxicating liquor. Indeed, there is scarcely a morbid affection to which the human body is liable that has not in one way or another been produced by them; there is not a disease but they have aggravated, nor a predisposition to disease which they have not called into action; and altho their effects are in some degree modified by age and temperament, by habit and occupation, by climate and season of the year, and even by the intoxicating agent itself, yet the general and ultimate consequences are the same."

The United States Dispensatory says: "As an article of daily use, alcoholic liquors produce the most deplorable consequences. Besides the moral degradation which they cause, their habitual use gives rise to dyspepsia, dropsy, paralysis, and not unfrequently mania."

4—INTOXICATING DRINKS NOT A PREVENTITIVE OF DISEASE.

"Three-quarters of the chronic diseases of England," says Dr. Chambers, "and a large proportion in America, are in some way combined with fatty degeneracy, and chiefly with those who use ardent spirits."

It has been previously shown that drinking people were the first subjects of pestilence, and as pestilence is but some common disease from which a large number of people are suffering at once, it must also be true that drinking people are always more subject to diseases of various kinds than abstainers. "And yet," says Thayer, "while it (alcohol) is doing the work of death it promises and counterfeits life.

Sir H. Thompson, a well known physician in Europe, says: I have long had the conviction that there is no greater cause of evil, moral and physical, in this country, than the use of alcoholic beverages. Such is the result of observation during more than twenty years of professional life, devoted to hospital practice, and to private practice in every rank above it. Thus, I have no hesitation in attributing a very large proportion of some of the most painful and dangerous maladies which come under my notice, as well as those which every medical man has to treat, to the ordinary and daily use of fermented drink taken in the quantity which is commonly called moderate."

Dr. Mosely testifies that "those who drink nothing but water, or make it their principal drink, are but little affected by the climate, and can undergo the greatest fatigue without inconvenience, and are never subject to dangerous or troublesome diseases.

The Cincinnati Medical Reporter says: "A large party of men in the prime of life spent a very cold night on the western plains. Some drank to keep themselves warm. This is the close of the report of one of the party: "They all suffered just according as they took in the whisky—those that got drunk froze to death; those that drank less, but too much, died after awhile; those that drank only moderately will feel it as long as they live. Three did not drink any; they were only cold, but did not suffer nor freeze."

In the Medical Temperance Journal we find the following statement. "In nearly all the cases of death caused by exposure to cold that I have known or heard of, it was found, on inquiry, that the persons so dying had taken some alcoholic drinks, not necessarily iu large quantity, before going out into a low temperature, the effect produced being languor, drowsiness. inability,or disinclination to walk, imperfect circulation, stupor and finally death. So well is this bad effect known by people in the far northwest of America and Canada, that they will seldom take even a single glass of spirits when about to be exposed to extreme cold."—B. H. Quarterly.

LETTER FROM BRO. J. J. PORTER.

MORNING STAR BAND OF HOPE.

Reading some time ago, that Kansas and Maine were strewn knee-deep with temperance literature before a single prohibitory law was secured, it occurred to me that that was what we needed here, and I determined to redeem the promise made to you a couple of weeks ago, to use what little influence I had in this community (which I have just been convinced is very little save with its little ones) toward getting up a club for the RESCUE, the ablest expounper of temperance truths that I have ever seen from any quarter of the globe.

The more expeditiously to accomplish that work, I sent my "crown jewels" of the Band of Hope, last Monday morning, out into the wilderness of vanity and sin, to warn the elders of the wrath to come, and point out to them their duty to the rising generation of our town, who are being dragged down to hell by all the maniacal strength of the twenty-five rum-shops which loom up in our midst like so many chimneys of the infernal regions; where at all hours of the day and night, the fiendish shrieks of the blasphemer, shock the ears of the passers-by, and where the nauseating fumes of their burning, penetrate and stifle the few genuine Christians that still live in this afflicted village.

With their little hearts filled with joy at the thot that they now had an opportunity to do some good and active work in the cause of God and their fellow beings, eagerly and rapidly thay sped from house to house, and from store to workshop, vieing with each other in their endeavors to spread among the people the truths, which they are taught in the meetings of their Band, each Sabbath afternoon, and which can be found printed only in thoroly temperance journals. They reminded one, as they of necessity sped through the "brimstone district," of white-robed angels flitting thru the infernal regions in search of some lost jewel.

But alas! the sordidness of the hour turned their joy into sorrow, and their eagerness into discouragement; the night came on and foot-sore and weary they returned to their homes, to tell the sad story that money was God. And to-day when I asked each little one how many subscribers they had secured, and they innocently and sorrowfully answered, "I have been all over and I could not get one," my heart sank within me as I beheld the tears ready to burst from their bright eyes, and I felt sorry that I had sent them out into such a cold and uncharitable community, even to work for that community's good. There was but one bright exception; one little one received two six months subscribers, and the balance (18) I secured myself after much talk. And now, Bro. W. all I can say is, woe unto him who bringeth discouragement to the little ones who are trying to make themselves useful in the world.

SUICIDE.

One of the most startling and impressive events which came under the notice of my boyhood was a suicide. It was then and there an exceedingly rare occurrence, and only the crime of crazy or drunken people. The thot of any one murdering a human being was shocking; but of murdering one's self was horrible in the extreme. We did not read of such things then as we do now, every day. At intervals of years perhaps, we shuddered at the news of some far distantly perpetrated horror, now become of daily occurrence. On this occasion a stranger of perhaps 30 years of age, during or after a prolonged rum drinking spree at a tavern, had hanged himself, and passing by, I looked into the outhouse where the lifeless body lay and saw it. It was the first time I had realized that such a thing could ever happen on this continent and for me the curtain was lifted over a stage of horrible scenery whose reality had hitherto been unthot of. The impression of intense horror at the deed and pity for the fate of the wretched victim of the rum fiend, remains fresh to-day, whenever that awful word suicide is mentioned.

Not one of us could help feeling an intense repugnance, were the idea suggested to us, that the body exposed for identification at the morgue, or the subject of an inquest might one day be ours. But is it at all strange that we have so many completed suicides, while we have so many more thousands committing partial suicide every day? taking the first and many more succeeding steps toward the accomplished work of the suicide.

The poor wretch whom I saw long ago with face distorted, ghastly, blackened, the nightmare horror of a lifetime, had only run the whole race, upon which the tobacco smoker and eater, and the beer and whisky drinker and opium taster are setting out and traveling the various stages. He brot his self-killing to a violent and abrupt termination. You smoker and drinker are torturing out your life by slower gradations, but the suicide is none the less sure.

Beer and tobacco and opium are poisons, poisons; poisons that kill; and all who use any of them are none the less suicides. The habitual use of any of these things renders perfect health impossible, and shortens life with the most absolute certainty and by the most unanswerable logic. Therefore, the user of these poisons whose only effect is an attack upon our life, is more or less a self murderer: if it could be proved that he has lived to 89 and might have lived to 90 or 89 and three months, he is a suicide.

These things have been trifled with too long. The users of alcohol and tobacco are increasing in number and the rapidity with which their inherited madness and the more ingeniously seductive arts of the poisoners entangle them in helpless, hopeless slavery, is also increasing; and with this increased use of these body and soul poisons, the muster roll of the murders, suicides, and maniacs, sympathises exactly in the added thousands which every year swell the record of death in its most appalling and horrible character.

Let us warn everybody against these forms of self destruction.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS AND TEMPERANCE.

Charleston, Aug. 29,1881.

Dear Freeman: If you will permit me, I will venture a word thru the columns of your valuable paper about Sabbath Schools and temperance in the same. If the fortresses of evil are ever to be taken, and the world won for Christ, and the sin of intemperance forever blotted out of existence in our country, it must be done thru and by the children of to-day to a very large extent, as the growing generation always determines the future of a nation. So let us, as Sabbath School workers, try to teach the children to love the cause of temperance, and in coming years intemperance will be spoken of only as one of the evils of the past. I fear there are many Sabbath Schools in our State where little or nothing, is said to the children about the evils of drinking and drunkenness. and I would beg of all the Superintendents of Sabbath Schools to unite and let us try in future to do more to teach the young hearts under our care to love the cause of temperance and to work for its advancement in our land, for I do think that there can in this way be a grand work accomplished for the good of future generations in our Sunday Schools of to-day.

LITTLE MOLLIE.

A TRUE STORY.

My Dear Juveniles:—Last Thursday morning I was at my window looking impatiently down the broad river for the coming of the San Francisco Steamer, for my mother and brother were on board. At an early hour I heard the boom announcing the vessel before the city, and in a minute was standing upon the wharf. As the ship was being moored my eager glances were soon arrested and fixed upon a familiar face, smiling from a cabin window, and at the earliest possible moment I was in the room and presence of her whose love and care led my youthful, unsteady feet, into the ever-beautiful ways of virtue.

After being made still more thankful by the story of good health and pleasant trip, our conversation was interrupted by the entry of a lady and a little girl of some eight years, who were also occupants of the same room. At first dull glance of the large, blue eyes, I saw that the child was sick. "Poor Mollie," said her aunt, (for such was their relation) "I dont know what to do for her, nothing seems to have any effect." A kind word of sympathy then turned the languid, swimming eyes on me, and as she sat upon a low soft stool near me, I took the little hand in mine. It was cold and clammy as death, and the little nails were quite blue. After telling me of her efforts and failure to get the child "warmed up," the aunt turned and drew a flask from her traveling bag and poured quite a dram of whisky into a glass, and before I could frame a remonstrance, poured it dowh the childs throat, and then dragged her away on deck again.

In answer to my expressed horror when they were gone, my mother told me that such had been the treatment all the way from San Francisco. Kind remonstrances were answered with scant politeness—

"If liquor wont warm her, what can?"

But with my mother, the moments flew too fast, and to my great surprise, I discovered that the ship had loosed, and was moving up the river. Being thus compelled to content myself with an inevitable ride to Portland, when the morning air had grown a little warmer, I took my mother on deck to enjoy the beautiful scenery. We had not been seated long, when our pleasure was turned to pain by the appearance of our lady friend and little Mollie. The aunt was so charmed by the beautiful shore (to which the ship was passing very near,) that she did not see us; but dear little Mollie was not in condition to enjoy the scenery. As she passed slowby, still turning her head in appreciation of obvious sympathy, the dire effects of the vile poison were alarmingly visible in the watery, unsteady eyes, the flushed cheeks, and the expression of countenance that told so plainly of the pain in the dear little head. But under all this it was plainly seen that the child was summoning all her strength to shape the little blue, quivering lips into a smile. And thus the poor little victim of ignorance and the all-destroying rum delusion passed from my sight and I saw her no more.

Soon after the ship got aground, and I went ashore at St. Helens and returned on the Lurline, where I enjoyed the company of the pleasant temperance captain and crew, tho saddened by the remembrance of poor little Mollie and her ignorant, rum-deluded aunt.

If little Mollie gets well, her aunt will never cease to laud the flask and its blessed contents that saved her life; but if Mollie dies, then the sorrowing aunt will wring her hands in self reproach that she did not save her by giving more whisky. O, this woful ignorance! Boys, what can we do—what can we do girls, to save the people and our beloved, blighted land from the terrible scourge?

Many of mature years are beyond our reach—joined to their rum idol; but can we not do more to save our young companions from being led in the same ruinous way? Let us rouse up to more vigorous work, storing our minds with truth, and cultivating courage to fight the noble battle with never failing zeal.

ITEMS OF THE CONVOCATION.

Our country pays one hundred millions of dollars annually for the support of religion; seventeen hundred millions for the support of the rum traffic —one dollar to God, seventeen dollars to the devil! When will the millenium come?

Prohibition is made of good material, the same material God made the ten commandments of.

Whisky is very good in its place, but its place has a much hotter climate than any country around here.

If there is not manhood enough in the nation to protect its homes and its women, then in God's name give woman the power to protect herself.

Temperance laws, to effect anything, must be made by temperance men, construed by temperance judges, and executed by temperance officers.

I would not vote for my own father, on my own party ticket, if he was not an out-and-out temperance man.

That man who can draw up a platform which means nothing, is just the man politicians want.

Why flatter the liquor dealers by calling their place of business a saloon? It is a term they themselves have stolen from a respectable institution. Dram-shops is the legal term for places where liquor is sold; let us call them by their right name. Glittering words mean nothing in this fight.

All dram-shops in Mississippi are closed all day Sunday, and no one thinks of objecting. This in a state where we are apt to think there is not much respect for law ought to make Illinois blush.

The best way to get rid of a bad law is to enforce it.

We shall never educate men to respect law and to frame good ones by teaching them to disregard law.

Use every prohibition club there is in the license law to beat its own brains out. In enforcing license laws we are not enforcing license, but the prohibitory parts of the law.

If your officers will not enforce the law, lay low till the next election, then elect those who will. Do tell them that God will do the very best he can for us if we do the best we can for Him. The Lord believes in fair play.

I think it is a poor business for one party to make laws and leave them to be enforced by the other party who voted against them.

If these bar room loafers wish to know how much they will be missed when they leave this world, let them take a skiff, row out into Lake Michigan, stick a cambric needle into the water, then come back in an hour or two and hunt for the hole—Signal.

JOHNNY'S REASON.

A circus came in town, and everybody knows how the music and the grand tent and horses set all the boys agog. Quarters and shillings are in great demand: and many a choice bit of money have the circus-riders carried away which was meant for better purposes.

A little boy was seen looking around the premises with a great deal of curiosity. "Halloo, Johnny," said a man who knew him, "going to the circus?"

"No, sir," answered Johnny' "father don't like 'em."

"Oh, well, I'll give you money to go, Johnny," said the man.

"Father don't approve of them," answered Johnny.

"Well, go in for once, and I'll pay for you."

'No, sir,'' said Johnny, "my father would give me the money if he thought 'twere best; besides, I've got twenty-five cents in my strong box, twice enough to go."

"I'd go, Johnny, for once; its wonderful the way the horses do," said the man. "Your father needn't know it."

"I can't," said the boy.

"Now why? asked the man.

"Cause,' said Johnny, twirling his bare toes in the sand, "after I've been I couldn't look my father right in the eye, but I can now.'"—Anon.

"What is your advice to young men about smoking?" asked a young man of an old smoker.

"Never begin!" was the reply.

TWO COSTLY PUPILS OF THE U. S. SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

The National Sunday School, the temple of our national god, is the national dramshop. 16 years ago a properly trained graduate and daily worshipper of this institution, armed with his usual measure of natural license crime-inspiring beverage, shot President Lincoln. The U. S. had profited from the duty on the whisky which Booth had drank thru life to the extent of perhaps $100. But the drinking of the liquor cost us the life of President Lincoln at a time when his counsel and services were most valuable. It put the nation to vast expense in funeral rites all over the country; pursuit and trial of criminals: industry and business interrupted &c. It defeated the will of the people in the choice of President and created a four years war between, on the one side, the people and Congress, and on the other, the President elected by the bullet of the assassin emissary of the dramshop.

The account stood something like this:

Gain of the U. S. by revenue on Booth's whiskey..... $100
Loss of the U. S. by damage caused by Booth drunk.....50,000,000
Balance.....Loss $49,999,900

Nobody learned anything from this lesson; but some righteous people distributed the comforting intelligence that God did the whole thing, and it was all right of course.

Charles Guiteau was a native citizen to whom the U. S. and his own state owed protection, and education, and the duty of making it easy for him to do right, and hard to do wrong. But the U. S. and his own State sold him body and soul for a sum of money to the whiskey and beer thieves to make what they liked of him; and under the egis, and seal of the U. S. and with the consent of this Christian Nation they educated him to be a thief, a swindler and an assassin. He was exactly a promising pupil of our national Sunday School.

If we give him credit for patriotism enough to have drank fifty barrels of beer in his time, which probably was all he could pay for, the account will stand about thus:

Loss, expenses of General Garfields illness..$200,000
Funeral expenses.....100,000
Mourning and funeral expenses last Monday all over the U. S.....10,000,000
Suspension of labor one day..... 8,000,000
Interruption of business..... 5,000,000
$23,300,000
Gain of the U. S. revenue on 50 Bbls beer 50
.....$23,299,950

To which is to be added

Loss of President Garfield....	millions	incalculable
National disgrace.....	"	"
Defeat of the election by the People.....	"	"
Election of a President not desired.....	"	"
Elevation of the Nations worst and most hated Cataline traitor to a first power in the land.....	"	"

This does not look like a financial transaction to be proud of, only viewing it in that light; but the Nation has at least 600,000 more of just such accounts; the damages thru its daily victims slain, not so stupendous in any one case, but in the aggregate many hundred times greater.

And every day the murderers of the dramshop and brewery slauter their human victims, and bring as much agony and misery, and woe and tears into the families of innocent and virtuous women and children, as the beer shop bullet has inflicted upon the family and relatives of our lamented President. And the great mass of our people are so hardened in sin that they don't care a rap, sinner and saint alike.

There is a rumor of Cataline Conkling being called to the cabinet. It is hard to believe. Mr. Arthur surely must know that would be a signal for the opening of a four years war between himself and the people. There is probably no foundation for the report; for whenever Conkling becomes Secretary, Guiteau should be equally rewarded by a European mission, or something handsome. Mr. Conkling ought to be satisfied to be allowed to remain in the country at all.

SELLING LIQUOR TO INDIANS.

A short time ago a man living near the town of Sonoma furnished a couple of Indians some wine. A prosecution was instituted against him in the court of a justice of the peace. He was committed and sentenced to pay a fine of $60, and in default of payment was committed to the county jail. He applied for his discharge on a writ of habeas corpus before Judge J. G. Pressley of the Superior court on the ground that the section of the penal code making it a misdemeanor to give or sell intoxicating liquor to an Indian was in conflict with the new constitution of California and the 14th amendment of the constitution of the United States. The argument of an able counsel failed to convince the judge that either the constitution of California or of the United States had deprived the legislature of the power of protecting the community from drunken Indians, or of the power of punishing the man who brings them to that condition. The point was made that the law prohibiting sales of liquor to Indians was class legislation, and in contravention of the section of the constitution which forbids special legislation, and therefore was repealed by that instrument.

The judge fully sustained the law, holding that it was not in conflict with the constitution, and was in full force and effect. The writ was dismissed and the applicant remanded to the custody of the sheriff to be held till he paid his fine or served his time out.

Santa Rosa.

Too Radical.—That the Rescue objects to the abominable whiskey quackery practice upon the late president is pronounced by somebody too radical. There are some surmises afloat respecting the autopsy having proved that the wound was necessarily mortal. As to that, only the medical men present at the autopsy know, and perhaps they are not sure. But no one can present a rational disproof of the evident fact that if there was a pretty fair chance, a strong chance of recovery, the whisky, opium, koumis, rum and wine treatment, and further keeping the patient so long in a very unwholesome atmosphere, utterly robbed him of that chance. There is no doubt of the mechanical surgical skill of his physicians, but their poisoning processes indicate extreme barbarous ignorance of the nature and effect of those poisons.

WHAT HAVE WE DONE.

There are parties who profess to be heartily in favor of temperance, but when any temperance organization is mentioned, their antagonism is at once manifested, if not expressed roundly. "What have the I. O. G. T. done, they ask, or the Sons, &c? The answer to that is, indeed they have been weak and faulty, careless and cold, often faithless, never quite as active and self-sacrificing, and earnest as they ought to have been; but with all their imperfections and shortcomings and failings, they have done all that has been done for the cause of temperance, while their criticizing assailants, have been, and many of them are still helping the legions of rum and Satan.

That there are a few stray sheep who gather in the folds of our churches yet—that there are enough sober people able to build and maintain a church—that there is any semblance of Christianity left in the land, any respect for law and order, any good institution of any description surviving—it is all very largely, if not wholly due to the weak and fallible and imperfect temperance organizations, which for the past fifty years ought to have done and been better—but they have done so infinitely more and better than any other people, or society or class that no outsider has any right whatever to cast a reproach on them, or find any fault.

The temperance reform at its inception found the church totally blind on the question of drink, in perfect peace, concord and alliance with the Satanic custom and traffic. Temperance in the church has made the drink demon let go its grip on the throat of the church, and the temperance wing of some churches has absorbed the whole membership and in most of them has either become the majority, or silenced opposition. The temperance organizations have been manifestly the arm of God for the deliverance of the world from the empire of Satan. They have been composed of the best human material on earth right along: Erring and fallible and imperfect men and women, but the most consciencious, benevolent, upright, charitable, self-sacrificing and most devotedly Christian people of the age. And what they have done has rescued the Christian religion from going out in the darkness under the conquering hosts of Satan.

Some will say to this that the church could not go out in darkness; perhaps not, but a great deal of active work has always been necessary to keep it from going out, and the temperance warfare against the kingdom and power of Satan with all its faults, has been, and is the most useful and effective organization in the world, and the most successful agency in acheiving its conquest for the kingdom of God.

The Pacific Bank. One Bank is about as good as another if you only want to get a five dollar greenback converted into silver halves and quarters. But thousands of people have been ruined by carelessness in selecting the Bank to which important interests should be confided. While honest and well meaning institutions conducted by upright consciencious people have gone under, time and again, thru some unfortunate casualty or combination of misfortunes, it is comforting to know that a certain class of Banks of rare quality are always by the most completely careful as well as skilful management, maintained in a condition of perfect security and perfect capacity to meet every legitimate demand and perform every legitimate service that may be required of a banker by farmer, merchant, trader or private citizen. The Pacific Bank has had almost 20 years of that kind of career, a completely satisfying one to every one of its constituents, and it is going to move on, always improving its status and facilities, and never making a backward or uncertain step. The readers of the Rescue dont want any introduction to the President Dr. R. H. McDonald whose name is becoming to them a "Household word," See advertizement.

Mr. T. J. Sutton now of San Jose and Mrs. Sutton his wife are accredited agents of the Rescue. Bro. Sutton was eight years ago editor and proprietor of the Idaho World, then a very excellent secular paper but at the same time an earnest and able defender of temperance in every issue.

A WORD TO OUR YOUNG LODGES.

A letter comes from Orange, but as the writer gives no name, of course it cannot appear. It hints at a prevalent idea in its quarter that the cost of being a Good Templar is too much. It is a most natural thing for new recruits who come in, to think they can suggest some improvements in the generally accepted management of the Lodge or Order: but it would be very singular indeed if they should form as correct a judgment as the experienced heads who have been managing and watching these things for thirty years, and with only one motive all the time, to make the Lodge successful and satisfactory and attractive to all who unite with it.

Now the first and most important object in planting and running a lodge is to make it permanent and useful in promoting the cause of Temperance. To be permanent it must be useful: to be useful it must be in earnest, and the members must teach themselves and be able to teach their neighbors and their children something which they dont know; something that when they do kuow it will make them Good Templars and better and happier people.

When people are in earnest they will soon make their meetings interesting to the right kind of people. It must never be supposed that the Lodge is for mere amusenent: all amusements and exercises should have a bearing upon the promotion of temperance and when that is made a rule the meetings are sure to be most acceptable to all concerned.

It would be very nice if a lodge and Grand Lodge could find halls, lights, furniture, books, tracts piano &c for every lodge without costing any body a cent. But it cannot be done and we need not further allude to such an idea. Yet there are a great many well intentioned people who try and have tried to run temperance organizations of all kinds on the sole merit of their being so cheap—so very cheap—"so cheap that every body can belong."

Now it is urgently necessary to guard against the waste of a dime that belongs to the temperance reform, but wherever this cheapening experiment has been tried it has made the organization worthless: it always became so useless that the only cheap thing left was to bury it.

A variety of open and secret societies have had their run of success, till the cheapening process was adopted, and then they died out one after another, poisoned with the same dose of cheapening quackery. Our own Order followed suit in most of the States, and cheap John has got the Good Templars in many States utterly void of any influence or power and only an obstacle in the way of the cause of temperance.

In this State the financial basis which you find as part of the machine to which you have united yourselves—is the old one with which your Grand Lodge was organized 21 years ago, it has never been tinkered with nor cheapened nor ruined; and for that reason our Order in California has about 40.000 times the force and character and usefulness, that many of the jurisdictions possess where they have made cheapness their chief end and aim.

It is a pity that this cry of cheapness should be raised in a new Lodge; there is no danger of it in an old one. If your dues were ten times their present amount you could not practice any economy as a body, that would equal that of keeping up your lodge. You will want additional furniture; a library; assistance to a Band of Hope, help to a deserving sick sister or brother, and if you should find your selves after making every provision for all these things, with $250 or $500 in a safe bank at the credit of your lodge, it will be one of those calamities you can afford to bear with complacency.

Depend upon it that every member should deem it one of his first duties to keep our financial system intact and inviolable, for had that been tampered with in the past our success would have been impossible; and whenever we begin to listen to the old song of cheap john, our course down hill begins for certain.

GOV. ST JOHN.

EXTRACTS FROM HIS SPEECH AT LAKE BLUFF.—PROHIBITION RUINING THE STATE.

Yes, and they tell us prohibition is ruining our State; that is the position taken by the towns and cities of this State where they bid defiance to the law.

In 1871 the city of Leavenworth had 20,000 population and about 100 saloons, and she has clung to the saloons ever since. In 1881 her population has declined from 20,000 to less than 17,000, notwithstanding the fact that she has had saloons enough to have given her a population of 100,000, if they are necessary for the prosperity of a city.

In 1871,—I wish to give the official figures so that it cannot be said that I misrepresent the facts,—the assessed valuation of the property of Leavenworth was $5,991.027. In 1881. after she had hugged her saloons for ten years in spite of the advice of her true friends to do otherwise, the assessed value of her property had declined to $3,281,863.66. A falling off in ten years of $2.710,163,34. The only city of its size in the Union that has suffered such a loss, on account of the policy pursued by it: the only city in Kansas which has lost in population or wealth during that time; all the others have grown, but Leavenworth has clung to her saloons until they have nearly killed her. We find she has openly violated the law since the 1st day of May.

PROHIBITION IN TOPEKA.

Topeka, at first, thought she would rebel, but we have a prosecuting attorney in Shawnee County that is as true to his duty as the needle to the pole; a man who can neither be bought, browbeaten, nor coaxed to do what is wrong. He commenced prosecution; the first attempt to enforce the law was the temperance people's "Bull Run;" the second was a hung jury; the third was a hung jury; the fourth was a conviction; the fifth a conviction; the sixth also, and we now have the seventh lawbreaker on the grid-iron, and are making it red hot for him. We have the backbone of the rebellion at Topeka greatly weakened, and I tell you it will be but a short time until we break it, and you can blot Topeka out from among the cities where law-breakers connot be convicted. [Applause.]

EFFECT ON IMMIGRATION.

We are told that we are getting no German immigration. I went down the Santa Fe road not long since and had to ride on the rear platform of the sleeper on a camp stool, because there was no room on the inside of the train, and when I finally got in the front car I found it full of Germans; I supposed of course that they were going to New Mexico or Colorado, where they could get whisky and beer, but discovered that they were really going to Kansas. They are coming to Kansas for a legitimate purpose, and we welcome them with all our hearts. We are having a better class of immigration this year, in spite of the whisky ring, than ever before. I find the following from the McPherson Independent.

"The talk about the prohibitory law stopping immigration to the State is for effect only: used by its opponents for its repeal; the Kansas, Pacific and Santa Fe estimate of immigration to the State this year reaches 140,000; that is an immense immigration if true, which for most any year might be considered pretty good: if we are to judge from our county of McPherson the estimate is not too great, because there have been many farms sold this year, and a great many to Germans fresh from the old country."

Now, 140,000 a year in my judgment, is too many; I think 100,000 will cover the immigration for 1881, but let me tell you, we are getting the best immigration the State ever had; it brings money to the State; men who buy farms and stock them; men with money who go into business, which is a great deal better than crowding twice as many out on the Western frontier of Kansas, whom a part of the time we would have to support.

EFFECTS ON BUSINESS.

Let us see if we are losing business: Take the Santa Fe road for instance, which earned in 1881 in June, $438,998,00 more than it did in June, 1880. Business is increasing everywhere; our State never was so prosperous; let us see whether we are losing in dollars and cents or not. I find that in the year 1876 we commenced the biennial system of assessing real property. In 1877 there was no valuation on real property, and consequently the increase was on personal property alone: it amounted to $3,648,213,-52. in 1879 the increase on personal property alone was $6,231,468,71, and in 1881, the present year, the increase on personal property reached $10-243,-611,59. Can't we stand that kind of ruination? [Applause.]

The population of the penitentiary December 30, 1880, was 725. July 1. 1881, it was only 659. thus it will be seen that in one spot, and one only, are we losing population, and I think we can stand it. [Applause.]

Outside of the larger cities, prohibition is as honestly enforced and obeyed as any other penal law upon the statute book. It is a grand success and the rum power knows it. [Applause.[

Now, my friends, I have talked longer than I intended; I have endeavored to lay before you the facts as I find them; I have not tried to indulge in anything sensational, but simply to speak the plain truth. I say to you men who vote,—and I wish I could say you women, who vote; for if I could, there would be no necessity for crowding into a hall like this to discuss this question; for the political power of the wives and mothers of this country would at once settle it forever—this is no time for men to occupy a doubtful position on this question. Every good citizen should speak out boldly. Let moral and political cowards step to the rear until the true men and women of the State shall have won a victory so overwhelming as to make the rum power throughout the country tremble. God is just and the victory will be for the people.—[Great Applause.]

BOGUS FINANCE.

NATIONAL BRIGANDAGE.

Ex-Secretary John Sherman boasts of the successful issue of Republican party financiering. "The tax on alcoholic drinks pays the interest on the National debt." But he omits to say that to pay that tax costs the people every year, at the lowest calculation,

700,000,000 dollars in cash.
1,000,000,000 dollars in damages.
100,000 American citizens destroyed and killed.
100,000 American citizens led into vice and crime.

Many thousands of people assassinated and butchered in the shambles of the grog shop—PRESIDENT GARFIELD one of the latest victims.

And the first and most privileged civilization of the world converted by the foreign grogshops into the chosen field of the most cruel and bloody crime, and the worst system of criminal violence, debauchery and lawless ruffianism that the world has ever produced.

KIND WORDS.

[From the "Home Circle," published by San Francisco Cash Grocery, 519 Post Street.]

The following extracts from letters sent by our patrons are encouraging and will stimulate us to renewed efforts to deserve confidence and patronage:

RENO, Nev., Sept. 15, 1881.

"The goods shipped by you last Saturday arrived safely on Tuesday. Am well pleased with everything. You will doubtless receive more orders from Reno soon."

ARBUCKLE, Colusa County, Cal., Sept. 14.

"Goods received; selection suits; will send other orders when needed. Please return coops, as I shall want them to send you poultry soon again."

TURLOCK, Aug. 22, 1881.

"I send you another order. I was pleased with the goods you sent me before, and persuaded Mr. R. to send you a trial order. There are several who will send from this place soon."

ARBUCKLE, Sept. 12, 1881.

"I enclose order for $8.05; will send again soon. Several parties from this vicinity trading with you now, and all well pleased."

VALLEY FORD, Sept. 14, 1881.

"Will send you more apples soon; sales perfectly satisfactory. Send me a 30-dozen egg case and I will endeavor to fill it with fresh eggs and return it to you."

VALLEJO, Sept. 6, 1881.

"Goods all O. K. Enclose money order for amount of bill."

ST. HELENA, Cal.

"Groceries received all right; had not time to look them over until to-day."

HANFORD, Tulare Co., Sept. 12.

"Goods received in good condition; everything suits. I find I have saved several dollars by giving you the order, even in this small amount."

MONTEREY, Sept. 9, 1881.

"The goods you sent me are perfectly satisfactory. I will need more soon, and shall send my order to you for them."

MANCHESTER, Sept. 15, 1881.

"Please send me some more of your "Home Circles," I have given the last one away. Many of my neighbors intend to send to you for groceries."

The "Home Circle," a temperance paper, contains full price list of groceries and provisions, with information for ordering and shipping goods to any place on the Pacific coast.

Sample copies sent free to any address. It will save you money to have it. Address, 519 Post Street, San Francisco, California.

ENFORCED SOBRIETY.

The Daily Telegraph, London, exclaims against the tyranny of the Sunday closing law in Wales. "If two of every three people in Wales choose to buy no liquor on Sunday but prefer to go to church and hear two sermons on that day, shall nothing be done for the stranger that is within their gates?" It might have asked with equal justice and good sense. if the people of San Francisco choose to eat mutton and veal and potatoes on Sunday, shall there be no baked baby for the Feejean or Marquesas Kanaka that may happen to be within their gates? Shall his tastes be denied legitimate gratification because the people of California have fanatical idea about human life?

If there is one principle of law and human rights that has an honest claim to observance or respect, it is certain that if two persons of every three in any community desire that no horseracing, burglary, assassination, gambling, thieving, rum-selling and murderous rowdyism shall be publicly carried on in their community it should not be done; not Sunday nor on week day. To bring in the rights of strangers to demand that Sunday grogshops and Sunday desecration and hells of debauchery must be established in a respectable community, against the sense and wishes of the resident citizenship—is a piece of jibbering idiocy, that if uttered before the inmates of a lunatic asylum would excite compassion for its imbecility.

Enforced sobriety, enforced by every possible security of legal enactment, hedged about with every protective precaution and ensured by the swiftest and surest penalties for its violation on the part of tempter and victim—should be one of the chiefest aims not only of legislation but of religious, moral, and political education.

It is a surprising thing that such journals as the Telegraph and those that assume to lead public opinion in this country should resist the right of the people to put down murder schools, crime nets and pitfall traps for the children—and in the endeavor to curry favor with the vilest interests of society, flood the country with tirades against prohibition and falsehoods about results in Maine and Kansas.

In unrelenting, bitter hostility to temperance and in the capacity to babble from week to week the most idiotic, driveling, imbecile, nasty and utterly contemptible rubbish in ridicule and derision of temperance, and to make really ingenious sycophantic suppliance at the feet of the wine and whisky debaucheries, the Amador Sentinel and the Record Union carry the honors in this state. Whether a writer is an idiot or not, he is of necessity compelled to assume that he is one, from the first to the last line of everything he writes against prohibition or Sunday observance or any of the decencies and moral requisites of civilization.

CALLAHAN'S RANCH, Sept. 17, 1881.

Prof. Wm. Crowhurst lectured at this place Thursday, 15th inst. closing his Siskiyou campaign.

This being the point of his first and last lecture in the county, our Lodge has felt a great interest in the present and future results of Bro. Crowhurst's labors among us. One active Lodge in the county when he came and five when he left, is the apparent result.

As Good Templars, we here can see much more. As Bro. C. expressed it, the ice was four feet thick and the devil skating on top. We can see that the ice is cracked and when arrangements are made in accordance with some of his suggestions, the ice will be badly broken and the devil of whisky power in this section be forced to go under. So strong is the whisky power here, that members of the church, even the Methodists, will stand aloof from the temperance apostle in public, but encourage him in private. Of the four newspapers in this county, not one had a representative at any of Bro. C's lectures—or at least no report was made.

Most of the business men from policy or interest, favor the saloon power. The climate, soil and mines are all that could be wished for, and if temperance men and temperance money were here, it would be the most desirable of localities to settle in.

If Bro. C. is returned immediately after G. L. adjourns, we think Siskiyou will increase in lodges to at least ten in number, and possibly thirteen. In regard to prize essays, why would it not be a good idea for the G. L. to authorize silver medals to be procured with appropriate inscriptions, and kept in the hands of the G. W. S. to cost about $2.50 each. Then each lodge in the jurisdiction to purchase two or more and offer them as prizes to the pupils of their schools, for best essays on temperance. The cost will be small, and the returns may be large, as the temperance question will be brought into every household.

Our late W. C. Rev. L. N. Barber and wife (Congl.) have left us to settle at Soquel. Bro. B. is alive to the interests of our order and will do all in his power to advance the same.

THE MODERATION SOCIETY.

[Living Issue]

"By their companions ye shall know them." By their fruits ye shall judge them."

The President of Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby's Dram-Drinking, Moderation Society, owns a hotel in New York where liquors are delt out over the bar.

The first Vice-President of Dr. Crosby's Dram-Drinking society is one of the largest, if not the largest wholesale liquor dealer in New York. I have his book of prices, in which there are eighty-two pages filled up with the names and prices of foreign and domestic liquors.

For an insight to the character and occupation of Mr. Hadley, the Secretary of said Moderation Society, the reader is referred to the accounts of the notorious Morey forgery of the alleged Garfield letter as published in the New York Tribune.

Dr. Crosby said in one of his speeches, that he would drink intoxicating wine if for no other reason than to prove to young men that a man could drink moderately without becoming a drunkard.

Dr. Crosby said in another speech that they proposed to close up all the low dram-shops and leave only the best class of saloons and hotel bars to carry on the business in a respectable manner.

Now what is the object of all this? My answer is—and I assume the entire responsibility of it—Dr. Crosby is trying to make it respectable for him to drink the drink. To render his respectability doubly sure, he must needs assert, without any shadow of proof, that the Son of God made and drank intoxicating wine.

Mr. Earle is trying to make it respectable for him to retail the drink; and Mr. Thurber is doing everything in his power to make it respectable for him to wholesale the infernal drink. Truly yours,

ELI JOHNSON.

Brooklyn March 10.

Eli Johnson is a gentleman of the highest Christian character. We learn thus what a sweet flock of turky buzzards the Rev. Crosby has for bosom friends.

SOLANO CO. DIST. LODGE.

Met at Benicia Sept. 17th, G. W. Frazer P. D. D. presiding, 8 lodges represented: no delegate from Willow Springs. Resolutions were passed recommending each lodge to appoint a committee to enforce the Sunday and liquor laws, and the P. D. D. was commissioned to see that this resolution is complied with inside of 30 days.

Also in favor of the use of the public press, circulating the RESCUE and temperance literature: and thanking Phoenix lodge for liberal entertainment.

Mt Delight lodge reports 30 members with improving prospects. Vallejo 150 members, doing well. Phoenix has 85 and initiations every evening; 40 to 50 regular attendants. Rio Vista, 60 members, prospering. Fairfield about 80; always gaining. Dixon at the lowest in numbers and interest. Alamo has 40 members; in good condition, and Willow Springs has 50 and gaining.

G. W. Frazer recommended as D. D. Next session to be had at Fairfield Nov. 4th and 5th, From report by Alice Frazer, Dist. Sec.

BUTTE CO. DIST. LODGE.

Convened at Dayton Sept. 7th, and Bro. H. S. Graves reports that they had a profitable time. everything very pleasant, the Dayton Good Templars hospitable, and Samaritan lodge met in force in the evening.

SONOMA COUNTY DISTRICT LODGE

Held its annual session in Santa Rosa, Sept. 8th. D. D. Rev. F. J. Culver presiding; seven lodges represented. After the usual routine, business and lunch, the retiring secretary, H. H. Peckinpah, made an elaborate report, showing the condition of the Order in the county, and making many valuable suggestions. The D. D. reported what had been done in the county the past year, and what he had been doing in the northern counties as Lecturer.

Resolutions were adopted requesting the County Board of Education to adopt a temperance text-book; also, urging the lodges to organize Bands of Hope or Juvenile Temples, as the best means of advancing the principles of total abstinence.

A majority of the lodges reported to be in good working order. H. H. Peckinpah, of Guerneville, was recommended D. D., and Howard Andrews, of Two Rock, elected secretary; other officers from the different lodges.

Fulton was selected as the place for the semi-annual session. In the evening a public meeting addressed by Rev. F. J. Culver and other prominent workers. A.

THE TEMPERANCE PARTY.

There is nothing which so disturbs the nerves of the average legislator as the introduction of temperance into politics. He will legislate on the potato bug and domestic relations, pass resolutions on the Irish tenantry or the Panama canal, introduce bills to protect sheep and tax dogs; but he abhors the pestilent subject—Temperance. He is in favor of regulating the practice of dentistry, of medicine, of caring for all forms of suffering humanity, the feeble minded, and the idiots: but he begs you, in the name of your party, never to introduce temperance into politics. Nothing is clearer than that the temperance people have settled down into a calm, cool determination, founded on long experience and settled conviction that they will push on their work to a successful consummation, if it takes to the crack of doom. Excitement has given place to earnestness. The temperance movement has crystalized into hard, solid fact. It is no longer fitful showers and sudden floods, but it moves like the glaciers move—right on, and almost imperceptibly, but over all before it.—Ind. Journal.

MEDICAL POLITENESS.—The international Medical Congress commensed its sessions August 3, in London. This body has had six conventions previously, on the continent of Europe, and properly qualified lady M. D.'s were there admitted to the sittings. This year they were on hand or some of them, as usual, but were savagely excluded from any but the social meetings which of course could be of no possible benefit or use to them. It is said that a majority of the medicos were disposed to act like gentlemen, and as the better class of civilized Hottentots would have done, but that Sir William Jenner, the boss hog of the medical profession of England, persuaded them to act the Digger Indian on that occasion. Mr. Jenner deserves the full amount of credit or whatever it is, that belongs to a persistent, obstinate, hoggish opposition to the admission of female students to educational privileges. The Queen made Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield; when she promotes Jenner, she will perhaps entitle him Churl Baconfed.

BROS. Webb and Leland and Sister Stevens of our lecture force have been active in securing a circulation for the RESCUE and advocating the use of temperance literature. Their success in this direction promotes an interest in the cause, in the lodges which they organize or visit, and gives hopes of the permanency of the fruit of their labor. Bro. Wm. Jones of Stockton, Bro. J. J. Porter of Modesto has been of great assistance, the latter having just sent in his 31st subscriber for one year each, and secured a Library of Universal knowledge for his Band of Hope. Mrs Doan of Geyserville, Mrs. Moore of Tulare city, Mrs. Stewart of San Diego, Mrs. Barker of Davisville, Mrs. Davison of Woodland and some others have rendered much useful help. If the RESCUE had the same friends in every lodge it would have 7000 or 8000 subscribers and could be more than double the service for the cause and Order than it can now.

BREWERS and Printers.—An English paper says brewers get more employment than printers because the brewer works for the stomach and the printer for the head. And 20 men have stomach for one who has brain. But that is an exaj. It ought to have said 17 to one.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

The Executive Committee of the Prohibition Reform Party will meet in Vallejo, October 4th, for the transaction of such business as may come before it; and all those who believe in independent political action for the prohibition of the liquor traffic, are cordially invited to attend, and by their presence and counsel give direction to such action as will best accomplish the object above stated.

If any are unable to attend personally, let them communicate with the Corresponding Secretary, Rev. George Morris, West End, Alameda County, Cal.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c. Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c. This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c.; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE.—By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531; Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St., San Francisco, Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Red Bluff, ex-officio.

Revolution Temperance Literature.

New Publishing House. We are just opening a new Temperance Publishing House which purposes new goods, adapted to new methods of work, and gott n up to sell at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been.

Class Papers. Instead of tracts or pamphlets, in more readable form and yet cheaper, we publish beginning with October 1, eighteen class papers, each for a special class of readers, or a special class of work: 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The S. S. Superintendent. 7. The S. S. Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. Prohibition. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. Home Protection. 13 The Common People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper. Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which paper is especially designed. Each paper is published monthly, and though small in size, contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book.

5c. a Year. The greatest need in temperance work is scattering temperance literature. The greatest difficulty has been in doing it systematically, thoroughly, and yet cheaply. For five cents we will mail monthly to any address for one year, any one of the above named temperance papers, provided, that you do not order papers sent to less than five persons at any one time—or, at least, that your order comes to at least 25 cents.

How it Works. 1st. It is only a nickel. Subscriptions are never refused; you have only to ask persons to subscribe. As many subscriptions can be taken in a day as you can see individuals. Societies or individuals can look after this work. 2d. Fifty cents sends a paper free every month for a year to ten different persons, so that many will subscribe both for themselves and for their friends. 3d. Societies can not adopt a better plan of thorough distribution of temperance literature than to set apart a fund to send one or more of our 5c. papers to each individual in the town. Thus for $5.00 they can reach 100 persons each month for a year, or fifty persons every two weeks, or twenty-five persons every week. See dates of mailing.

Dates of Mailing. Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 17 and 18, first week of month: Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, second week; Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, third week: Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, fourth week. Each individual paper mailed separately to party named in order. Subscriptions received up to the 25th, beginning with month in which order is sent.

So Cheap. The cost of addressing wrappers and wrapping in the usual way, to say nothing of postage, is alone more than we ask for the papers. No publisher allows less than 5c. a year for the work of mailing a monthly. Compared with tracts, each number contains as much as seven of the W. C. T. U. hand-bills, so that at 5c. a year (instead of 5c.) they would be cheaper than hand-bills. A year's issue contains over 300 pages of the W. C. T. Union leaflets, so that at 20c. a year (instead of 5c.) they would be cheaper than these, besides being mailed free to individual addresses. To mail tracts and leaflets costs the individual 1c. per copy. This would be 12c. per year, or 7c. more than we charge for the papers, labor of mailing, postage, and all.

An Offer. We will send our Family Pledge Roll, highly ornamental design, printed in colors, on fine paper, large size for framing. Practical wherever one or more persons in a family will sign it. Free to any one sending us 50 cents and 9 subscriptions for our 5c. papers.

Other Ways of Using. We provide hooks, with card attached to each so as to show above above it, bearing the words, TAKE ONE—cost in lots of five or more, at 5c. each, postpaid. The "class papers for distribution in this way are furnished at 25c. per 100 copies. Several hooks may be put up in a place, each for a special paper, the hooks refilled with papers from week to week, a later issue being added each month; or only one hook used, and papers changed every week. Papers come ready punched for use on the hooks.

Specimen Papers. We will send one each of all the above papers—18 papers in all—on receipt of 10 cents.

2c. Story Books. We are putting up choicest and most thrilling and telling of 75c. to $1.50 temperance story books in large newspaper form, one whole book in a paper, illustrated on first page, for 2c. a paper when bought in lots of 25 or more. One issued each month. Three are now ready. Sample of all three for 10c.

This is a new force, people will read for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or can be distributed gratuitously in various ways.

Band of Hope Requisites. Complete line of supplies, new and practical, beautiful and exceedingly cheap. A library of $1.00 to $1.50 books at 5c ea., two weekly papers ea. at 10c. a year, a quarterly lesson system in two grades, quarterlies and song book combined, costing but two cents a qua ter, certificates, pledge rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., etc., all at revolution prices. Specimen of everything necessary for complete outfit for band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving methods of running bands either with or without teachers, etc., sent free.

Free. The penny collection of the Band of Hope more than pays for requisites at prices asked by us, so that running bands are no expense to those running them—heretofore to run a band as it ought to be, with library, weekly paper, etc., has cost four to five times as much, besides there being no plan of utilizing a penny collection even to help meet expenses. Many other goods. Catalogue sent on application.

Advanced Endorsements of the Revolution. The following and hundreds of other unasked for endorsement have been received by us in advance of issue of any of our temperance publications:

From Frances E. Willard, President National W. C. T. U., in "Our Union": "When Mr. Cook takes up the opening of the ammunition for our teetotal army, how much more space the rim of a dime will cover than is possible now! May the day hasten."

From Mary C. Johnson, Secretary National W. C. T. U.: "I wish you highest success, and congratulate the temperance forces on the prospect that an energetic, pushing, first-classs publisher is likely to take up the literature this great field requires."

From Mrs. Fannie D. B. Chase, President of the Pennsylvania State W. C. T. U.: "Allow me to congratulate you upon the value and success of your Sunday-school work. I am rejoiced that you are taking up temperance work, and believe that the cause will be greatly advanced by your energy and systematic work."

From James W. Webb, State Lecturer of the California I. O. G. T., Santa Barbara, Cal.: "My heart is thrilled to see the announcement that you are sending out. Surely 'the hour has come,' and the man, too. I shall enthusiastically speak of your plan publicly in every address, and privately to every lodge, minister and earnest worker, to our Grand Lodge State temperance paper, and all other papers that will put me an item in."

From W. H. Wharton, Grand Scribe, Indiana Sons of Temperance: "Best wishes for the success of your undertaking."

From A. H. Bowen, Grand Worthy Recorder Nebraska Templars of Honor: "Shall be glad to be of any assistance in my power to help you in this branch of your work."

From W. H. L. Combs, Grand Worthy Secretary Dual Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of Virginia: "I wish you success in your noble enterprise. May God bless you."

From W. W. Addison, Opdyke, Ill.: "I know from past experience that you will get ready before you strike, and then, never doubting, flinching or fearing, go straight ahead."

IN MEMORIAM.

Westminster Lodge, No. 238 on Sept. 23d passed resolutions of respect for the memory of Bro. John A. McCoy, an estimable and efficient member of that lodge, and extends its sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

EVERYBODY please read the advt., "Revolution Temperance Literature." Samples of all David C. Cooks publications may be seen at the RESCUE office. They are as marvelously cheap as the Amn. Book Exchange enterprises. And they are just what the times demand; all in good shape and style and all of an excellent class of literature

ON Sunday evening, 28th of August an exhibition was held at a dram shop in Bolton, England, in which a dozen people competed for three prizes for the biggest and ugliest and reddest noses. They took prizes for the most prominent evidences of debauchery which by Divine law a life of beastliness enstamps particularly upon the nose. There was a high time of beer swilling, but one leading swine made the remark that "there was not a gradely good nose in the room."

"No man can afford the luxury of hating people. It brings its revenge to the hater's own heart and life."—Gracious Words.

The FRANKLIN School House, Good Templars, Yuba County, have had a successful festival with a good time and a good result for the benefit of the O. H.

THE Good Templar Record, Springvale, Me. 35 cents a year is a good lively paper, organ of our Order. Some of our Maine friends ought to send for it and hear from their old home.

BRO. Webb, had a Union Meeting at Riverside on the evening after the receipt of news of the President's death. The resident ministers assisted and a good and earnest meeting was held.

SANTA Rosa is to be congratulated for having a Superior Judge who cannot be coerced into a misinterpretation of the constitution as a protection for violators of the liquor laws. It is to be hoped that every other Judge of the State will be equally faithful to his trust,

THIS week the RESCUE contains a synopsis of the Rev. W. Ingham's speech on Bible Wines at the recent convocation. Contributions and reports in this paper must in future be concise and of moderate consistent brevity, and so will the editorials: and it is hoped there will be found a greater and better variety of matter presented.

AT a Sunday school picnic in Miami Co. Ind,, a number of clergymen addressed the children, while intoxicating drinks were sold from a stand close by. One of the ministers, a Baptist, was bold enough to condemn it, but the local Superintendent thot temperance speeches altogether out of place in a Sunday school. There are so many people so that the only chance for the safety of the children is in the Band of Hope.

DAVID C. COOK of Chicago is publishing a list of splendid books and lessons for Sunday Schools and bands of Hope. One of the lessons appeared in the last number. His literature advertized in the RESCUE is published at remarkably low prices. It is hoped the friends of temperance all along the Pacific Coast will at once make practical acquaintance with Mr. Cook and avail themselves of his most excellent and useful literature.

THE London Times recently wrote:

"There is something exceedingly irritating in the fact that a great harvest, raised in infinite care and pains, instead of adding to the national wealth and bringing rich returns, is poured, in the shape of liquid fire, down the throats of the nation that produced it, and instead of leaving them wiser and happier, tends to impoverish them by vicious and debilitating indulgence."—Ex.

THE WATCHWORD has every week a little article headed "Good Templars to the front:" a report of the prizes and honors gained in England by Good Templars and Juvenile Templars &c in marksmanship, athletic exercises, scholarship &c. The latest tells of William Henry Green, who in 1876 took first prize in the juvenile temple competition for the best original temperance tale and at the science examination of last May passed first class with a prize in the two sciences of acoustics and mathematics. Now what we want in Cal. is to have Guerneville Juvenile Temple or some of our Bands of Hope and young templars get away ahead of that.

WHISKY SHOPS AND MISSIONARIES.—The influence of the public house was in many cases so overwhelming, that the influence of the Church, of clergymen, and of the minister was unable to produce good amongst the people. It came out in the evidence. taken at the Truck Commission, that in one case a firm in which there were two partners employed a great number of men, and that one of the partners kept twelve whisky shops, whilst the other employed twelve city missionaries. (Laughter.) That was just what we were doing. Government sent out 150,000 men who were living by the drinking of their neighbors, and then sent out 20,000 clergymen to try and stop that drinking. (Hear, hear.)—Sir Wilfrid Lawson.

The Alliance News published at Columbus, by the Prohibitory Alliance of Ohio, advertizes 66 temperance speakers whose services may be obtained to lecture during the coming campaign; all but two or three are people of their own State. With all that talent and all the temperance sentiment of Ohio, cheap john has always starved out their temperance papers, run down the membership of the I. O. G. T. to 2653 and lost them every attempt at prohibition. They have now two able papers, the Alliance News, and the Delaware Signal and if they could only dispose of their cheap john stock, we might hope for a turn of the tide, and the addition of Ohio to the respectable sober States now so few.

ILLINOIS.—For some years we have heard of very active work in the temperance field in Illinois. But we only hear of the women workers, the W. C. T. U. here and the W. C. T. U. there, but no I. O. G. T. Looking over the Chicago Signal (W. C. T. U.) the idea occurred are all the temperance people in Ill. women? are there no Good Templars there? Fortunately a volume of proceedings of R. W. G. L. was at hand, and it credits Ill. with 14,000 Good Templars and an increase last year of 3000. To know of an increase in any temperance organization is very gratifying, but how is it that we never see for these many years the I. O. G. T. in print as existing in Ill. or as "being a part" or factor in any temperance work there? Is it a five or ten cent capita tax organization that has no treasury and exerts no influence?

There has been much grandly successful work to have prevented licence in a large majority of the townships of that State. Three-fourths at least of that work should have been done by the I. O. G. T.: it was their duty to do that much of it. Perhaps they have been very active; but if they have it is a little singular that we never see their name alluded to in type.

THE RESPONSIBILITY of the murder of President Garfield we are told rests upon God. If so there is no charge that will hold against Guiteau, against the groggeries which embruted Guiteau and Booth. against the rumselling business, against the whisky dosing doctors who with rum, brandy, wine, koumiss, whisky and opium, utterly poisoned the Presidents system and rendered his wounds incurable and his recovery impossible under any circumstances.

There might have been some disposition to doubt the agency of God in this matter but all uncertainty disappears when we find the clerical explanation of the murder accords exactly with the sentiment of Guiteau himself, who has just discovered now that "it was God who inspired him to commit the deed."

We must be consistent too and when Mrs. Smith sees her murdered husbands body brot home to her to-day from the saloon where he received the fatal bullet or knife stab, she must not complain of any human agency, but confess that God has slautered her husband, because he felt annoyed at somebody's sins down in Texas or Mexico perhaps, and wanted to get even. And so with the thousands of bereaved wives, mothers, sisters, daughters whose dear ones will be butchered at the rum shambles and beer murder shops this week and every week all over the land. They must be patient and remember that the grogshop is God's agency and his means to perform his will, and punish the national sins of wrong understanding of church doctrines and Bible interpretations.

"It has pleased God to remove our President:" "God has seen fit to punish our national sins &c." Some day it may become no longer fashionable to sacrifice the God of Heaven to exonerate the god of our national worship, the grogshop, and saddle upon Him the monstrous crime of our people who worship at their most sacred of holies, the shrine of Bacchus and Mammon.

(From the Alliance News, G. B.)

THE ECONOMIC INFLUENCE OF THE DRINKING CUSTOMS OF SOCIETY UPON THE NATIONS WELLBEING.

BY SIR WM. HOYLE.

When wealth is rightly used it always reproduces itself and gives an equivalent return in good of some kind, either in food to nourish, clothing to warm, houses to shelter, books to instruct, or in some other way. Intoxicating liquors yield no return of good, and therefore the money spent thereon is so much loss to the community.

Let me illustrate what I mean.

A man spends five dollars in food, from the food he derives health and nourishment, which gives him strength to labor, and by which he is enabled to produce perhaps eight or ten times as much as he consumes. This is how wealth is reproduced and how it rapidly accumulates.

Supposing, however, that he spends the $5 in alcoholic liquors. He derives no nourishment from it whatever, and hence gets no strength to labor. Perhaps in consuming the liquor he becomes intoxicated and unfit to labor at all, or even to take care of himself, and as a consequence, society needs to keep a poliseman to look after him. May be, the man is tempted to go on drinking, and to neglect his work, and so he loses his wages. Or possibly he is made ill. or meets with some accident thru his drinking, and is rendered unfit to work, and may be has the doctor to pay besides. If he has a wife and children, perhaps they become destitute and are obliged to go to the parish for help, and so the losses and burdens go on accumulating.

If this supposed case be multiplied by the numberless cases of a similar character—similar in principle and result if differing in degree—which are daily occurring in every part of the United Kingdom it will give some idea as to the magnitude of the waste which is continually going on, and it will show that the picture of loss which I have given as resulting from the drinking customs of the nation is one that is not at all over colored; and it will enable us to realize the pernicious character of "The Economic Influence of the Drinking Customs of society upon the nation's wellbeing.."

If for a moment we turn our attention to the nature of trade, we shall recognize how pernicious must be the influence of our drinking customs upon the economic wellbeing of the nation.

Trade consists in the exchange of commodities, and it must therefore follow that the extent of trade must be proportioned to the quantity of commodities which are produced; consequently whatever increases them, will increase trade, and whatever diminishes them will necessarily reduce trade.

And so far as economic results go, waste of wealth is really hurtful to trade, whether it takes place in the process of production or of consumption. If a man with an income of 25s. weekly, squanders five of it in a way that yields him no return of good, he would be just as well off, financially if his income were only 20s. weekly, providing no portion of this was squandered away.

But if the man spends his five shillings in a way that not only yields him no return, but which further entails upon himself, his family, and the community at large mischievous losses and evils, then, by the extent of the losses and evils which result, to this extent waste of wealth is still further increased. For supposing the evils produced, are estimated to result in damage—say to the amount of four shillings, it is clear then, that he is no better off than if his income were only sixteen shillings; for besides the five shillings lost, there is four shillings worth of mischief done.

And when we remember that the drink trade involves the diversion of $680,000,000 of money from useful channels of trade, to channels which are hurtful, we shall be able to form some idea of the economic mischief which results from it. If the income of the nation were reduced by the amount spent upon intoxicating drinks, and at the same time the drink expenditure brought to an end, the nation would be all the richer for the change, because then the total of the evil would be measured by the loss of the money; but when, as is now the the case, the spending of it leads to loss of labor, waste of food, destruction of health and life, increased taxation, deterioration of workmen, &c., &c., there is not only the loss of the money spent, but the loss of wealth which results from the spending, and also the many other deplorable evils which result therefrom.

It will aid us in comprehending the magnitude of the drink expenditure, and also its mischievous influence upon the economic well-being of the country, if we compare the sum spent upon it with the value of our principal agricultural products. The following table will illustrate this. The agricultural returns are taken from Mr. Caird's book, entitled "The Landed Interest." The drink figures represent the annual average yearly expenditure during the past ten years.

Table showing the average amount expended in the United Kingdom annually upon agricultural produce and upon intoxicating liquors:—

Wheat, barley and oats	$403,937,500	Beer	$395,065,285
Milk	130,000,000	British spirits	142,758,570
Cheese & butter	67,500,000	Foreign spirits	61,000,960
Potatoes	83,250,000	Wines, (Brit. and Foreign)	82,829,180
Total	$684,687,500	Total	$681,653,995

From these figures it will be seen that our yearly expenditure upon alcoholic liquors during the past ten years has averaged nearly as much as the total yearly value of all the wheat, barley, oats, and potatoes grown in the United Kingdom, and including the value of all the milk, butter, and cheese produced in addition. During the last five or six years there has been a deficiency of from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 in the value of our harvests, and as a consequence the agricultural interest of the country has been well nigh brot to ruin, and the general trade of the country has also been seriously crippled; but what would have been the condition of things if for the last ten years the weather had been so bad as to utterly destroy our crops of wheat, barley, oats, and potatoes, and also annihilate our supplies of milk, cheese, and butter? And yet, we have sustained losses equal to this by spending on the average each year $680,000,000 in intoxicating liquors.

And this $680,000,000 only represents our losses in part. As I have before shown, we must add to this account the sum of the burdens and evils which result from our drink expenditure; some of these evils we can tabulate, but others cannot be so reckoned. We may estimate and tabulate the money loss of the taxes caused thru drink, the loss of labor, losses thru sickness and death, thru deterioration of workmen, and thru a score of other things; but we cannot tabulate the misery, and vice, and sickness, and sorrow, and suffering, the immorality, and the demoralisation that exist in the country, we cannot put into figures the political corruption, the social degradation and the moral impurity which spring from our habits of drinking, nor can we measure the force of the opposing influence which these habits exert against all moral, social, physical, economic, and political progress.

If we summarise the total expenditure in alcoholic liquors, together with the indirect loss resulting therefrom since the passing of the Beer Bill—that is, from 1830 to 1879, fifty years, it will give us a more extended view of the fearful waste of wealth and consequent economic mischief which have resulted from our drink customs. In this epitome, in order to allow for the revenue, &c., I will assess the indirect loss at only one half the amount directly spent in drink, and then, taking the total amount of each period of ten years I will calculate interest thereon—not compound interest—at 5 per cent per annum from the end of each decade to the end of the year 1879

The following table gives a summary of the number of gallons of alcoholic liquors of all kinds consumed in the United Kingdom during each period of ten years from 1830 to 1879 inclusive; also the money expenditure thereon during the same period, together with the population in the last year of each decade:—

Ten yr's end'g.	Population.	British Spirits. Galls.	Foreign Spirits. Galls.	Wine. Galls.
1839	26,222,853	238,835,080	47,021,141	64,912,407
1849	27,669,570	213,849,991	38,306,362	62,380,478
1859	28,590,224	240,386,479	48,853,283	65,501,611
1869	31,913,513	2073,54,312	67,221,637	117,771,416
1879	34,155,126	279,673,156	101,630,154	167,386,717
Total		1,180,098,988	303,032,577	477,952,629

Ten years ending.	Beer. Galls.	British wines. Galls.	Total Retail Cost.
1839	9,643,693,764	75,000,000	$ 3,813,463,770
1849	6,268,915,542	75,000,000	3,586,042,560
1859	6,759,166,212	100,000,000	4,085,207,560
1869	8,216,360,407	125,000,000	5,103,389,005
1879	10,535,074,558	170,000,000	6,799,439,040
Total	38,423,210,546	555,000,000	$23,387,571,935

The next table I will give shows the aggregate direct and indirect loss of wealth resulting from the drinking habits of the population of the United Kingdom during each decade from the year 1830 to 1879 inclusive.

Ten years ending.	Direct loss in Million Dollars.	One-half of indirect loss.	Total Million Dollars.
1839	3,813	1,907	5,720
1849	3.586	1,793	5,379
1859	4,085	2,042	6,127
1869	5,103	2,551	7,654
1879	6,800	3,400	10,200
	23.387	11,693	35,080

The following table shows the wealth which would have accrued to the population of the United Kingdom if the money wasted, as shown above, by the drinking habits of the people during each decade of the past fifty years had been invested at 5 per cent per annum, simple interest. It illustrates very powerfully the cumulative loss of wealth owing to our drinking customs.

$35,080.000,000 of capital wasted which would have accumulated $31, 504,000,000 if placed at interest making the amount of 66 billions of dollars which has been lost to the nation in material wealth by our drinking habits during the past 50 years.

In a paper read before the Statistical Society in January of 1878 Mr. Giffen calculates that the total capitalised value of all the property in the United Kingdom amounts to 42,500,000,000 so that it will be seen that had the money which has been expended in intoxicating liquors during the last fifty years been expended as it ought, the nation's wealth might have been double what it is, with nearly $25-000,000,000 to spare.

It will further help us to realize the enormous magnitude of this loss when I say that if we take the population of Great Britian and Ireland as given in the census of the present year, viz., 34,862,495 persons, and dividing the 66 billions among them, it would give to each person a legacy of $1,910, and putting this out at 5 per cent interest it would bring in $95.50 yearly, or 1,83 weekly, to each inhabitant all the year round.

The figures just given relate only to the losses which the nation has sustained from our expenditure upon intoxicating liquors in the past, they do not include the $1.100,000,000 which I have shown that the nation is now annually losing by its drink expenditure. This of itself if divided among our population, will give $33,25., or about 62 cents weekly to every person in the kingdom, and adding it to the $1.82 it gives $2,45 as the total weekly sum which each individual might have enjoyed but for our drinking habits.

It is hardly possible to conceive the prosperity which would have existed in this country, and the comfort and happiness which would everywhere have prevailed, had the vast resources which have been thus placed at our command during the past half century been rightly used. But, alas ! instead of applying this vast wealth in providing for the comforts of our homes, and in promoting the material, moral, and intellectual progress of the nation, it has too generally been squandered in luxury, self-indulgence, dissipation, and intemperance. and thus the very agencies which were calculated and intended to multiply our comforts, stimulate our industries, and augment the social, material, and moral advancement of our people have been the agencies which have contributed to their demoralisation and impoverish and often to their entire ruin.

The facts which I have given will show how deplorable has been the influence of our drinking customs upon the nation's wellbeing, and what a paradise of material abundance we might all have been dwelling in, had our habits been in harmony with the laws of economic truth. Obedience to economic law must ever result in a constant, steady, and, under the favorable circumstances which we enjoy, a rapid increase of material progress, and disobedience thereto must result in the opposite; hence the prolonged stagnation which for several years has prevailed in our trade; and it is impossible that we can go on wasting one-fourth or one-fifth of the nation's resources, and in the wasting processes demoralize and deteriorate our people, without bringing upon ourselves, not merely stagnation in trade, but in the end, as other nations have done before us, involving ourselves in permanent ruin.

The Mussel Slough district is represented by a correspondent of the Sutter Farmer, as ahead of all the world in its capacity to yield the largest crop at the most moderate expense.

C. L. S. C. TO GOOD TEMRLARS.

Below is a synopsis of the work of the Chautauqua Circle for 1881–1882. Any number of persons can form a circle, and meet at stated times to read or talk over what has been read. The membership dues are 50 cts. for one year, and the Chautauquan, a monthly paper containing most of the work is $1.-50 per year. If desirable several persons can arrange to use the same books and papers. Circulars and information can be obtained by addressing Miss Mary E. B. Norton, San Jose, Cal.

The work should commence soon and the C. L. S. C. hopes to welcome many Good Templars to its ranks. SARAH M. SEVERANCE.

C. L. S. C COURSE OF STUDY.

Two well dressed young ladies on the train were talking together. After discussing a gentleman acquaintance, one said, "I will make him go with me long enough to take a glass of wine; he will have to leave long enough for that." Next day two ladies (?) with a nice looking boy about six years old walked up to the bar on the Oakland ferry boat and called for drinks. There they stood and drained their glasses at one side, while a crowd of gentlemen (?) were at the other side elbowing each other so as to be served first. Going down Market St. to church, a nice looking and well dressed young man at 10.30 A. M. staggering drunk. Within that same block at that time two men asleep in a doorway; stupefied by drink, one with his head and face covered with blood. A well dressed business man at 6 P. M. comes out of a saloon and goes staggering up Post St. A mother with a child about two years old in her arms walks up to a saloon and begs of two men who have just come out to go home. It is half-past eight Saturday night, they scoff at her; she implores. Finally a lady who has been watching the scene with a sorrowing heart asks if she can be of any assistance. "Oh no, leave me alone, it is of no use; one is my husband, the other my brother-in-law, my sister is at home sick, and she with her four elder children I left crying, while the baby does'nt know yet what a life it is going to have. They need the money that is being spent for rum." Then she put down her boy and said, "go ask papa to come home." It was enough to make angels weep to hear that child say "please papa tome home with me, say papa ,ont papa tome home now." But the father repulsed the child and after an hours vain endeavor the mother clasped her little one in her arms and went sorrowfully home. While standing there she told her history; brot up as a well-to-do farmer's daughter in New York State, she married a steady young man. Out here away from friends he began to drink little by little and now he and his brother-in-law, who has a loving christian mother in the east, are going down, down. While talking she remarked "they will have all day to morrow for drinking." Yes, the Holy Sabbath was to be given over to serving satan, with laws on our statute books that would close all these dens of infamy one day in seven, we havent enough law makers who care for morality, virtue and christianity to see them enforced. Every time I hear a christian man praying that God will bless this city and State, I wonder if he has enough moral backbone to stand firm against this greatest enemy of God's Kingdom. Let us remember when we say "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done" that if we are sincere we are pledging ourselves to use every power of our being to overcome the evil in the world. God will not do for us, what we can do for ourselves.

SOUTH AMERICAN EXPERIENCES.

Having many times visited unhealthy climates with entire freedom from the diseases and ailments so common among intemperate people, and sometimes so fatal to them, it seemed to me no precautions were necessary in such climates to preserve the health of a thoroly temperate liver. But it was a mistake. In the hills and forests all was well, but on three several visits to Barbacoas, slight attacks of the prevalent calentura made me very miserable for about two days and passed away.

But when completely acclimated as was supposed and after a trip of 20 miles up river and back, my friends picked me up in convulsions and a spell of many months of prostration ensued. A young man who officiated in a drug store who had become an acquaintance, (for everybody there is sure to get well acquainted at the druggists,) called to see me and like a good Samaritan, had me carried to his mothers house, where I was carefully watched and tended and fed for a month by strangers, who emphatically resisted my efforts afterward to remunerate them as I supposed all along they had expected me to.

Oh what long days and nights and what a longing for one wholesome inspiration of cool pure air. And what a longing for some kind of food, into which the garlick fiend had not breathed and which the lard abomination had not anathematized.

My new friends did everything they knew for the sick stranger in the most kindly and generous spirit, and tried upon me all the remedies known to the fever sharps of the republic in addition to those prescribed by the doctor. But owing to the unhealthiness of the town, due in a great measure to preventible causes, the sick are commonly subject to relapses as soon as theyrecover enough to stand another siege.

Two ideas came to take full possession of my waking hours: reduced to a skeleton and striped all over in yellow, green and blue bands and patches as if painters had washed out their various colored brushes on me, those two thots assumed a wondrous importance. One was to get an Indian to pack me up to the fresh air of the mountains: the other to get away down east as soon as possible, where they knew how to make oatmeal mush, a princely food, it seemed, that would instantly restore one to health.

The only means of locomotion to the interior mountains, were to walk or to ride in an armchair lashed to the back of an Indian. In my condition there was no alternative but the latter. About three dollars purchased an armchair with a little platform for the feet which is the pullman car of that country.

A carrier was chartered to a place called Buena Vista 17 miles distant, and elevated 2000 feet above the sea. Of course another Indian was engaged to carry the bedding, cooking utensils and provisions for the journey which every traveler must have. The voyage occupied two and a half days, one reason of which I have since suspected, was that my carrier was drunk a good deal of the time, for a great many confused memories survive of his setting me down as we came to a hut, and demanding a dime or a half dime to get guarapo or tobacco and two dimes to get pair of mocassins which he constructed out of a square piece of hide in about three minutes. Without these demands were complied with, I should have to be left there, and being perfectly helpless, bodily and mentally, it is not likely I should have hesitated to comply with any demand he had chosen to make, even were it to draw on the Bank of England for a million of pounds sterling.

There are no words in our language that can convey an adequate description of that road. Before the Spanish occupation, about 340 years ago, this road was a trail, probably on the surface of the ground. Now with the friction of human feet aided by the almost daily rains, the path has worn down thru the softer rock and soil to a depth of five or six to more than 20 feet in some places. Most of the way it is five to eight feet deep, but in some places where the old route had been blocked up, a new track has been made which is still on or near the surface.

The road is mostly a deep, dark, narrow ditch frequently arched over the top with dense shrubbery; in places it is not over six inches wide on the bottom and seldom so wide anywhere that two loaded men can pass each other without taking advantage of the widest spots here and there. As they meet, one will wait a few steps in a wide place crouched against the side till the other passes: and very frequently they meet in such narrow sections that they only squeeze by under the inspiration of the choicest swearing their language affords and by the rapid and judicious application of the most stimulating epithets to each other's female relatives.

My information regarding this road was not acquired on the trip in question: that was in a later experience to follow. The people of that country have been contented to use that road all these years, and from forty to one hundred men pass each way every day by any given point, and there are over 90 miles of it, seventy of which are impassible for animals to travel.

A mans load is about 125 lbs and men spend their whole lives carrying loads over these roads, most of them living by the way pretty much on barley meal slightly sweetened, which they mix with cold water and make an impromptu meal. The road in many places has become a water course, in others a slough of mud or mud slush: one time it is up a rocky steep, or along the edge of a precipice whose base is shrouded in the morning mist, and again down a declivity where much caution and a trusty cane of six or seven feet are requisite to save a foot traveler with no load from breaking his bones. But the loaded Indian takes all these difficulties, and no one seems to even think of mending or bettering any place, as long as it is possible to get over it at all.

Some few of the carriers save a little money and retire: some of the farmers carry their potatoes, onions, meat &c over all that road and sell it, but the great mass of the professional carriers seldom eat a meal which costs over 1¼ or 2½ cents, but spend every cent of their earnings in guarapo or cane beer, under the influence of which they sing and swear and quarrel and carouse and steal and do mean things, just exactly as men who drink port, champagne, whisky, beer &c have done high and low, since the time that old Noah had his specimen debauch.

BUENA VISTA

Or "pretty view," is a little settlement of half a dozen huts and it is an important resting and sleeping station for the traveler. It is on a mountain shelf which overlooks the Yacula Valley far beneath, where a flourishing colony of native miners wash out gold on the pre-adamite principle.

It possesses the rare advantage in that country of being able to see over 40 yards distant and thence its name. In clear days a far away snow peak can be seen in the interior.

Here they sometimes make a corner in pork or eggs. A speculator quietly buys up for a few days all that comes along on its way to Barbacoas where a scarcity occurs and when prices go up, he has his stock carried in and makes a fortune of 15 to 20 dollars.

Owing to some apprehensions of a fatal result of my sickness, nobody had any spare room here, altho they could stow away about fifty Indians on a pinch; but there was an empty cottage to let at ten cents a week which was joyfully taken possession of and housekeeping commenced. A native woman whose husband was the village firewood contractor and packed it all in from the forest on his back, agreed to cook for me for a dollar a week, which was just four times the legal rate in that country. The air was fresh up there and as soon as we arrived I felt assured that the pure atmosphere of the hills would restore my health, but it was a slow slow process.

REPORT OF THE G. W. S.

As usual this is a very full and satisfactory report of which but a few items can be selected.

The total accessions of the year are 120 lodges and 13.672 members, reduced by 38 surrendered and 25 non-reporting lodges, and in all 9408 members, leaving a net gain of 57 lodges and 4264 members. Total at present in good standing 341 lodges, 17,241 members.

There are 10.765 full degree membeis, 36 halls owned by lodges of a value of $26.376. Of the lodges 77 own pianos or organs valued at $7.000. Value of furniture, regalia and other property of sub lodges $23.000. Cash in lodge treasuries $12,303. All lodges one quarter in arrears have been cut off in the record above. Of those there are 13, and 12 more are delinquent two quarters. These 25 may most of them be revived.

Receipts for the year	General Fund	.....	$16,387,60
"	"	"	O. H. "	.....	10,532,81
"	"	"	Lecture "	.....	3,371,23
"	"	"	Charter Fee "	.....	1,175,00
				Total	$31,466,64

At the end of the year one-fifth of the per capita tax is added to the O. H. Fund which thus increases the latter to $13,151,16.

Expenses of the lecture field $7861. Of the RESCUE $2866 of which $1066 is for copies of the paper supplied to ministers and distributed by lecturers &c. R. W. G. L. tax and bill of supplies have amounted to $960,71. Ten lecturers have been employed, four of them all the year and the others from two to six months.

The G. W. S. recommends a free outfit to be presented to each new lodge at its organization amounting to $21, to meet a part of which the charter fee might be raised to $15.

The Mutual Aid needs some active work to give it a fair start, when it will become a rapid success.

Expenses of the Juvenile work were $1154,34 during the year. The continuance of the Dime Collection is suggested and the importance of extending the circulation of the RESCUE, and other temperance literature urgently commended.

The new school house has been added to the Home buildings at an expense of $5000. The Order has contributed handsomely to the support of the Home, and the farm has produced $3083. Two legacies one of $1000 and another of the proceeds of a 35 acre ranch one-third of which is in fruit, have been left to the Home.

Dist. Lodge and special G. L. sessions in the northern and southern portions of the State are held up for consideration. The regulation that not less than 15 members shall form a new lodge is proposed with several amendments to the constitution of minor import.

The G. W. Treasurer shows a healthy report of well guarded finances as usual. The Home endowment fund exclusive of the legacies named above amounts to $1123.

CONVENTION OF THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The following was unanimously adopted at the recent convention at Woodland.

Whereas the use of intoxicating drinks as a social custom is the source of untold evils,

Therefore be it resolved that it be the sense of this convention that the Christian Churches of California ought to, and are hereby counseled to take high and decided ground in favor of total abstinence and in favor of the legal Prohibition of the drink traffic.

PLEASE remember that the reports of G. W. C. T. and G. W. S. in this number are only extracts and synopsis made by the editor.

R. THOMPSON, G. W. C. T.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE G. W. C. T.

VALLEJO, October 4th, 1881.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS.—We are again in council. The work of the past has gone into history—we cannot change it: but we have its products, as a capital, on which to start the work of a new year. From what we have seen, we can learn lessons to aid us in the future. Let us, during these few days, pause at the feet of experience and learn wisdom. * * * * * *

Once a year we come to count our gains, to remodel our plans, so far as we find they require it, and to start afresh on another campaign. As Grand Worthy Chief Templar, I am expected to give you a bird's-eye view of the work for the year past, and to call your attention to such matters as, in my opinion, deserve special notice.

And first allow me to say, that I cannot fully express my gratitude to our members thruout our entire jurisdiction. While they have kept me exceedingly busy in answering questions and adjusting little differences, yet they made me their willing servant by showing a desire to get at and be governed by correct rules, and in readily acquiescing in decisions when made. In no instance have I had reason to complain of factious opposition or intentional wrong. All have tried to make my burthens as light as the nature of the case would admit of, and, as far as possible, to help me to carry them.

Our Order has become a mighty host, respected by the good and feared by the bad. We have gained a position of which we may justly be proud: yet our work is only fairly begun. We now start as a youth of twenty-one who has just ended his apprenticeship. We must now set up for ourselves as one of the families of reformers; and with the experience of these twenty-one years of our existence, we may reasonably hope to accomplish more in the next ten years than in all the past. We have learned how to work, where to work, and when to work to advantage. We have developed into departments, each having its own agents and means, yet each aiding each other branch; each ambitious, but ambitious only to be the most useful to our noble cause and Order. Our growth has been steady, not spasmodic. We have gained membership every year but one, and then our Grand Lecturer died, and we could not supply his place. Success could not have thus followed us, steadily from the first, if our Order had not inherent worth. We have gathered strength from usefulness; wisdom from experience, unselfishness by laboring for others, and so much faith in success that nothing short of a deluge can check our onward march. We have been building better than we knew, and our practical plans will be copied by and yet bless the whole world. As an Order, we have recognized the fact that we can only reap as we sow; that success is an effect, and can only be produced by adequate means; that our principles are to be established by educating the common people; that our Government will move only when the moral instincts of the common man condemn the present. We are on the way that leads to final victory, and with steady nerve and determined purpose, our march will be irresistible.

In our unprecedented growth during the past year we have been reaping from the seed heretofore sown. Little by little we have been developing into a well-organized system of aggressive work; and while we have a well-organized lecture force, an ably conducted paper, a juvenile department, and an orphans' home, all fairly under way, yet it will pay us to look well to their further improvement and to ask, "Can any other department, be added to advantage?" We must never stop with what has been done, but rather look to see what there is to be done and how best it may be accomplished.

Let us examine each branch of our plan separately and in detail.

THE SUBORDINATE LODGE.

There is a mutual ownership between the Grand and Subordinate Lodges. They are our Subordinates and we are their Grand body. They created us that we might aid them and our most noble cause. Can we be more efficient in their behalf than heretofore? What can we do to help them more than in the past. Their field is local: ours is general. We, through our RESCUE, bring to each the labors of others, and furnish facts to enlighten and enthusiasm to arouse to action, which added to our lecture force, is of vast value; but, are we accomplishing all that we shall now have the means to accomplish in their behalf. I think we can render additional aid hereafter. The effect of

OPEN LODCES.

Has been good, both upon the community and the Lodge holding them. I therefore strongly recommend that our Grand Lodge continue to encourage them, and our delegates call the attention of their lodges to this means of reaching those outside the Order. * * * *

"A lodge must always have something to work for, and lay out a new job as soon as one is completed, or its interest will wane. Constant employment is a chief source of growth. Our members must fully understand the evils of intemperance and how to meet the objections raised against total abstinence. To obtain this knowledge they must have access to books containing it. The bearings of the subject are so numerous that it requires quite a library to tell us all. If six in a lodge buy each a different book, each may have the perusal of all, for the price of one.

Lodges are commended to act on this principle, to purchase libraries and exchange with other lodges; thus a whole county may be supplied at a moderate outlay. Our work being that of educating the people, we must have the means of knowledge, and circulating libraries are strongly recommended, so that we may thus raise up well posted temperance lecturers all over the jurisdiction.

DISTRICT LODGES.

are becoming more and more efficient, and the attendance of the G. W. C. T. at as many as possible of them, is urged so as to give them every aid.

JUVENILE WORK.

Give us the training of the children for 20 years, and our opinions will control every department of our state. The money spent in this way, will bring large returns. We are only commencing to do for the young here. The Grand Lodge can only devise ways and means and direct juvenile work, and the work must be done by local workers. Work well laid out is half done. And formation is easier than reformation.

LECTURE FIELD.

This important department gives large return for our investment. It has grown into quite a giant and promises to increase rather than diminish. Each portion of the state should be visited by a lecturer twice every year and each county a month's work at least at each visit. Strict attention to every department of making out routes and advertising and preparing meetings &c. advised. A lecture superintendent to be appointed to oversee the whole.

TEMPERANCE LITERATUBE,

From six to eight thousand dollars might be next year devoted to the distribution of temperance literature including outlay for RESCUE. We can procure a list and address of each family owning land in the state and send to each 2 to4 times a year, as much temperance literature as a cent will carry thru the mails.

Clergymen should be furnished with such works as "Alcohol and the State," "Proceedings of the National Convention," &c. Our lodges might also be furnished with such useful books and also some of the active workers in each county.

A GRAND LODGE CIRCULATING LIBRARY

ought to be considered by a committee, and measures proposed for its adoption under the direction of the Ex. Com.

THE RESCUE.

Our paper has become indispensible to our cause and order. How can we quadruple its circulation? If we could distribute 10,000 copies a week what a grand result would follow! We could well afford $5,000 to that end. Can it be placed at a dollar a year and carry its subscribers up to 6,000 or 8,000? Can we not set it buzzing in the ears of every family? We must have its circulation doubled at least this coming year. To continue the plan of sending it to clergymen in the state is commended.

POLITICAL ACTION.

A legislative committee is recommended to be continued and the attempt made to get the license question under control of the vote of the people and the Ex. Com. empowered to print and circulate petitions to the legislature &c.

REDWOOD GROVE.

The purchase of the campmeeting grove of 320 acres with its giant Redwoods is now feasibls to keep it from saloon influence and under control of the Grand Lodge. * * *

"I am satisfied with our progress for the last two years. While I have been honored with the command of the quarter-deck, yet it has been our able officers and gallant crew who have sailed our noble craft so well. To them each and all I can most heartily say: "Well done!" I cannot stop to enumerate; for to each I should have to say excellent, more excellent, most excellent. As the years have rolled on we have gone on from good to better, and then to best. What more could we ask? Let us continue to lead the world in our good and noble work of reforming mankind, and redeeming our country from a direful scourge. If steady, united, and determined, we will yet pilot our fair California into the quiet harbor of sobriety, there to anchor in safety, and bask in peace and plenty evermore. Our heavenly Father will aid us in this work. Let us prove faithful, and persevere to the end.

Most respectfully submitted in F.. H., and C."

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

J. W. WEBB.

Orange is a beautiful place, well named; orange orchards abound. Other fruit, especially raisin grapes do well; tons lying on the bare ground drying. No saloon here: twice tried, but so cruelly neglected it died both times. Temperance hotel by Rro. Rubottom, he and family belong to lodge. Here met Mr. & Mrs. Arne from Lompoc temperance colony. Coming south to look for a home naturally settled at a place where there is no saloon. Bro. David and Wil Bartley of Lompoc have also bot land here and will be of great help to the lodge. Bros. Hallidie, pastor Presbyterian and Nixon, pastor M. E. church are members and give monthly temperance lectures alternately. Lodge hope to to build a hall soon. Bro. Harmon, one of the teachers is W. C. T. I trust Prof, Norton, the able and popular principal, will join. He was in a former lodge, and many of his bright pupils belong. Obtained few subs for the RESCUE. Those looking for homes should not fail to call here; good soil, plenty of water, climate said to be good, and it is asserted that a family can make a living on from 10 to 20 acres. Good churches and schools.

Artesia. A former pupil of mine, Bro. William Miller came 15 miles in a buggy for me. His brother Milton, W. C. T. ably presided over open lodge, the first in the county to give literary program, every piece brimfull of temperance!

No saloon. Those who had land to sell wisely put up and donated a $4000 schoolhouse. It is well furnished and attended. Bro. McKnsick and Sr. Campbell teachers, and many older pupils are Good Templars. Artesian wells plentiful, much good corn, vegetables, fruits and alfalfa hay. Glad to meet Sisters Olmstead, mother and daughter for merly of Carpenteria, members. Bro. O. also, but absent.

Downey. Dr. Kendrick, pastor Christian church kindly drove me over: his son and daughters active members; presume he would be, but much away from home. Addressed the large school, found Bro. James teacher W. C. T. and of course a number of the pupils members.

Since the two lectures there have some 13 additions to the lodge: was courteously asked to address the scholars, and can start a band of Hope if I go again. There is good talent among the young folks. Am sorry I fail to get many subscribers for the Rescue, tho I distribute sample copies, tracts and Dr. McDonald leaflets. If we are to mould public opinion and prepare for local option and prohibition, we must scatter literature and support our papers.

ElMonte. A Baptist camp meeting was going on, temperance question had been discussed and strong resolutions passed; so a temperance discourse was welcomed. Rev. E. J. Barnes followed with a stirring speech for prohibition.

P. S. If you find anything wrong in this article you may attributed it to absentmindedness, for the fellow who wrote it packed off my hat instead of his own when he left. H. H. LUSE.

HELP! HELP!! HELP!!! FOR KANSAS.

Riding with Bro. Jesse Yarnell, ex-editor of the RESCUE and a temperance man, thru and thru: he told me he had just received word from Gov. St. John as chairman of the temperance executive of Kansas that they needed help to fight the rum fiend with. The rummies, the licensed slaughterers of health, character, family, peace, domestic joy and the very souls of men and women all thru the United States have resolved to break down the prohibition law of Kansas, if it be possible, tho it cost a million dollars. Now the temperance folks there say they can fight their own rummies and enemies of public morality, but that if the other states turn their hordes of ginsellers loose on Kansas, and club their money together for a corruption, bribing, treating fund, help from the temperance people of other states will be requisite to meet this unprincipled onslaught. They want money for lecturers, books, tracts, and the honorable and legitimate use of the press.

Bro Yarnell sends them a dollar; I know another who will do the same. Let every one forward whatever he or she can direct to Gov. St. John, Topeka; Kansas: or make up a sum in your neighborhood and send, or make them a present of temperance tracts, papers, pamphlets or books for distribution. Forget not that they sowed temperance literature knee deep in Maine before they gained the victory.

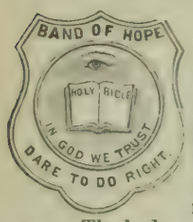
INSTRUCTIVE HINTS FOR OUR LECTURERS.

(UNOFFICIAL)

LODGE DEPUTIES.—There are a few places in this State where for ten years past a recumbent Lodge has been dug up, shaken, stood up on end and blown into every year or two by a lecturer and has faintly ticked for a few weeks and then stopped again. It is noticeable too that the same old sexton L. D. has dug the grave, tolled the bell and read the funeral service every time: and when the new lecturer comes round he inquires for the same old undertaker, to Lodge Deputy the new institution into the sepulcher of its ancestors. But a better day will come by and by; some day the old sexton will be gathered in, and then, when the old bones are set up and blown into and shaken, they may live. Dont let our lecturers ever forget to inquire for the same old experienced grave digger to boss the new funeral.

THE HAYES MEMORIAL.



As very many inquiries have been made concerning the Hayes Memorial, we will give the facts as we learn them from Miss Willard. The artist's price for the painting was $3,000; of this he contributed $1000, and the committee paid him $2,000. The cost of the frame was $500, all of which was contributed in Cincinnati where the frame was carved. The picture is now being engraved on steel at a cost of several hundered dollars; we cannot state the cost exactly until the work is completed. When completed, it will be one of the finest engravings ever offered for sale in this country. A beautiful and fitting ornament for any home or school. Orders for it will still be received by Miss Esther Pugh, 53 Bible House, New York City. As the painting is now or quite paid for, the money hereafter accruing from its sale will go into the fund for distributing temperance literature. —Signal.

WINE TRACTS. Three 16 page tracts are now ready and a fourth will be this week: one entitled Hard Times and Why—the other "The Truth and the Wine Interest, Will wine making pay" Nos 1; 2 and 3. These are intended to dispel the delusions that are practiced upon our vine growers and to show them that they are being led away from the happiest fortune which is within their reach, and tempted into a trap to be there skinned and pauperized to fatten a ring of liquor dealers and glucose operators.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD.

The life of our late lamented and beloved President contained some valuable lessons for the young of the present day. He was one of many in this and other countries who have risen from poverty and obscurity to positions of usefulness first, and distinction afterward. It is not for very many people to become President of the U. S., but there will be room for a great many of you young folks in the numerous positions of honor and usefulness, which the great future has in store.

It is worthy of notice that his first advancement was due to his good habits and his ambition to be a useful and worthy citizen; and his good morals and christian character were constant factors in his promotion and elevation, step by step, to the highest official position in the world.

When he was nominated for the presidency he was chosen because his party feared to nominate any candidate who had not established a character for honesty and good citizenship: they feared defeat otherwise, so they nominated him, and the people elected him because of his honesty and morality as they did Mr. Lincoln.

It is not very long since the world or the people who call themselves the world—the worlds monied wealth, looked with contempt upon men who had climbed to eminence from poverty, not because they had climbed, but because they were children of poor parents. There are some yet who pretend to feel that way, but they are only those who have to use other peoples second hand thots and get often badly sold.

About 50 years ago a gentleman was making a political speech in England. A man who was not a gentleman, tried to insult and degrade him by crying out that the speaker's father was a shoemaker: Sir, replied the other, "if your father had been a shoemaker, you would have been making or mending shoes yet."

A great change is observable nowadays. The first thing told in Mr. Garfields honor when he became a candidate, was that he had been a poor boy on a canal boat and had worked himself up by industry and good conduct.

There remains just such a path wide open for you: there will be a tremendous competition and opposition for you to encounter if you decide to remain in the lower ranks of the idle and stupid and ignorant. There are so many stay there that it is a crowded quarter: but when you rise above them the way is clear for a long climb to a loftier and nobler hight.

Another lesson for you to learn right here is, how everyone of us from the veteran of 80 to the infant in arms, from the President to the street sweeper, men women and children sober or dissipated, christian or outlaw, are all in imminent danger every day and night and hour of our existence from the rum and beer crazed murderers and incendiaries and burglars and thieves and savage criminals which your and our grogshops and corner groceries and bars are manufacturing every day.

Two of our Presidents have been murdered by drunken ruffians, educated graduated murderers of the grogshop school system; and in the interval of sixteen years between these two calamitous murders, men, women and children most of them innocent victims have been butchered, slautered like pigs in the shambles, by men crazed with the drink which human beings have been licensed to sell to make men murderers.

When you vote it is hoped your ballot may have no stain of your brothers blood upon it.

ABOUT YOUR PARENTS.

There are stories by the thousand, and true ones, too, of the sacrifices and hardships which parents have unhesitatingly incurred for the sake of their children, and there are a few histories also of what a good boy or a dutiful girl has sometimes done for a poor and helpless mother in return for the love and affection she had lavished upon her child or children.

There is a colony of people now at Lompoc who, most of them have left former homes and settlements at considerable attendant sacrifice, and encountered the hardships and scarcities and discomforts of creating a new home in the wilderness for the sake of placing their children in a community, where they will be for all time free from the arrows and javelins and traps and snares and poisoned springs with which the dramseller, murderer of souls, dogs the path of the youth of California.

Not only in Lompoc, but in a great many other temperance communities, there are great numbers of people who were well situated and safe themselves, who have sacrificed and abandoned the homes of many years and of many pleasant associations, sold their properties at serious loss to have their children grow up safely among worthy neighbors; and away from the society of crime and vice.

Thousands of people have moved away from what was to themselves a pleasant locality, and where they had a prosperous business or a steady good employment, because the schools at some other place were better or more convenient or had better promise, not for themselves but for their children.

Thousands of people who have done well enough in other countries themselves, have given up home and kindred and friends, to seek a home and liberty and a future for their children among strangers. And all these sacrifices and loving considerations and anxieties are cheerfully accepted in favor of children that are often ungrateful, indifferent, thotless, complaining and even unkind to their parents; many of them giving them frequent cause of sorrow and suffering.

But who ever hears of a family breaking up home, selling out, and moving from Wisconsin to Maine, or from Maine to Vineland, or from New York to Ojai Valley, because grandma or grandpa or both of them can go to prayer meeting so much handier, or because the climate is healthier or the winter milder for the old folks, or because they like the society there or could live a few years longer: altho but a few years have elapsed since the grandma or grand parents were studying morning, noon and night how they could best contrive their daily walk and their daily business and the whole routine of their lives so as to conduce most to the future welfare of the children and their children, who now perhaps regard the old folks with little reverence or affection, and with none of that sentiment of loving gratitude which should be uppermost in their thots respecting them, and should inspire them with utmost tenderness.

When we consider our obligations to those whose loving care surrounded our early steps with countless blessings every day, it is no wonder that one of the ten commandments, and the first one of those which indicate our duty to each other is, "Honor thy father and thy mother that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." The condition of long life attached to obedience to that command seems to imply that the son or daughter who is so mean and wicked as to be ungrateful for the million loving cares and sweet tokens of affection so lavishly squandered upon their days of helplessness, will be so vicious in other respects that their lives will be abridged by their evil courses.

Most of the young folks who read this will one day and many days of their future, look seriously back upon their past, and remember how their account stood at last with those who loved them with such unvarying tenderness and fidelity under all vicissitudes and circumstances while life lasted. And if in turning over the leaves of their memories of long ago down to the present, they find no record of act of ingratitude, neglect, unkindness of theirs, no failure to honor and cherish and love and reverence those to whom a boundless love and gratitude was due, it will surely be to them a wealth of peace and joy and precious comfort that will so brighten their own lives as to surely lengthen out their days upon the land which God has given them. And if one of you should ever be haunted with the memory of having brot shame or sorrow or disgrace to a loving parent thru wilful wrong that can never be undone, the prospect is too frightful, painful even to hint at its possibility.

LITTLE WORKERS.

Unto the sea a vast army of rivers are ever flowing—dashing down the hill-side, among the mountains, along the valleys to fulfill their appointed mission. These countless streams are washing and wearing away a thousand shores, and bearing on a weary freight of various minerals—lime, salt, silica, and the like—which would soon make the waters of the ocean very impure, if there were not some counteracting power. Yet the sea-water remains about the same from year to year. Now what becomes of all this freight of impurities?

God has made to live in the ocean millions upon millions of tiny creatures, too small to be seen by the naked eye, and, apparently, the weakest of all his creation. Yet to them he has committed a work which all the wealth and power of every kingdom on the earth united could not accomplish—the work of keeping the ocean pure. Every instant these little creatures are taking up these atoms of lime and silica, etc., and quarrying them into houses for themselves. Having lived their little, they settle softly down in the unknown depths, there to decompose and help to form a new soil, which some upheaval may bring to the surface for man's use.

It requires a larger game-yard for these tiny coralines than for all the elephants on the globe.

See what a power may be exerted by the little workers! Just such a great work may the Temperance boys and girls of our land bring about, if they will join hands in it. The old ocean of society wants purifying. Let each child set to work with the eagerness of a little coralline to do his part toward it. God delights to bless these little workers, when they look to him to help them. When working and praying go together, we shall not fail to see most glorious results.—Tract.

SHUT THE TRAPS THAT CATCH US.

A few years ago, while riding in a manufacturing district, returning home on Sabbath evening from ministerial duties, I was accosted by a man who, though intoxicated, seemed resolved to enter into conversation. He admitted that his conduct was wrong, and said he was constantly forming resolutions of amendment. He was poor and unhappy at home because he was a drunkard, and a drunkard because he was a Sabbath-breaker!

"Many a time," he said "I leave my house on a Sabbath morning to go to a place of worship; but then the public houses are open. I get past one or two, and at the door of the third stands, perhaps, an old acquaintance. He invites me in, and then it is all over with me. I spend the money I should keep my family with, and have to work hard all the week, and struggle all the same time with headache and hunger." I shall never forget his concluding words; they were spoken with the energy of great feeling. The poor fellow talked himself sober. "Sir," said he, "if the great folks want to keep us poor folks sober, they should shut up the traps that catch us!"—The Christian.

A MODERN PARABLE.

And it came to pass as a certain man journeyed from the cradle to the grave, he fell among saloonkeepers, who robbed him of his money, ruined his good name, destroyed his reason, and then kicked him out worse than dead.

A moderate drinker came that way, and when he saw him he said: "He is but a dog, they served him right. Let him die; he is a curse to his family."

And also a license voter came that way, and when he saw him he said: "The brute! put a ball and chain on his leg, and work him on the street.

And a fanatic teetotaler came that way. and when he saw him he had compassion on him and raised him up, assisted him to his home, and ministered to his wants, and to the wants of his family; got him to sign the pledge, and started him on his journey in comfort and happiness.

Who, think you, was the greater friend of humanity, the saloon keeper, the moderate drinker, the license voter, or the fanatic teetotaler?—Exch.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

TIME ENOUGH.

Two little squirrels out in the sun—
One gathered nuts, the other had none:
"Time enough yet," his constant refrain;
"Summer is still only just on the wane."

Listen, my child while I tell you his fate;
He roused him at last, but he roused him too late;
Down fell the snow from the pitiless cloud,
And gave little squirrel a spotless white shroud.

Two little boys in a schoolroom were placed—
One always perfect, the other disgraced;
"Time enough yet for my learning," he said:
"I will climb by and by from the foot to the head."

Listen my darling? Their locks have turned gray:
One is a governor sitting to-day;
The other, a pauper, looks out at the door
Of the almshouse, and idles his days as of yore.

Two kinds of people we meet every day—
One is at work, the other at play;
Living uncared for, dying unknown—
The business-hive hath ever a drone.

Tell me, my child, if the squirrels have taught
The lesson I long to impart to your thought?
Answer me this, and my story is done:
Which of the two would you be, little one?

—Selected.

IT MAY NOT BE.

It may not be our lot to wield
The sickle in the ripened field;
Nor ours to hear on summer eves
The reapers's song among the sheaves.

Yet where our duty's task is wrought
In unison with God's great thought,
The near and future blend in one,
And whatsoever is willed is done,

And ours the grateful service whence
Comes day by day the recompense;
The hope, the trust, the purpose stayed,
The fountain and the noonday shade.

And were this life the utmost span,
The only end and aim of man.
Better the toils of fields like these
Than waking dreams and slothful ease.

But life, though falling like our grain,
Like that revives and swings again!
And early called, how blest are they
Who wait in heaven their harvest day

RUM VS. RELIGION IN NEW YORK CITY.

Licensed saloons and drinking places in New York city	15,000
Churches and missions in New York city	489
Saloons etc over churches and missions	14,511
Amount spent for rum in New York city in one year	$75,000,000
Church property and salaries of clergymen for one year	47,303,106
Rum over religion in New York city	$27,696,894

The liquor traffic imposes a tax of 33 per cent on the people. The saloons outnumber all other kinds of business houses or any one class in the country, We pay about one-eighth as much for education as for rum, twice as much for intemperance as for the support of the government, and fifteen times as much to the dram shop as to the church. We waste about seven hundred millions of dollars a year for the debasement of the intellect and the destruction of the body, and pay with reluctance less than one hundred millions for education and culture; then we throw over fifteen times as much into the seething caldron of rum as we contribute annually to the cause of religion! Are not these startling statements? Do you comprehend the enormity of this national vice? With these facts before us is it strange that our measure of misery is full? This vast waste would provide a schoolhouse thoroly appointed for every fifty of our youth, and set teachers in the midst of them in the highest possible culture. Aside from the lamentable havoc and waste caused by the use of rum, we are compelled to support courts and prisons and an army of official benefactors in the name of charity that would be almost wholly unnecessary were the people taught to shun rum as their greatest enemy. Then would we have work instead of charity, plenty instead of starvation, clean and sightly garments instead of rags; wholesome houses instead of hovels and health instead of beggary and distress.

Let this document be read in the family, in the school, at the social gathering of friends, in the church and at all public meetings where the common good is in view.—Our Young Ladies.

TWO WAYS OF LOOKING AT THINGS.

Two boys went to hunt grapes. One was happy because they found the grapes. The other was unhappy because the grapes had seeds in them.

Two men being convalescent were asked how they were. One said: "I am better to-day." The other said: "I was worse yesterday."

When it rains one man says: "This will make mud." Another: "This will lay the dust,"

Two children looking thru colored glasses, one said: "The world is blue.', And the other said: "It is bright."

Two boys eating their dinner; one said: "I would rather have some other thing than this." The other said; "This is better than nothing."

A servant thinks a poor man's house is principally kitchen. A guest that it is principally parlor.

"I am sorry that I live," says one man. "I am sorry that I must die," says another.

"I am glad," says one, "that it is no worse." "I am sorry," says another, "that it is no better."

One man counts everything he has as a gain. Another counts everything else than he receives a loss.

One man spoils a good repast by thinking of a better repast of another. Another enjoys a poor repast by contrasting it with none at all.

One man is thankful for his blessings. Another is morose for his misfortunes.

One man thinks he is entitled to a better world, and is dissatisfied because he hasent got it. Another thinks he is not justly entitled to any, and is satisfied with this.

One man makes up his account from his wants. Another from his assets.—Sel.

WHAT THE MICROSCOPE SAYS.

Insects of various kinds may be seen in the cavities of a grain of sand.

Mould is a forest of beautiful trees, with the branches, leaves and fruit.

Butterflies are feathered.

Hairs are hollow tubes.

The surface of our bodies are covered with scales like a fish; a single grain of sand would cover 150 of these scales, and yet a scale covers 500 pores, Thru these narrow openings the perspiration forces itself like water thru a sieve.

Each drop of stagnant water contains a world of living creatures, swimming with as much liberty as whales in the sea.

Each leaf has a colony of insects grazing on it like cows on a meadow.

Yes, even the ugliest plant that grows shows some remarkable property when closely examined. —Gracious Words.

BOYS, TAKE CARE.

Take care of your minds. If you do not store them with useful information, to quicken and sharpen your intellect, by making the most of good books and valuable lessons, your minds will soon become vain, idle, frivolous and good for nothing.

Perhaps you have had but little schooling. You have had to begin work early. Then, you must teach yourself. You must be your own master and your own scholar—a self-educator; and history furnishes so many encouraging examples of self-made men, that you have nothing to fear. You may become a great statesman, like Franklin; a great poet, like Burns; a great inventor, like Stephenson; a great discoverer, like Livingston; a great scholar, like Burritt; only take care of your minds.—Ex.

LOOKING OUT FOR MOTHER.

"I'm afraid you will have none left for yourself," we heard a little lad say to his mother, as she helped him for the second time to toast. And the words were like music dreamed of. Why do not the children think oftener of mother, so that our hearts will become accustomed to their doing so, and we no longer thrill with strange sensations whenever we meet with a circumstance like the above. Surely they would, did they more fully realize what a heaven they would thus convert this chill world into.—Ex.

FARM FOR SALE.

Nine miles from Los Angeles Court House between Florence and Downey, bounded by Anaheim Railroad and Old San Gabriel river, 270 acres with 270 shares of water in San Antonio Irrigating Company. Orchard of over 2,000 apple and pear trees. House of four rooms, barn, etc,. Splendid opening for large dairy business; 100 cows could be milked at a gross profit of five thousand dollars per annum.

Lands specially suitable for alfalfa—10 tons per acre per anumn. A large portion of the land particularly adapted for the plum, prune, apricot, chestnut, etc., also for Muscat grapes for raisin making which would be very profitable. The whole Farm is fenced and cross fenced, and being well supplied with water, it is one of the very best Stock Ranches in Southern California. There are a few acres in Willows, Forest Grove Station is at corner and School adjoins.

$12,000 was refused for this property by late owner, who valued it at $18,000. It was sold under foreclosure of mortgage and is now offered for $10,000 cash. Date of redemption is past; and an absolute and perfect title will be given.

BIBLE WINES AGAIN. Line upon line and time after time, the most complete and unassailable proofs have been given that every kind of fermented wine and liquor was strictly accursed and forbidden all thru scripture both on account of its filthiness, uncleanness and unwholesomeness on one hand and the immorality and sin of its use on the other. And it has been shown with equal clearness that corn and oil (or olives) and grapes are recorded there as blessings and the natural wholesome grape juice, pure and luscious, unfermented and unperverted was alluded to in scripture as one of the chiefest and choicest gifts of God to man, as it is to-day.

To arrive at these conclusions we have only to use ordinary intelligence, read things exactly as they were written and appear to-day; imagine or suppose or suggest nothing unlikely or improbable and there is not a single doubtful matter or text to be adjusted to our purpose or in the least strained or twisted; not a single suspicion of one inconsistency or difficulty in any text of scripture, or one doubtful act on the part of the Savior or the apostles regarding wine.

That is what both christiau and non-christian research has revealed. and on these points it is safe to say there is not a doubt that has not been set completely at rest by the consciencious truth seeker who has really investigated the matter. But there is another very positive class of people who know a little Greek and are quite sure that "oinos means wine" and they have satisfied themselves without going a step farther that the Bible blessed and authorized drunkenness. It is admitted that fifty years ago when not one person in half a million knew what wine or oinos or Greek was, it was natural to suppose that there was a very great uncertainty and inconsistency somewhere.

But no excuse exists now-a-days for this ignorance and it is not an innocent ignorance, for it makes the Bible belie itself monstrously: it accuses Christ of either very gross ignorance or gross immorality, and very certainly of a very bold violation of the Mosaic law. To make the point good that Christ drank rotten poison wine, or blessed a filthy abomination in the cup, or sanctified an immorality or made it dangerous for people to participate in christian worship, it is an absolute necessity to prove the christian religion and its written authority a transparent and awkward farce and sham, which temperance people cannot admit.

Therefore to still further elucidate why this wine god should be dethroned and the worship of the true God be adopted in this country, the Rev. S. W. Ingham's lecture on Bible wines is reproduced in this paper.

DAVID C. COOK.

A CALL TO EVERY BODY.

Mr. David C. Cook, Chicago has come to the front just when we wanted a national Moses to lead the children of the chosen people of this day out of the slavery of intemperance and the wilderness of ignorance and point them to the promised land.

A reference to his advertizement will give you an idea of the value, importance and marvelous cheapness of his books and papers for the young. Hitherto the expense attending the organization of Sunday Schools, Bands of Hope, Temperance Schools &c has been a serious barrier to the men or women of slim purses whose sympathies have been enlisted in the saving of the young from the dangers which are prepared for them: but now with Mr. Cook's grand system of facilities that difficulty is mostly removed.

It is now within the province and means of any one to furnish or easily raise the funds required for a successful juvenile organization: and it is a solemn imperative duty of temperance and Christian people to avail themselves of the benefits offered and to give their help and countenance to make Mr. Cook's enterprise a gratifying success. We have 340 lodges that ought to start in at once with an order for sample copies and supplies. There ought to be no such thot as opposition to any one. Our I. O. G. T, W. C. T. Unions, Nat Tem Society and all good people should assist and co-operate with each other in the most unselfish and unclannish spirit.

PLEASE READ.—There are two very valuable articles in this number: one on page 770 an essay by Mr. Wm. Hoyle, delivered recently before the British Association for the promotion of science; a society supposed to be the highest authority in science in the world. It contains some very valuable statistics and shows beyond a doubt that England if totally abstinent the past 50 years might have been in a condition of prosperity such as has been enjoyed by no nation of history. It has wasted in riot and debauchery a sufficient sum to have made all its poor, all its working people comfortably rich.

The paper was bravely argued on both sides. Prof. Leone Levi opposed and used the following arguments premising of course as usual that he sympathized with all efforts to reform drunkenness &c: 1 alcoholic liquor is not in itself a poison ! ! 2 most of it is food ! ! ! 3 He made out that only one ninetieth of the national drink bill was waste: 4. that the additions of many years total was interesting but not to the point ! ! !&c But he admitted the moral value of the paper was very great.

A Mr. Hurst declared that drunkenness had become very rare at the present day!!! and he did not think Dr. Richardsons opinions worth much, because he used to drink once and had changed his former opinions!!! A splendid argument.

Mr. Hoyle's position was ably defended by eminent and able supporters. He himself declared he had frequently seen working men give up drinking and begin to save money, and in a few years build a house, and after five or six years more build another one. In the village where he had lived 16 years, 400 new houses had been built, of which 350 had been built by working men themselves. And probably this resulted largely from Mr. Hoyle's influence, tho he said nothing to indicate it.

The other article is on ancient wines, page 778, and is one of many similar completely conclusive showings of the utter folly of supposing that the Bible is untrustworthy and self contradictory and a dangerous guide as some men strive to make it. There are still some obstinate adherents of the lamentable nonsense of Dr. Crosby and his sympathizers; to them the truth is presented with the hope that they will examine into the matter themselves for the first time, and come out of the uncomfortable darkness into the pleasant cheerful light of consistency and rational Christian temperance.

COMMUNION WINE.

ED. RESCUE:—Referring to your article in the Rescue of September 15th on intoxicating wine, and your language in regard to the attitude of the Congregationalist on the subject of temperance, I feel compelled to utter my strong protest against it as utterly unjust, and not in accord with the facts. I have been a reader of that most exemplary paper for many more years than the RESCUE has had life; and I have read it carefully, especially upon the subject of temperance; and I wish to give my unqualified testimony that I have never noticed a syllable in its columns that a fair and unprejudiced critic could construe into a "warfare against temperance, much less has it given the slightest reason for the sweeping charge of a persistent warfare against every phase of consistent and rational temperance.

Because it cannot forsooth in common with such men as Calvin, Trench, Alford, Schaff and I may add the large mass of respectable scholars, frame to pronounce the Shibboleth of the RESCUE upon the question of passover wine, or the wine of Cana—without stultification—must it be branded as arrayed against temperance. I submit that it is unjust and is wounding the cause of temperance in the house of its friends. I. J.

WESTMINSTER, Cal.

The Boston Congregationalist wins a complimentary notice from the New York Retailer–liquor dealer's organ—for its criticism of Joseph Cook and its advocacy of intoxicating wine for the communion service. —National Temperance Advocate. [Oct.)

The RESCUE has no controversy with the Congregational denomination or any other; but the journal in question in its attitude toward rational, consistent temperance, does not fairly represent that denomination. It is admitted that it countenances total abstinence, solely with the understanding that it is not a Christian or moral duty but a voluntary sacrifice for the sake of a hypothetical or apocryphal "weak brother."

It has endorsed Dr. Crosby in his attitude toward total abstinence which is that of a bullying, unprincipled braggart, and openly declared enemy. It accuses Joseph Cook of intentional falsehood, and in doing so it gives the lie to a host of eminent Christian scholars and gentlemen who have exhaustively and impartially studied the bible wine question.

In its temperance (?) theory it hesitates not to endorse the accusation of the enemies of Christ who called him a winebibber and a glutton.

Neither the Congregationalist nor any of the Crosby assailants of the character of Christ comes forward with a particle of argument to prove their position; not a word; they have not any except the old argument of the dramshop, to abuse their opponents and accuse them of falsehood and stultification; it is enough for them to know that somebody like Calvin and the translators of the St. James Bible, and a few people who never gave the subject the least attention, have scouted the idea of the ancients having used the unfermented and rational and natural juice of the grape, in spite of the clearest evidence to that effect.

That class of men profess to be temperance men, but you never find one of them a member of a temperance society, or helping one except with their knife. It is a very sad fact that the rummies and beer sellers are in loving accord with the Congregationalist and the Crosby men; and so long as they are, the Rescue will consider it a duty to warn all good people against the pernicious influences of any journal which makes the Christian religion a burlesque, degrades its founder and fights the best and dearest interests of mankind in its opposition to consistent Christian temperance.

THE report of the G. W. C. T. is well up with the times and breathes a spirit of progress all thru. It would have pleased some of us more had it been a little more explicit and pronounced on the political question. But the proposition to have a legislative committee, and a legislative agent during the next legislative session is a wise one, provided always that the Grand Lodge, or whoever appoints that commission, does not defeat the intention of the act by putting the political interests of the order and cause into the hands of parties, who are very good temperance men, but have 95 per cent. of old party Republican or old party Democrat in their creed, for 5 per cent. of prohibition.

And we must see, above all other things, that our agent is not somebody else's agent to scoop us into their net.

There were some magnificent temperance advocates in the Greenback Convention, who wept at the fanatical idea of loading a grandly important Greenback platform with a plank of so little importance as temperance or prohibition.

WHO ASSASSINATED PRESIDENT GARFIELD?

BY REV. T. A. GOODWIN, INDIANAPOLIS.

It was not Charles J. Guiteau; he was only the real assassin's instrument. He was seen drunk in Washington only a few days before the assassination, and those who have known him for years speak of him as an habitue of low drinking houses. That tells the whole story. Though well connected in life, he had lost his manhood and his reason in the Nation's legalized haunts of dissipation, and why should not the nation's President be his victim as well as any other man? If the Nation fosters the dethronement of reason and the cultivation of murderous passions, why should not the Nation's heart be pierced as well as any? Drunken men are capable of any crime, and James A. Garfield has no right to ask exemption from the consequences of drunkenness while the Nation grows rich in her treasury by the manufacture of intoxicants. This is no assault upon the Nation. Guiteau was too demented to concoct a scheme of such magnitude. He was insane enough to imagine that some special good might come to him by attacking a President, and that is all.

I am sure I will be pardoned for saying this. Fourteen months ago my drunken brother murdered his own brother and mine,, yet James A. Garfield, and a million like him, read the story in the daily papers without stopping a moment to inquire who was responsible, or what could or should be done to make murder by drunkards less frequent if not impossible and now that great and good man has become a victim, and by so much as he is a representative of the Nation, the iron which has pierced my soul these fourteen months, has entered the soul of the Nation. President Garfield is a sufferer from the insanity which drunkenness everywhere engenders, and from no other cause. But what of all this? Just nothing at all. Men who are cursing poor demented Guiteau will vote to legalize the traffic that made him capable of such a crime, and when their own sons have become murderers or the murdered, they will wonder at the inscrutable providence that has afflicted them. No man's life is safe. Insane men stalk our streets by the thousand, not caring who shall be their victims. The plea that this assassin had a personal grudge against the President is the sheerest nonsense, that is a mere pretext. He was rendered insane by liquor which he drank at national drunkard manufactories, every one of which had paid ten dollars into the national treasury for the privilege of taking such young men as Guiteau was and preparing them for what Guiteau is.

For the second time the Nation mourns the assassination of our President by drunken men. Perhaps in the ages to come, when private griefs shall have multiplied, and more Presidents shall have been shot, men will begin to think of prohibiting the business of making drunkards instead of licensing and protecting it. If two of our Presidents had been bitten by mad dogs, and almost every family had suffered by the same, how long before every dog in America would be killed?

Let me add only this; Any man who pretends to be shocked at the assassination of Gen. Garfield, knowing that it was only the act of a man bereft of reason by intoxication, and yet ignores the temperance question in his political life as well as his social, deserves no sympathy when the curse of his own creation settles down upon his own heart and hearthstone.—Delaware Signal.

SUTTER AND YUBA COUNTIES. The D. S. of the District Lodge Bro. Chas J. Covillaud has got up a printed circular with unusual neatness and good taste and good appearance.

It advertized the session at Brownsville Sept 30 contained a list of the officers of D. L; a table of all the committees of District Lodge; list of all the 16 sub-lodges and 6 Bands of Hope in the District and their location. This occupies one page and a second contains an address by the Sec. to the Order which gives a brief statement of the status and progress of the Order in the District and the duties and needs of our people to make its success continuous and effective; especial allusion being made to the necessity of education by means of temperance literature.

The circular thruout reflects much credit on its projector and indicates not only that he is a competent and active officer but that the District Lodge of Sutter and Yuba is a real live and awake institution. It may be remarked just here too, that no individual or society or institution or interest can ever get a commendatory puff in this paper unless it is entirely deserved.

JUSTICE.

Many clamor for justice, who if they received half measure of their due, would soon plead for mercy. The rumsellers in Ohio appealed to the law to stop women praying for them. They would not even permit the victims of their leprous traffic to appeal openly to God for deliverance. It was named a "nuisance," a "breach of the peace," etc.

Respectable hottentotism felt outraged at any demonstration of faith not consonant with its fashionable profession.

And the law stood up and put a stop to the folly of praying for the rumseller. He was licensed to feed on substance and souls of his victims as before—a vampire upon the body of the public welfare.

Of course the law officers did their duty. So did the Roman soldiers when they crucified Christ. Let us hope some justice will reward each, according to his works. And that soon.

In a sense, indeed, judgment slumbered not—the scales of justice never cease to raise or lower in the balance of hand Divine. Only the fool perceiveth not and glorieth in being let down easy. He has learned to view himself a "success" if he ekes out a besotted and beastly existence to a respectable funeral. He thinks it smart to have attained his end at the cost of his fellow creature's and his own soul. Likely he has contributed to building of churches, schoolhouses, asylums and poorhouses for charity's sake; has helped to fatten one pauper, while destroying the moral and spiritual, physical and mental endowment and hopes of countless dupes.

Likely he is also remembered as a benevolent benefactor of the poor—the wretched, debased and squalid victims of his dead-fall. Barabas was the people's choice. Charity covers many sins, money more. A Frenchman writes, "Americans have purses, not hearts." "Nor brains," he might have added, in view of our national policy to make the devil pay the revenues of our government.

Divine justice is not subject to bribery. Thus every malefactor, in deed or at heart, loves to ignore it. Of old his hope seems to revive with every legislative enactment licensing temptation—deception—crime. He tries (and generally succeeds) to imagine that licence atones for all infamy and wrong he causes, and which—as a rule—he is perfectly well aware of. He has secured a sponsor for the righteousness of his traffic. He stands on his rights

Civil authority has learned the necessity to combat overt acts. Crime is cropped at tremendous cost at certain stages of development. Root, trunk and branches are cultivated, protected and watered—licensed to pay for gathering of the fruit. This is necessary for business. We could dispense with 99 out of 100 professional reformers, office holders politicians, lawyers, doctors—M. D. and D. D.—had our civil authorities the liberty or courage to tackle evils at their root.

There is no better or more conclusive proof of future punishment than the moral impossibility to do justice to evildoers in this life. All the torture cruelty can inflict are absolutely nought in the way of retribution to the evil sown and matured often by a single misdeed. We can do little more than make transgressors harmless. And such is our plainest and first duty to God and fellowbeings—all sentimental bosh of judicial clemency or charity to the contrary.

For the "love" taught in the Scriptures never claims sympathy or compassion for criminals. Every divine text points rather to the duty of protecting and honoring and cherishing innocence, virtue and godliness. We tax the latter beyond endurance to feather the nest of the former. There is neither faith nor reason, charity nor sense in that. Neither law nor gospel demands of us that we should nourish what is evil and demoralizing, for it to rule over us.

J. C. K.

STOCKTON Sept. 29, 1881.

EDITOR RESCUE:—I spent part of two days at Linden Camp Meeting, where the servants of the Lord were renewing their strength to fight his battles. I met old friends and had a cordial reception. The 24, met with Logan Lodge, a noble band of workers, and lectured for them Sunday forenoon.

In the evening went to Washington, and lectured that evening and the next, and organized Dexter Lodge, with 33 Charter Members. On the 28, drove to Stocton and visited Stocton Lodge. Met a number of the workers of San Joaquin County. I am satisfied that this county can sustain 15 lodges, and now is the time to strike, when the officers of the county are trying to enforce the laws against the illegal sale of liquor, and gambling.

H. R. Hughes.

INTOXICATING DRINKS SHOULD NOT BE USED EVEN MODERATELY.

Any food or drink that contains a poison must certainly do harm to the system, and hence, as we have found before, ought never to be used. Now all intoxicating liquors used in this country contain a poison known as alcohol. Chemically, this is one of the most powerful and active poisons known, and yet from one-twentieth to one-half of the contents of all the liquor is this terrible poison. Can men drink this and not have it hurt them? After looking at the flushed face of the moderate drinker and the wretched countenance of the drunkard, can any one say these drinks are harmless? Does a drink of water or a piece of meat cause a man to lose partial control of himself, or bring on a drunken stupor, or, as alcohol does on some occasions, kill the man instantly? One great argument for the use of alcoholic drinks, is that they are needed by the system or else there would never be such a desire for them. On the other hand, temperance men reply that none feel a desire for these drinks until after they have first become accustomed to them, or have a depraved appetite born in them; that the appetite is not a natural but an acquired one, and when once acquired grows until it is almost impossible to control it, hence the only safety lies in total abstinence. That liquors are not necessary has been abundantly proved by the general good health and happiness of total abstainers, and that liquors never did any good even as a medicine, is a question by no means settled in favor of their use.

Dr. Willard Parker, of New York, says: "Alcohol has no place in the healthy system, but is an irritant poison, producing a diseased condition of body and mind. It has been demonstrated that the use of alcohol when employed moderately, as many young men often use it, as they think with impunity, makes the average of life thirty-five and a half, while that of non-users reaches an average of sixty-four and one-sixth years, a difference of about twenty-nine years to each individual.

David C. Cook's Quarterly.

IDIOTIC.

The Sacramento Bee gives the following in a report of a conference of some kind lately held in Woodbridge professing to be a religious one.

"The position the Church takes on the temperance question is a most practical one. They hold to the gospel plan of saving the drinker from his appetite through Divine power. They are of the opinion that while many of the temperance lodges are doing some good work in the ranks of temperance reform, they are, at the same time, too lax in other social evils that are so closely allied to the subject of temperance as not to allow of so much disparity. They hold that the church of the Lord Jesus is a sufficient energy to suppress the traffic in rum, and that all societies should be auxiliaries of the church. No temperance lodge can consistently, by any lodge rules, whatever, close their doors against any member of the church. All close door lodges are violating the modus operandi of the scripture to save mankind from the fearful sequences af inebriety. The vain and foolish jesting; the unnecessary paraphernalia of initiation, the (oft) mock-service, and the anything but sound temperance sense practiced in a majority of those would-be temperance societies, has so completely disgusted this community of Christians—the United Brethren in Christ—that they do hope no organization will be projected nor continued that does not bear the marks of dignity and definiteness."

Inconsiderate people might be annoyed at the impertinence of that little conclave of bigotry, conceit and ignorance; but they ought not, for people over whose heads a five inch plug hat, will slip right down to the shoulders, are by no means to blame for that inherited peculiarity. We want just such an organization as that to scoop in all such people, and keep them out of rational organizations to which their presence would be death. Let them continue to curse the cause of temperance, and hug their beloved grogshop and brothel. Their hate is the best help they could give us.

I bow whenever thou art near."—Ex.

And weep to know that breath of thine

BIBLE WINES.

A Discourse by Rev. S. W. Ingham, of Clinton Iowa, at the Lake Bluff Convocation, Sunday, August, 28.

From the National Liberator.

* * * * * * *

The observation of the past and the study of the laws of appetite have led the leaders in this work to almost unanimously adopt and urge upon every one total abstinence from all intoxicating drinks. The propriety of this course is challenged by the advocates of moderate drinking, upon various grounds, of which we will now only notice this, viz:

That total abstinence is not required by the Bible, and that the Word of God allows, and even encourages, moderate indulgence. Now, if this be true, it must dampen much of the ardor hitherto shown by Christian men and women in this work. But is it true? In the Bible we notice two facts—easily to be observed:

1. That the use of wine is in some cases mentioned, either without reproach, or else with Divine approval. Upon this fact many base the theory that the use of intoxicants in moderation is not only admissable, but to be commended rather than to be rebuked.

2. A second fact readily perceived is that the use of wine is sometimes denounced in unmeasured terms, and woe upon woe pronounced against the user and the vendor. Upon facts of this class even moderationists base earnest and eloquent appeals to men to indulge with caution. But to what good are all these warnings? Men are under the power of appetite until every moral sense is blunted, and they become indifferent to everything but the gratifying of their appetites, or little affected by such appeals. The only safety for any man, we earnestly believe, is in total abstinence.

Those advocating moderation almost unanimously assume that only alcoholic beverages were produced from fruits or grains in ancient times, and, as a consequence, intoxicating wine is never mentioned in the Bible.

Now, all must admit that the words in the Hebrew and Greek scriptures which are translated by the terms, "wine" and "strong drink" do frequently refer to liquors that will intoxicate; but the question to be settled is, do they always mean intoxicating beverages? Dr. Laurie, writing about the Greek word, Oinos, translated in our language, "wine," says: "This word denotes intoxicating wine in some places in the Scriptures, therefore it denotes the same in all places in the Scriptures." A more amazing bit of logic it would be hard to find. We never apply such a test to any word. When Matthew tells us an angel appeared to Joseph, the same word is used as when Peter says certain angels are kept in chains and darkness unto the Day of Judgment. Now, here, and in some other places, the word "angel" evidently means fallen beings sent to perdition: hence, according to Dr. Laurie's logic, it always does. Does it? Chancellor Crosby also assumes the whole matter as settled in the following utterances.

"Jesus did drink wine. I will not waste my time in proving this proposition and answering these wild Bashi-Bazouks of controversy, who assert with childlike confidence and simplicity that the Bible wines were unfermented grape-juice. Their learned ignorance is splendid with its boldness * * * I have to charge the total abstinence propaganda with misconstruing the Scriptures and despising their authority."

Dr. Laurie also again begs the question by declaring that "It is the nature of wine to be fermented * * * Fermentation is essential to its becoming wine." I beg my hearers to bear these utterances in mind. They are broad and sweeping, admitting of no exception. They are either right or they are wrong. If we can find a non-alcoholic wine, these assertions fall to the ground.

These writers also assume that grape-juice before it fermented was never called "wine," but went by the term "must." It is also assumed that it is the alcohol in wine that constitutes its refreshing or cheering and invigorating qualities. This is true of ale, beer, rum and whisky, but it is not true of wine in all cases. Extract the alcohol from any of these drinks and you have left an insipid, disgusting liquid no one could drink.

But wine which has never fermented may be so made, as we shall show, that it will refresh and strengthen, even as alcoholic wine can never do. Now this brings us to ask: Do the words which are translated "wine" or "strong drink" help us any in deciding the characters of the wines of the Bible? While the lexicons may not settle the question, still were they to show positively that a word never had certain meanings, it would have great weight.

In the Bible there were about thirteen Hebrew and Greek words which were translated wine, or strong drink. Of the Hebrew two were generic, i. e.: Yayin and shakar.

Shakar occurs tweniy-three times in the Old Testament, and never relates to grape juice, but to a drink made from any grain or fruit, excepting grapes. This word is twice translated vinegar. but for wine from grapes it is never used. The liquid may be sweet or sour, old or new, fermented or unfermented, still it is a shakar.

Yayin occurs 143 times, and always signifies the expressed juice of the grape in any state whatever. Like shakar it does not denote condition or character except that it is the juice of the grape. In some cases the use of yayin, wine, is spoken of approvingly, in others with terrible warning or denunciation. Wherever there is any indication of intoxicating quality, an indication of divine displeasure against its use is also found.

These are the two generic terms which in the Hebrew Scriptures stand for wine without indicating its special character.

In the Greek New Testament the word oinos is equivalent to the Hebrew yayin, meaning the juice of the grape in any condition whatever, fermented or unfermented.

Tirosh is a Hebrew term and is used in the Old Testament thirty-eight times, and is never accompanied by any terms of disapprobation. There is never a hint of intoxication in any case where this word is used, as is sometimes the case with both yayin and shakar.

Prof. M. Stuart concludes from historic evidence that it is very clear that tirosh is a species of wine, and is always used "in a good sense," that is, its use never gives rise to rebukable offenses, as did in many cases the use of both yayin and shakar.

Khemer occurring nine times, indicates newly expressed grape juice, or, as undergoing the first stage of fermentation.

Ausis indicates the juice of newly trodden fruit of any kind. and is used five times.

Soveh occurs three times, and always indicates boiled wine.

Mesek is mixed liquor, or drink, good or bad, and in any stage.

While there are about thirteen words rendered wine in the English translation, the foregoing are all that are involved in this controversy, and hence we will not take time at the present to consider them.

A careful examination of the terms employed indicates, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that there is nothing in the terms employed that at all forbids the supposition that in the Scriptures intoxicating wine is recognized and spoken of. On the contrary, such is the use of these terms that we may refer to an article in Kitto's Cyclopedia, which says that "The words for wine in the Hebrew, Greek, Chaldee, Syriac, Arabic and Latin are originally, always and inclusively applied to the blood of the grape in its natural, boiled or fermented condition. We have not stopped to give the authorities for each assertion as we have made it, but will here say that we have for every point presented such authority as is furnished by such names as Prof. Moses Stuart, President Nott, Taylor Lewis, Dr. Lees, Dr. Murphy of Belfast, Drs. Clark and Whedon, and the cyclopedia of Drs. Strong and McClintock.

Now, there being nothing in the meaning of the terms employed, nor in the manner of their use, to forbid our belief that two wines were known among the ancients, the one intoxicating and the other unintoxicating, we are still left to inquire whether or not there are facts attainable by which the issue involved in this discourse may be determined.

A. M. Wilson, of Bathgate, England, has written a book of nearly four hundred closely-printed pages to settle the question which, he says, is this: "Were any of the vinous beverages of the ancients unfermented liquors?"

The whole book is an attempt to show that the answer to this question must be in the negative, and to vindicate the assumption that the 120 gallons of wine made by the Savior at Cana, on the marriage of a friend, was identical in nature with that which the Father had declared was a mocker, and upon which we are forbidden so much as to look. This conclusion is based upon the assumed fact that in every case "it is alcoholic fermentation, the possession of the intoxicating element alone, that makes the liquid to be wine," and that up to this point it is not called wine, but is known as "must."

This argument is based largely upon the assumption that such fermentation could not be avoided, and that the "must" or unfermented grape juice could not be kept for any length of time in that condition. If this were true, we should possibly be in a hopeless case, yet not entirely so, for it is generally conceded that among the ancients the "must" or grape juice, was often drank as we used to drink apple cider, fresh from the press, and continued drinking it until either alcoholic or acetous (vinegar) fermentation had set in. Now, what are these assumptions worth? What truth is there in the claim that fermentation cannot be prevented, or that the liquor cannot for any great length of time be kept in this condition? We have this answer in the the case to offer; Chemical science has most abundantly proved that alcoholic fermentation can be prevented by at least five different methods, and that the liquors can be kept thus for an indefinite length of time.

We present you a statement of these methods as follows:

1. By keeping the temperature below 40 degrees until the gluten or yeast has separated from the liquid." After this alcohol will not form.

2. By boiling down the juice until it becomes a syrup. Thick syrups, as all housewives know, do not develop alcohol.

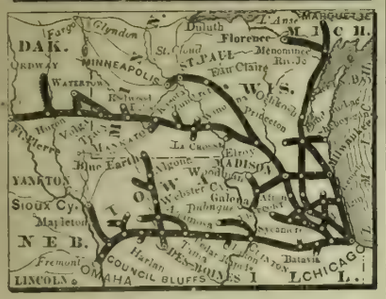
3. If the air be instantly excluded, so long as the liquid is kept thus, alcohol does not form.

4. By a process called filtration the gluten or yeast is sepanated from the liquid, after which it will not become alcoholic.

5. By subjecting the liquid to the fumes of sulphur the process called fermentation may be entirely prevented.

Thus the science of to-day tells us that there are at least five different methods, each one of which is entirely practicable, by which the alcoholic fermentation of Yayin, Shakar, Oinos, Ausis and Tirosh may be absolutely prevented. Mr. Wilson, in his elaborate work, makes an admission, which, as it seems to us, largely vitiates the entire effort upon which he has expended so much care. It is this: "We are not prepared to affirm with some writers that it is impossible to preserve grape juice unfermented, for Leibig and other chemists have shown that it is possible, and have explained the means by which it may be done."

Perceiving the fatal character of this omission, unless its force can be broken, he then goes on to say; "Able chemists may have discovered by the aid of the modern science, methods of preserving the juice of the grape unfermented, but what evidence is there that these modern discoveries have been anticipated by the ancients?"



Now, my friends, in all candor, what is this indirect conjecture, that the ancients did not know these things, worth as an argument? It is plainly evident that the author had never read Philip's lecture on "The Lost Arts," and one is inclined to wonder whether Mr. Wilson knows by what appliances and engineering skill the vast stones of the temple were carried to their places. Among the ruins of an ancient city flexible glass has been discovered. Where is the manufacturer that possesses its secret now, except in glass threads? What engineer can tell us how melted lead was poured about the upper end of the small iron pins projecting from the base beneath it up into the shaft of one of the great obelisks which has been overturned?

But it is alleged that even now the making of this wine is not practical; that is, the process requires so much care that such manufacture cannot become extensive or at all general. The theory, therefore, sought to be established from this premise, is consequently, if they knew how, the ancients never made such wine. Now, even Mr. Wilson is obliged to admit that Dr. Lees imported just such wine from Florence, and kept it sweet and delicious for sixteen years. He is obliged to admit that at a vineyard near Cincinnati unintoxicating wine has been made for many years, and that he knows of one chemist who advertises unintoxicating passover wine. But he argues from the fewness of these cases that have come to his knowledge—just as many others have done—that the manufacture of such wines is so difficult that the ancients could hardly have made the general use of them a possibility. In fact, we in America can get, if we desire, non-alcoholic wines in any needed quantity, and should the demand exist the supply will not be deficient. I have in my library—unless they have been recently destroyed the circulars which offer guaranteed non-alcoholic wines in such quantities as purchasers may desire. The only questions remaining, then, are, did the ancients have unintoxicating as well as alcoholic wines, and is there reasonable evidence that the two kinds were recognized in the Hebrew and Greek scriptures?

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c. Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c. This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c ; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen nd in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,
54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

THE GREENBACKERS.

There are several planks in the platform of the California greenbacker adopted at the late convention which deserve the sympathy and support of all good citizens and command their highest respect. This is the first time any but the Prohibitory party has ever deigned in this state to allude to the removal of the greatest social and financial curse that ever afflicted the country. And the only at all serious obstacle to the most complete prosperity of this state. Whatever may be thot of their program as regards money, interest and labor, we can take the chances of all other mistakes in a party that will abolish the liquor plague. The party which will do this will be a grand success if all the rest of its platform was a mistake. As for the old parties, they have become two great fossilized petrified mistakes all thru. The items of the platform alluded to are:

Fifth, in view of the widespread demoralizing and blighting effects of intemperance, we demand a legislative act submitting to a direct vote of the people the question of an amendment to our state constitution forever prohibiting the manufacture, sale and use of all alcoholic stimulants as a beverage, and that we will require of every candidate for either branch of the State Legislature a solemn pledge that he will use his utmost endeavors to secure the passage of such an act.

Seventh, It is the duty of Congress to regulate inter state commerce. All lines of communication and transportation should be brought under such legislative control as shall secure moderate fares and uniform rates for passenger and freight traffic.

Eighth, The President of the United States, and all officers of the government so far as practicable ought to be elected by the people direct, and all compensation for services performed should be estimated with reference to the earnings of the producers.

Ninth, That the right of self government inheres in the individual as the fundamental principle of our Government, and we hereby pledge ovrselves to secure by constitutional amendment the right of suffrage to the women of the nation.

MALICIOUS.

"An instance of how many American newspapers of considerable influence are edited, is supplied by the Sydney New South Wales Social Reformer, which contains an article credited to the California RESCUE, that was originally issued as a tract by the Scott Act Association of Hamilton, Ontario."

That is from the Orillia Packet, Ontario Canada. It exhibits a nastiness which it is presumed is the private property of the Packet, and only very sparsely distributed among the Canadian people.

About ten months ago Professor Foster enclosed several tracts of his in a friendly letter to the editor of the RESCUE, two of which were published with his name at the head, and sametime an editorial notice warmly eulogized their author, and a hope was expressed that he might come from Hamilton, Canada, to be a resident in this state. Quite recently again an excellent article by Prof. Foster was copied from the Signal with due credit to that paper and the author, and in an editorial notice Prof. Foster was complimented again.

A late number of the Social Reformer of Sydney reproduces one of the articles headed "Who is the rumseller? (by Prof. Foster)" and credits the Rescue in which he found it, in all of which the RESCUE and the Reformer both thot they were honest and above board, till corrected and enlightened by the autocrat of the Packet.

The RESCUE was conducted from October 1872 till Oct, 1874, and has been again since November last by its present editor. If during any of that time a single article or item of three lines or upward has appeared as editorial, in any department of this paper or without due credit, that has been written by any other than the editor—or that has been appropriated from any source whatever—the party producing it can get $100 at this office. And whenever and wherever in the RESCUE anything appears or has appeared not otherwise distinctly designated and credited, it is original and not begged, borrowed nor stolen from the Orillia Packet or any other emporium of ornamental editorial jewelry.

If any journal can point to a stolen article or item in the Rescue or if a contributor can point out a borrowed or purchased editorial let them all publish the facts far and near and all at once.

The Orillia Packet has made a bold malicious charge of piracy and dishonesty against the RESCUE without a shadow of truth or appearance of truth; and it is presumable that its general slander against "the editors of many American newspapers" is equally baseless and false.

The temptation to steal editorials from the Orillia Packet is not half so bewitching as its editor seems to think. Its general appearance which resembles that of a dust heap just after a hen and chickens have exhaustively scratched it over for grubs, is not so inviting as to have ever suggested to anybody the idea of looking for anything in it. Had there been any appearance to justify the charge made by the Packet it would have been excused, but the only palliating circumstance is that it has never occurred to its editor that a charge of dishonesty is a thing to be resented by those whom it does not fit.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PHARISAISM.

Rev. Dr. Jenkins, in the New York Independent, virorously protests against the pharisaism which, he says, is prevalent in Sunday-school instruction. "The teaching of too many of our schools deals with the 'mint, anise and cummin' to the neglect of mercy, judgment and truth." The practical result of this teaching, he says, is that "our children regard the kindest, gentlest, most generous of our church members, not by the measures of these Biblical and none too common virtues, but wholly by their attitude towards things in themselves trifling, indifferent, or at best only cautionary virtues. * * * They lose all confidence in the piety of a man, unselfish, benevolent and devout though he be, if in the quiet and privacy of his own house he rests himself with the aid of a cigar. The extent to which pharisaism has already prepossessed the Christian public will be easily seen by the horror with which those words will be regarded."—Chronicle.

The case of Mr. Jenkins should have our tenderest sympathy and our gushingest tears. Poor dear man! In spite of the most bulldoggy, persistent pull-back of himself and his kindest, gentlest and most generous fellow exponents of the mercy, judgment and truth that are developed in tobacco smoke—in spite of all the godly examples set by Noah and Lot and Nabal and other Biblical beacons,—so much pharisaism is creeping into the Sabbath school, that the mere innocent fact of a religious teacher getting drunk occasionally is also used as a weapon by the anise and cummin pharisees, to shake public confidence in his perfect piety. Why not introduce the cigar and cutty pipe and the lager beer barrel into the Sunday school and let us have peace. No doubt many saloon keepers would become S. S. teachers. Beer and tobacco, what a shame to say any thing against those harmless pious aids to "rest."

ABOUT LOMPOC.

In looking over the Rescue, I see a Good Templar from Sutter called on you to make inquiries about Lompoc.

There is plenty of good land here for sale from three to thirty dollars per acre. The land is of a rich, friable nature: easy to till, produces all the cereals, and its cool, moist climate is favorable to good health and appetites and good summer crops. For some kinds of corn it is rather cool. Lompoc will always be noted for its sober intelligent people, its good schools, good dairies, fat cattle and nice solid bacon and butter. It will be noted for its absence of bolts and bars, for somehow it dont seem healthy for dead falls. We have lived here four years, and I have seen but four men intoxicated. We never think of locking our doors on going to bed. In addition to its many other good qualities, I believe it to be one of the richest honey countries in the world. My observations here for four years have fully confirmed me in this. The honey in quality and quantity is not surpassed by San Diego in her best seasons. Two years ago, when thousands of swarms were starving in Los Angeles and San Diego counties, we had a good run of honey here for twenty days. We were poorly fixed, and extracted a ton from fifty single hives. A year ago the season was only fair; extracted eighteen thousand pounds or nine ton of very choice honey from one hundred stands. While this season has been a very poor one thruout the state, have taken out twelve thousand pounds from one hundred and forty swarms, which was choice, thick, white honey, and sold readily for eight and a half cents per pound at the apiary. Only a small portion of my time is taken up with the bees. Farming, stock, orchard, etc. occupies most of the year. There could be a hundred good apiaries within a radius of ten miles of Lompoc, producing a net income of two hundred thousand dollars per annum.

This may seem extravagant to many, but it will all be proven at no distant day. We anticipate a glorious future when our homes are all paid for, so we can improve and beautify them. Then with the temperance principles maintained, the good and industrious will be attracted here.

The country is finely wooded and watered Ten thousand acres of the valley is as level as the top of a table. We have two prosperous and increasing lodges. Our lodge meets on Sunday afternoons and our meetings are splendid, but have one serious defect for families. Our two boys, aged eight and ten years, we are compelled to let run wild, while at lodge. As our meetings are on Sunday, I think we should all be together. Is there no remedy? CHAS, LASALLE.

The above is a pleasant, cheerful, useful letter, will be read with interest, and many will hear for the first time something about Lompoc beyond its being a Temperance colony. It is hoped Bro. La Salle may be heard from again: lots of other good citizens will be induced to go there if the facts are well advertised.

CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

EDITOR RESCUE:—I send you a copy of Preambles and Resolutions, passed by our Presbytery while in session in Hanford, Tulare Co. Cal., Sept. 22–25 for publication in RESCUE.

Whereas, we believe that the morals of the people give character to the government—

Whereas, history does not furnish us with an example in which a free government has long been maintained among an immoral people—

Whereas, the immoral practice of Sabbath breaking in our country, gives into the hands of the lawless, the education of our young people in all the arts of vice, prominent among which are gambling and drunkenness, thus disqualifying them for good citizenship, and adding large numbers to our criminal class every year—

Therefore, Resolved, I. That we, as a Presbytery, do insist upon a better observance of the Sabbath among our church members.

II. That this, the Tulare Presbytery, of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, heartily appeals to the Superior Judges and the County Attorneys of the counties of Tulare, Fresno and Kern, to secure the enforcement of our Sunday law in their respective districts.

III. That we, the members of Presbytery, will do our utmost to secure the observance of this law.

IV. That we heartily appeal to all other Christian people within our boundaries, to co-operate with us in this work.

V. That the clerk of this Presbytery send a copy of these preambles and resolutions to the papers for publication and also to the Superior Judges and County Attorneys of the counties mentioned.

L. DOOLY, Stated Clerk.

THE DIME COLLECTION.

It would be a good move if at this session our G. L. could take some action in regard to the Dime collection for this year in consonance with the terms of the memorial presented to the R. W. G. L. at its last session: not with the disposition made of it there.

It was a most singular action of the R. W. G. L. to kill that enterprise, and there need be no disloyalty in taking some action in the matter similar to what we have done before; for neither the R. W. G. L. nor any G. L. outside of this State will ever touch the subject or allude to it again.

Here was an opportunity for the supreme council of our Order to assist in the best, easiest, simplest and most judicious and certain manner of creating a national temperance literature fund, but in place of helping it and making the first progressive step for ten years, they killed it without the least compunction or hesitation, just as they have killed all attempts at mutual aid and anything calculated to build up and consolidate our order. If we had asked to abolish something, that would have been in the line of the R. W. G. L. and would have met with respectful treatment.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531; Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St., San Francisco, Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Red Bluff, ex-officio.

Revolution Temperance Literature.

New Publishing House. We are just opening a new Temperance Publishing House which purposes new goods, adapted to new methods of work, and gotten up to sell at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been.

Class Papers.—Instead of tracts or pamphlets, in more readable form and yet cheaper, we publish beginning with October 1, eighteen class papers, each for a special class of readers, or a special class of work: 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The S. S. Superintendent. 7. The S. S. Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 0. Prohibition. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. Home Protection. 13 The Common People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper. Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which paper is especially designed. Each paper is published monthly, and though small in size, contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book.

5c. a Year.—The greatest need in temperance work is scattering temperance literature. The great difficulty has been in doing it systematically, thoroughly, and yet cheaply.

For five cents we will mail monthly to any address for one year, any one of the above named temperance papers, provided, that you do not order papers sent to less than five persons at any one time—or, at least, that your order comes to at least 25 cents.

How it Works.—1st. It is only a nickel. Subscriptions are never refused; you have only to ask persons to subscribe. As many subscriptions can be taken in a day as you can see individuals. Societies or individuals can look after this work. 2d. Fifty cents sends a paper free every month for a year to ten different persons, so that many will subscribe both for themselves and for their friends. 3d. Societies can not adopt a better plan of thorough distribution of temperance literature than to set apart a fund to send one or more of our 5c. papers to each individual in the town. Thus for $5.00 they can reach 100 persons each month for a year, or fifty persons every two weeks, or twenty-five persons every week. See dates of mailing.

Dates of Mailing.—Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 17 and 18, first week of month; Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, second week; Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, third week; Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, fourth week. Each individual paper mailed separately to party named in order. Subscriptions received up to the 25th, beginning with month in which order is sent.

So Cheap.—The cost of addressing wrappers and wrapping in the usual way, to say nothing of postage, is alone more than we ask for the papers. No publisher allows less than 5c. a year for the work of mailing a monthly. Compared with tracts, each number contains as much as seven of the W. C. T. U. hand-bills, so that at 5c. a year (instead of 5c.) they would be cheaper than hand-bills. A year's issue contains over 300 pages of the W. C. T. Union leaflets, so that at 20c. a year (instead of 5c.) they would be cheaper than these, besides being mailed free to individual addresses. To mail tracts and leaflets costs the individual 1c. per copy. This would be 12c. per year, or 7c. more than we charge for the papers, labor of mailing, postage, and all.

An Offer.—We will send our Family Pledge Roll, highly ornamental design, printed in colors, on fine paper, large size for framing. Practical whenever one or more persons in a family will sign it. Free to any one sending us 50 cents and 9 subscriptions for our 5c. papers.

Other Ways of Using.—We provide hooks, with card attached to each so as to show above above it, bearing the words, TAKE ONE—cost in lots of five or more, at 6c. each, postpaid. The "class papers for distribution in this way are furnished at 25c. per 100 copies. Several hooks may be put up in a place, each for a special paper, the hooks refilled with papers from week to week, a later issue being added each month; or only one hook used and papers changed every week. Papers come ready punched for use on the hooks.

Specimen Papers.—We will send one each of all the above papers—18 papers in all—on receipt of 10 cents.

2c. Story Books.—We are putting up choicest and most thrilling and telling of 75c. to $1.50 temperance story books in large newspaper form, one whole book in a paper, illustrated on first page, for 2c. a paper when bought in lots of 25 or more. One issued each month. Three are now ready. Sample of all three for 10c.

This is a new force, people will read for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or can be distributed gratuitously in various ways.

Band of Hope Requisites.—Complete line of supplies, new and practical, beautiful and exceedingly cheap. A library of $5.00 to $1.50 books at 5c ea., two weekly papers ea. at 10c. a year, a quarterly lesson system in two grades, quarterlies and song book combined, costing but two cents a quarter, certificates, pledge rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., etc., all at revolution prices. Specimen of everything necessary for complete outfit for band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving methods of running bands either with or without teachers, etc., sent free.

Free. The penny collection of the Band of Hope more than pays for requisites at prices asked by us, so that running bands are no expense to those running them—heretofore to run a band as it ought to be, with library, weekly paper, etc., has cost four to five times as much, besides there being no plan of utilizing a penny collection even to help meet expenses. Many other goods. Catalogue sent on application.

Advanced Endorsements of the Revolution. The following and hundreds of other unasked for endorsement have been received by us in advance of issue of any of our temperance publications:

From Frances E. Willard, President National W. C. T. U., in "Our Union": "When Mr. Cook takes up the opening of the ammunition for our teetotal army, how much more space the rim of a dime will cover than is possible now! May the day hasten."

From Mary C. Johnson, Secretary National W. C. T. U.: "I wish you highest success, and congratulate the temperance forces on the prospect that an energetic, pushing, first-class publisher is likely to take up the literature this great field requires."

From Mrs. Fannie D. B. Chase, President of the Pennsylvania State W. C. T. U.: "Allow me to congratulate you upon the value and success of your Sunday-school work. I am rejoiced that you are taking up temperance work, and believe that the cause will be greatly advanced by your energy and systematic work."

From James W. Webb, State Lecturer of the California I. O. G. T., Santa Barbara, Cal.: "My heart is thrilled to see the announcement that you are sending out. Surely 'the hour has come,' and the man, too. When you call on any of these places please say you saw their Ad or card in the Rescue.

"Up with Chinese labor and exterminate the white worker," is the motto of the wine and brandy makers. Of what use are white men any way, except to buy and drink our liquor and make our drunkards?

The Republican convention in Massachusetts put a plank in their recent platform for the speedy suppression of the crime of polygamy in Utah; but said nothing of the much greater prevalence of practical polygamy in Boston licensed in the tolerated grog-shop. All it had to say about the beam in its own eye was a sentimental allusion to the propriety of enforcing the present laws for preventing the evils of intemperance, Not a word about preventing intemperance itself.

The Madera Vineyard Company incorporated yesterday for the purpose of purchasing 640 acres of land in Fresno county, on which to plant and rear vines and other agricultural products, and to do a general business attending a vineyard. The capital stock is $25,000, divided into twenty-five shares of $1,000 each. The principal place of business is in this city.—Chronicle.

Yes, and the principal place where the grapes will be grown will be in the City of San Francisco, too.

John B. Finch's excellent indictment of the national crime will be given in the Rescue in short sections so that every one may read and remember it.

"To encourage drunkenness for the sake of a profit on the sale of liquor is certainly one of the most criminal methods of assassination hitherto adopted by the bravos of any age or country."—John Ruskin.

Good times now in California. The 10 or 12 thousand pauper factories are prospering on the wages of their white slaves. The only possible use of the dramshop and beer dive is to rob and curse and pauperize white labor and make it useless, so that the chinaman will get all the work.

The Sandusky Ohio Conference of United Brethren on Sept. 22d passed resolutions to pray and vote against the withering curse of intemperance, to support no man for public office who gives an uncertain sound and to aid in suppressing this crime of crimes by any method that will best accomplish the purpose." That reads a good deal better, than the report of the recent conference in this State.

The London Spectator said during the illness of President Garfield: "It is not an exaggeration to say that of the 83 million people who now think in English there were not fifty who would not have made some sacrifice to aid the late President in his struggle for life. This fact may yet affect the history of the world. All Englishmen are interested in the only Englishman who reigns by election and solicitous that he do nothing lowering an office that half of them feel must one day exist in England.

Bro. J. E. Houston G. W. S. of Oregon made a very pleasant call on Saturday last on his way to Nordhoff, where he hopes to recuperate a somewhat impaired health in the famous Ojai Valley immortalized by Mrs. E. P. Stevens our present G. W. V. T. some months ago. It is hoped he will receive a very kindly welcome from the Good Templars and other good citizens in Southern California where he intends to spend this winter. A generous kindly greeting and a warm fraternal sympathy from the friends of temperance there, will be a material help to the climatic influences, in returning our invalid friend to his home in vigorous health next spring.

Savannah, Cal, has fallen into line with the Good Templars, Bro. Will D. Gould having organized a lodge there Sept 29th with 21 charter members: a number of influential citizens have united with it, among them ex-senator Ellis and wife. The new lodge gives promise of being a wide awake one and intends to inform itself as to the principles and aims of our Order. It will doubtless cut out the consuming cancer of the one dramshop of the community, and in being then able to offer to the intending worthy settler, a home safe from moral contamination and from the financial incubus of the pauper and criminal factory——it will vastly enhance the value of all its property. A Good Templars Lodge that has vim enough to free its community entirely from the curse of the dramshop, ensures the doubling of the value of its property roll in a very short time.

The Republican party has given two martyrs to the cause of freedom and progress. Their blood will consecrate the party to braver work than it has ever before done.—New York Tribune,

The Republican Party did not give either of those two martyrs. They were martyrs to rum and beer, not to freedom or progress. A better way to say it would be "two of the best men ever elected to the presidency have been sacrificed on the altar of the rumgod of the Republican party. Slain among the many thousands of the victims who are every year murdered by the assassins educated by the rum shop and thief school which is at present the idol and graven image adored above all other gods, by the Republican party.

If glucose can be had at 3 cents a pound and can be used at a profit in fabricating such a cheap drink as lager beer, what chance will the growers of wine grapes have to sell them at over $10 dollars a ton or to compete with 500 or 1000 glucose vineyards in San Francisco, Sacramento, Napa &c that can grow 100 to 1000 gallons of choice wine any day all the year round, as long as the potato lasts and the waterworks hold out.

Amador city, Oct. 10, 1881.

I read the article from Bro. Webb about Kansas with much interest. The more so because for five years my home was in Kansas, I know something of the grit and perseverance of the Jay-Hawkers.

Well, I made up my mind that the best way to help Kansas, is for us to make it so hot all outside of that State, that those rummies will be compelled to stay at home and fight their own battle. I am willing to do my part. J. D. Wood.

The Delaware Signal, Ohio, is a temperance paper full of good things, but like the Rescue and much more than it,its articles are too long. It is better to have fifty people read a short pithy article than to have five or two read a long one. This Journal will have shorter articles in future and correspondents must remember it. There is a multitude among readers who never tackle a long article at all but who read all the short ones. Those who want to speak to a large audience must be brief on paper: those who write long speeches wil be sure to reach but a few.

The Greeley Tribune says the present has been the most auspicious year in the history of that celebrated Colorado colony and its surroundings, and he adds: "We live in an atmosphere unpolluted by the fumes of the whisky saloon or the curse of the gambling hell; our jails have few occupants, and pauperism is scarcely known." This is in the Greeley colony where prohibition has had a fair trial. The jail and poorhouse are always lamentable failures in such places. Dont you pity the poor jailers and constables who are refused employment and have to go to keeping store and farming and raising big droves of cattle?

Ohio.—How do the church people relish having such a man as Dr. Leonard called an "old sinner" and a liar! Do they intend to support the party that does it?—Del Signal.

The best way to manage these Methodist preachers who attempt to mix politics with their religion, is to starve them out by short rations. Nothing will knock the life out of a Methodist preacher so effectually as to deprive him of his chicken pot-pie. —Sandusky Register.

It is good news to hear of the political papers coming out against the preachers who dare to have a conscience and whose vote is their own. Let them keep up the cry of starving out preachers because they are temperance men and we shall see how the fun ends and where the chicken pie will be.

President Garfield is dead. It is possible, nay probable, that no skill could have saved him, but Dr. Cundurango Bliss ought not to have been suffered to have charge of the case. In our issue of Aug. 20th, we said, "The Cabinet has a grave responsibility upon it, not to allow Dr. Bliss to kill the President, if there be yet time to save him." Neither in law, nor in physic, should the skill of the practitioner be judged in all cases by the result, but Dr. Bliss had given abundant proof of presumption and incapacity. Unexpected as has been the location of the bullet, we believe that the French Nelaton or the English Liston would have known how to cut down upon it before exhaustion set in, and in so doing would have furnished a straight passage for the pus, and averted pyæmia. We do not mean to suggest that the doctors have killed the President, but Drs, Agnew and Hamilton erred gravely when they yielded the direction of the case to the quack Bliss.—Ex.

BIBLE WINES.

BY REV. S. W. INGHAM.

(Concluded.)

HISTORIC ARGUMENT.

In 1722 Calmet said that "The ancients possessed the secret of keeping their wines sweet." What he meant by this sweet wine we may discover further on. Three centuries before Christ came, Aristole wrote about a sweet wine which would not intoxicate. Hippocrates said, "sweet kinds of wine do not make the head heavy." Horace in one of his poems says, "Here shall you quaff, under a shade, cups of unintoxicating wine," In another place he speaks of opening a jar of wine which was set to fumigate during the consulship of Tullus. He exhorts Maecenas to drink a hundred glasses, assuring him that it would not excite either passion or clamor, tho he were to drink thruout the night. Pliny tells of a Spanish wine which would not inebriate the drinker. In another place he says that the most useful wine is that which has had its force or spirit broken by the filter. Plutarch says of filtered wine: "The strength or spirit being thus excluded, the wine neither inflames the brain nor infests the mind and passions, and is a much more pleasant drink." Homer tells us of a black wine, a divine drink as sweet as honey, which wine was, he said, imperishable—it would keep forever.

Calumella tells of a wine among the Greeks which was unintoxicating. It was called a good wine; it would not affect the nerves and was a fine relish.

Quotations from the ancient authors similar in character to the above might be continued to a much greater extent. Our only one "kind of wine" champions, may never have seen a delicious refreshing unintoxicating wine, and it may be that all their ancient friends deny the existence of such beverages, but it must ever be remembered that such a negation only proves a lack of knowledge. Issues are decided by affirmations of intelligence. Our ancient friends whose names have just been called knew of these delicious drinks; and further, Calumella, Pliny and others of them give the process of the manufacture.

The inevitable conclusion is well expressed by Dr. Patton, thus:

1. Unfermented beverages existed and were a common drink among the ancients.

2. That these, preserved by various processes were called wines, were used and were highly esteemed.

That celebrated scholar, Prof. Moses Stuart, says, "Facts show that the ancients not only preserved their wine unfermented, but regarded it as of a higher flavor and finer quality than fermented wine.

Now we cannot avoid the conviction that the evidence presented justifies Mr. Wilson's fatal admission that: "Traces of unfermented wine are found in classic writers."

Now, in as much as these men lived when the Hebrew and Greek languages were spoken tongues, the conclusion is inevitable that to them yayin and oinos simply meant grape wine, but whether alcoholic or intoxicating they could only learn as we would the particular species indicated by the word syrup, that is, by investigation or by qualifying clauses in the mention of the article. The same would be true of the words shakar and mesek.

Assuming, as we believe from the data given which we have a right to do, that both Jew and Greek were familiar with the fact that two kinds of wine existed and were in use, and that in public and private life they always stood in contrast with and in opposition to each other, we are able to reconcile and to harmonize some utterances of the Scriptures which were otherwise inexplicable mysteries. What father, knowing only of the death bringing and soul destroying intoxicating wine would dare utter over the head of his darling boy the blessing which the patriarch Isaac gave to his son Jacob when he exclaimed:

"God give thee the dew of heaven and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine." Not one of us would dare do it, for in that same volume we read: "Wine is a mocker and strong drink is raging." When we read again, "He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and herb for the service of man. * * * * and wine that maketh glad the heart of man," we cannot avoid asking in our thought whether it is this of which it is said again, "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red * * * * At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." But it may be said that in order to cheer the heart of man, the spirit, the alcohol must be present. Judge Swift of Connecticut was shipwrecked upon the coast of Spain, and he and Hon. O. Ellsworth, the first chief justice of the United States Supreme Court (whose private secretary he was) spent some time together in that country. While there they were freely furnished with an unintoxicating wine, of which Mr. Swift wrote: "I never before or since tasted anything that would bear comparison with the delicate, exquisite flavor and refreshing effect of this wine." (He knew all about the alcoholic wines of America, as to their flavor and influences; this should be borne in mind). He then goes on to say a gallon of it, if a man could drink so much at one time' would not affect his head in the slightest degree." In the light of these utterances and illustrations we are able to see the admissibility of this passage, "I have drunk my wine with milk; eat, O friends; drink, yea, drink abundantly O beloved," on the one hand while on the other only a terrible but entire consistency is preserved when the prophet cries with a deep philosophy, "Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath babblings? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long (drink abundantly) at the wine, they that go to seek mixed drink." Now my hearers, can it be that one and the same thing can be set forth in the book of the Lord as being a source of gladness and yet a cause of sorrow. A blessing from God and yet the sure procurer of his wrath. Use of it a benefit and supreme delight blessed of Almighty God, and yet he thunders out, "Woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine." God urges us to "buy wine and milk without money and without price, well knowing that a literal application of the figure would inevitably result in the complete destroying of virtue and in the end the fearful fate foreshadowed in the utterance, "No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God." Can we conceive such fearful self-stultifying contradictions as were thus involved in so grand a book as our Bible? If there were a doubt, this magnificent old and heaven given Word would surely be entitled to it. But we believe there is no doubt.

I will borrow the language of Prof Stuart again, to express my conclusions upon this matter thus far, viz.: "Whenever the Scriptures speak of wine as a comfort, as a blessing, or libation to God, and rank it with such articles as corn and oil, they mean—they can mean only such wine as has no alcohol that would have a mischievous tendency; that whenever they denounce it, and connect it with drunkenness and reveling, they can mean only alcoholic or intoxicating wine."

If we bear these conclusions well in mind when we come to the New Testament, we have comparatively easy work thruout. If it was desired that the wine ferment, it was left open at a proper temperature and it soon became alcoholic. If, on the contrary it was to be preserved sweet and unintoxicating, it was closed up from the air, put in a cool place and kept until the gluten settled to the bottom. Now, in the case of goatskin or leather bottles, it was almost impossible so to cleanse one in which gluten had once been settled, but that some of it would remain, become a source of fermentation and thru this means burst the bottle. Hence to keep wine sweet and unfermented it must be put into new bottles where there could be no ferment lurking to spoil the wine, in spite of all other precaution. Hence the receipt for keeping wine always sweet, as given by Calumella in the time of the apostles, explicitly directs that it be sealed up in a new jar or bottle.

Christ and his family have spent several days at the marriage feast of a friend in Cana. As the last day comes on the wine has given out. Now had Christ and his friends been tarrying at the wine which brings redness of eyes and nose; sorrow, babblings, contentions and wounds without cause? Can we then indulge the monstrous supposition that on the last day of the feast, the pure and gentle Christ, whose life were else without a flaw or spot, in order to relieve the embarrassment of his host, created 120 gallons of that which in his Father's word of old, it had been said "biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder? The bare suggestion is revolting. There is no rule of indication, no process of logic which can for a moment justify it. Everything points to that oriental nectar whose spirit arose not from the intoxicating element, but from its pure, sweet, refreshing character with "no power to inflame the brain or infest the mind and passions" of which Plutarch spoke.

The time of the crucifixion is at hand. The great and last passover is to be eaten. Great, because the one foreshadowed by the slain lambs of all past centuries would celebrate the feast, then by impious hands be slain, that His blood on the doors of human hearts might stay the avenging hand of justice.

Was the cup which he put to the lips of his apostles and bade them drink, the wine thru which the prophet and the priest are declared by Isaiah to have erred in vision and stumbled in judgment? Are we shut up to this horrible conclusion? Most assuredly not.

Dr. S. M. Isaacs, an eminent Jewish Rabbi in New Haven, says; "The Jews do not, in their feasts for sacred purposes, including marriage feasts, ever use any kind of fermented drinks * * * Fermentation is to them always a symbol of corruption.

Judge Noah, a leading Jew of New York city, says the use of wine prepared from steeped raisins is common among American Jews.

A. C. Isaacs, a teacher among the Jews for over 25 years, but afterward converted to Christianity, said in 1844. "All the Jews with whom I have ever been acquainted use unintoxicating wine at the passover."

The Encyclopedia Britanica says that the words rendered "unleavened bread" in the law of the passover is properly unfermented things, including the wine as well as the bread, and excluding alcohol of necessity as "ferment."

There is no ground for a logical conclusion that intoxicating wine was ever used by our Savior upon any occasion whatever, except upon the assumption that there was and could be no such thing as unintoxicating wine; but if history proves anything, it proves that a delightful and harmless beverage from the grape was well known and every process of legitimate logic or philosophical induction points to this as that which the Savior blessed and gave to his disciples.

We should remember that in that day the sacrament did not consist as now, of a crumb of bread and a sip of wine. But the Jewish tradition allowed four cups of wine at stated intervals during the feast, with added draughts at pleasure during certain other portions of it.

Now, with these traditional privileges uncontradicted, can we imagine He who taught us to pray, "Lead us not into temptation" would place so fearful a danger in the way of victims of appetite, the youth of the church and those in whom an unsuspected appetite lay dormant with the power of a slumbering earthquake? To us the mere supposition seems too terrible to dwell upon.

An analysis of all the utterances of the Scriptures upon this subject or involving any feature of it seems amply to vindicate the belief that this distinction between the pure unfermented wine and the alcoholic beverage is carefully maintained thruout the Word from Genesis to Revelation. When a dyspeptic Timothy is admonished to drink no longer water, but a little wine for his stomach and infirmity we at once think of that wine which Pliny says was the most useful, having its spirit broken by the filter; which Plutarch says; will not inflame the mind nor infest the brain and passions, and Hypocrates declares would not make the head heavy.

A warning against the use of intoxicating wine is found in this: "Be not drunk with wine wherein is unsaveableness. (asotia)

A bishop is to be abstinent (neephalion) sober, i. e., sober-minded, not given to wine literally, 'not near wine,' " much less a reveler.

Writing to the Thessalonians, Paul says; "Let us watch and drink not (neephomen) — 1 Thess: 5–6 Peter says: "Be sonnd-minded and abstinent (neephalion)—i. Peter; 4–7.

And again; "Drink not; be vigilant, because your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion walketh about, seeking whom he may drink down."—i. Peter 5–8

Now this command to abstain, or not to drink, occurs ten times in the apostolic writings, and a moment's thot will show that it must be total abstinence, or else it is more or less indulgence.

When Josephus says that the priests abstained from wine, he does not mean that they drank only two or three times a day, but that they did not drink.

The new Testament, as to intoxicating wine, is total abstinence, in terms sufficiently explicit, while the old Testament says: "It is not for kings to drink wine, nor for princes strong drink, lest they drink and forget the law and pervert judgment.

This injunction to the church in the apostolic day evidently was: Avoid epicurean excess or gluttony in the use of the delicious and unintoxicating wines so generally known and used. And as to alcoholic liquors, be temperate; i, e., cut them off as the word indicates, even as the prophet said nearly a thousand years before.

"Look not thou upon the wine when it is red. * * for it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." Is not total abstinence enjoined here under the fearful foreshadowing of delirium tremens and perdition.

Does "look not thou upon the wine" sound much like sanctioning moderate drinking and encouraging it? I feel disposed to borrow and slightly paraphrase the words of Chancellor Crosby which I read in the beginning of this discourse, and say the Bible does teach total abstinence from alcoholic drinks. I will not waste my time in further proving this assertion or in answering those wild Bashi-Bazouks of controversy who assert with childlike confidence and simplicity that the Bible wines were only alcoholic and intoxicating grape juice. Their learned ignorance is fairly splendid with its boldness. I have to charge the moderate drinking propaganda with wresting the Scriptures and despising their authority.

National Liberator.

Miss F. E. Willard the grandly heroic leader of the N. W. C. T. U. has recently lectured in Ottawa, Canada, planted a promising Union there, created a stirring interest in the cause and after a 30 hours visit left behind her a much improved and exalted opinion of the grandeur and power of the sacred mission of the American Christian woman in the reformatory work which is to subdue the world to the dominion of Christ; a work in which the W. C. T. U. is and will be the greatest power ever so far enlisted. There were some folks in her audience who had never heard a woman "speak in meeting" before, and they were most agreeably surprised.

Sir Leonard Tilley presided, Minister of Finance and a lifelong advocate and exponent of temperance. Miss W. caried the hearts of the people with her and efforts are to be commenced at once for the introduction of temperance text books into the public schools of Ottawa and Canada.

Much interest was felt in her able criticism of the unfortunate treatment practiced by whisky prescribing physicians upon their innocent patients.

The grogshops and dens of San Francisco as usual turned the late funeral procession to good account. One den on Montgomery street opened in the morning and again as soon as the procession passed, boasted of selling 7 barrels of beer for one item, and taking in over $200 in cash. That looks as if wages were too low and scarce.

To my Brethren of the Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, Cal.

DEAR BRETHREN:—These are the resolutions unanimously adopted by your Committee on Temperance and presented for your consideration:

I. That the present unusual interest all over the country, demands of us an emphatic expression of our determination, to use fully our moral and political influence, to secure the prohibition of the traffic in intoxicating drinks.

II. That the time has come when our people should be shown the positive antagonism between the Methodist Episcopal Church and the "wine interest" of this State; and that our members cannot be indulged in making wine or raising grapes to be made into wine for the market.

III. That we will use only unfermented wine at the Lord's Supper.

IV. That we most heartily indorse the temperance work of the Good Templars and other kindred organizations: and that we gratefully appreciate the present zealous endeavor of tne I. O. G. T. of California to secure us a quiet Sabbath.

V. That we are very thankful to the Executive Committee of the G. L. for the RESCUE which is sent free to every minister of the Gospel in California, at the expense of a thousand dollars.

VI. That we believe the most effectual temperance work can be done with the children and youth of our land; and we are convinced that it is our imperative duty, to do all in our power to save the young from the evils of intemperance:

(1.) By careful instruction from the pulpit, in the Sunday School, and in the family.

(2.) By providing healthful temperance literature for our Sunday Schools.

(3.) By heartily encouraging the Juvenile work of the I. O. G. T. of California—organizing Bands of Hope, or thankfully accepting their Badge and Rituals for use in our Sabbath Schools.

And here is the printed report of our action as given in the daily papers.

"Rev. A. K. Crawford presented the report of the Committee on Temperance, the resolutions pledging the Conference to use its influence to secure prohibition; to discountenance the making of wine or the raising of grapes to be made into wine; to use only unfermented wine iu the Sacrament; to co-operate with the Good Templars in the juvenile work; and thanking the Good Templars for their efforts to enforce the Sunday law, and for furnishing the RESCUE free to each minister.

Mr. Clifford offered as a substitute for the report of the committee that preachers be required to read and enforce paragraph 36 of the Discipline, which covers the temperance question . Substitute adopted.

Dr. Briggs offered a series of resolutions on the same subject, in which the church was pledged to co-operate in all temperance work. The resolutions were adopted."

Now Brethren, are you not ashamed of this action? I am ashamed for you, and deem it necessary to apologize.

You did not all enjoy in boyhood the business drill of the Lodge of Good Templars, or you never would have treated the work of a committee as you did. Then there was a storm of dust and chaff thrown in your eyes by the "speaking committee" led on by a man who is not a pastor, and does not read the RESCUE, and has no just appreciation of what the temperance people desire us as a Conference to say.

I believe if we had taken time and candidly considered what we were doing, as your Committee did for three days before presenting that report, it would have been adopted amost unanimously. When in our haste, in the midst of irrelevant discussion, the substitute was passed, one of our D. D.s)and if I should name him, many of you would say ("He is the ablest man in the Conference,") said to me, "We better adopt a Dictionary." To read the Discipline or the Bible on Temperance is all very well; but we must do more than this, and our Temperance friends want us to promise more.

You have heard of that uncultured, unpolished preacher who was invited to dine with a wealthy family, at the time that "floating island" first came into fashion, when he had taken the first spoonful looked at himself and all around him; and then asked his hostess if she saw where that confounded thing went to."

Now did not you feel like that poor brother, after you adopted that "mass of glittering generalities" hastily drawn up in the midst of the discussion, and voted upon without debate, at the request of their author. When that vote was taken, I doubt if the man who presented the resolutions knew what we had adopted. I confess, that I sat too near their author, to get a comprehensive view of their rhetoric; but as soon as they were adopted, a prominent brother at my side, in view of the rejection of the report of the Committee, and the vote just taken, said, "We strain at a gnat and swallow a camel."

Brethren, I hope that our work in our fields, during the year will not leave us to be misunderstood.

A. K. CRAWFORD.

IT BROKE UP THE LODGE.

Bro. Jones and Bro. Smith have had a row, and altho we all tried our utmost to heal the breach it broke up the lodge." That has been the story and a true one, time and time again. But it is singular that it should be so; strange indeed that one quarrel between two persons or a good many quarrels should at all tend to break up a lodge. It may be doubted whether a row or quarrel or fight or a murder ever broke up a dram shop.

Bros. Jones and Smith might quarrel and fight there twice a week and every Sunday, and the last thing the dramshop keeper or any of his customers would think of would be shutting up shop. In lots of saloons a constant visitor has been shot at or stabbed or beaten by the boss or by a companion, more than once, but his visits are just as regular and punctual as ever. One was shoved out and kicked by the barkeeper of a doggery on Montgomery street a few days ago, and in place of feeling or looking agrieved, the party kicked crawled up and begged to apologize and was readmitted. It did not break up the dram shop, not a customer less or late on that account. Now cant we learn from the dramshop one lesson of fidelity to our cause? And if a disturbance of the harmony or peace, little or much should ever occur, let it by no means be a success for the devil in breaking up a most important agency of good.

THE SACRAMENTO PRESBYTERY ON THE SUNDAY LAW.

Resolved I, That this Presbytery views with great satisfaction the effort now being made within our bounds for enforcing the Sunday Law, and that our sincere thanks are due to the I. O. G. T. for instituting this movement and to Almighty God for the success which has attended it.

Resolved II, That all our members be and are hereby urged to encourage this effort by their prayers, their voice, and example, in the careful observance of the command to "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

ED. RESCUE.—The above was unanimously adopted by tne Sacramento Presbytery at its late meeting in Modesto, Oct. 6. Yours in F. H. and C.

A. J. COMPTON, Moderator.

ANOTHER OF THE DAILY MURDERS.

James A. Smith was shot dead a few days ago in a murder doggery, kept on a scow at Ross Island, Oregon by a graduate of the national Sunday school named Frank Howard, who was of course drunk on government beer supplied by the floating mantrap.

Mr. Smith was a native of New York state, went to Oregon in 1865, was once much esteemed and trusted; spoke French, German and Spanish fluently; became intemperate but reformed; was five years G. W. S. of the I. O, G. T. of Oregon, married a good wife, but fell to drinking again; was divorced, reformed sometimes, held responsible situations with credit: went into politics and of course fell to drinking and rose no more. There seems to be a terrible fatality among Good Templars who violate their obligations.

GOOD FOR WESTMINSTER TEMPERANCE COLONY.—Word comes that the grogshop keeper has been frozen out by the cruel neglect of this temperance community, and has left. The lodge is talking of purchasing the premises and fitting them up for a hall and lodge room. That would be a glorious conversion. W.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

GRAND LODGE I. O. G. T. OF CALIFORNIA.

BERNARD HOUSE, Vallejo, Oct. 8, 1881.

Pursuant to call of G. W. C. T. the Executive Committee convened and was called to order at 7:30 o'clock P. M.

Upon calling the roll all answered as follows: P. G. W. C. T., Will D. Gould, G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson; G. W. V. T., Mrs. Emily P. Stevens; G. W. C., H. S. Graves; G. W. T., I. S. Halsey, and G. W. S.,Geo. B. Katzenstein.

The committee organized by the election of G. W. C. T. Robert Thompson as chairman and G. W. S. Geo. B. Katzenstein Secretary.

The Committee considered the matter of the RESCUE, and voted to invite Capt. A. D. Wood, the editor and publisher, to prepare and present plans to increase the circulation and usefulness of the paper which would be considered at the next meeting of the committee.

Upon motion it was voted to address a circular to all W. V. T's, urging them to an earnest and systematic effort in behalf of our official organ.

The Superintendent of the Juvenile work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, was allowed a compensation of $25 per month in the discharge of her official duties.

The printing of the new Band of Hope ritual was referred to the G. W. C. T. and G. S. J. W., and the latter was instructed to furnish two new odes to be inserted on page 6 of the revised ritual.

The G. W. Secretary was instructed to have letter heads, envelopes and necessary printing prepared for the G. S. J. W., also to procure the books necessary for that department.

"Sunday law circulars" were ordered sent to each lodge, in the proportion of two for each member reported, also to each minister of the gospel and to each Band of Hope.

In the matter of resolution referred to the Executive Committee by the Grand Lodge calling for a series of meetings, etc. thruout the year in the city of San Francisco. the G. W. C. T. and G. W. V. T. were appointed a special committee to investigate and report at the next meeting as to the terms of a hall etc.

The mailing of Sunday law and other tracts and leafiets was referred to the G. W. C. T.

The committee went to an election for six Grand Lecturers with the following result; Mrs. Emily P. Stevens, Wm. Crowhurst, C. N. Goulding, W. C. King, J. W. Webb, and Hugh R. Hughes.

The salaries of each were fixed, and they were severally introduced and each accepted the terms and employment—except Bro. Hughes who was not present.

The lecturers were then introduced and a joint consultation was held which proved alike pleasant and profitable. Before retiring the following was presented and ordered spread upon the records.

To the Ex, Com of the Grand Lodge of the I, O. G. T. of California:

At a called meeting of the Past Grand Lecturers, Bro. Will C. King was chosen chairman, and J. F. Culver Sec. and the following suggestion and resolutions were passed.

Suggestion 1. That the superintendent of the lecture field assign a distinct district to each lecturer and that time be given each to thoroly canvass said district, distribute temperance literature and work for the RESCUE.

2. That the lecturers have one night with each lodge in his respective district.

3. That uniform bills and posters with a blank space for subject be furnished the lecturers.

4. That each lecturer make a map of the territory canvassed.

Selolved 1. That we heartily endorse the postal card system of advertising as recommended by Will D. Gould.

Resolved 2. That we tender our sincere thanks to the Ex. Committee of the G. L. for their uniform kindness and valuable aid rendered as in every department of our labor.

WILL C, King, Pres.
F. J. Culver, Sec.
C. N. Goulding
E. P. Stevens
Hugh R, Hughes
Wm. Crowhurst
James W. Webb.
Grand Lecturers,

To the Ex Com. of the Grand Lodge of Cal. I. O. G. Templars:

At a called meeting of the Grand Lecturers I. O. G. T. the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved. That the Ex. Committee, I. O. G. T. in making arrangements and appointments for lecturers during the coming year will as far as practicable send Sister Stevens to the district lodges and central points easy of access thruout the state.

J. W. Webb, H. R. Hughes, Wm. Crowhurst, C. N. Goulding, W. C. King, F. J. Culver. Grand Lecturers.

The Grand Lecturers then retired and the Committee resumed executive session.

The G. W. C. T., G. W. S. and G. W. V. T. were appointed a committee to draft rules and regulations for the government of the Grand Lecturers and their reports to the RESEUE.

The G. W. C. T. was unanimously chosen as Superintendent and director of the lecture force.

An appropriation of $60 a month was ordered made in behalf of the director of the lecture force for clerical assistance and office rent.

At 18:30 A. M. the committee adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman.

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, Secretary

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

JOTTINGS.

W. C. KING.

Young men attention! In the life of our martyr President is found a lesson which we must not pass unheeded. He is no more, but who shall fill the place he has vacated? Are statesmen, and such statesmen so common that we can afford to lose him? A Nation's voice has thundered No! Let us study this great man's remarkable character, and strive to learn wherein his greatness lay. How did he succeed in making for himself so warm and lasting a place in his countrymen's hearts and memories; for himself so wide an influence, and enduring a name on the scroll of fame. In 1841 only known as Jimmy, the driver of horses on a canal at $8,00 per month. In 1881 the most illustrious man in all history, (if greatness be judged by its true criterion love,) surely this is a record worthy of thought. The home of our nativity is the historic Western Reserve, and we cannot remember the time that J. A. Garfield was not our ideal of a manly man, hence, his upward career has been watched with interest. Note with us a few lessons it suggests. Consider first, how simple are the elements of character upon which is based his success. Pre-eminent is self-control. His history from boyhood proves this to have been the first lesson learned. Had it been otherwise, the Nation would not to-day mourn its loss. Lacking this, he would have been neither great nor good. In indulgence is found neither worth, reward, nor true pleasure. Gen. Garfield could control his own spirit, was king of his own domain of soul, hence, could sway a New York mob and eventually nobly rule 50,000,000 of people. All excuse now common among young men for indulgence, could have been just as readily accepted by him, and thus used he would hrve failed, as they do. Tell me, is his success worth the winning? Does the grog-shop, dance house, or gaming table all combined, contain one joy which could be compared with the feelings that must have swept over his life the 4th day of last March. But again, to self-control he added integrity. From first to last he was true. Mark what I say, it was not Garfield the General, the Statesman, nor President, as such whose funeral a Nation attended, and with a world mourned, the 26th of September, but deeper than all this pageantry, was a love for Garfield, the man, and this gave to all the display impressiveness. Wherever he was, whatever position filling, whether of country school-master or the Presidency, his manliness towered above and gave lustre to his office. He regarded it as the vilest of crimes to be untrue to self. Many youth have started in life equally honest and sincere, but failed to thoroly learn self-control, and soon found the fine gold tarnished. Amidst every allurement of a long official life he was ever true. In obscure life he attached himself to an humble denomination, and when famous could say to sneering fashion, "I attend yonder unpopular church," and did so regularly. Show me in the annals of modern history more genuine integrity.

To these two qualities add a third, energy. He sought no short cuts to avoid hard work. He ennobled his work, and in turn it ennobled him. Nothing in this world is so sanctifying to a life as even humble work earnestly done, for a noble purpose. On the other hand the most honorable (?) work done for unworthy aims becomes degrading. It is very popular with "the boys" to sneer at each and all of this simple trio that we have named; but subtract one from this great man's character and what becomes of his life? We must not forget that such subtraction means the placing of the opposite in its stead. If we do not master self, the devil will; if we be less than true we are untrue; if lacking energy, are indolent, and for the loss of a man ruled by either of these opposites the world does not don sombre black. Finally, of the many morals this life suggests, we must be content to note one, this, we are what we will to be. Our only foreordained destiny is existence and the Judgment. Of this nothing can rid us, here or hereafter. If we choose to allow it to be simply existence, 'tis our fault. If we grapple with circumstances, and call ing on God for aid, declare that it shall be ennobled in life, it will be! Who of us but regards such an eminence as this man with longing, and yet the way is very plain, not to the Presidency, but to like nobility of character. He willed to be true, to do each day his very best, and then gave to fame or advancement no thought. He never went chasing after fame, but no sooner did he prove himself worthy the goddess' smiles than she came seeking after him. Remember, therefore, if you die and leave no vacuum in this world, go down unmissed and unmourned, it's your own fault. If you are not appreciated it is because you will possess no qualities that merit it. In fact, you are just what you are because you will to be so. Only by being true can we be great; only by being untrue can we become ignoble. Greatness is within us, not above us. Success is a quality of soul, not a creature of circumstances, and in these matters the will is supreme.

J. W. WEBB.

San Bernardino Lodge is strong and hopeful. Col. Paris, W. C. T., and Bros. Curtiss and Ball, Committee, met the lecturer at Colton depot, three miles distant and escorted him to Stark's hotel, where he found comfortable quarters, reasonable prices, and no bar either in or adjoining the premises. They afterwards introduced me round and I found that the County Superintendent and Deputy, District Attorney, City Marshall, Editor Wilson of the Index, Deputy Post Master Brown, the principle and teachers of the five public schools, Revs. Ford, Congregational, Walter Featherstun, M. E. Church South, and G. W. Elwood M. E. Church, the ex-County Judge and many leading citizens and noble women are members. Met lodge before second lecture, and found it sociable and active. They are pushing prosecutions of saloon keepers for violating the Sunday Law. A committee is appointed to procure literature for distribution: To them I gave samples of tracts, pamphlets, etc., and directions where to send.

☞ Reader, can't you get your lodge to appoint such a committee and have it vote a few dollars to send to the RESCUE office, or to J. B. Hill, 1041 Market St. S. F., or to D. C. Cook, 148 Madison St., Chicago, for a good assortment? Try it the very next Lodge night! Sister Hopkins has faithfully canvassed for RESCUE, and a few are taken, but, with over two hundred members, one hundred copies ought to suscribed for, read and loaned. Overflowing meeting Sunday night, and good one Monday, best of attention. Good Band of Hope, Brother Featherstun successful Superintendent. In his absence at Conference, Sister Jennie Wilson ably presided; little Miss Littlepage did well at the organ. Addressed the public schools, found many responded to the question, "Who belong to the Band of Hope?" The young lady teachers were quite pleased that I spoke to their scholars against using tobacco. In Brother Brooke's department there are twenty Good Templars—"like teacher, like scholars." I find it is possible to start new lodges at Colton, Oro Grande and Laconia, and I shall pay my best respects to those points when I have traversed San Diego Co.

Riverside—As no one came over from this lodge or sent any word how to go or where to stop, I took stage, and alighted at the first hotel, as I was an entire stranger. After dinner, discovered that the proprietor, Bro. Frank Miller, is a member and keeps a temperance house, Glenwood. Bro. Miller took me in his buggy to see the ministers and others. Sister Davis, the energetic secretary, an earnest Christian woman, also took me through a large part of the beautiful valley. Sorry I had but one night here, and no time with the lodge which is large and doing well, with good musical and literary talent; efficient aid from outside friends being sometimes abtained. The W. C. T. is a young lady; the banker, Bro. Dyer, Treasurer, Revs. Cross, Button and Wright belong, and I think Revs. Colbourn and Lane will unite, as both are temperance men. Bro. Cross conducts the Band of Hope. Did not get any subscribers for RESCUE, but the lodge will get up a club and obtain Mrs. Hayes' picture for a premium. There are 160 members. Lodge has a new Mason & Hamlin organ. Lately 50 to 70 members from San Bernardino came over on a fraternal visit, and were handsomely entertained, both physically and mentally. There may soon be a lodge at Arlington, and the county already talks of a District Lodge. I could write a small book in praise of Riverside avenues, houses, grounds, oranges, raisins, apricots and other fruits, but space fails me. Hope to be there again soon. Sunday violators are being prosecuted.

Chino has a wide awake lodge. Bros. Hidden and Cross came for me to Riverside and back, a thirty-mile drive, entertained and took me on to Pomona, next day. Gave $7.00 at collection. I took several subscribers for RESCUE. The teachers of the three schools in the neighborhood, and Father Fuqua, Baptist preacher, belong to lodge. Bro. Brook of San Bernardino, D.D. organized this one and presented them with a handsome set of officers' regalia. Brother Wright prepared the way by lecturing. This is a good community.

The address of Mrs. E. P. Stevens is now 1907 Bush St. San Francisco.

"CHRISTIAN."

Is it bearing the reproach of Christ for suffering the reproach of the term 'Christian?"

Many that are not ashamed of the former, well might hesitate to shoulder the responsibilities of the latter as viewed by those judging Christianity by its history. Is it not strange that the simple adjective "Christian" linked to any name or cause, should create suspicion, if not open hostility, in the minds of many who owe all they possess of moral rectitude, intellectual acumen and spiritual integrity to the conversion of their fathers to the Christian faith. But could they but behold their lineal ancestor, of the third or fourth centuries, how quick their enmity to a term never sought by the first followers of the Nazarene, would change to compassion. The unthinking behold but the errors of past generations seeking redemption in his name. They consider not that the European or Asiatic gentile of that period (and we are now all descended from such) was little better than a brute—a savage, who could not embrace heaven's truth without corrupting and prostituting its very name. They love to see in the death strnggles, in the agonies, in the purging of this savage nought but the fallacy of his conceived ideals and creeds of duty and faith as served him to climb unto—where we find him to-day. For he that scoffs and sneers at the errors and failures of his fathers upon the living way, will, from the hour he makes an earnest attempt to enter thereon be subject to like temptations, errors and tribulations—only modified by modern conditions—as all before him that sought his righteousness and salvation.

It would be easy to disown the appellation "Christian," and adopt some other name more suitable to those that are offended thereby. But impossible to find one more deserving of honor and respect. Nor any other would fare better in the end. Let us remember that with all the atrocities committed in this name, it bore the brunt of pagan persecution, and the (veritable) reproach of our crucified Lord. If it has been betrayed and made merchandise of, it but shared the destiny of every other term once glorious in its meaning.

Nevertheless, it would, perchance, be better for Christians to disclaim all personal merit for choosing to follow in the way. Spiritual pride, might be said, was the stumbling block of his followers from the beginning. We find it at the root of all ecclesiastical arrogance, presumption and conceit. Claims to special grace, sanctification and life eternal need to be supported by far more tangible evidences than mere label to insure even tolerance. We all hate pretense. We will readily forgive shortcomings. But let no one dream of pleasing any one into unqualified endorsement of the most saintly and immaculate endeavor to serve man or God. Least of all expect aid or comfort from infidelity for labors of love—the hope, and reward of which is hidden to unbelief. God Almighty cannot please but very few in all things. The intellectual and moral urchin who is offended at the errors of Christianity, even unto death, will, like as not, barter his own soul for even lesser temptations than the devil ever offered a live Christian. He can have them for nothing.

LECTURE APPOINTMENTS.

Wm. Crowhurst, will lecture at Winters, with Yolo District Lodge, 14, 15; Pleasant Prairie, 16, 11 A. M., Madison, 16, 17; Copay; 18; Yolo (Cacheville) 19; Dunnigan's, 20, 21; Black's, 22, 23; Davisville, 24. Posters are in the hands of B. H. Hoag, Davisville.

Sister Stevens will commence the work of the new Grand Lodge year in Stockton and will thoroly canvas other parts of San Joaquin Co.

Bro. Webb will pass thro Salinas and San Louis Obispo counties and will arrive in Ventura in time for District Lodge, where he will arrange for continued work.

Hugh R. Hughes, after a brief visit to Sonoma County, will commence an active campaign in El Dorado County.

Bro. King has for the present a short leave of absence after which he will be assigned a territory.

Col. C. N. Goulding left on Tuesday, via Reno, and Carson for Bodie, and will labor in Mono and Inyo Counties for the present; dates of appointment, will be published soon as arranged.

FATHER WAUGH. The article respecting him in this number was taken from an Eastern paper and owing to absence at Grand Lodge and absence of mind of the compositor, credit to the paper was omitted and now nobody knows who to credit it to. The heading of first article in the Juvenile Dep. should be trap and not tract. Some other improvements will also be noticed.

The Woman's Herald of Industry for October is full of interesting matter for women engaged in the awakening of their sex to their responsibilities and duties. It is a remarkably vigorous and aggressive as well as progressive journal. No one who peruses it would be guilty of ever using any more the miserable old phrase "the weaker sex" when speaking of women.

The P. R. W. G. T,. Bro. T. D. Kanouse is nominated for Governor of Wisconsin on the prohibition ticket that will be uniformly successful before very long, blind people notwithstanding.

NEHALEM VALLEY.

ED. RESCUE:—For the benefit of your readers who may be looking in different directions for homes, I propose to give a brief description of the valley above named, having just returned from my second visit there. The Nehalem river takes its rise in the coast mountains west of Portland, and after a meandering of some 80 miles, empties its bright waters into the Pacific Ocean 50 miles south of Astoria. The North Fork, smaller branch, heads in Saddle Mountain, and joins the main river at tide water, some four miles from the ocean. The bottoms from the junction down, are largely tide land, producing immense quantities of feed for cattle. These tide lands are settled. Above the tide land the bottoms are timbered, sometimes quite heavily, with spruce and hemlock, and in other places, with a lighter growth of alder, vine, maple, salmon and salal brush. The large spruce trees, green or dry, are felled and dispatched by boring two auger holes so as to meet, toward the heart, and firing. A more hasty way to get the benefit of the timbered bottoms is to girdle the trees, cut out the underbrush, and scatter grass seed. The ground is thus soon covered with such a sod as perhaps no other country than the coast of Oregon and Washington can produce. Red and white clover, timothy, red-top and mesquit are the chief for pasturage and hay, and perhaps there is no other region where a given acreage will keep an equal amount of stock the year round. The growth of the immense and vigorous sod is little checked by the mild winter, and continues its luxuriant growth all summer. Thousands of acres of such bottom land lie vacant along the banks of the Nehalem and tributaries, awaiting the coming of industrious hands, and promising such homes as the Creator has provided for in few places. As in every new country, market facilities are somewhat inconvenient, but the vast wealth of soil, immense forests of finest timber, and beds of superior coal cannot long remain without conveniences for transportation. The great corporations are investigating the matter, and will either improve the entrance for safe navigation up the deep tide water, or run a branch from the projected upper Wilamet and Astoria Railroad. The river and tributaries are literally alive with finest fish which are easily taken at all times of the year, while elk, black bear, deer and other game are abundant in the woods. I stood within thirty steps of a band of elk, some of which were as large as a very large work ox, with antlers of wonderful proportions and grandeur. As to the climate, I cannot but express my great disappointment at finding it far better thus far than I had hoped for. On my arrival, April 8th, I found the ground as dry as at that time of year in Sonoma County, the gardens and woods bright with flowers, the grass up strong and abundant, and the dairies running full blast with stock rolling fat. But most people thot the spring was earlier than usual. The remainder of April was showery, with one light frost which all told me was a very rare thing. There was not rain enough to flush even the little brooks. May almost rainless; June, showery; and since then just enough rain to keep the grass booming at a wonderful rate. Weeds are almost unknown. Grass, (clover included) is king, literally overrunning and subduing everything before it. The people are frank to confess that there is more rain in winter than is desirable, but from what I can learn, the Oregon rain stories, so familiar in California, are largely exaggerated. Almost all that I have met here are from California, and generally express their preference for this climate. All agree in pronouncing this the healthiest country they ever knew, and from close observation I am constrained to add one to their number in that belief. The temperature is exceedingly uniform. We have none of those chilling winds and fogs that render the California coast so trying to persons of weak constitution, or those troubled with rumatism. As an example, the first Presbyterian church on the Pacific Coast was orgauized at Astoria, 35 years ago, with seven members. Six of them are here yet. As to fruits, we have not, of course, the unequalled variety of California. Apples, pears and plums, they all tell me, did remarkably well until three years ago; since then they have suffered severely with a kind of blight, and yet considerable quantities are raised. I believe most berries do better here than in California. Grapes are out of the list; peaches few. Most garden vegetables do exceedingly well; tomatoes, melons and corn grown with more difficulty. Snow rarely falls, and melts immediately off. The fuchsia and geranium are often seen growing in the open garden; where they survive the winter, sometimes being killed to the ground.

Fare from San Francisco to Astoria, $20 and $10. If any good temperance folks shoutd come this way they may learn of my whereabouts by inquiring at the Weston Hotel.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE TRACT.

"Ah ! here is some delicious smelling cheese in this box—they must have left it for us—how kind of them !"

"Stop, stop !" cried his mother. "Dont one of you go near it ? That is a trap—a dreadful thing, set here to catch mice. Do you see that door lifted up at his one side ? When a mouse goes in to eat that cheese, down drops that door and shuts him in."

"And what happens then ?" asked Grayback.

"I don't know," she said, with a shudder, "but no mouse who ever went into a trap has ever been seen again."

She hurried them all away, but Grayback grumbled at the loss of his good supper. They had to creep through the wall down into the cellar and make a meal of tallow candles and raw potatoes, which none of them were fond of. Later, Grayback stole again to the pantry to take another look at the trap.

"That door has not fallen yet !" he exclaimed. "Old folks are always so careful and suspicious. I believe I could get a piece of that cheese without any harm coming to me."

But he waited till the next night, and then went to look again. The door was still up.

"I don't believe it will ever fall !" he said-

He crept nearer—the tempting smell of the cheese brought to his mind the horrid remembrance of the tallow candles and raw potatoes. Very cautiously he licked the cheese, then ventured on a nibble, then on a bigger one, thinking how fortunate it is that young folks are so much wiser than their parents.

There came a little cr-r-r-reak—and then a bang! He squeaked with all his might, and the whole family came running in fright and dismay. But he was shut in, and no one could help him. His mother nibbled and scratched till the sound of footsteps in the morning drove them all away, and they never saw him again.

So much for a mouse trap. Do you know what man traps are ? You may find them almost everywhere, but they go by different names. Some are called saloons, some theatres, some gambling dens. They are set for the souls of men, and of poor silly youths who think it manly to play with danger and to laugh at the tender warnings of anxious friends. They are bated with drink—to destroy body and soul, with low amusement—to take away the taste for every thing good and noble; and with promise of ill-gotten gain the weakling who ventures to play around these baits can never know when the trap may fall, shutting between him and all that means hope and happiness here and hereafter. But a day will surely come when warning shall cease, and nothing be left but a certain fearful looking forward to judgment to come.—S.S. Weekly.

THE SPONGE.

Now dont look so shocked, my good friends, for the sponges which you use in the bath-room, and to chase away all sorts of queer looking creatures from off your slate, have been real live animals. The holes in the sponges are used for two purposes: Thru the smaller ones sea water is drawn in, carrying with it air, animal and vegetable food for this curious sponge animal. After using all the particles of food, &c., this useless water is sent out again thru the large holes. Little cells are found here and there all thru the smaller channels, which have thread-like "whips," or fans, which move ever back and forward, so forcing the water thru these long chambers.

A young sponge comes from an egg. The eggs are found all thru the large sponge, singly or in heaps. When the young sponge bursts from the egg it swims out from the old sponge, "an oval-shaped body." As it swims, it feeds and grows. Soon a small point or knob appears on one end, which after becomes a hole. On the opposite end a cluster of larger cells appear; with these the litttle owner soon attaches himself to some rocks, and there lives, spreads itself out, building up any number of channels. A young sponge was once known to have settled—"squatted," as they say out West—on the back of a crab, which went about quite happily, carrying this sea animal, which was many times larger than itself.—*S. SONG OF THE DECANTER.

There was an old decanter, and its mouth was gaping wide; the rosy wine had ebbed away.
and left
its crystal side; and the wind
went humming, humming—up and down the sides it flew, and through the reed-like, hollow neck
the wildest notes it blew. I placed it in the window, where the blast was blowing free, and fancied that its pale mouth sang the queerest strains to me. "They tell me—puny conquerors!—the Plague has slain his ten, and War his hundred thousands of the very best of men; but I"—'twas thus the bottle spoke — "but I have conquered more than all your famous conquerors, so feared and famed of yore.
Then come, ye youth and maidens, come drink, from out my cup, the beverage that dulls the brain and burns the spirit up; that puts to shame the conquerors that slay their scores below; for this has deluged millions with the lava tide of woe.
Though in the path of battle darkest waves of blood may roll;
yet while I killed the body,
I have damned the very soul.
The cholera, the sword, such ruin never wrought, as I,
in mirth or malice, on the innocent have brought.
And still I breathe upon them, and they shrink before my breath; and year by year my thousands tread the dismal road to Death."

CAN STOP USING TOBACCO.

I am very much pleased to note how many adults are quitting the use of tobacco after being many years addicted to it. And I am just as sorry and ashamed to hear boys and youths say "I cant quit it." When I organized the Maple Band of Hope in Lompoc Valley, Bro. J. M. Moss and his son James, quit and became members. Mr. Preston Hodges was about persuaded also.

At Santa Maria Bro. J. T. Jones, husband of the Supt. has given it up after many years constant use. It was a determined struggle but he mastered the perverted appetite and we are all proud of his victory and clean example.

At Chino, in San Bernardino Co. Elder Fuqua, Baptist minister, quit 4 years ago, both tobacco and coffee. They had made him so nervous that he had to quit preaching and on one occasion was compelled to leave the pulpit. A doctor followed him and said "if you will quit tobacco and coffee, I can cure you." He said it was destroying his usefulness and he replied "I will if it kill me." And he did without any "tapering off" and is stout and hearty. Now let any boy that says "I cant," remember, he began when he was 19, and left off at the age of 62, he is now 66. And to-night his son and son-in-law, who have already quit chewing, declare they will stop smoking this week.

As I am only 40—a young man—it is hardly worth while to quote my own case, tho I took the Band of Hope pledge, with a large number of boys, in the Ukiah Band of Hope 7 years ago. Let us have more testimonies of old smokers.

JOHNNY'S FIRMNESS.

BY FAYE HUNTINGTON, IN ROYAL ROAD.

"John, I want you to drive to Whitewood this evening; I have to attend a meeting of society at the seminary, and shall be obliged to leave you at the hotel."

This I said to my coachman a few days since. I had hesitated over the matter, almost fearing to place the boy in the position where he might meet temptation; but there seemed no alternative. I must either stay at home or he must be left at the hotel for an hour or two. To my remark he responded cheerily:

"All right, ma'am."

"John," I said , "they sell liquor at that hotel."

"Yes, 'm'."

"Some one may ask you to drink."

"That's all the good it will do."

"They may urge you."

"That's all the good it will do."

"They may insist."

Still the quiet response, "That's all the good it will do."

"But, John, they may try to make you drink !"

Still the same, "That's all the good it will do them." Then with more energy; "I wouldn't drink if they killed me."

I believe he spoke the truth; And boys, that's the stuff that strong, true men are made of. I know that there are thousands of such boys in this land; but I would that there were more. We need a host of such boys who dare to stand firm for the right; who will stand firm even unto death !

POWER OF A CHILD.

A visitor to Moyamensing, the great city prison in Philadelphia, tells a pathetic story: A gang of desperate ruffians associated themselves a few years ago for the purpose of breaking into banks. Their plan was to gag or murder the watchman before opening the vaults. A man named Watson was the leader of the gang, and being now under arrest in his cell, inquired eagerly of the visitor, if a certain bank in Northumberland, Pa. had ever been broken open.

"We planned to rob that bank a year ago," he said, "but we couldn't do it. It was not because it was guarded in any special way, for it wasn't. But it was because of a little child. Three evenings we were hid, waiting ready to knock the janitor on the head when he made his daily rounds. But each time he had that innocent baby by the hand, and we'd have to kill her too. We couldn't do it- I'm a bad man, boss, but I coudn't bring myself to hurt that little one."

The human instinct, the germ of pity and love, lies hid somewhere, we venture to hope, in the worst nature. If we could but remember always that in the worst man there still lingers this divine spark of heavenly fire, our own lives would be ennobled by that charity which our Master gave to the world to make it more akin to heaven.—Youth's Comp.

DRINK ALWAYS AT THE BOTTOM OF IT.

I was sitting in my New York office one day when a bruised, bloated, red-faced, dirty fellow entered. A stranger he was, and certainly I was not desirous of making his acquaintance. But he soon revealed his name, and then I could see under the disguise of his drunkenness the face of the most brilliant writer of his class in college with me. He had been a preacher. Now he was a drunkard. He had the mud of the gutter on his ragged clothes, and wounds received when falling on the stones of the street. He begged money of me in the name of old friendship. He is dead now.

Often I used to meet on the streets of New York a splendid looking man, an eloquent lawyer, the best speaker in his class in college. His name is an honored name in the church and the State. But he added nothing to its credit. Gradually I observed the increased redness of his eyes and flush of his handsome face. By and by without recognition. He did not wish to know me, for his path was now downward. He blasted the brightest prospects and died a drunkard. But for the one vice of intemperance, he might have been to-day a leading lawyer in this city.—Irenaus Prime.

START TRUE.

BY MRS. H. C. BLAKESLEE IN ROYAL ROAD.

"Now start me true," cried Fred.
To his mates on the hill one day,
As he sped on his bright new sled,
From the snowy crest away.
The hill was long and steep,
While a narrow, shining track,
Climbed up thru the snowy deep,
To the top of "Camel's back."

Near by on the mountain-side,
The tallest pine-trees grow;
While a dark and angry tide
Dashes over rocks below.
But Fred, with a steady care,
Knows well where the dangers lay;
No rock or a hidden snare
Shall turn him out of his way.

How swiftly now does he glide!
Past gully and stump and curve.
And nothing can turn him aside—
Not once from the way does he swerve.
"Hurrah," he cries: "I'm there,"
Till the rocks catch up the refrain,
And he waves his cap on the air
As he touches the snowy plain.

And so, in the journey of life,
Start true, my dear boys, and pray;
Avoiding intemperance and strife.
And the evils that lie in the way.
May you thus, when eternity's light
Flashes up on your course at the last,
Break forth into songs of delight,
O'er dangers triumphantly passed.

A GLASGOW FACTORY BOY.

Just above the wharves of Glasgow on the banks of the Clyde, there once lived a factory boy, whom I will call Davie. At the age of ten he entered a cotton factory as "piecer." He was employed from six o'clock in the morning till eight at night. His parents were very poor and he knew that his must be a boyhood of very hard labor. But then and there in that buzzing factory he resolved that he would obtain an education, and would become an intelligent and useful man. With his very first weeks wages he purchased Ruddimans Rudiments of Latin. He then entered an evening school, which met between the hours of eight and ten. He paid the expenses of his instruction out of his own hard earnings. At the age of sixteen he could read Virgil and Horace as readily as the pupils of the English grammar schools.

He began a course of self-instruction. He had been advanced in the factory from a piecer to the spinning-jenny. He brought his books to the factory, and placing one on the jenny with the lesson open before him, he divided his attention between the running of the spindles and the rudiments of knowledge. He now began to aspire to become a preacher and a missionary, and to devote his life in some sacrificing way to the good of mankind. He entered Glasgow University. He knew that he must work his way, but he also knew the power of resolution, and he was willing to make almost any sacrifice to gain the end. He worked at cotton spinning in the summer, lived frugally and applied his savings to his college studies in the winter. He completed the allotted course, and at the close was able to say with praiseworthy pride. "I never had a farthing that I did not earn.

That boy was David Livingstone.—Chatterbox.

"BE A GOOD MAN, PAPA."

The editor of the Christian says: Leaving home this morning for the office, we kissed our little four-year-old good-bye, saying to him, "Be a good boy." He somewhat surprised us by replying. "I will. Be a good man papa." Sure enough, we thought, we need the exhortation more than he. And who could give it more effectually than the guileless prattler? The words of the little preacher have been ringing in our ears all day, and whether we wrote letters or editorials, pacified an irate correspondent whose effusions we could not publish, or pruned down a too lengthy report, we seemed to hear the sweet child voice saying, "Be a good man, papa." If the exhortation had been by Paul or Peter, would it have had more force than coming from this little apostle of innocence? We think not at least to our heart. Oh! how many little children, if not in words, yet by the helplessness of their lives, and the trustfulness of their little hearts, are pleading most eloquently, "Papa, be a good man?"—American Young Folks.

NO EXAGGERATION POSSIBLE.

"There are hundreds of thousands of homes scattered all over the land," says the Agricultural World, "in which women live lives of torture, going thru all the changes of suffering that lie between the extremes of fear and despair, because those whom they love, love wine better that the woman they have sworn to love. There are women by the thousands who dread to hear at the door the step that once thrilled them with pleasure. That step has learned to reel under the influence of the seductive poison.

There are women groaning with pain, while we write these words, from bruises and brutalities inflicted by husbands made mad by drink. There can be no exaggeration in any statement made in regard to this matter, because no human imagination can create anything worse than the truth, and no pen is capable of portraying the truth. The sorrow of a wife with a drunken husband, or a mother with a drunken son, are as near the realization of hell as can be reached."—Royal Road.

"I DONT call it babyish to keep one's word to his mother," answered an obedient boy, a beautiful light glowing in his blue eyes; "I call that manly; "and the boy who dont keep his word to her will never keep it to anyone else—you see if he does;" and he hurried away to his cottage home.

Thirty years have passed since those boys played on the common. Charlie Gray is now a prosperous business man in a great city, and his mercantile friends say of him that "his word is his bond." We asked him how he acquired such a reputation. "I never broke my word when a boy no matter how great the temptation, and the habits thus formed then, have clung to me thru life."—Sel.

A VETERAN METHODIST PREACHER.

Mr. Waugh—Father Waugh they call him in California—is a well preserved gentleman of 73; hale aud hearty as most men of 50. He has been a Methodist minister for half a century, though for many years retaining only a local connection. He is a Virginian by birth. When a young man he was favorably impressed with what he heard of the West, and one day he put all his earthly possessions into his saddle-bags, mounted his horse and started for the Lake Erie county. He was not very well suited here, and after a stay he saddled his horse again and turned his face to the west once more, riding all the way to the Missouri River. This was in 1831. He settled in Missouri that year. and became a travelling or "circuit" preacher in the Missouri conference. He made his home at Jefferson City. and preached in a large extent of adjacent territory. His ministerial work in this State covered a period of seventeen years. A portion of that time he spent at Westport, organizing and directing the Manual and Labor School for the Shawnee Indians—an institution whose fruits are still manifest in the improved condition of the tribe. He closed his labors here in 1852, under another attack of Western fever. This time he concluded to follow the star of empire to the Pacific Ocean. He started from Cedar County with his small family across the plains. His worldly goods, now too large for a pair of saddle-bags, called for an ox-team, which he obtained, and, with more than eighty persons, having in all more than twenty ox teams, the start was made. The journey was long, but not unpleasant, The whole party arrived without accident in California. There they separated. Father Waugh found a home about fifty miles from San Francisco, at a place called Petaluma, where he has since resided, doing a little farming, a little hunting and a little preaching. He has, thru life, been an active temperance man, and as he points with pride to the fact that, as one of the results of his abstemiousness,he is able to ride thrty miles a day on horseback when he has passed by three years the Psalmist's allotted "three score years and ten."

A BLAST AGAINST MORMONISM.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—A large part of Talmage's sermon Sunday was upon Mormonism. He said: "It needed a father and a husband like Garfield to understand the value of a Christian home and to annihilate the abomination of Mormonism. Perhaps the time has not yet come; perhaps it was necessary that a nation's indignation should be aroused to a greater pitch of anger against Mormonism before its extirpation should be attempted. I will not say that Guiteau was a Mormon, nor would I dare say that he was not, but Guiteau says that he shot Garfield in the name of the Lord. If he was not a Mormon he was one of the Oneida Community, whose chief doctrine was the right to a profusion of wives. He had the spirit of Mormon licentiousness, of Mormon cruelty and of a Mormon murderer. I should not wonder if, in the Great Day, when all such things are revealed, if it should be found that he was the paid agent of that old hag which sits making mouths at high Heaven between the Rocky mountains and the Sierra Nevada."—"Chron."

Mr. Talmage has been frequently misreported and it is to be hoped he has in this instance. For such a silly, vicious and inconsistent utterance is unusual with the great Christian reformer. What a wealth of wisdom there is in the saying of the Savior about the moat and the beam, and what a profound understanding of the human heart and human nature it revealed. Talmage the preacher, the reformer, the christian, is one of the principal figures in the group of this generation's greatand good men. But Talmage the bigot, the utterer of that paragraph settles down into a very commonplace character.

Let who will condemn the system of polygamy and Mormon polity, the only rational mode of extirpating it, is to put a christian system of greater purity and excellence along side of it, in competition with it and let each be known and judged by its fruits. As it is the Mormon system has produced a very remarkably superior system of morals and a happier and better and more prosperous civilization, than the system with which President Grant sought to supplant it, and which Presidents Hayes and Garfield would probably have continued to press upon the people of Utah.

The Gentiles settled in the states and territories all round Utah, have built their towns and villages over gold and silver mines and in fruitful valleys, and in every instance the civilization they have produced has been a miserable failure; their god has been rum: the God of heaven, the Sabbath, the church, the bible, have all been thrown out into a vacant lot, among the rubbish and offal: their temples of worship have been the dramshop, the gambling den and the brothel; crime, pauperism, hard times, insanity and suicide are the most prominent characteristics of their civilization. The christianity, which furnishes the moat in the eye of Mr. Talmage, in its unholy alliance with the satanic trinity just named and which the Mormons have cast out and repelled, has to show on this continent the most debased condition of humanity, the worst and most startling and frequent crimes and cruelties, the greatest number of murders and the deepest and most far-reaching debauchery, poverty and misery that the world has ever developed.

The Mormons settled in the dry and arid desert by industry and hard work and the rigid exclusion of the dramshop, gambling thief and agents of debauchery or the drunkard makers trinity, they have made a prosperous and widely settled territory against the hardest and scarcest natural opportunities or rather the lack of them. At the irruption of the Gentiles under chief justice McKean and Co. who came to evangelize Utah, Utah and all its cities were the most moral, peaceful and well conducted of the whole Union with the exception of those places where the dramshop had been expelled.

But the means which the emissaries of the government used were the very best in the world to strengthen and extend and intensify Mormonism. They uprooted the Sabbath, established the grog-shop, the gambling den and the brothel and wherever they had the power they showed the Mormons that Gentilism was the most dangerous foe to their peace and prosperity and to the morals of their people that could be imagined and so it has proved.

Everything the Mormons hated was riveted upon them and they were most unjustly and cruelly persecuted.

Of course there are christian missionaries and individuals and churches which are using faithfully the only consistent methods of reforming Mormonism. But all honest citizens of the U. S. should protest against putting an infinitely worse social system in the place of Mormonism.

Polygamy at a distance is an immense beam in the eye of Mr Talmage, but his attempt to connect Mormonism with Guitteau's crime is pitifully mean.

Religious papers are generally now-a-days so favorable to temperance that they never allude to it.

THE GRAND LODGE SESSION.

Was as usual an exceedingly pleasant, harmonious, and spirited meeting. There seemed to be an entire absence of axes to grind, or private interests to forward. Good order was at all times maintained and a close and earnest attention devoted to the business on hand.

It will be seen elsewhere, that liberal appopriations have been recommended for an extended work during the coming year. Six lecturers are detailed to their various fields already, and no doubt this will be the most active year of our history; it is hoped, too, it will be by far the most successful.

Few changes were made in the Officers of G. L. Bro. W. S. Graves was elected G. W. C., vice Bro. Russell absent in the East, and Mrs. Emily P. Stevens was made G. W. V. T. Mrs. Mayhew, the P. G. W. V. T., was elected Lady Manager, in place of Mrs. Benjamin, who has removed to Trinity county. Mrs. M. E. Richardson, the sweet singer, is the G. S. of J. W. and P. G. W. C. Sims is on the board of trustees of O. H.

There were no contested elections, save in the case of the Lady Managers and in the choice of San Francisco as place of next session.

cheap john was nowhere visible or audible during the sesion. He appears to have emigrated from this state years ago.

Yet there was a most searching and business-like and effective overhaul of every financial transaction of the past year, and while ample provision is made for the various departments of our future work, a careful economy of our means has been observed.

TEMPEBANCE LITERATURE

Is to be pushed this year with renewed zeal and vigor. Every Lodge, minister, Superior Judge, and W. C. T. U. is to be furnished with several of the most useful books of the N. T. S. and also with some useful leaflet and tract literature, at stated times during the year. Diligent effort is to be made to double or treble the circulation of the Rescue; and the works of the N. T. S. and of David C. Cook, of Chicago, will be industriously pushed.

A new ritual of the Band of Hope will be immediately issued, the copy being all ready for the printer.

DISTRICT LODGES.

A motion made by Bro. Peckinpah of Enterprise Lodge, to empower the Dist. Lodge to tax its subs. 50 cents a year per member, for D. L. purposes, was lost by a few votes less than the two-thirds requisite.

REGALIA.

A recommendation was unanimously made to the subordinate lodges to give a unanimous solid vote against the proposition to abolish the regalia of the Order, and substitute a cheap john gewgaw in its place. The delegates present gave emphatic and very decided expression to the opinion that it is of much more importance to abolish the license system than any of the emblems or symbols or badges of our Order.

DEGREES.

A motion to petition R. W. G. L. to alter the second degree was withdrawn by general desire. Altho it is confessed that the degree might be much improved by a change or by a return to the original beautiful form which was abolished, it was feared the alteration if made would be more than was desired, and this state does not desire to countenance silly changes of established usage, while a great war for the salvation of our country is at our doors.

For the first time a delegate from a lodge of colored Good Templars was present. He acquitted himself with much credit and made a well pointed allusion to the prospect of 4 or 5 thousand votes of colored Good Templars for prohibition in this state in the near future.

A vote of thanks was tendered Dr. R. H. McDonald for his gallant assistance to the project of disseminating temperance literature and his generous donations to the prize school essay scheme etc.

The Mutual Aid received consideration and steps were taken to endeavor to press it to a success. It is without doubt the cheapest, safest and best system extant of mutual insurance. Of course if one who joins it this week should die in the week after, his benefit would not be very large, until our numbers are increased; but even in that case it would be a good investment with no possible chance of loss.

The subject will be alluded to again shortly. Fraternal delegates were present from the W. C. T. U. and several religious bodies and the usual amenities exchanged, and among the complimentary incidents was a vote of thanks to the management of the Rescue. The journal of proceedings will very soon be issued as usual.

IMPROVEMENT.

The Folsom Telegraph complains that the improvements that were promised to follow the establishment of the State prison there have not come, but the splendid water power facilities &c remain unused.

There can be no sensible or real improvement coming to Folsom or any other place on this coast till the grogshop is exterminated. The most valuable materials of improvement are our boys and girls and our people. Every town in California is furnished with the most exquisitely adapted and completely effective machinery for the utter corruption and destruction of its manhood and its womanhood and its youth: all the money that should be used for providing homes, extending our boundaries, cultivating our unused fields, creating wealth, is stolen from the greater number of the wealth producers and squandered for worse than nothing in the government dramshop: and the losses and damages and taxes and ruin to trade which follow, sweep away all the savings, all the labor and enterprise of the sober worthy industrious citizen. The sober worker is helpless before the licensed public robber, and is compelled to seek a living elsewhere or settle down into a hopeless, hand to mouth conflict with poverty and hard times.

Vallejo offers the best example of what the grogshop can do. It has had a gold mine or rather a green back mine for 25 years, which has never cost its citizens a cent of money or labor to develop. For that many years the government of the U. S. has rained down into the Navy yard, in one way or another, an average of very nearly a million of dollars a year: either paid out for labor or expended there in some way.

The town grew finely and prospered in spite of its grogshops, till about 1870, when the latter under the Coghlan and Sargent regime got entire control of the patronage of the yard and now with all its splendid opportunities, without ever a drawback or misfortune of any kind, it has not an actual valuation of one-fifth of what it had in 1870: perhaps not one-tenth. All the benefits that might have come from the 25 millions of treasure deposited there has been utterly consumed by the grogshop and its train of gambling and debauchery.

For every dollar of value that exists in the city in real or personal property it will scarcely be disputed that somebody came into Vallejo from other places and sunk two dollars there. Or in other words—as much money as has been expended by the government and by the officers and seamen of the ships that have come there, has been wasted in the grogshop; and twice as much money earned elsewhere, as was used to make all the city improvements and buildings, came into Vallejo and was invested there by in-coming settlers, most of whom have been obliged since to seek a living elsewhere.

And while Vallejo has its 80 grogshops poisoning its life and soul, the addition of one or five millions a year more to its income, would not add at all to its prosperity: its rumsellers, gamblers, dens of vice would be flush of money while it lasted; its jails and criminal business and its pauperism would increase: but no real or permanent prosperity would in the least result. A city of grogshops and gambling dens could never achieve one hundredth part of the prosperity and progress that its opportunities offer. The same rule applies to a drunken city that fits a drunken family or individual.

And substitute the name of almost any other town of 20 years standing in this State and the same relation will be found to exist between its grand possibilities and its scandalously miserable and disgraceful results—due solely to the Grogshop.

ABOUT THE REGALA. chEAP joHN.

About twelve years ago, the R. W. G. L. in obedience to the tearful petition of a cheap john guild, submited to the Order a vote upon the continuance of the degrees, which cheap j thot were too expensive for his convenience, as cheapness in the management of the temperance warfare was the only object worth the consideration of the order. The vote was very decisive in favor of retaining the degrees; everybody but the chea j was satisfied with them; but che j went right along to abolish the degrees just the same, and did his utmost to that end for years after. The adherents of ch j understood at that time, that as soon as the degrees were buried, a little grave would be dug for the regalia, then a little monumental tablet should be erected to the memory of the signs and passwords and we should at last have an order that every body could go into and hold cheap meetings out of doors, and we should never have any more trouble with the liquor business. That would end the war.

It is possible that the R. W. G. L. during these 12 years may have submitted to the vote of the lodges some question in which the welfare and prgress of the cause and order was to be promoted, but the fact is not on record. Thal body is so much more ready to pull down than to build up, that it is time to have its destructive march arrested. If the vote is against regalia, (and it is probable that all the dead cheap john lodges that can be found in the east, will vote for abolition), a vote to take the next step in disintegration will at once follow, and the body will go on in its work of picking the order to pieces, with its picayune legislation.

It would seem the duty of our Pacific Coast Lodges, to give one solid unanimous vote of every solid lodge in favor of adhering to the little machinery which the cheap john element of the order has left us.

A solid unanimous vote of the live jurisdictions will be a fitting rebuke and protest against this pernicious, disgraceful, miserable tinkering, which has distinguished the action of the supreme body entrusted with the vital and sacred interests of the I. O. G. T. It will then be in order for our R. W. G. L. to try the entirely novel experiment of initiating some useful work for us to do. It is all a mistake for it to suppose that its ornamental qualities are only to be supplemented by a scramble for disorganization.

Thirty years experience ought to be able to point to one act of useful legislation; let us stamp out this baby talk and ask for a little common sense.

BRO. CRAWFORD'S LETTER.

The Good Templars understand quite well that the great majority of the ministers of the M. E. Church are with us and have always been part and parcel of us and of the great temperance work that has been done. They have as a whole been quite as consistent and hearty workers for temperance as the Good Templars or any class of them.

But like all other societies they have their exceptions. They have one or two per cent of individuals of the antiquated type who 25 years ago knew some Good Templar who threw a stone at their dog, and they have ever since cherished an inconquerable prejudice against the whole order, which they cant help any more than they could help having the rheumatism. There is little doubt that the resolutions presented were the real voice of the conference had that small percentage been absent and so we accept it. That paragraph 36 which "covers the temperance question" has covered it a long time without hatching any results. It might be well to let the brethren read and enforce some of the practical parapraphs of modern effort and experience which have been attended with such splendid triumphs of success.

DECEIVED DOCTORS.

THEIR PRIMARY ERROR IN THE CASE OF GARFIELD.

"New York, Oct. 6.—Dr. Bliss concludes his report in the case of President Garfield, written for the Medical Record, as follows: "It is but justice to myself to state that my prognosis of the case was based on a lesion of minor importance. Had our diagnosis been correct, modern surgery should have conducted the case to a successful termination. I believe that the medical profession, whom I address, will bear me out that the prognosis was correct if the diagnosis had been also correct. I was not always able during the progress of the case to account for many of the more profound symptons, and yet I could not succeed in learning of any more extensive or complicated lesions than than were first suspected."—Chron.

It would be brutal to suppose Dr. Bliss did not intensely desire the recovery of his patient, but it is beyond an intelligent doubt that he was utterly unfit to be entrusted with the case. Of course the error of diagnosis might have been made by the most skillful: but the systematic poisoning and opiating and nauseating and the entire failure to rest and nourish the sufferer, was disgraceful and barbarous. The whole intelligent portion of the medical faculty ought to have arisen in a body to protest against it: but it was unprofessional to do so, seeing Dr. Bliss was a regular M. D. aud so they let the President die.

There are many doctors who are continuing in spite of the most positive declarations of science, to kill their patients with the quackery of whisky and beer: making thousands of worthy people drunkards by their ignorant malpractice. Such men are exceedingly dangerous in a community.

When a doctor prescribes whisky or brandy or beer or wine to strengthen or nourish or support a patient or to assist digestion, or if he ever administers more than one careful dose of measured alcohol (which is a doubtful remedy anyway,) he perpetrates a positive injury: is guilty of grossly ignorant malpractice and should in no case be entrusted with a serious case. It is time this barbarous, ignorant, and most murderous and brutal treatment was stamped out and its professors sent to grass. Better send for any other practitioner in all the long list of openly professional quacks: any of them is safer than the brandy and beer prescribing M. D. And port wine is with some a frequent daily prescription: of all the quack rostrums, the most utterly impure, unwholesome, poisonous and nasty of all the filthy poisons, and even more vilely adulterated and fabricated than the lager beer of the beer-dive.

As to the case of President Garfield, from first to last the rum, wine, whisky, koumis, opium &c were the most barbarous and baleful quackeries; it is very doubtful if any strong healthy man without any wound and unused to alcohol, could survive 79 days of such a wearing, goading, starving, poisoning, draining, exhausting process of slow murderous torture. It was a disgrace to the medical faculty of the nation.

WHO SHOT MR. GARFIELD ?

Guiteau? No! Guiteau was but the instrument —the means to the end, like the pistol he aimed. Back of Guiteau—back of pistol and ball stands the real assassin.

But, who is he ?

Where is he ?

Was it Conkling—Arthur—the stalwart—the spoils system.

No, none of these !

It was the work of a confederacy of conspirators that includes the great body of the best, the most intelligent and influential men in the country.

The Christian ministry, presidents and professors in our colleges and universities, the scholars, literateurs and philsophers of the nation, editors of our papers great and small, judges and lawyers in our courts. Senators and Representatives in Congress, Governors and legislators of our States, city and village dignitaries—these, each and all had a hand in that crime—were its active aiders, abettors and instigators, whilst Guiteau, was but the tool of these, the real assassins.

"I did it to save the Republican party," was Guiteau's answer when questioned for the motive of his act.

"I did it to save the Republican party," aimed the bullet at Mr. Garfield's heart, stained floor and flag-stone with his blood, and plunged a nation in woe.

Alas ! alas ! What hecatombs of sacrifices have been offered up "to save the Republican party?" No monster that ever fable cradled or imagination conceived was so insatiate—so cruel—so blood thirsty in his demands. Manhood, womanhood, childhood; honesty, honor, hearts and homes; peace, patriotism, principle; law, labor, liberty; the Constitution of the Union, the conscience of man, the chastity of woman; the Sabbath, sobriety, souls—nothing too precious in life—nothing too sacred in morals, nothing too pure in love for a holocaust to this modern Moloch beside whom the deity of the children of Ammon was a benificent being.

Is this an overdrawn picture, friends ?

You know it is not.

The liquor traffic is perpetuated "to save the Republican party !

Now, search the catalogue of human rights and virtues, and tell me, is there one in the entire list that is not violated—yea—ASSASSINATED every hour of every day by this pitiless destroyer ?

Mr. Garfield is not the first, nor will he be the last victim of a most unrighteous party policy.

During the score of years that the Republican party has held the reins of power, its licensed bars have been assassinating manhood, womanhood and childhood at the rate of one hundred thousand a year, and only the great Dies irae can reveal what the country has lost in thus blighting and blotting out the lives of its citizens.

And Mrs. Garfield, noble heroic wife and mother, stands not alone in her sorrow. Millions of women in this country are now shedding tears of sorrow and shame, beside which Mrs. Garfield's suffering is happiness. They have to stand alone, bound and helpless to save, while husbands and sons are shot by licensed assassinators! They have to look upon the slow ebbing out of something more precious and vital than life-blood—of manhood, and honor, and character, until the once loved one becomes a living corpse, upon whose coffin it it would be a relief to hear the earth clods rattling. While the nations of the earth are condoling with Mrs. Garfield, who sympathizes with the torn and tortured hearts of these women ?—women clothed with the sackcloth oi sorrow and shame, mourning amid the ashes of buried hopes, bereft of all that is near and dear and sacred in life and love, by a Goverment-licensed curse that must never feel the heavy hand of the law, but must be nourished and strengthened in its ravages and assassinations, in order "to save the Republican party!"

Who shot MR. GARFIELD ?

Pulpit and press wax eloquent in pointing the moral at the stalwarts, who are but the legitimate generation of the efforts of pulpit and press in times not so very long past "to save the Republican party!"

The stalwarts shout the battle-cry, but they are no more guilty than the organs, the lyres, the drummers and the rest of the orchestra, for all render the same dirge, and unite in the same chorus, "to save the Republican party!"

This the demon that shot Mr. Garfield, and from the assassination of the President to the assassination of the of the Republic itself is but a step in time and crime; the weapon is already forged, primed and loaded for the work, while a Guiteau bearing the nations warrant, has his finger on the trigger "TO SAVE THE REPUBLICAN PARTY!"—Tap Root, Miss C. M. Victor, Editor.

APPEAL TO PRESIDENT ARTHUR.

The Board of Managers of the National Temperance Society have addressed to President Arthur the following appeal:

NEW YORK, October 3, 1881.

TO PRESIDENT ARTHUR:

The Board of Managers of the National Temperauce Society greet you with cordial sympathy, and invoke for you divine guidance in the discharge of the important and responsible duties devolved upon you as President of the United States.

In behalf of a large body of your constituents, Christian men and women in all parts of the land, we most earnestly pray that, as Chief Executive in dispensing official hospitality at the White House; in your appointments to the public service, civil, military and naval; and in your official recommendations to Congress concerning revenue and other legislaiion involving the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages, you will so use your great opportunity as to discourage all injurious social drinking usages, to lessen the great and threatening evil of intemperance and to promote the ultimate suppression of the wastefnl and destructive alcoholic liquor traffic. ALBERT G. LAWSON

Chairman pro tem.

J. N, STEARNS, Corresponding Sec.

A deputation of three, Rev. A. G. Lawson chairman pro tem. (in the absence of Mr. Dodge, president of the society in Europe), J. N. Stearns, Corresponding Secretary and Rev. W. C. Steel waited upon President Arthur on Monday, the 3d inst. at his residence No. 823 Lexington Ave. in this city, and left the appeal, but, owing to the pressure of his private affairs upon the eve of his departure for Washington were unable to have an interview with him.

MASSACHUSETTS has had a most excellent prohibitory advocate Governor Long for two years. Elected on the Republican ticket after a stiff contest with Ex governor Pierce a license man, for the nom ination. But a Republican governor dont seem to suit the temperance people there. The prohibitory convention, 150 delegates present, has nominated a full state ticket headed by Charles Almy for governor.

"The platform declares the necessity for an independent political party pledged to the prohibition of the sale and manufacture of intoxicating drinks, and asserts that every legislative expedient short of the prohibitory law of '67, for regulating or curtailing the drink traffic, has proved a snare and a delusion. It strongly protests against license on the ground that it antagonizes the work of schools, corrupts the ballot and weakens moral effort. It protests against the non enforcement of restrictive li quor laws and promises unqualified sympathy with the woman suffrage movement when it shall rise to the level of prohibitory action."

It seems that the best prohibition governor in a Republican administration can be of no possible service to prohibition; for Governor Long is an earnest foe of the liquor busines and is acknowledged by all to be a man of unusual excellence of character. We have all seen enough snares and delusions to last us a full eternity, but some of us want a good many more yet.

WHEREAS it has pleased Almighty God to remove President Garfield etc. Several resolutions andaddresses with that expression have been sent to the RESCUE for publication. But there dont seem to be the slightest evidence or probability that it did please God at all, or that he was at all an agent in the matter in the most distant degree. He assuredly once established certain natural laws which he doubtless can suspend or modify if it pleases him. One of these laws is to the effect that if a nation forgets and defies God and licenses and authorizes schools of pauperism, theft and murder, the consequences and damages inflicted by the thieves and murderers educated there will fall upon the innocent and the guilty.

Two drunken roughs have killed two of our best presidents; one of them might doubtless have been saved but for the intervention of the rum god worshipped in our medical colleges. All that can be said of God's agency in the removal of President Garfield is that he declined to violate natural and divine law and to intervene at the request of a rebellious and unrepentant people, between their openly pronounced devil worship and its legitimate natural consequences To charge the act of Guiteau as in accordance with the will of God is a calumny and a blasphemy.

Wisconsin reports at G. L. session 458 Lodges and 18,769 members being 22 lodges and 1313 members less than last year. Total receipts $9,500 expenses $7,956. The work is reported as successful however, being a lighter loss than in the previous year. The Secy recommends no reduction in the per capita tax: hopes to see the lecture field vigorously prosecuted. The Mutual Aid System and prohibition party action are warmly commended by the G. L. Officers.

Bro. Hanson tells of a revival at Forestville, from which he expects additions to the lodge. A revival which brings recruits to the temperance cause is just what is needed and is the only kind that can be expected in this day to have any permanent results for good. There is quite enough already of that Christianity which sees no enemy in the great empire of rum.

THE Examiner quotes that American delegates to the Meth. Ecumenical council in London were surprised to find wine provided for them, and a building or room adjoining the conference hall fitted up as a wine room for the conference.

SOUTH AMERICAN EXPERIENCES.

No 12.

Buena Vista was the point of supply for the Yacula mining district, whence the people frequently came to purchase their supplies of meat, cheese, lard, rice, coffee &c: it being always remembered that plantains are everywhere in this part of the world the staple food, the other things mentioned being accessories or luxuries. Several speculators and traders always lived here, till some financial crash, evolved from an unlucky corner, broke them up, and opened the way for a successor who would come to try his luck.

Wearying for something to read, as the fresh air and thundersqualls and cool nights began to build me up, I made a requisition upon the neighborhood for books of any description or language. The leading merchant said he thot there was a circulating library in the village and he would look for it. He was successful after two or three days search: he brot me the whole library which comprised the entire literature of the community and I reveled for some days in its perusal, eagerly scanning it from end to end many times. The village library consisted of one copy of a ten or fifteen cent highly colored Appleton's Atlas: if memory serves, the page of Europe was ornamented with bright pictures of a horse,a c(w and a very spirited looking merino sheep: and one of the questions at the bottomwas "for what animal is Spain celebrated? answer, "The merino sheep." That library with a bill for 4 lbs of sugar from Barbacoas and a note saying there was nothing new, was all the literature I fed on for a month, having been too helpless to think of providing myself with any at the start. The tersely compiled natural history of Spain conveyed in the sheep question, was carefully committed to memory and that accounts for any extra intelligence that may crop out now and then in my handling of any subject in which Spain or Spanish interests are concerned.

Bread was next to unknown here: no one could make any nor was there a pound of flour. But there was a corn patch about two miles away and the proprietor would send out and have a backload brot in whenever it was called for. So it was determined to have some nice fresh genuine corn bread. I learned how corn bread is made, which was another valuable acquisition. My culinary artiste who professed the highest skill in corn cake spread out on the floor one or two of the large wide leaves of the country and having provided herself with a few ears of corn she seated herself on the leaves, carefully stripped the covering off the cob and gouged off with her thumb nail the kernels quite dexterously and rapidly, considering that time to these people is of no value; A sufficient quantity being shelled, she picked up the lot and carried it to the next house where they had a stone upon which plantains, coffee, pepper and everything which has to be ground , mashed, rolled or pounded is manipulated. There the corn was reduced into fragments a good deal smaller than they were on the cob and some water being added, were beaten up into a kind of pebbly, knotty dough in a half pint bowl. When the right consistency was reached the batter or dough was emptied into a little conical sack fashioned from the leafy covering of the ear of corn, tied up at the ends and boiled in water in a little earthern pot. And that was corn cake. Sometimes the cooking part of the operation was varied by boiling the naked dough in lard, but one experiment of that material, lard, was enough for me.

There were other mysteries of cooking to be seen there but one specimen is enough. The Indian carriers used to call at this village and drink guarapo if it were early or stay all night and drink if it were late. Almost every day heavy rains come on from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. One day the rain commenced about 1 or 2 P. M. and was very heavy, and it happened that there were more Indians, (carriers) in town than had sleeping quarters.

Three of them asked leave to sleep in the one half of my summer palace which was unused; I was about to say yes, but the culinary artiste who had not yet left, said very positively, no, and they left. Next day when asked the reason why she rebuffed them so sharply, she said, dont you know this residence is becoming somewhat weakened with age and the burrowing of ants and worms, and these Indians bringing up their loads, the establishment might collapse during the night under the weight and then where would the sick man be in this rain.

That seemed to be a very absurd fear but before I left there, that very calamity happened to the largest house in the village: there were too many Indians packed on the floor and too many of their loads had been carried up into the house (All the houses being set up on stilts about 8 feet from the ground): so at midnight about half the building and the Indians and their loads and the women and children of the family were all slid out on the ground like a pan of smelts, but no one was hurt seriously.

Every body in the village sold guarapo to the Indians. Somebody near by, a few miles away, had found a level place large enough to make a sugar patch, had set up a cane mill (two wollen rollers) and made guarapo. When any Indians or others were seen entering the village, the women in every house as they neared it hailed them with "guarapo," "good guarapo," "guarapo strong," here is the good guarapo."

As my senses, began to acquire some consistency with returning health, I noticed that "Dolores" (Sorrows) that was the name of the lady superintendent of my culinary interests, was singing out "guarapo" like the rest—On enquiry it appeared I had been running a guarapo saloon for about a week. Mrs. Sorrows never dreaming I could have any objection to her turning an honest penny by the sale of the universal beverage, of which she had a demijohn in the front room and two glasses made of the rind of the calabaza. But we did not have any more hotel after that.

The names of the women are some of them very singular, Sorrows, Song, Heart, Incarnation, Ascension, Conception, Assumption, Annunciation Felicity, Angelic, Prudence, Clemency, and one of the blackest of them had been baptized "Sangre de Cristo," Blood of Christ, but was more commonly called Sangre. Her sisters and self and the whole family were very proud of that name and seemed to think it a very lucky one tho not a very uncommon one. The priest selects the principal given name of an infant but the parents have the privilege of throwing in one or more secondary appellations if so disposed.

Marysville Oct 4, 1881.

Editor Rescue:—At the last session of Sutter and Yuba District Lodge, I. O. G. T. held at Brownsville Yuba Co. Sep. 30 1881 interesting statitics were produced showing the rapid advancement of our Order, in this District during the past year.

The District Lodge held at Franklin School House, Sutter Co. April 15th 1881 was better, attended than any previous session. 7 lodges, of 13, then in the District were represented, the 28 delegates present, represented 360 Good Templars, the total membership being at that time 560.—

The Brownsville session, on 30th, ult. was attended by delegates from 9, of 16 lodges, and 4, of 6 Bands of Hope.

Thirty delegates from lodges represneted 502 Good Templar's the present membership being 766. 6 delegates from the Bands of Hope represented 274, of the 392 members in the two counties. This session was the most successful, ever held, more Good Templars Lodges, with a larger membership being represented, than at any previous time, this was largely due to the active exertions of Bro. Covilland, D. S. and the liberal donations of time and money made by Bro Graves D. D. G. W. C. T.

The present membership of the Disirtct is 16 lodges and 16 Bands of Hope, comprising members as follows:

Bands of Hope	392.
Good Templars, Males, Yuba Co	278.
Good Templars, Males, Sutter Co	171.
Good Templars, Females, Yuba Co	183.
Good Templars, Females Sutter Co	134.
Total	1,158.

The gain since July 31st 1880 is 6 lodges, 4 Bands of Hope, 221 male Good Templars, and 103 females, total 324.

This gain is divided as follhws: Yuba Co. 303, Sutter Co. 21.

I am aware that some Districts have probably increased more rapidly than this. But if at the Grand Lodge, the increase shall appear to have been as good as this, all along the line, and if the increase continue, in the same proportion with each succeeding year, the highest hopes of all friends of Temperance, will be gratified, in a very short time.

REQUISITES FOR A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

The Temperance Schoool $0.05

However dark the way seems, if you love the children and wish to save them, and at the same time to train up workers for temperance send for the above and learn what can be done. Then if you wish to learn how to do it, send for the following list:

1 Catechism on Alcohol, 05.
1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, 25.
1 Ripples of Song, 15.
1 Manual Set (Illustrated Tracts), 08,
All sent for 50 cents.

When you have studied these, prepared the way and fixed upon the time for opening the school and decided how many scholars you will probably have, send for catechisms enough to supply one to each scholar, to whom they may be either given or sold, price per hundred, more or less, $5.00

Ripples of Song, per dozen, 1.60

For any number less than one dezen, each 15 cts.

The above are essential while the following are extremely desirable.

Children's Illustrated Tracts, one each for each scholar. per 100. 20 cts. Postage per 200, more or less, 05

Ladder tickets, per hundred, more or less, 1.00

1 manual for each teacher, each 25c.

Chromo Test-Cards, for rewards, per hundred, more or less, 1.00

Youth's Temperance Banner, four or more copies per year each .12.

The superintendent will find it desiradle to have the following.

1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, cloth, .60

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c. Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c. This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c.; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen nd in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,
54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

Seeing a short time since, an account of the growth of Christianity at the Hawaiian Islands the thought has come to me that a few facts in regard to the rum traffic on those Islands might be of interest to your readers.

Before Christianity was established at the Sandwich Islands, intoxicating liquors had been introduced there and were freely used whenever it could be obtained by the natives, and as the Islands began to be settled by the whites and the trade with other countries increased, the opportunities of obtaining rum grew more frequent and the quantity consumed soon reached enormous proportions.

The result of such a free use of alcoholic poison in such a hot climate, and by a class of people who placed no restraint whatever upon their appetites, was terrible and death from this cause alone was a common result.

In the course of time the use of all intoxicating liquor by the natives was prohibited by law; this law was in force many years and proved generally successful until a little over a year ago, when it was discovered that an effort would be made to abolish it at the next session of the Hawaiian Legislature. As soon as this plan became known, all the friends of temperance thruout the Islands began to work with a will to defeat it.

The writer at that time was a member of the only Lodge of Good Templars on the Islands located at Hilo, Hawaii; in our Lodge, plans to fight this terrible danger, first originated; lecturers were employed, temperance lectures delivered and petitions signed by hundreds, presented to the King and his Cabinet; people on the other Islands took up the work and for weeks the war against wholesale drunkenness, sin and misery was carried on, but the opposing party was strong and we were at last defeated, and now rum is free for the use of natives as well as whites and tho slaves to its use the natives to-day shower curses upon the white people for introducing into their country that which is ever a direct cause of so much sorrow, sin and misery.

Let us hope that in the near future, successful efforts will be made to abolish this terrible curse from a beautiful land upon which nature has be stowed in such a lavish manner, her choicest blessings.

At one time some eight or ten Good Templar Lodges were in existence on the Islands, but now, one only remains, the one before mentioned, located at Hilo, Hawaii; at the time of my departure from there a few months ago, it numbered 60 members and was then doing well; J. H. Maby is the L. D. and is a good one. W. W. Fairbanks.

MEDICAL POISONING.

Gilroy, Oct. 6, 1881.

I have read in the Rescue of Sept. 22, 1881 a piece headed A costly Sacrifice with much interest. It does me much good to learn that I am not alone in my ideas. I had been saying to people, "Is it not too bad that the doctors are feeding our sick president with rum, wine, whisky, quinine and morphine. It dont seem to me as tho it were possible for him to recover under that kind of treatment. We had the same kind of doctors in the army the time of the rebellion, and did not they kill as many soldiers as the bullets did? When one of our great men gets sick it seems to be sure death if the great M. Ds. get to work at him. According to my reading, General Washington was bled to death by the doctors, Prince Albert stimulated to death. President Lincoln's little Willie and Stephen A Douglas might have been saved under the right kind of treatment. Burlingame was not considered dangerously sick until the doctors got to work at him. In a work written by S. T. Trall, M. D. on alcoholic medication, at the winding up of the book he says: I am now prepared to answer some very important questions which deeply concern the welfare of the human family, and which the whole drift of my argument is calculated to suggest.

1. Why is it that physicians in their treatment of diseases rely so much on drug poisons and so little on hygiene? I answer, because of false education.

2. Why do physicians prescribe alcohol as a medicine? I answer, because of false doctrines taught in their books and schools.

He says further, I propose Mr. President and friends of temperance that we adopt as the sense of the National Temperance convention the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas we believe alcohol to be a product of decomposition and decay of organic matter inimical to all vital structures and under no circumstances and in no instance respiratory food nor a supporter of vitality, therefore

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to abstain from all forms of spirituous and malt liquors, wines and cider either as food, drink or medicine, and that we recommend all temperance organizations and all friends of our cause to adopt this pledge as the proper basis for the successful prosecution of the temperance reform.

Dr. Carson of Pennsylvania in the Medical Gazette says: Is there a disease of the heart, the head, the lungs, the liver or the kidneys that has not been produced a thousand times by alcoholic drinks? Is there a single instance of one of those diseases which demands their use as a remedy?

"Alcoholic stimulants are necessary in the treatment of any disease? Think, gentlemen of the five hundred young physicians being annually sent from this city (Philadelphia) to the various states of the Union to practice their profession, placing the brandy bottle in tens of thousands of families as a remedy."

It were better for mankind if they had never been born, says Dr. Mussey of the Ohio medical college. I deny that alcoholic spirit is essential to the practice of either physic or surgery. Says Dr. Rostock author of the history of medicine, every dose of medicine given is a blind experiment on the vitality of the patient. If Guiteau is a wilful murderer, President Garfield's doctor must be an ignorant one. The most successful physicians on the face of the earth dont give any medicine at all. They say that any disease that is curable can be cured a great deal better without medicine than with it.

Dr. Trall has said we dont want any more reforms in medical practice, we have had quite enough of them. Revolution is what is needed. If this medical treatment of President Garfield dont open the eyes of the people to see the folly of drug medication especially alcoholic medication, they must be wilfully blind. It can be proved by the doctors themselves that medicines have killed more people than war, famine and pestilence. One doctor goes so far as to say that medicines have killed more people than war, famine, pestilence and alcoholic beverages all put together. No doubt in a few years the treatment of President Garfield will be commented on, and perhaps by this same school of doctors, and condemned.

Robert W. Chapman.

JOHN B. FINCH'S SPEECH.

"INDICTMENT OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC."—AT LAKE BLUFF, ILLINOIS. AUG. 27, 1881.

(National Liberator.)

In discussing this question of Temperance, the one fact more than all others that I would wish to impress on your minds at the commencement, is the fact that this is a question that must be settled in this country. It cannot be laughed down, jeered down or blackguarded down, and there is not money enough in the liquor power of this nation to buy enough votes to long prevent its entire defeat at the hands of this people.

You may think that this is the statement of an oversanguine man, and yet, it seems to me that the man or woman who insists that this is a mere temperance excitement, must be blind. From the day the Temperance movement started in this country it has never gone backwards.

Let us now see, how this liquor question has been settled. From the day the liquor business was introduced into this country from Europe, it has always been an ulcer on the nation's life. What has been the remedy? Regulation and restraint; compromise upon compromise. We have tried low license, high license, and local option; and I wish now to assert that restraint policies have all failed, and, after a century of doctoring by quacks, the question again pushes itself to the front, and asserts that it has got to be settled right.

If we have together reached this conclusion, we are ready to continue the investigation. If we have to settle it right we must settle it like men and women, not with bitterness, not with personalities, not with blackguardism. For the purpose of the Temperance argument, it does not matter one iota whether the saloonkeeper is a devil or an angel of light: if he is a devil he cannot make a God-given principle a bad one, and if he is an angel he cannot make a devilish principle a good oue. It is the principle of the business that we are talking about, and it is the destruction of that principle we are seeking. Suppose you could have all the saloonkeepers in the State of Illinois tied together, put in lake Michigan and drowned; what would be gained? Unless we sear the neck of the License Hydra with "prohibition," another crop would spring up in three months as bad as the old one. If the man is a mighty mean man he is all the better representative of his business. I prefer a man should be a good representative of the trade he is carrying on. Words like "fanatic," "zealot," "idiot are not argument, and when you see a man standing on the corner, sticking his thumb under his coat, and hear him call temperance men fanatics, just think it does not require a high order of brains to abuse people. A parrot could do it. No man in physical or mental battle will throw mud as long as he has got rocks. Whenever you hear a man in discussion throwing the mud of personalities, just make up your mind that he has run out of the rocks of common sense, or what is far more probable, that he never had any. "If you have no case, abuse the opposing attorney," is the motto of pettifoggers the world over. For me I prefer to believe that every man is honest. When a man comes up to me and says, "Mr. Finch, I believe in the liquor traffic; I believe in drinking." Well, I admire him for his honesty, but I dont believe much in his intelligence. When a man comes up, touches me on the shoulder, and says, "Mr. Finch, the Temperance people of this country are engaged in a good work; God bless them;" and then goes off and casts a vote to license a dramshop—there are not enough words in the English language to express my contempt for a fellow like that. You recall, of course that the Evolutionists, in carrying out their theory, state in scientific terms the process of the formation of the backbone, or how it was the vertebræ came into existence. The lower orders of animals have no backbone; they are animals which wiggle, and the Evolutionist say this wiggling compressed the line of flesh along the back, and that with each generation it became harder, until it ossified, and the backbone was a reality. My only hope is that these "goody-goody" men will keep on wiggling until, by this natural process, they get backbone enough to be men, or else that the people of this country will go to work and make the fence upon which they are sitting so sharp that if they do not get off we will get half of them.

TEMPERANCE METHODS.

The New York Churchman remarks that the many and earnest efforts at temperance reform in this country have been "grievously attended with mismangement and unreason," and that temperance societies and prohibitory legislation have accomplished but little, as is indicated by the fact that "the annual consumption of drink in this country amounts to $700,000,000: or $14 to every man, woman and child," The Churchman charges, and with some reason, that temperance societies have very generally been intemperate and extravagant. They have magnified a particular habit as if it were the greatest sin in the calendar—have ridiculed moral suasion, have been arbitrary and exacting in their methods, making those who could not subscribe to their views of temperance the objects of censure and ridicule, and including all under sin except total abstainers and have undertaken to do by arbitrary processes what can only be done by reason. The Church Temperance Society, recently formed, it is hoped will avoid these vicious methods, and do a better work."

It may be doubted whether it is in good taste for the Churchman to criticize a set of workers who have done the best they knew and probably the best that could be done, in an interest which it was the especial duty of the Churchman and its church to have been actively engaged in a hundred years ago, but which they never until lately treated with anything but scorn, discouragement, opposition and persecution, and most of them are doing so to-day.

The present condition of drunkenness is entirely due to the failure of the Chnrches to do 100 years ago what God commanded them, and which he has called upon the temperance reformers to do and they have been doing for the past fifty years, while the Churchman has been on the drunkard makers and the devils side.

The new society will avoid vicious methods and do better work just in proportion as they diverge from the methods and teachings and examples of the Churchman aforesaid. The charges that temperance reformers have ridiculed moral suasion or have been intemperate and extravagant are falsehoods, which were no doubt necessary to give the requisite piquancy and cheerfulness to the article quoted.

The Vestry of St. John's Church Petaluma has sustained the Rector, the Rev. George B. Allen in the use of non-alcoholic wine in the administration of the Lords Supper.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Trustees of Orphan's Home.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Charles H. Haile, Alameda; A. G. Clark, Napa City; B. Frank Bagley, Stockton; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Lady Managers of Orphans' Home.—President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, No. 1531; Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Secretary, Mrs. M. M. Carpenter, 150 9th St., San Francisco, Financial Secretary, Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Mrs. M. A. Alsip, Sacramento; Mrs. R. S. Benjamin, San Francisco; Mrs. V. A. Rix, Washington Corners; Mrs. S. L. Robbins, Vallejo; Mrs. H. A. Mayhew, G. W. V. T., Red Bluff, ex-officio.

Revolution Temperance Literature.

Just opened, a new Temperance Publishing House. New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been.

Class Papers.—Instead of tracts or pamphlets, in more readable form and yet cheaper. Eighteen papers each for a special class of readers or work. 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The S. S. Superintendent. 7. The S. S. Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The Common People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially designed. Each published monthly, and though small in size contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book. The greatest need in temperance work is scattering temperance literature. The greatest difficulty, doing it systematically, thoroughly and yet cheaply. For Five Cents we will address, wrap and mail singly, direct to individual, regularly each month for a year, any one of the above named temperance papers, provided that you do not order papers sent to less than five persons at anyone time—or, at least, that your order comes to 25 cents.

How it Works.—1st. It is only a nickel. Subscriptions are never refused; you have only to ask. As many subscriptions can be taken in a day as you can see persons. Societies or individuals can look after this work. 2d. Fifty cents sends a paper every month for a year to ten different persons, so many will subscribe both for themselves and for friends. 3d. Societies can not adopt a better plan of thorough distribution of temperance literature than to set apart a fund to send one or more of our 5c. papers to each individual in the town. Thus for $5.00 they can reach 100 persons each month for a year, or fifty persons every two weeks, or twenty-five persons every week. See dates of mailing.

Dates of Mailing.—Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 17 and 18, first week of month; Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, second week; Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, third week; Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, fourth week. Subscriptions received up to the 25th, beginning with month in which order is sent.

So Cheap.—The cost of addressing wrappers and wrapping in the usual way, to say nothing of postage, is alone more than we ask for the papers. A year's issue contains over 300 pages of the W. C. T. Union leaflets, so that at 20c. a year (instead of 5c.) they would be cheaper than these. To mail tracts and leaflets costs the individual 1c. per copy. This would be 12c. per year, or 7c. more than we charge for the papers, mailing, postage, and all.

An Offer.—We will send our Family Pledge Roll, (price 25c.) highly ornamental design, printed in colors, on fine paper, large size for framing, free to any one sending us 50 cents and 9 subscriptions for our 5c. papers.

Other Ways of Using.—We provide hooks, with card attached to each so as to show above it, bearing the words, TAKE ONE—cost in lots of five or more, 6c. each, postpaid. The "class papers" for distribution in this way are furnished at 25c. per 100 copies. Several hooks may be put up in a place, each for a special paper, the hooks refilled with papers from week to week, a later issue being added each month. Papers come ready punched for use on the hooks.

Specimen Papers.—We will send one each of all the above papers—18 papers in all—on receipt of 10 cents.

2c. Story Books.—We are putting up choicest and most thrilling and telling of 75c. to $1.50 temperance story books in large newspaper form, one whole book in a paper, illustrated on first page, for 2c. a paper when bought in lots of 25 or more. One issued each month. Three are now ready. Sample of all three for 10c.

This is a new force, people will read for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or can be distributed gratuitously in various ways.

Save the Children from Rum.

We can seldom save the drunkard or stop the moderate drinker; but we can pledge the children, and follow up the pledge with such teachings that they will never break their pledge. Reports from Great Britain United Kingdom Band of Hope Union, go to show that ninety per cent. remain true to pledge—while double the number of Sunday-school pupils join the church from schools having Bands. Best of all, the work is not opposed, parents seldom object, while many who drink seem very glad to have their children join a Band of Hope. No one can cry "oppression" or "after your votes," when it reaches only people with even greater force than direct work, for the books, paper, etc., go into the homes, and are read by the parents—the lessons too are talked over, and every one comes out to the Band concerts to hear their own little ones sing and talk temperance. Plan of running is like the simplest plan of running a Sunday-school—requisites most complete, practical, beautiful and cheap. A library of $1.00 to $1.50 books at 5c. each; two weekly papers each at 10c. a year; a quarterly lesson system, in two grades; quarterlies and song book combined, costing but 5c. a quarter; certificates, pledge rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., etc.—all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all expenses. Specimen of everything necessary for complete outfit for Band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving methods of running Bands either without teachers, etc., sent free.

Endorsed. From Frances E. Willard, Prest. Nat. W. C. T. U.: "When Mr. Cook takes up the opening of the ammunition for our teetotal army, how much more space the rim of a dime will cover than is possible now; may the day hasten!" Mary C. Johnson, Sec. Nat. W. C. T. U.: "I wish you the highest success, and congratulate the temperance forces on the prospect that an energetic, pushing, first-class publisher is likely to take up the literature this great field requires." From Mrs. Fannie D. B. Chase, Prest. Pennsylvania State W. C. T. U.: "I am rejoiced that you are taking up temperance work, and believe that the cause will be greatly advanced by your energy and systematic work." From Eli Johnson, Sec., New York State Temperance Society: "I am ready to do anything in my power to aid you in your new enterprise." From W. H. Wharton, Grand Scribe, Indiana Sons of Temperance: "Best wishes for the success of your undertaking." From A. H. Bowen, Grand Worthy Recorder Nebraska Templars of Honor: "Shall be glad to be of any assistance in my power to help you in this branch of your work." From W. W. Satterlee, Sec. Minnesota State Temperance Union: "I admire your plans and pluck, and will do what I can to help you." From H. W. Adams, Pub. of "The Morning and Day of Reform": "While I deprecate the fact that so many unqualified people rush into the business of supplying the world with temperance literature, your doing so is quite another matter, and I feel as a friend of the cause I ought to give you a hearty welcome."

An Appeal. We wish to reach every temperance worker in the land, man or women, with our samples, catalogue, etc. We can do nothing if we can not reach the people. Will not every one send us names of workers? It only costs a postal card and a few minutes time.

An Offer. We will send free and postpaid a copy of our Family Pledge Roll to every one who will send us names and addresses of six or more temperance workers, taking pains to select those who are most interested and active. We are getting out many other publications besides those advertised above. General circular, etc., free. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison Street, Chicago.

The following Resolutions were adopted by the Pacific Annual Conference of the M. E. Church, South at its recent session in Petaluma.

Resolved, 1, That we join hands heartily with all efforts and agencies to promote the cause of Temperance.

2, That we hail the Independent Order of Good Templars and recognize the Order as an arm of power for good; and will co-operate with them in their noble efforts to enforce the laws of the land requiring the closing of saloons and places of business on Sunday.

3, That we acknowledge and appreciate the service rendered in furnishing a copy of the Rescue to ministers of this Conference.

4. That we request the Bishop to appoint a member of this body as a delegate to the Grand Lodge of Independent Order of Good Templars at its session in 1882. L. C. Renfro.
J. C. Simmons.

According to the request in the 4th Resolution Rev. L, C. Renfro was appointed delegate.

It might prove an excellent plan for promoting a general temperance revival in the state, to send out Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Richardson together. Mrs. Stevens talk and Mrs. Richardson sing; and when they get wearied, let Mrs. R. talk and Mrs. S. sing for a change and a rest.

Half of Bro. Webb's report had to be deferred till next week for want of space.

The new ritual got its final preparation for the hands of the printer on the 12th and it is expected to be an improvement on the old.

Read cheap john in rhyme on second page, by Bro. Copeland of the Amendment of Avon N. Y. May the shadow of Bro. C. and his lively and useful journal always grow larger and wider.

Sept, 29, the Emperor Savon of Albert Mau & Co. was advertised page 764 of the Rescue. It is hoped the readers availed themselves of the information and made a run for a good supply of it.

John G. Saxe. The Brooklyn Eagle laments the very hard fate which has delighted to persecute the witty poet Saxe. His wife died a year ago, two daughters died recently of consumption and one of his two sons that were left, was a few days ago found dead in bed from hemorrage of the lungs. It says he was a remarkably genial sunshiny man; but some folks who professed to know him, used to wonder how such a witty, sprightly, jolly poet could be such an artistic growler and snarler in private life: and they say he has had several spells of reformation at the Inebriate Asylum. If so the Eagle's comparison of Saxe to Job is hardly apposite.

Mr. David C. Cook writes that the support and encouragement tendered him from this jurisdiction has been of great advantage in pushing his literature abroad. "He hoped our Grand Lodge would have given an approving opinion of his works." A resolution did pass in the Grand Lodge directing public attention to them and heartily commending to our subordinate lodges and juvenile societies a liberal use of his most excellent and marvelously cheap juvenile publications, and the delegates there were enthusiastic in their approval of them, having paid particular attention to the numerous samples on exhibition in the hall.

Grand Lodge Session.—The report of it has been very meager. The G. W. S. supposed the editor would secure all the proceedings, and the latter expected and waited for a synopsis to come from the G. W. S. or his assistant, and failing in that a hasty fragmentary report was made of what occurred on Thursday afternoon and Friday. No account of anything that occurred previously to that having come to hand even yet, and none of the proceedings were to be found in any of the city papers, beyond some matters in the reports of the officers. If the action of G, L. is not misunderstood, it recommended the dime collection to be taken and disposed of exactly as last year.

Santa Clara, Oct. 14, 1881.

Bro. Webb gave a lecture in this place last Monday evening. His audience was small, but that is because the friends of temperance in the town are few, but they are brave as lions.

The lecture was concise, sound and logical, and the audience never heard a more masterly effort. We commend Bro. Webb to the temperance people of the state. But he could only be with us one night. The harvest was only partially planted and could not be gathered.

Eighteen arrests have been made for Sunday violation, and if the law remains on the statutes we will see it respected or make 1800 arrests. Two weeks ago the rummies laughed at us and the Sunday law, but since they have had to pledge money to defend themselves, there is a different tune in the laugh.

They growl at us and say we are making expense for the county and all that. But if we could make the liquor dens cost the state $1,000,000 we would do it. Then you see the people would conclude that the saloons cost altogether too much, and the saloons would go quick enough. E. Carey.

The Saloons cost the state and people already 50 million dollars a year. They are very considerate all at once.

The address of Mrs. E. P. Stevens is now 1907 Bush St. San Francisco.

Let some divines and philosophers say what they will, money is a good thing to have.

Ed. Rescue:—Will you be so kind as to change the address of the Rescue so kindly sent to me from ———to ———, Cal? I prize the Rescue very highly, looking for its weekly arrival with impatience. I feel it a great loss when thru any cause it fails to reach me. The prohibition sentiment especially touches a sympathetic chord in my heart. I often preach on the subject. I believe we will see it a grand success in the near future, even in California. God speed it, In F, H, and C, Rev ——.

A good many such letters have come to the R. during the year, and their kindly helpful spirit is heartily appreciated and reciprocated.

Ohio.—The prohibitionists have been badly beaten again in Ohio. Foster, the Beer Republican candidate for Governor, is said to be elected by 15,000 majority. Where cheap john has run out all the temperance papers and killed out the Good Templars to 1 in 1,000 of the population. the temperance movement must begin again at the beginning and work up. They have three good temperance papers now, the Delaware Signal, the Alliance News and the Geauga Leader. The W. C. T. U. are hard at work; the M. E. church has declared for prohibition; now if there were a Good Templar Order of 50,000 or 100,000 members, some success might be hoped for, in the war with the legions of crime. If some one could get a Good Templar organization there on a rational financial basis, and forget all about the old, it would be good for the order and good for Ohio. There dont seem to be the least show to rebuild the order in any of the ten cent Good Templar states, as long as the old stump remains in the way of any helpful work.

The Grass Valley Reform Club sends copy of its by-laws and its balance sheet for the year ending September 1881, requesting its publication to "encourage others to follow our example."

Its pledge is, "to renounce the use of intoxicating drinks as a beverage and advise others to do the same." Its meetings once a week commencing at 8:30 p. m., and one monthly business meeting. Entry fee 50 cents, dues 50 cents a month; youths and ladies 25 cents; must be 16 years of age to enter. Professed objects of the club, promotion of total abstinence, reclamation, and a room for recreation, amusement and improvement.

We have in the balance sheet receipts from subscriptions $1069; dues $306; fees $112: weekly and special entertainments $1053: rents $409: etc., amounting in all to $3014.80.

The expenditures: Piano $475, rent, gas, janitor, lumber, fitting and material $2208. Newspapers, periodicals etc. for reading room $89 etc., etc.. and a balance on hand of $30.

An expenditure of $3014 for temperance ought to produce large results: no account is rendered of any in this direction, It has been stated by visitors that the main business of that club is to furnish dances and dramatic exhibitions, and if it does so without the usual accompaniments of drink and vile associations, it doubtless leads young people away from evil influences, therefore it no doubt has been a success.

Whether in its $88 of periodicals it found room for a temperance periodical or tract, does not appear. After all it is presumable that $3014 invested in a Good Templar lodge and its work might afford as great results in both enjoyment and accomplishing good as any improved temperance organization can promise,

JOHN B. FINCH'S SPEECH.

"INDICTMENT OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC."—AT LAKE BLUFF, ILL., AUG. 27, 1881.

[National Liberator.]

The Temperance advocates have always preferred to believe men honest in the convictions they hold, or seem to hold, in regard to this question, and have discussed it accordingly; if any of them have done otherwise, they have not carried to the fullest extent the principles underlying the reform. The Temperance leaders have never concealed what they intend to do. From the day the Temperance Reform started in this country, they have declared from every platform their purpose, and that purpose is to bury the liquor business of this country In the same way the old Welsh woman said she would bury the devil, "with face down so that should he ever come to life, the more he dug the deeper he would get." Ladies and gentlemen, such is the purpose of the Temperance men of this country, a calm, deliberate, dispassionate purpose, formed after a full investigation of all the facts. You say at once, "this involves social changes, legal changes, changes in the very structure of this government," and they say, "Yes." You ask: "On what grounds do you base the demands for this change?" Ladies and gentlemen, the Temperance leaders have never concealed their intentions and reasons therefor. Let me write it; dip my finger in the blood of some man killed by beer or whisky and write it on this wall. Listen as I write the counts of this indictment: First, from the day that the liquor business was introduced into this country it has been a bitter, blighting, damning curse upon everything holy, virtuous and true; the enemy of Sabbath, the enemy of wife, the enemy of husband, the worst enemy God has in the world, and the best agent the devil ever employed. I write that up there and look liquor men in the face and say, "You know it is true." Write as a second count, in the language of the ex Chief Justice of Nebraska, "more than four-fifths of the crime of the frontier States is the result of the traffic in alcoholic liquors. Remember the saloons of this country are the places where you sprout your thieves, they are the cradles where you nurse incipient murderers," I write that up there and tell you, liquor men in this audience, it can be proven by the records of the criminal courts of Chicago and the courts of the whole country. Write again in the language of one of the editors of a New York daily, "The liquor business in our large cities is the fountain head of all that is vile, devilish and low." The Temperance leaders stand before the people of this country, read the indictment and say to the liquor interest, come into the court of the people and plead; it does not matter whether the Temperance advocate is a scoundrel or a gentleman. Mr. Beer-seller, the only question, the liquor interest of this country must meet is the question presented in this indictment. If it is false, then the Temperance men of this country are liars, they are slanderers, they are maligners, and the people ought to take them on a rail, ride them out of the towns and dump them in the lake; if it is true, no man can justify the license of the damnable traffic of which it is true. It is simply a question of fact. Do the Temperance men lie or do they tell the truth? They have always proclaimed and pressed the charges. They have gone upon the public platforms and said: "Gentlemen, come before the people and meet us on these issues."

Suppose a young man now in Lake Bluff should steal a horse and start to go to Wisconsin. He is arrested this side of the Wisconsin line, brought back and put in the county jail. The Grand Jury meet and formulate an indictment charging him with felony. The young man is brot into court to make his plea. Now the people prefer he should be acquitted. I believe it is a fact that the American people always sympathize with the criminal, in other words, they prefer that the man should be proven innocent, rather than he should be proven guilty. You see a man led into the court room, charged with the crime of murder, and there is not a man who does not hope that the charge is not true. The boy is brot in, the clerk reads the indictment, and just asks the simple question: "Are you guilty or not guilty?" It is just a question of fact between him and the people; he is expected to do one of two things, either plead guilty and accept the punishment of outraged law, or not guilty, thereby challenging the allegations of the people, and forcing them to produce the proof.

The indictment is read, he is asked for his plea guilty or not, and instead of making it he draws back, begins to whimper, and says: "If I hadn't stolen the horse some other fellow would!" The Court would say: "That has nothing to do with the question; it is a question involving your liberty, a simple question of fact; are you guilty or not guilty?" He continues to whimper, and says; "Well, the people always have stolen horses, and 'taint fair to pitch into me!" No court would accept such a plea. I can imagine the indignation of the Court when for the third time he says: "Are you guilty or not guilty?" The prisoner, drawing back among a crowd of roughs, says: "And if I am guilty what are you going to do about it?" All prohibition laws affecting stealing have failed; there is stealing in every section of this land; you cant stop it; prohibition is a failure. Just let me tell you what I'll do. If you will let me go and keep on stealing, I will give you half the money I got for selling the horse I stole." The Judge looks at him and comes to the conclusion that men always will steal, and says: "Pass over your money."

The Temperance leaders draw an indictment and ask the liquor business to come into the court of the people, aye, and they insist and demand that it shall come; not sneak into its dens of infamy, not crouch with the bludgeon in the hands of the drunken assassins, not bulldoze and intimidate law-abiding citizens, but, like an honest criminal, come up and meet the indictment before the people. Bring it into court. There is the indictment; is it true or false? It commences to whimper, and says; "These Temperance people are all hypocrites!" Come, now, brace up and be a man; true or false? "Well, it says, if we dont sell some other fellow will!" What has that to do with it? The question is simply, is your business guilty? That is all. If it is guilty it must take the sentence. Guilty or not guilty? "Well, people have always drank, they always will drink, and it aint fair to pitch into us!" Guilty or not guilty, Mr. Liquorseller? That is all. They draw back and say: "Well, if we are, what are you going to do about it? If you say we shan't sell we will sell anyway; you never have stopped it, and never shall stop it; when you say we shall not do it, we will put up the flag of rebellion at the head of a beer keg, and defy you to stop us. Let us tell you what we will do: If you will let us go, guilty of all the crime charged, we will give $500 out of the blood-money we get as the result of such work." And the people of this country reach out their hands and say: "Pass over a part of the illegitimate proceeds, and we will stand behind you and swear you are respectable."

MEXICO, Sept. 3, 1881.

Soon after reaching the table land on my way to the city of Mexico, I observed large numbers of the maguey plant or American agave. It is planted on the banks of ditches and small streams, along roadsides and sewers, as a hedge between fields or farms. It is a century plant almost identical in appearance with that variety which is cultivated in California as an ornamental exotic, the chief difference being, that the maguey plant is grass green in color and the California specimens are pea green. They are alike in size and form, and have the same terrible spines at the points and edges of the great fleshy leaves. These spines are its protection and wherever it is planted it is not likely to be intruded upon. The leaves have an acrid and bitter taste and stock will not attempt to eat them except when pinched with hunger or thirst. The veins of the leaves are strong smooth fibres extending thru the whole length, and may be drawn out, and when washed to clear them of the juice of the plant they serve to make cordage, or are woven into sacks; where strength rather than fineness is required. Sacks knitted of this fibre are almost exclusively used for carrying the silver coin of the country; grain sacks and ore sacks are made of it, in fact it forms the gunny sack of Mexico and the rougher cordage. The cuticle of the leaves can be made to serve instead of paper for writing; but it is troublesome to use on account of its disposition to curl into small rolls. A large grub makes its home in the leaves, the natives roast the grub and consider it quite a dainty luxury. The leaves chopped small are some times fed to stock in the dry season when all other means of subsistence have failed, and will sometimes sustain their lives until the rains come and the springing grass appears; so far its uses are excellent.

The center or heart of the plant is a huge bulb in some instances nearly as large as a half barrel cask, and shaped something like a pine apple. The sessile leaves entirely cover this bulb which has a woody shell to which the leaves are attached, but the inner part of it is not much harder than a turnip. The new leaves are formed at the top of the bulb which increases in size and length until it is ready to send up its flower stalk which is merely a prolongation of the bulb. The natives long ago learned (they say a goddess told them) that if they selected a full grown plant, cut out the central bud and scooped a cavity in the top of the bulb, the plant would yield its sap and in a few days the cavity would be filled with juice of the plant which from its sweet taste they call agua miel or honey water, and by scraping the interior of the cavity a couple of times a week it would continue to yield the honey water every day for perhaps six months. They also learned that by leaving this juice for a day in a gourd or earthern jar or a pig skin, it would ferment, and that if they drank the fermented liquor it would make them drunk, so they went largely into the business of raising maguey plants and drinking the fermented juice of them; which they called Pulque; so that now all over the great table land of Mexico, the people that are able to buy it drink far more pulque than water; men women and children drink it. The men are the hardest drinkers; they call it the wine of Mexico and drink it to arouse their patriotism, to increase their strength, to inflame their courage and quench their thirst.

In the United States, railway trains are in the early morning run to carry milk to some of the larger cities. In this country they run a train to carry pulque to Mexico. I have heard it alleged that the city uses more pulque than water. From just outside the Valley of Mexico to Pachuca a distance of forty or fifty miles, the country produces little except pulque, and the largest portion of this goes to Mexico by rail. Much is produced in the valley and carried to the city on the backs of men and donkeys. After it is two days old it yields an offensive smell; deposits in the bottom of the vessel a starchy substance and is considered no longer fit to drink. It is something like sour milk that has been kept until it begins to decay. Even then they do not entirely give it up, for it is then ready for distillation, and they make from it a fiery kind of liquor which they call Mexical. It is drunk by the men whose stomachs are too much damaged to be excited by pulque. In the country I saw a distillery which I will try to describe. The still was a small copper kettle holding six or seven gallons, into the top of which was fitted a cylinder formed by hollowing out an oak log about two and a half feet long, in the top of this was fitted a cover and in the side near the top was a hole in which was placed one end of the "worm". It was covered with boughs laid on poles supported by forked sticks. Their stock of sour pulque must have been small, for their mash tubs, or mash sacks, formed of raw hides, were filled with green leaves of the maguey plant cut in pieces and bruised. It was fermenting at a lively rate and by the next morning would be ready for the still. They were spoiling some good spring water to make their villainous stuff which would be drunk by men whose whole raiment and other personal property is not worth twenty-five cents, and who scarcely taste meat so often as once a week.

I have said that the meu drink more than the women and the drinking of pulque, among others, has this effect. The stamina of the constitution is destroyed and the drinkers fall victims to the first disease that attacks them and are laid in their graves, many of them without a shroud or coffin. The census returns show a considerable majority of women in nearly every municipality in the State of Mexico and in the Federal district, and they show further that the population has increased but little during the last fifty years. Yet the country has productive soil and as good a climate as California. The women bear children enough; but they and the little ones drink pulque and a large proportion of the children die before arriving at adolescence. I hope the maguey plant may never be extensively introduced in California.

Dr. Lauritzen, a Lutheran minister in Michigan, one year ago, was so bitterly opposed to fanaticism, that he tried to break up a meeting held by Mrs. Skelton; saying he did not want any such stuff to turn people's heads. But that lady went for him; she "went, saw and conquered." He apologized, was converted, and is now a valiant defender of the truth, and his wife is superintendent of the German work in Michigan. Let "those women" take courage.

The Chicago Signal copies Bro. Webb's letter on methods of starting Bands of Hope in California. It looks as if that business was going to be industriously prosecuted this year. There are a good many of our 341 lodges that have no Band of Hope and thus no promise of permanency. Now the last one of that 341 to get its juvenile organization under way, will always feel very much asbamed of it: hurry up now, and please dont any of you be last.

The W. C. T. U. of Greeley Colorado, attended the caucus for the nomination of municipal officers, a few days ago. They went in 150 strong, demanded that the right men should be nominated; afterwards they were out on election day and carried the temperance ticket.

That was not at all a question of women's rights, but it was one of women's duties and they were equal to the consciencious preformance of those duties.

A Costly Sacrifice is being made every day of the year by thousands of good Christian women in California, who do not take and read every issue of the Chicago Signal and Our Union N.Y., both Christian Women's journals. They are missing every week an opportunity of hearing of and conversing with and uniting in counsel and sympathy with the bravest and best and most excellent and noble women that ever graced and blessed this world in any age, the women temperance workers of America.

There was lately an exhibition of temperance drinks in England. There is a great variety of them but it is very doubtful if any can now or ever will be produced that can equal the good, precious, wholesome, luscious, all-satisfying temperance drink that the Creator manufactures and which he employed all his infinite skill in making the very best.

Depend upon it, too, when local option or prohibitory laws are in force, these temperance drinks, if they are not a snare now, will be a terribly harassing shield to cover up the rumseller.

Switzerland, whose population is goiug to destruction and pauperism on the doublequick, thru their wine and gin manufacture, has at last a temperance society. Their pledge reads "I promise with the help of God, to abstain from intoxicating drink, except as prescribed by a physician or religious usage, and to do all in my power to aid the cause of temperance."

What a pity that the physicians of the body and of the soul should both permit themselves to be used as stumbling blocks in the way of the reformation and salvation of those whom Christ died to save.

The Signal recomends the Inter Ocean and the Daily News of Chicago, on account of the noble stand they take for temperance; and the Rescue loves to pass any such good words along when deserved. It asks also of magazine readers, to contrast Scribners respectable standing with that of the Atlantic which recently said "He would do a priceless work in the Lord's vineyard who should teach the English lower classes to drink lager beer, and then teach the nobility to stick to Appolinaris." Now a magazine of that kind should be ostracized and stamped out like the obscenest literature; it is more polluting and corrupting, for it entraps a better class of victims to their ruin.

The State Convention of W. C. T. U. at Lewiston Maine, two weeks ago, endorsed the platform of the Home Protectionists adopted at Lake Bluff. They "resolved" to make organized as well as individual efforts to save the young of their own sex from the path of the destroyer; to have each local Union urge the school officers to introduce temperance text books; to apply to every medical convention of their state for their endorsement of the introduction of scientific text books into the public schools treating of the subject of alcohol; condemning cider and beer as the most insidious foes, and urging the circulation of leaflets &c. upon those pernicious drinks; and reaffirming the declaration that "all the moral force of Christian temperance women should be exerted to so raise the standard of common honesty that magistrates shall not regard tneir oath as idle breath. These items can be seen more at length in the Signal.

MISS WILLARD IN TORONTO.

Miss Willard's Sunday evening address in Elmstreet will perhaps be best remembered by her splendid peroration. We cannot reproduce it verbatim, but the substance of it is as follows:—

"For every one we save, there, over the Niagara of intemperance, fall scores, nay hundreds who perish irretrievably. Across the Niagara are two bridges. One built of solid masonry on pillars of Science, Experience and Truth. Those who cross it are at a premium with Life Assurance Companies. When an expedition is required for the Tropics or the Arctics, the men who cross this bridge are chosen. Champions of strength and skill are taken from the Total Abstinence Bridge. I see marching across it a line of real heroes. Father Mathew with the great Catholic Total Abstinence League: John Hockings and his six comrades—founders of the Washingtonian Society; the Good Templar Band and the Sons of Temperance; J. B. Gough, arm in arm with Neal Dow; Francis Murphy with his Blue Ribbon army. Dr. Reynolds and his Red Ribbon army; that Queen of women's society, Lucy Webb Hayes, and a long procession of thousands and thousands of children of the Bands of Hope singing:

I'm glad I'm in this army,
I'll battle for the cause.'

Here, too are the clergy, with 500 Total Abstinence Societies of the Church of England: Spurgeon and Moody arm-in-arm; Baptist, Methodist, Congregationilist, Presbyterians. There is the fearless and eloquent and witty Sir Wilfred Lawson, who has braved the jeers and sneers of a majority in the British House of Commons until his little minority has grown into a majority; Sir Leonard Tilley, with Senator Blaine and the Governors of Georgia and Kansas. Down here, right on the verge of the rapids, is another bridge. It is built of old wooden piles, long ago decayed and rotten in places, with low, uneven sidewalks, and many loop-holes. At the opening of this bridge, which is very wide, there come the young, the old, the ignorant and learned, the rich and the poor; sometimes even a minister, with a Bible in his hand, who forgets the plain teachings of warning in that book. Some there are who can walk that bridge without falling. Like Blondin on the rope, they cross the Niagara by a steady balance, but the history of the bridge is crowded with wrecked lives, such as Byron, Burns, and Sheridan."—Toronto Citizen.

A SAVING WOMAN.

A saving woman at the head of a family is the very best savings bank established—one receiving deposits daily and hourly, with no costly machinery to manage it. The idea of saving is a pleasant one; and if the women imbibed it at once, they would cultivate it and adhere to it, and thus, when they are not aware of it, they would be laying the foundation of a competent security in a stormy time. The woman who sees to her own house has a large house to save in. The best way for her to comprehend it is to keep an account of all current expenses. Probably not one woman in ten has an idea how much are the expenditures of herself and family. Let the housewife take the idea, act upon it, and she will save something where before she thot it impossible.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Rescue, in its new form and dress, hopes in this eighteenth year of publication and henceforth, to acquire a much increased prosperity; and presents a claim to be a valuable advertising medium.

It is read by the most sober and well conducted people all over the State; goes to every minister of the gospel in the State, and to a class altogether whose sobriety and morality indicate superior thrift and good financial standing.

It ought then to be a valuable agency to the advertiser as introducing him to a capable and upright class of customers, valuable to the customer as directing him to honest and

RELIABLE DEALERS,

For no other can buy an ad. in the Rescue at any price: and it is the interest of the reader to make the paper a success, so that with a consistent patronage its price of subscription may be reduced.

An ad. in the Rescue will be good for what it says every time. No fraud or matter of at all questionable propriety or probity can hire this paper for a mouthpiece; no ad. will be received unless the publisher is satisfied of its perfect good faith and character.

This rule will be adhered to, if the paper should not realize fifty cents of advertising patronage during the next three years.

A LIBRARY FOR THE HOME.—During the visit of the G. L. to the Home for Orphans, the G. W. S, announced that he had solicited and received a donation of 36 volumes from the National Temperance Society and Publishing House, as a nucleus for a library at the Good Templars Home for Orphans for the benefit of the children being there entertained. He suggested that a collection be taken to augment this that a commencement might be made in good shape. Canvassers were sent out and the result was announced as in excess of $150. California Good Templars challenge the world in the measure of their generosity. Later at the dedication of the school building erected on the Home gronnds (at an expense of $5000) it was announced that 21 seats would be wanted to fit up with improved patent school desks, one of the two still unfurnished school rooms. Immediately these were supplied and a few over for the other school room when desired. As follows by A. M. Addington; H. F. Band,* Col. Babcock, A. J. Cooke, W. Crowhurst,* F. J. Culver,* Chrysopolis Lodge No. 210,* C. C. Colony Lodge No. 388, C. C. Dunn, El Monte Lodge No. 258, Enterprise Lodge No. 346, Mrs. A. W. Goulson, B. H. Hoag,* Humboldt Lodge No. 269, G. E. Isaacs,* International Lodge No. 291, Samuel Kitto, E. H. Knight,* Lompoc Valley Lodge No. 434, S. Love, R. H. McDonald, A. H. McDonald, M. D. Merrick,* Murphys Lodge No. 361, J. T. Marr, Mabel E. Naylor, G. W. Oberholtzer,* Ocean Queen Lodge No. 190, Willie L. Plummer, Rev. P. Powers, Maud F. Russel,* Rose of Lompoc Lodge, No. 178, Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Mrs. M. T. Shafer,* Phoenix Lodge No. 137, Rev. W. H. Tubb, Tulare Lodge No. 195, Valley Lodge No. 293, Wheatland Lodge No. 197, West Berkeley Lodge No. 206, and Miss Minnie Wright* who contributed $30 the proceeds of the sale of Garfield memorial pictures; one desk to be named for herself and another inscribed "Garfield." The cost price of each desk is $7.50. Those marked with an * paid at once. Each desk is to bear the name of the donor inscribed upon a small silver plate. Besides this a sum exceeding $1000 in money and as much more in socials, entertainments and special efforts, were pledged in behalf of the Home for Orphans fund for the coming year.

A BUSY WEEK.—All the past week two clerks have been at work in the G. W. S. office issuing and mailing Deputy G. W. C. T's commissions and circulars, etc. And at this date all commissions have been mailed and should be in the hands of every deputy. Over three hundred commissions have been issued. Some few lodge deputies have not yet been recommended, hence when commissions are lacking in the enclosure, it is for the reason assigned. There have also been mailed during the past week to each lodge deputy blanks as follows: 1 official circular for the G. W. C. T. to be read in open lodge. 2. A similar circular for the G. W. S. 3. A circular from the R. W. G. L., announcing list of lecturers etc. 4. the quarterly password circular. 5. Form of quarterly returns for the quarter ending October 31st. 6. Blank form to be used in certifying the returns of the vote upon the question of changing the initiation regalia. 7. A private circular to L. Ds. from the G. W. C. T. 8. A commission, or in its absence a blank form of recommendation to be filled for receiving such. Thus 2,800 circulars, etc. of 8 different kinds were mailed to the lodge deputies. The postage on these alone was upwards of $35. The commissions to state and district deputies have also been issued; likewise to degree templars. Our forces are now well organized, the various officers duly commissioned, let all unite in and advance all along the line. The year opens bright and propitious. Let eachmember do his duty, and the next year will give us an army of 25,000. Onward to victory.

HIS ADDRESS.—Correspondents will please remember to address all constitutional questions, conundrums and hypothetical cases to Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T. at No. 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco. The G. W. C. T. is a lawyer by profession, and delights in tracing all those little jokers into their holes and giving his opinion thereon. The G. W. S. is not privileged to answer any question of a constitutional nature, hence when such are received at the latter office they are invariably forwarded to the G. W. C. T. for solution and reply. Interrogators will therefore save time by applying to headquarters directly. The lecture force of the year have been placed in the hands of the G. W. C. T. who will guide and direct their movements. Applications for lecturers should therefore also be addressed to the G. W. C. T. as above.

RESURGAM.—The following lodges which at the last session of the Grand Lodge were reported in the list of lodges held in suspense etc., and hence not recorded in the list of lodges forming the basis of the calculation of membership, have since filled their delinquent returns and in some cases reorganized, and are all now reported actively at work: Santa Monica Lodge, No. 103, Chaparral 121, Bloomfield 227; Crystal Fount 240; Fort Bidwell 275, Plano 301, Riceville, 306, Mount Hope 355 and Del Monte 357.

PLEASE EXAMINE.—The cash received as reported this week includes all amounts paid to the G. W. S. during the session of the Grand Lodge. Tho that officer prides himself upon his accuracy especially in financial affairs, he requests all who paid over any amounts during the hurry and bustle of the Grand Lodge to examine the list and see if proper credit is given; and if any error or omission is discovered, to make it known.

YOLO COUNTY DISTRICT LODGE.—The quarter session of the Yolo District Lodge was held at Winters on Saturday last. The meeting was largely attended, fully 125 being present in the room as visitors and representatives at one time. As the proceedings will doubtless be reported by the secretary, Bro. M. C. Winchester, who was complimented with a reelection, no further mention will be made in this department except to thank all present for courtesies extended.

THE RECORD.—There were reported at the session of the Grand Lodge 341 lodges in good standing. since then nine lodges stricken from the active list have been restored as elsewhere reported, and two new lodges have been added since the close of the last fiscal year. So that we really commence the year's work with 352 lodges and a membership of 17,532.

TOO LATE.—The Executive Committee plead guilty to keeping intemperate hours, made necessary by the volume of business to be transacted at a single meeting, and at the initial meeting after the week's hard work at Grand Lodge, they imagined 12.30 A. M. the hour at which they adjourned, quite late, but the RESCUE compositor credits them with adjourning at 18:30 o'clock. The committee and its secretary were sober at the time, cant say about the compositor.

A COMMENCEMENT.—Bro. Hugh R. Hughes Grand Lecturer, organized Dexter Lodge at Washington school house San Joaquin county on the 27th ult, with 33 charter members, and on the 29th Bro. Will D Gould organized Savannah Lodge at Savannah Los Angeles county with 21 charter members. So the ball has commenced to roll for another one hundred lodges at least during the coming year. Send them along, brothers and sisters.

G. W. S. CIRCULAR.

]To be read in open Lodge.]

SACRAMENTO, CAL., October 19th, 1881.

BROTHERS AND SISTERS: The Twenty-Second Annual Session of the Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T. of California, convened in the City of Vallejo, on the morning of the 4th inst., and adjourned on the evening of the 7th, having been in session four days. The session was largely attended, and proved one of the most harmonious and interesting ever held. The reports of the Officers were exceedingly encouraging, showing a gain in membership of 4,264 during the past year, and a present membership of 17,241, contained in 341 Lodges.

Journal of Proceedings.—The Journal of Proceedings has already been placed in the hands of the printers, and will be issued with that promptness for which this jurisdiction is noted.

Officers Installed.—The following Officers were installed for the ensuing year: P. G. W. C. T., Will D. Gould, of Los Angeles; G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, of San Francisco; G. W. C., H. S. Graves, of West Butte; G. W. V. T., Mrs. E. P. Stevens, of San Francisco; G. W. T., Dr. I. S. Halsey, of Vallejo; G. W. Secretary, Geo. B. Katzenstein, of Sacramento, who comprise the Executive Committee; G. W. M., P. R. McCabe, of Turlock; G. W. D. M., Miss Eliza Goldsworthy, of San Jose; G. W. Chaplain, Rev. Geo. B. Allen, of Petaluma; G. W. I. G., Mrs. M. H. Estes, of West Oakland; G. W. O. G., H. L. Ricks, of Eureka. Mrs. M. E. Richardson, of Murphys, was elected G. S. of Juvenile Work.

Home for Orphans.—The pride of our Order, the Good Templars' Home for Orphans, was visited by the Grand Lodge in a body, on Wednesday afternoon of the session, upon which occasion the newly erected school house was impressively dedicated by the G. W. C. T., followed by a programme of literary and musical exercises, wholly enacted by the children under our care. This proved an event never to be forgotten by those who were so fortunate as to be present. The erection of the school house (which cost $5,000), produced a debt of some $3,000. Many Lodges were pledged in money, and the proceeds of entertainments and socials in behalf of the Home for Orphans' Fund. If your Lodge is not already pledged, will you not kindly consider the matter and inform me at once what may be expected from you in this behalf.

Temperance Literature.—This branch of our work received much attention, and the Grand Lodge decided to enter upon a systematic distribution of tracts, leaflets, and books during the ensuing year. Of this you will be more fully apprised hereafter. Permit me to remind you again that one of our most powerful auxiliaries is the press, and in no way can we render so efficient service as by aiding to extend the circulation and usefulness of our official organ, THE RESCUE. The W. V. T.s are especially charged with the duty of canvassing for subscribers, and it is hoped all will cheerfully accept the duty imposed.

Juvenile Work.—The work among the children was carefully considered. A new and very much improved ritual was adopted for the Band of Hope. In the selection of Sister Richardson, as Superintendent, we have a guaranty of the efficiency that will attend this arm of our service during the ensuing year. The Sister named is in full accord and sympathy with the work, and will be ever ready to encourage and aid those who will undertake the work among the rising generation. As usual, the Band of Hope rituals and badges will be distributed free of charge. All communications touching the Juvenile work should be addressed directly to the General Superintendent, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., California.

Amendments. — Constitutional Amendments were adopted, making P. G. W. C. T.'s permanent members of the Grand Lodge, with a voice and vote in all its proceedings..... The effective card system was substituted for Grand Lodge certificates to be issued to members of extinct Lodges, and the uniform fee therefor was fixed at one dollar..... The minimum charter membership was raised to fifteen, and the charter fee to fifteen dollars, for which amount a full set of all Lodge work, forms and blanks, is to be furnished..... All Deputy G. W. C. T.'s were made the special agents of the Mutual Aid Association, and will receive a fee of one dollar for each accepted application secured by them..... The Constitution of the Subordinate Lodge was amended so as to permit Lodges to ballot upon more than one proposition for membership at one time..... Prescribing the form of return to the Order of members previously suspended for non-payment of dues—they are to be proposed and acted upon as new propositions for membership, except that, upon ballot, a two thirds vote will elect..... And an amendment to the by laws of Subordinates, providing for a Committee on Good of the Order.

Per Capita Tax.—The per capita tax was continued as heretofore, 25 cents per member, payable at the close of each quarter by every Lodge, upon each member held in membership at the close of the quarter. Lodges failing to file quarterly returns at the close of a quarter are deprived of the password for the succeeding quarter, until their returns are properly filed with the G. W. Secretary.

Lecture Field.—The Executive Committee have placed the entire lecture work of the year under the special supervision of the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1531 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, to whom all correspondence concerning lectures must be addressed. The following lecturers have been continued, and are now in the field, viz: Mrs. Emily P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Rev. J. W. Webb, Rev. W. C. King, and Hugh R. Hughes. A nobler corps of agents and lecturers never went forth to battle for the right. They are trained, tried and true. Give them your hearty support when they come among you.

Regalia or Badge.—The R. W. G. L. and Grand Lodge direct that upon the third meeting of your Lodge in the current month, October, you shall vote upon the question of substituting a metal badge in lieu of the initiatory regalia now worn. It is not proposed to change the officers, nor degree regalia, only the initiatory; and the Grand Lodge, with but one dissenting voice, voted to recommend you to vote against any change, and in favor of retaining the regalia intact as at present used. Please secure as large an attendance of your members as practicable upon that occasion, so that a full expression may be had, and have the result of your vote certified up to me at once thereafter, upon the accompanying blank form.

Constitutions.—A new edition of the Constitutions, By-Laws, Digest of Decisions, etc., will be prepared and issued immediately. The new edition will contain all amendments and decisions to date. Orders will now be received and filed for the new edition, and filled as soon as practicable. The old edition is now entirely exhausted.

The Grand Lodge determined upon an aggressive campaign, and the Executive Committee are planning systematic and thorough work during the year to come. Our future is full of promise, and with the co-operation of the entire Order, we should report a membership of from twenty to twenty-five thousand next year. We can if we will; hence let us now pledge ourselves, each to the other, our united and best efforts to advance the interests of our beloved Order.

Again honored, as I have been, by a unanimous re-election to the position of Grand Worthy Secretary, I resume my duties hopefully, and with an earnest desire to serve the Order, as I have in the years gone by, to the best of my ability. Confident of a continuance of your kind sympathy, hearty co-operation, and generous support, which I have always and ever received in the past, and for which I am truly grateful, I have the honor again to subscribe myself with fraternal greetings, in the bonds of Faith, Hope and Charity, Fraternally, yours,

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, G. W. Secretary.

G. W. C. T. Department.

R. THOMPSON, G. W. C. T.

G. W. C. T. CIRCULAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 10th. 1881.

To the Lodge Deputies of this Jurisdiction:

DEAR BROTHERS: Another Grand Lodge year is now commencing, and you have been appointed to represent the G. W. C. T. in your lodges. Study well your duties. Your powers will be found in your commissions, and also in Art. VII of the Constitution of the Grand Lodge. You are in the place of the judge upon the bench rather than the advocate at the bar. Hence deliberation and calm consideration should characterize all your acts and decisions. When questions or appeals are referred to you, when possible, take time to study well the question involved. Do not take sides hastily. Strive well to promote harmony. Seek the spirit of our rules and regulations. Never let an unkind word escape from your lips, even when you find it necessary to disagree with members; do it so kindly and calmly that the utmost good feeling shall continue. In deciding questions of law, and in hearing and determining appeals submitted to you, try and look to the laws and usages of our Order, forgetting the occasion from which it arose. Please remember that your duties require you to find out and consider the law involved rather than the individuals concerned. See to it that the Quarterly Returns Report furnished you by the G. W. Secretary, is properly filled up, signed, sealed and delivered to you before the installation of officers, and immediately thereafter transmit the same to the G. W. Secretary. These reports are all important in keeping the Grand Lodge Officers advised as to the true condition of the Order. Any delay in this will be held against you, as you have the power to enforce this requirement even to deferring the installation ceremonies until the Quarterly Returns Report is forthcoming. Be dignified, prompt and impartial, and you will, as heretofore, aid and prosper our noble Order: Fraternally yours, in F. H. and C.,

R. THOMPSON, G. W. C. T.

To the Subordinate Lodges under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Califoania:

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS: For the third time I am called to act as your leader in the temperance reformation. During the past year our advance has been most flattering. Over 4,000 new members have been added to our numbers of last year, and our present outlook is really the best and brightest in the history of our Grand Lodge. We start the year with 17,000 members and with six lecturers in the field. Our past success has been mainly owing to the cordial and constant aid to our cause, rendered by our subordinate lodges. You have most nobly assisted our lecturers in their work, and by your aid their efforts have been crowned with fine success. Our future growth is to be looked for mainly through your efforts. When all do something, a great work is easily accomplished. Plan out work ahead so you may never be without some work on hand for your lodge to do. Please do not forget open lodge. You will find great good from bringing the public together to consider our work and listen to an entertainment. Individual action should not be neglected, but this, supplemented with united action, will advance our cause more rapidly than otherwise.

One new feature of our plan is the distribution of temperance literature. I urge you to see that all sent to the lodges is judiciously circulated in your community. Please remember the RESCUE is a part of this plan of circulating information to our people, by which they shall be informed of the immense amount of evil arising from the use of intoxicants, and be enabled to perceive how greatly blessed our State would be by total abstinence. Be active in devising new plans of aggressive warfare. If one plan fails try another—constant effort will bring success in the end.

I now take this opportunity of returning you, one and all, my sincere thanks for your kindness and confidence. Let no one be idle, and we will come to the Grand Lodge in October, 1882, with 20,000 Good Templars in California.

The enemy is in sight, and he will be ours, but the time when, will depend upon our diligence. Fraternally yours, in F. H. and C.,

R. THOMPSON, G. W. C. T.

WEDDING AT LA PORTE.

The La Porte lodge of Good Templars was organized by Mrs. E. P. Stevens about one year ago. It has been sustained with varying interest to the present time. One of our most active and valued members and W. T. for several terms, Sister E. J. Purinton has been lately removed from us, not by the hand of death, but that of Mr. Henry Stout of Howland Flat, to whom she was married on the 29th, ult.

The wedding was at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. B. W. Barnes, who, by the way is our W. C. T. It was a very enjoyable and elegant affair. Among the beautiful and costly gifts bestowed on the bride were a pair of silver goblets presented by the Good Templars of La Porte. "Drink water, pure water, drink water pure and bright," was written on the accompanying card. Many kind wishes follow our departed sister. W.

CONTRA COSTA DISTRICT LODGE.

JUDSONVILLE, Sept. 16, 1881.

Contra Costa district lodge met at Judsonville on the 10th inst seven lodges were represented viz. Martinez 113, Brentwood 116, Star of Empire 255, Carbondale 288. Lily 330, Twilight 331, Mt. Diablo 110: three lodges not represented.

A good attendance of delegates and visitors. Bro. F. Clifford, D. D. presided; after the usual business the officers were elected and installed for the ensuing year. L. D. Bro. Clifford, W. V. T. Sister Inman.

The reports from most of the lodges are very encouraging. The delegates and visitors were invited to dinner by the members of the Star of Empire Lodge. A motion that the District Lodge donate the sum of $15 to the Orphan's Home was unanimously carried. A vote of thanks was given to the members of Star of Empire Lodge for their kind reception. WM. BENNETT, D. Sec.

SACRAMENTO County District Lodge will meet at Folsom, Tuesday, Nov. 1st. 1881, at 10 A. M. Members of the order are respectfully invited to be present. J. T. AMOS, Dist. Secty.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

COUNTERFEIT: BOGUS.

There are genuine and counterfeit coins and commodities all over this world and there are also genuine and counterfeit people everywhere. A new gold or silver or nickel coin artistically stamped and finely polished as it comes from the mint, is not only a beautiful thing, but it is of real value, for it is really the quality and amount of metal which its face declares it to be. If it is ever disfigured or cut or bent or distorted by accident or violence, it is as good as ever if all the material is there. It can be disposed of for 20 or 10 or 5 or 1 dollars, or for 5 cents if that is what it professes to be—because it is genuine not counterfeit.

But the counterfeit may be made to resemble the genuine very exactly. It may be quite as pretty and shining and polished and it may pass once or twice among careless incautious people just as well as the genuine, but it is sure to be very soon discovered by the keen eyes of some careful business man, and then it is of no value for ever more. It never was of any value and no amount of polishing and stamping and outward gilding and lettering can ever make it worth an honest copper cent.

There are some genuine people who are just what their face and speech and appearance profess to be, Those who never sell the truth, who never deface, mutilate, bend, twist or clip the truth. They are the pure gold of humanity. Misfortune, accident, injustice, wrong may do violence to them for a season, but nothing can dim or damage or deface the sterling genuine worth and wealth of their character. Everybody knows that no lie is ever found with them in word or deed. And that is the kind of people who are really great and rich in the sight of God and of good men.

On the other hand there are pretty faces kindly dispositions, sociable pleasant companions, people of many good qualities who set no value on the truth. They have the appearance of polish and lettering of pure gold but are only nickel; "their gold has become dim, their fine gold changed." Oh, what a calamity has overtaken our young friend when you say, he is a first rate good fellow but you cant trust his word, or, she is a good natured hearty girl, but you cannot believe what she says. What a misfortnne to be a counterfeit human being of any stamp, from the double eagle to the single cent, when a single genuine cent of humanity is of more value than the counterfeit double eagle.

This is a matter of utmost importance. "Buy the truth and sell it not" It never pays to sell the truth for you buy thorns and nothing but thorns every time in exchange. There are notable specimens right in California as well as all over the Union, of men who have talent and power and natural gifts to make them the first favorites of the state and nation, fluent graceful speakers and writers, fitted in every other way to be the admired and trusted leaders of their fellow men—but they have been so smart as to lie here, and act the hypocrite there, and put up a deceitful trick in another place, and their fellow men recognize them as "counterfeit coin," a twenty dollar stamp, a twenty dollar polish, a twenty dollar ring, but only a nickel metal, only a nickel worth.

Oh, that every one who takes or hears our Juvenile pledge would say after "avoid all profanity" and I will ever study to love the truth, and keep my truth sacred and holy for ever in act, word and deed.

OUTLOOK FOR THE CHILDREN.

All over the christian world the light is spreading with regard to the duty of the world to the young folks. A hundred years ago people thot as they do now, that they had learned nearly or quite everything; but then there was only one man who thot of starting a Sunday school. That was Robert Raikes, a printer in Gloucester, England. He hired some women there to teach children in a Sunday school. It was about 20 years later before teachers began to do that work without pay.

The Churches and Sabbath schools and thousands of good charitable men and women, have thus for about 80 years been actively employed, marshaling the children into Sunday schools; studying out improvements and every few years adding some new feature or attraction to the Sunday school to benefit and better the morals of the children, and help them to grow up better and happier men and women.

In my childhood the Sunday school as compared with the Sunday school or Band of Hope of to-day —well—just compare a rough three legged wooden stool with a most costly and luxuriously cushioned easy chair. Our school was as bare and cold and joyless and cheerless as the three legged stool, whereas yours is full of cheerful and joyous incident. Ours was very like a penance, yours is a delight.

Well, after all that has been done to teach and guard and bless the children for all these ten times ten years, at every period down to the present, it has been found that something was still lacking: something was left out: good people taut the children; loved the children; prayed for the children and gave them good advice; thot they were doing everything needful for them. But all this time when kindly people visited the jail and poorhouse and carried kind messages to the unfortunate wretches in the dens of crime and vice, they found in all these places men and women who had been boys and girls of the Sunday school: lost; ruined.

Did the Sunday school lead them there? not at all: but at the Sunday school they did not use to think it necessary (and sometimes they do not now) to warn the children specially against the most cunning trap ever set for men's destruction. When asked what brot them to jail and crime and ruin, the answer of the victims has almost invariably been, THE DRINK.

The temperance people too, like other people, like all human beings, have made their mistakes; they thot they could persuade the people of this country and England in a few years to put a final stop to liquor making and liquor drinking: and it was not necessary to teach the children: when they grew up they would know better than to drink. But many generations have grown up unwarned of this terrible trap set for them, and at last we have learned to begin to teach the little children from their earliest years, right up to their maturity.

There will be new methods and teachings as people learn still further. But we are on the right track and we are after the children; to lovingly guide them into a path of pleasantness and happi ness and protect them from the harrowing curse of our race. New Bands of Hope and new rituals and new lessons and new songs and new music and new teachers and new superintendent and everything new and joyous and happy has been chalked out for the children this year and we are going to challenge the world a year from now, to show up if they can, as cheerful and happy and pretty and useful and well drilled a juvenile army as our California juveniles will be.

A NEW SUPERINTENDENT.

Every now and then we have a new President of the United States, a new Governor of this State, a new G. W. C. Templar and Vice Templar, a new editor of the RESCUE, new lecturers and a new General Superintendent of J. W. But that dont mean that the former were not satisfactory or efficient or faithful. Changes are freqnently made to divide the labor and to use to the best advantage the varied talent which is available. Now if all the present Officers perform their duties most faithfully and efficiently, they will all be changed sooner or later. One will be wearied and say let some oue else try my work. Of another the Order will say A. has done admirably, but there is B. who might next year do quite as well or a little better, let us try B. this year. And the changes generally work well.

There has been no complaint of any former G. Sup. but the changes have all resulted well and now with a more determined will than ever to make success of the Juvenile work, with a kind appreciation of the labors of our former Officers, and with better outfit than ever before, we expect our new Superintendent will do a magnificent work this year. But she cannot make anything but a failure, if alone and unsupported. She expects a hearty and kindly co-operation and the very best and most effective aid that our best members everywhere can afford her. Every Lodge should take measures to see that their Band of Hope has the best chance of success or if they have had no Band heretofore they should be without one no longer. A most generous and gallant assistance is urgently entreated for our new G. S. J. W. and for the young who are some day to worthily fill our places. Now right here it may be well to remember that every one of us owes to our cause and our country just as active a duty in behalf of the Juvenile interest as our G. S. does. The only difference in our duties is that hers is to lead and ours to follow.

A WRITER in the Michigan Herald, a minister tells of a young soldier badly wounded in the battle of the Wilderness who had cut into a board near his bed in the hospital the words "my mother;" he continues: "I have noticed all anxiety may be laid aside about moral future and standing in this world of the lad or young man on whose heart is stamped "My Mother. My readers never knew one to go astray, to bring a parents gray hairs in sorrow to to the grave, who won from his mocking companions the remark, "he is his mother's boy." The boy tied to his mother's apron strings is never afterwards tied to the devil by a dissolute life. The lad ashamed of doing a mean thing because mother will know it, afraid not of displeasing her but of losing her respect and confidence will be honored by God and man. Do you know a boy or young man whose mother is first in his thoughts, who is as tender as a lover, who never neglects her for other society, who seems to take pleasure in waiting upon her, who finds her company pleasanter after meeting or lecture or party than any other, then you can invest in that young man confidence or money or prophecy. The promise in the fourth commandment of length of days never fails, for it is tied to the law.

Pray for thy sons by all means. God pity the child without a praying mother, but prayers for children are oftenest answered along the lines of a mother's influence, and that influence depends upon the depth and character of the child's love. If "My Mother," is cut into the heart of a boy, not stamped upon the surface, but cut there, that boy is safe for at least this world."—

That is true in the main, but many a boy who once loved a good mother with the most intense affection, has afterwards been led to apalling ruin thru drink. But the youth who fulfils all his duty to his parents and keeps far away from the soul-traps of drink and tobacco will rarely fail to have a reward of lengthened happy days.

FROM THE SUPERINTENDENT.

DEAR FRIENDS OF THE JUVENILE DEPARTMENT:—The position of General Superintendent is assumed with a due sense of its grave responsibilities. In making my official bow thru the columns of the RESCUE, my thanks are offered for the honor conferred upon me, and I desire to give assurance of an earnest intention to be faithful in the discharge of the duties of the office, so far as God has given me the ability to perform them.

Correspondence upon all matters relating to the Bands of Hope and the juvenile work is solicited and will receive prompt attention. Your co-operation is urgently desired to assist in making this year one of the greatest progress in this branch of the temperance work, that our order has ever known.

All communications relating to juvenile work should be addressed to

Mrs. M. E. RICHARDSON
Murphys, Calaveras Co. Cal.

THE closing of the whisky dens in Indianapolis on Sunday in Augnst last, has reduced the average number of Sunday arrests from about 50 to 8 or 9. It is a disgrace and a crime and a shame that attaches to every citizen in this republic, that one person should be arrested drunk, or seen drunk on any Sunday of the year. That such an infamous den of crime as a grogshop or beer dive should ever be allowed to open its doors on any day, is a national crime of the most degraded type, but that they should be open to ply their murderous nastiness on Sunday, is a national crime which never has had a parallel among heathens or barbarians or cannibals.

TEMPERANCE.

Pray on ! God watches our beautiful land
From dawning till set of the sun:
He knows there is power in woman's prayers,
There is strength for the conflict, and help for her cares
And a nation to be won !

Hope on ! for he hears ! and the Temperance call
In clarion tones is heard !
Thru hamlet and city, o'er valley and hill,
The thrilling call is echoing still,
And a nation's heart is stirred.

Wait on ! for the glorious blessing at last
Is given to them that endure.
For them who patiently run the race,
And bear the burdens with bravest face,
The promises are sure.

We will labor on ! May the same kind hand
Still guide us along our way:
And grant that among the scattered leaves,
We may glean a measure of golden sheaves.
As an earnest of harvest day !

—Mrs. Olive Scott. Bennington. Vt.

WHAT CAN A GIRL DO FOR TEMPERANCE. ?

BY EMMA EVEREST.

This is the age of co-operation. Societies for the promotion of everything under the sun flourish luxuriantly, and very good things they are too.

If one girl becomes really interested in temperance, it will not be long before other girls become interested, and when half a dozen, five or four, become of one mind, let them form themselves into a temperance society.

There will be no lack of new recruits when once the thing is fairly under way. It seems impossible, in most places, to interest the girls in the work of the older societies,—I mean the societies of older ladies. Of course there should always be harmony and co-operation, but by all means let the girls form their own unions. Make laws and by-laws, and live up to them, and let it be very thoroly understood that every member of the band considers every young gentleman who will not put himself fairly and squarely on the side of temperance as one who willingly places himself outside of respectable society. Let the band give readings, entertainments and sociables, but never forget that it is first and foremost a temperance organization.

Take the literature of the community under your especial care. See that the reading rooms, Sunday school libraries, poor houses, jails, and all public places are supplied with temperance reading.

The care of the children falls naturally to the girls. The methods of that work can not be spoken of here, but they are many and interesting. And girls, above all, dont let temperance be ignored in Sunday schools.

I have never attended a meeting of a Good Templars Lodge, or of the Sons and Daughters of Temperance, but I am a firm believer in these organizations. I have in my mind a company of young people, in which almost every young man was at least a "moderate,' drinker, and among whom wine was always offered as a necessary part of the refreshments at the social gatherings. A good Templars Lodge was organized among them, and to-day that community is entirely revolutionized. So it may sometimes happen that the wisest and best way to work is in the lodges.

One word more. I do not suppose that I need caution the girls against the use of liquors even in cooking, but there are other kinds of intemperance. Put the nonsense and the frivolity—not the fun—out of your lives, and make them honest and earnest before God and man. Life hurries fast, and wasted thoughts and words and deeds can never be recovered. Do not let it be possible for any soul to reproach you for doing it even unconscious wrong by your thoughtlessness.—Signal

WEAVERVILLE,—An organization of this juvenile order was instituted here a few weeks ago with 62 charter members and large additions have been made at each succeeding meeting. The pledge requires total abstinenoe from the use of liquor, tobacco and profanity—most certainly a good resolve if strictly adhered to. Meetings are held at 3 P. M., every Sunday, at Good Templar Hall. Parents are particularly invited to attend the meetings and interest themselves in the welfare of the Society—Trinity Journal.

BURNED To DEATH. The same paper tells of the burning of a cabin at Hay Fork last week, in which James Duncan and Edward Wheelan were burned and their remains found in the ashes. The first was a native of Scotland aged 57 years, the other of New York aged 49 years. Two quiet citizens but hard drinkers and it is supposed they drank heavily on this occasion, made a careless fire and went to sleep to wake no more in this life. What an awful account to have run.—to live 50 years, with no better result than being heavy drinkers and getting burned up drunk at last. It is the work of the Band of Hope to have no more drunken old men by and by, to have no more drunken fires and drunken murders and drunken crime.

REQUISITES FOR A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

The Temperance Schoool $0.05

However dark the way seems, if you love the children and wish to save them, and at the same time to train up workers for temperance send for the above and learn what can be done. Then if you wish to learn how to do it, send for the following list:

OUR PRINCIPLES.—WE AIM FOR NOTHING SHORT OF A SWEEPING NATIONAL PROHIBITORY LAW ENDORSED BY EVERY STATE AND TERRITORY OF THE UNION, IN THE YEAR 1885, AND AS MUCH SOONER AS THE CHRISTIAN AND TEMPERANCE MEN AND GOOD CITIZENS OF THE COUNTRY MAY DESIRE TO ACCOMPLISH IT.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

INTEMPERATE TEMPERANCE.

The Rev. H. Wheeler G. W. Chaplain of the I. O. G. T. England, in the Watchword notices at length the article which recently appeared under that heading in this paper. He says the RESCUE "seems thoroly orthodox in the temperance faith. There is no uncertain sound in its teachings; no shilly shally in the manner of its reasoning, and no half-heartedness in its spirit. Our Yankee friends are certainly ahead of us in the great temperance movement. In the Church and in the State they have outrun Britishers and in social life—in christian families and among the christian ministry, they are much in advance. But it seems America is not all sober, nor American christians all teetolalers."

After repeating the anecdote of the Kinsale fisherman it resumes. "It appears there are some good religious people on the other side of the Atlantic, who would fain shape their garment of christian temperance after the fashion of the fisherman's coat; they must have holes in it: in other words, a drink plank in their gospel platform."

"By such people the RESCUE has been charged with the spirit of slander and abuse of those friends of temperance who believe the moderate use of wine innocent. The accuser gets his change and the said friends of temperance their meat in due season. Caustic is the retort and sweeping the argument. In this country the class is large who might "read, mark and inwardly digest" with profit the terse and racy expostulation of the writer."

It is more than amusing, it is astounding to note how many assume the title "friends of temperance" who never do anything in the temperance work but defend moderate drinking, libel the Savior by trying to show that He sanctioned wine-drinking, and using every opportunity of abusing the advocates of total abstinence. "It is a good thing for the drunkard. They who cannot stop when they have enough should give it up. Grace is quite sufficient to keep a man without being a tee totaler. You are doing a good work reclaiming drunkards; for us it is not necessary. The Bible teaches us to be moderate in all things. You go to extremes in unchristianizing those who do not agree with you." This is their stock phraseology."

After quoting the passage which reviews the claims of such people to be called friends, the Rev. G. W. Chaplain continues "We echo the strong denunciation and endorse the burning feeling which runs thru it. It is time that christians ceased to be the apologists of the drink system in any of its forms. Time that they ceased the desecration of pressing into its support Bible facts, examples and speech. Time that the temple were cleansed and the traffickers in unholy coin driven out. Time that the church of God withdrew herself from all participation "in the unfruitful works of darkness" of which the liquor business is so productive, and that she summoned her forces in united phalanx to the help of the Lord against the mighty-"

Thanks to Bro. Wheeler not for agreeing with the RESCUE, but for his manly words in defence of the whole truth for the truths sake. It is cheering and helpful to receive an echo of christian sympathy from afar, and from so respectable and worthy a quarter.

THE ORPHEUS CLUB OF VALLEJO.

While the Grand Lodge was in Session the Orpheus Club of Vallejo kindly volunteered to pay the Good Templars a complimentary visit and afford them a very pleasant hour of choice Musical Entertainment. At 9,30 Thursday evening the club made an early close of their usual exercises and were introduced into the council chamber in due form. We were treated to several pieces of choice music rendered in a tasteful and artistic style that would do honor to any professional band of musical artistes. Each song was greeted with rapturous applause, and a rising vote of thanks was given as the club withdrew.

Mr. Joseph R. English the talented founder and the leader of the Orpheus Club from its nativity, has rendered the community a most valuable service in promoting the interests, cultivating the talent, directing the exercises, training and drilling the members of the club and keeping in constant activity and harmony all the forces of this most excellent institution.

The club must of necessity have had an improving, bettering. elevating, refining influence upon every one of its members, and there is no possible way in which any one can have received harm or injury thru it. And while a saving, improving influence has been thrown around its membership, the club has all along furnished the citizens with a chaste, pleasing and highly artistic entertainment at frequent intervals.

Vallejo has had good teachers in its public schools and in its churches and Sunday schools, who have all along sowed good influences that have borne healthy fruit in the improved citizenship of those who have passed under their tutelage. The Good Templars Lodge has always been a saving agent and a teacher and elevator of the many who have been brought under its protecting roof: but in taking account of the conservative and purifying and elevating influences which have ever sought to lead the youth of Vallejo upward, the Orpheus Club and Mr. English who has been its directing, moving, leading spirit from first to last, eminently deserve a place among the first and highest and best of them. It is a pleasant task to place a chaplet of merit upon the brow of a thoroly good citizen, who has never had one mark for being late or derelict in a citizen's duty.

COMMUNION WINE. The day is close at hand when the opinions which are now empirically called radical, on the question of the proper communion material, will be universally accepted, as the only consistent and reasonable deduction from scripture and logical intelligence.

A minister asserted a few days ago that there was no doubt that the communion was instituted with intoxicating wine. A lady asked him if he had read the Rev. Mr. Jones' articles in the RESCUE upon that subject. He replied no, I would not read anything that appears in the RESCUE on that question. Now it is submitted that an opinion that will not hear the arguments presented by the most eminent scholarship in the world, because they happen to be given in a temperance paper, has not a particle of value. And of all who profess to hold the opinion that Christ made, used and commended alcoholic poison as a beverage, there is not a man of them, not even the famous Dr. Crosby, in this country and only one man in England who ventures to put pen to paper to adduce one syllable of fact or argument or plausible inference beyond abuse of their opponents and the egotistical dogmatic, "I believe so, "or somebody believes so, which is the exact equivalent in value of the infidel argument "I dont believe."

It would be unmanly and an evidence of little brains to doubt that with very few exceptions, the ministers and members of the Christian churches would rather be right than wrong upon this, and all other questions of belief and practice. But there are great numbers of them who are mistaken in two particulars: first, they think this an unimportant matter, and second, they dont think for themselves, after having consulted the most competent authorities, but accept the second hand faith of some very indifferent authority. If the old ideas, derived from baseless superstitions in an age of entire ignorance, are correct, our whole temperance reform ought to be abandoned as a mistake. If we are right, and the unanimous verdict of all the impartial scholarship of the world, that has examined the matter faithfully, is correct, there is a blasphemy in the continuance of the practice of putting the cup of devils, the abomination of desolation, the perfect emblem of corruption and uncleanness and sin and death upon the table of the Lord.

And that it is so, is the deliberate belief of whole denominations and of the most enlightened, enquiring, consciencious and devoted classes and individuals of various denominations, which have not yet authoritatively decided with us. And they come to this conclusion because they seek for light. Those who dont enquire for the truth remain in error.

Dr. Norman Kerr of London an eminent christian physician, scholar, chemist, scientist &c has been one of the most conservative cautious men, to accept the advanced positions of temperance advocates; has resisted every new doctrine till faithfully proved. He has just published an excellent pamphlet, noticed elsewhere. "Unfermented Wine a Fact." It can be had at 58 Reade Street New York for ten cents. And its perusal will settle the doubts of any consciencious doubter.

WOODBRIDGE, Cal., Oct. 14, 1881.

EDITOR RESCUE:—Will you permit me to say that in your notice in last weeks RESCUE, of the action of the state conference of the United Brethren in Christ, at its late session here, you have done injustice to a most excellent people.

These brethren are really explicit and firm for temperance; but have (like the United Presbyterians and a few religious bodies) a "crank" in relation to secret societies; and while we may be sorry that they should find offense on so small a point, let us do them justice, and be thankful that they are not wholly against us in our mission as Good Templars, but with us.

Will you excuse me for calling attention to the matter, because it is the impression of some, that the RESCUE never has any good words for the churches, but is always ready to use the cudgel against them. This, we who always read the RESCUE, know is a mistake; but the severity with which you handled these U. B's last week might give rise to such a suspicion.

Above all others, we who are Good Templars, and are honest in our convictions, can afford to be just; and I have been greatly delighted with the vigor with which your pen has been used against the GREATEST EVIL OF THE AGE—for such it is. May you long live to use it in this glorious warfare. Glorious on our part, inglorious on the part of our and mankind's enemy. C.

The above is cheerfully admitted to do justice to both sides. But on a reperusal of the article which was copied and criticised in the RESCUE, it only looks as if the conference, or some of its members, had taken a great deal of pains, and gone far out of their way to condemn and contemn the Good Templars. It is not the first time they have strenuously opposed and resisted the planting of temperance organizations.

If they are "explicit and firm for temperance," they have a most singular and ambiguous mode of expressing their friendship. And if they will pursue their work without casting stones and mud at ours, they will be perfectly safe from any remark in the least disrespectful from this quarter. The excessive weekness of a "crank in relation to the secrecy of the I. O, G. T." is very pitiful and pitiable. It is to be lamented that the devil can make such a cheap conquest of a human soul and catch it with so cheap a bait as he does, when he sets a professing Christian to antagonize temperance and work for him, because the I. O. G. T. has a password at the door.

Lecturers' Reports.

☞ The only authorized Grand Lecturers in this jurisdiction are Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Messrs. Wm. Crowhurst, Hugh R. Hughes, Dr. M. D. Merrick, F. J. Culver, Col. C. N. Goulding, George Bramall, Rev. W. C. King and J. W. Webb.

They are authorized to instruct and institute Lodges and Bands of Hope, solicit subscribers for our official organ, the RESCUE, and receive donations for the Good Templars' Home for Orphans and our lecture and missionary work. They are employed and compensated by the Grand Lodge, and all monies received by them are paid over to the Grand Lodge Treasury. It is expected that the lodges and the friends of temperance will, in good time, secure a commodious place of meeting, provide music, advertise the meeting well, make every needed preparation and render them every assistance to make their mission a success.

J. W. WEBB.

Pomona. The Lodge is not very large and attendance rather slack, but I think the interest reviving. They are prosecuting the saloon keeper for Sunday violation. As it is before Judge Parker, they will succeed with a good cause and clear evidence.

Spadra Lodge has good material; the Post master and Store keeper, Principal of the school and Judge Parker and other influential persons are members, the W. C. T. is a lady.

Los Angeles. The Garfield memorial services interfered with our meetings somewhat, but we believe some good was done. Made Head Quarters at Mirror Office where Bro. Jessie Yarnell is a splendid hand to introduce one to temperance and influential men who seem to visit the office of this growing and outspoken temperance paper in large numbers. Expect to return and hold a series of meettings. Lodge is large and active.

Pasadena. Four years have made great improvement in the way of homes; oranges and grapes coming into bearing, many fine residences, new church, hall and school: no saloon or liquor sold. They must carefully watch and guard it tho, as some lazy greedy fellow will try and sneak in with a gin-shop or rumhole. There is a pretty good lodge about to build a Hall; mostly young folks, many leading and older citizens should take hold, some whose hearts, one would think were well nigh broken thru intemperance in their own families, take no part or lot in the temperance work but even raise grapes and sell for wine making. Well as we sow so we must reap.

At close of first night's lecture I did not speak of collection or money but Master Sidney Smith stepped up and put in my hands two dimes and a nickel a freewill offering of 25 cents for the Orphans Home. God bless the boy and the Home.

From Grand Lodge I started for the southern part of the State to strengthen some weak points, and to pay special attention to those not yet visited. On the way called at Athens Lodge of Oakland. To the beautiful hall they rent, came visitors from other Oakland lodges, Sacramento and elsewhere and a specially large delegation from Valley Lodge, San Francisco. In all, over 100 were present. A good program was presented, and in speeches, the Sunday law, Temperance literature, an epitome of the G. L. proceedings and the importance of working for temperance, in the lodge and out of it, were earnestly spoken of. Bro. Fairbanks, W. C. T. of Prohibition Lodge, and P. G. W. C. T. of Nebraska; "Mother" Baldwin and others were among the visitors, I obtained by personal canvass, 4 subscribers to the RESCUE, and if the lodge would seriously consider and act on the matter more could be obtained.

On Tuesday night spoke at full union meeting in M. E. Church, Haywards. The two pastors assisted; interest very good. Bro. and Sister Bramall kindly entertained me. His whole heart is in the cause, specially juvenile work.

At Santa Clara found much excitement on Sunday law; several saloon keepers having been arrested for violation; while some are weak-kneed on the subject, others propose without malice or vindictiveness, to continue till "the crack of doom" or till saloon keepers and others quit violating the law.

Had an audience fair in numbers and deeply attentive. Visited public schools; principals and and teachers are temperance people and several Good Templars.

To be continued.

WM. CROWHURST.

WINTERS, Oct. 15, 1881.

Large enthusiastic meeting held last night in Christian church; 12 names obtained for lodge, good program of singing etc. to supplement the lecture.

District Lodge met to-day with nearly 150 in attendance. The R. W. G. T., Bro. Geo. B. Katzenstein was introduced by P. G. W. Coun. Wm. Sims amid much enthusiasm, and later in the day installed the officers for the current G. L. Year. The D. D., Bro. T. J. Goin, D. V. T., Sister V. Morris and D. Sec. Bro. M. C. Winchester, together with all the other officers are an earnest and true hearted set of brothers and sisters, and will certainly carry bombshell after bombshell into the camp of the enemy.

We quote from the inaugural address of the new deputy: "Everything that can be said concerning the cause of temperance has been said; but everything that can be done has not been done." This indicates the spirit of the whole district lodge. One sister was awarded a prize of $7.50 for having obtained 25 subscribers to the RESCUE. A delegation headed by Bro. Fraser was present from Solano county.

The R.W. G. T. exemplified the unwritten work of the Order lucidly and satisfactorily. Good work was done for the cause and to chickens, turkeys, cakes etc. Much good feeling prevailed seasoned with perfect harmony, and a determination to push the battle to the gates.

MRS. STEVENS.

STOCKTON, Cal., Sunnday Oct. 16, 1881.

Something attempted, something done has earned a night's repose.

A busy day! Sister Richardson and myself visited three Sunday-schools, Presbyterian, Congregationalist, Methodist. Sister Richardson sang for them, and then a little talk from myself: the result, three Bands of Hope of over three hundred members Some of the active workers among the adults joined, one gentleman a lover of tobacco said, I can afford to sacrifice it for the sake of the boys.

In the evening, altho there was service in all the churches, at our temperance meeting in the Baptiet church, five hundred were present and twenty-three gave names for lodge. $25.25 collection. Sister Richardson called it the joint Stock Company and said she was the sleeping partner, but I thot she was the singing partner, for she certainly with her glorious voice entrances all hearts. I feel positive the juvenile work is in good hands. Bro. Jones, D. D., San Joaquin county is all alive to the work, and at the close of my labors in this county we propose holding a series of meetings in Stockton. Perhaps we shall be able to enforce the Sunday law in this place.

SWEETS OF THE TRAFFIC

Of seventy-one arrests in Portland, Maine, during the last week in August, sixty-one were for drunkenness, and yet Portland is the largest community in the world, it is stated, under the operation of the thoro-going prohibition laws. Where do people get their liquor? There are neither saloons nor breweries in the city. It is a criminal offence to sell liquor punishable by heavy penalties, and yet its use is notorious. Do the authorities wink at the evasion of the law? Neal Dow, the champion of prohibition. declared that those in authority were afraid to enforce the law, and advised his friends to vote against the dominant party.—Trinity Jou nal.

All that is a perfectly natural result of the rum traffic which existed so long in Maine and which exists still all around it. The traffic bred a nest of pestiferous thieves and villains whose bodies and souls are bottles in which crime is conserved in alcohol just as snakes and lizards are in a glass jar. They are sold to do evil, totally rum depraved and to sell and drink rum is the only thing they love or prize on earth.

The prohibitory law and the rum they drink will exterminate them in time. They are all foreigners, and there will be none to take their places. The Journal surely understands that a traffic which keeps the state of California busy building new penitentiaries, lunatic asylums, jails, police courts, orphanages, etc., and fills the land with daily murders and crimes of every type, cannot be succeeded by an immediate condition of entire sanctification when the law steps in and arrests it.

Again it is quite probable that not one of the seventy-one arrests made in Portland would have been made at all in any town in Cal. for the same offences. Maine is an orderly state. Men are arrested in Portland when they exhibit the least symptom of intoxication. They are arrested there for conduct that would scarcely excite a passing remark in this State.

Kansas has a prohibitory law too, but they have a great many rumsellers yet, who have been criminals and lawbreakers all their lives. So in two of their large towns they are still sowing drunkenness, poisoning men for money, and stealing the food and clothing of their children. But Kansas will use them up in time. And if the infamous and filthy crime of selling liquor in this state should be prohibited next year, we should have on our hands about 12,000 trained rumsellers, many of whom have served a term in the state prison and most of whom are natural lawbreakers. And for every one of them we should have a number of professional thieves, rascals, drunkards, beggars, sharpers, gamblers and a proportion of murderers, burglars, etc. who have been trained and educated in the 12,000 licensed Sunday-schools of this state. That is an army of criminals to deal with, and it is very unreasonable and unjust to expect a prohibitory law to reform all these and bring them into sainthood in a year or two. It should be remembered the Maine law effective only began to date from 1872 and has been really so only since 1877. The fact that the opponents and critics of prohibitory laws are so quick and exacting in noting the failure of instant perfection to follow their enactment, indicates beyond a doubt that in their hearts they have a profound belief in their evident good tendency, and a profound respect for the sacredness of their character.

ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE.

Mrs. Willard of the Signal, now in England was at the great Methodist meeting in London when the Sunday and temperance questions were discussed. Dr. Walden, Dr. Edwards of the N. W. Christian Advocate, a Mr. O, H. Horton of Chicago and other Americans, gave ringing testimonies for prohibition, and some English speakers ably supported them. A layman of the Wesleyan Church, a total abstainer from youth, who had never signed a pledge but had worked for temperance every other way, said he saw it now his duty to ally himself with the temperance army, and thus do better work. But he did not think a layman should be called on to take higher ground than the minister, and perform a duty, to bring the masses into the church as Christians, while the ministry of the church is not at all safe to lead them in the matter. That was a solemn utterance, and it is to be hoped it was a word fitly spoken and will be fruitful of good results.

WANTED.

WANTED — Employment, as bookkeeper, shipping clerk, salesman, or other similar occupation. Address "GOOD TEMPLAR," office of the RESCUE.

TEMPERANCE SOCIAL SCIENCE.

The Philadelphia National Baptist calls attention to a notable discussion of measures to promote temperance before the recent meetings of the Social Science at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Judge Aldrich of the Massachusetts Superior court made an able presentation of the views of prohibitionists. Rev. Dr. Bacon of Connecticut spoke in favor of a restrictive license system. Absolute prohibition he regarded as one extreme, and the unrestricted sale another. A good license law was the golden mean. Hon. F. W. Bird of Massachusetts favored moral means only—not legal, either restrictive or prohibitory."

The Rev. Dr. Bacon is making for himself a record of notorious infamy. It is absurd to believe that the Reverend Dr. can help knowing that a restrictive license system is just what has plainly in open sight of everybody, led to the most appalling condition of crime, wickedness, debauchery, poverty and human woe in this beautiful country that the world has ever witnessed. Among a people who have inherited from an eminently Christian ancestry the best and most moral and religious teachings and examples and traditions that were ever handed down from one generation to another—who have had the best educational and religious privileges the world has ever afforded—who have been blessed with every natural and providential advantage to place them above want and temptation—; here, right in the midst of the highest civilization, the best and holiest influences around us in unequalled profusion — we have a system of systems of evil, a machinery of lewdness, immorality, wrong and violent and bloody crime, before which the sin of the heathenism of this world stands as an insignificant cipher.

Any man who has Rev. and Dr. before his name must have acquired those titles upon an extraordinary small capital of common horse sense, if he dont thoroly understand that the restrictive license system is solely accountable for every whit of the degradation of a Christian nation. "Restrictive," of course he knows to be a term that is a delusion and a lie.

And what possible interest can a Rev. Dr. have in striving with all his might as this Rev. Dr. Bacon has been doing, to resist and defeat temperance, to belie most villainously the effect of the Maine law in Maine, to poison public sentiment in a social science meeting and to envenom the public and religious press with the virus of his deadly hate of sobriety and Christianity, and thus to perpetuate the reign of rum and Satan.

The Hon. T. W. Bird has a title which needs no brains and he can pass on the probable ground that he owns saloon property. But it requires a rather larger amount of charity than is lying round loose to credit such self-intrusive pronounced antichrists as Bacon, Crosby and Burnett with any higher motives than a fat annual fee from the beer and whisky interests. To suspect them of innocent sincerity would be more belittling and less complimentary.

KANSAS.

Gov. St. John and a committee of patriotic citizens of Kansas call for help for that state, to defend itself against the united assaults of the beer and whisky thugs of the United States, who promise to spend a million dollars if necessary to break up the prohibitory law there, lest it should spread to other states; and their call has good reason and should be heeded. They want money and temperance literature. Anything contributed should be forwarded to James A Troutman, Topeka, Kansas.

People who live in Kansas have a right to vote against a prohibitory law, but when an organized gang of murderers, brigands and sneak thieves overstep the state line into Kansas to debauch its voters with their money gained by the blood of women and children murdered by them in other states, the Kansas people want to learn a lesson from our Lompoc and improve upon it. Mr. Troutman can have at the RESCUE office at any time an order for a coil of 120 fathoms of nice new manilla rope of two inches in circumference, or if he prefers he can have it cut into 60 convenient lengths right in this office and a neat eye spliced in one end of each for a running noose (a little service which will be thrown in with pleasure). Those 60 pieces of manila temperance literature will be found worth all the paper temperance literature in the world piled a foot deep all over the state.

By the time that much of that kind of argument and a lamp post have been tried on the lawbreakers and the bribe agents, the Kansas law will be as firmly established as the everlasting hills. And there is no crime that Satanic humanity has ever conceived, that so much needs the summary halter and the summary bayonet to settle it, as that of the invading host of foreign leprosy which is seeking to deluge this heritage of the free and once happy American people, with the blood of American slaves conquered and brutalized and shackled to the beerkeg of their hostile brutal murderous invaders.

MAKING SNEAKS.

The liquor organs assert that "prohibitory laws make sneaks of men," that they will have liquor anyhow, and if they can't get it openly, will perjure themselves, if necessary, to secure it. For the sake of unanimity in this paragraph, we will agree to the proposition, that there are some men who will so demean themselves But what is the effect of the open and law-protected saloon? Does it make its frequenters more honorable, better citizens and give to them the respect of the community? Does it not, on the coutrary, tend to drag down and degrade and make "sneaks" of a hundred men where one would arrive at an equal result under prohibition? Which is the better friend to society, the man who is ruined at the front door or the back entrance? One loses his honor and self-respect in defiance of law, while the other reaches the same goal by the affirmative action of law, but both are equally lost to the world and their friends, while the percentage is about one hundred to one. The truth is, that it is not a question of manliness, but hardihood and defiance of public opinion, that enables a man to enter the front door of a saloon, or to emerge therefrom without first looking to the right and to the left, to see who is observing him, and this latter is no better nor no worse than the back door visitor. —Pacific Censor.

TEMPERANCE PUBLICATIONS.

We are constantly impressed with the great importance of circulating temperance literature among the people.

Notwithstanding the vast amount of matter that has been published and sent forth, there is yet great ignorance among the masses in regard to the temperance question, in its various aspects.

The religious and secular press, much as it may do, can not be relied upon to furnish all the people need.

It is a hopeful indication that temperance publication houses are multiplying. The National Temperance Publication House, 58 Reade St., N. Y. City, publish largely on all plans of the question, and we commend them to the patronage of all. We know by experience that all will receive their money's worth, and more too, and be glad of the slight expenditure.

David C. Cook has recently opened, at 148 Madison St., Chicago, a Revolution Temperance House, and we are amazed at the amount he offers for a little money. He furnishes excellent and unique material for educating the children. It is a grand work. We advise all to send for samples and buy what they can afford. A little money expended in this way will hardly be missed, and will do you and others much good.—Prohibitionist, Lewiston, Me.

Long and labored editorials appear in all the republican papers attempting to show the utter folly of nominating a temperance ticket. When stripped of verbiage, the burden of their lay is that such action will injure the party. That is it precisely, party first, principle, honor, humanity last. Do not the authors of these long winded homilies know that every good thing we have in government, science or religion has come from the action of just such come-outers? If temperance is a good thing, as all these prohibition-killers assert, is not an effort to legally banish the chief cause of intemperance also a good thing? Men bound to party are the most abject slaves on this earth. It is not murder to kill a party; it is no dishonor but a great credit to any good man to aid in bringing about the end of any party that defends the wicked traffic in liquor. It would be a christian deed worthy of the most devout follower of Christ to so vote next month as to cause the death of the republican party. The good material in that once grand old political faction is wanted in another fight for humanity.

Ah, but how suddenly the leading Republicans of the state met to devise ways and means to thwart the efforts of the temperance ticket. At the Plankington House, Milwaukee, last Friday, there was a meeting of this kind, and it was decided that the "Prohibition issue is wholly one of morals and not of politics." These ringsters who have so long led the temperance men of this state by a string in their nose dont like to see their power weakening. The honest temperance sentiment is favorable to political action, and does believe in carrying Prohibition into politics as much as the Brewers' Congress believes in carrying free rum into politics.—Ripon Free Press,

THE KNOW-ALLS.

Job met this tribe in his day and sarcastically said to them, "no doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you." The species is never extinct, and belongs to every kindred, tribe or tongue.

Science, religion, art and politics, each has representatives of this school. They are the perfect ones; nothing remains for them to learn. It is a very pleasing form of insanity to its victim. With what complacency they look down from their thrones of conceited mental satiety upon the poor souls thirsting for knowledge, and whose dying utterance is "more sweetness and light."

We have such graduates in the temperance ranks, or rather on the retired list, who rake the dusty past to show their achievements when they were first on earth. Old musty sermons and lectures they dig from hoop-burst barrels, a yellow covered literature, proofs of having gone to seed, and fallen into dotage. Poor souls wrapped in the mummy cloth of stagnant ideas, and starved on the Gibeonitish crusts of the past, they stand like ghosts gibbering to each new born thought of hope, like ravens of evil omen, "It can't be done!" "I told you so!" Well, these chronic croakers are of use to warn that the Slough of Despond is near, and they have fallen into it. Beware of the Know-Alls.—Amendment.

BOGUS FINANCE.

NATIONAL BRIGANDAGE.

Ex-Secretary John Sherman boasts of the successful issue of Republican party financiering. "The tax on alcoholic drinks pays the interest on the National debt." But he omits to say that to pay that tax costs the people every year, at the lowest calculation,

700,000,000 dollars in cash.
1,000,000,000 dollars in damages.
100,000 American citizens destroyed and killed.
100,000 American citizens led into vice and crime.

Many thousands of people assassinated and butchered in the shambles of the grog shop—PRESIDENT GARFIELD one of the latest victims.

And the first and most privileged civilization of the world converted by the foreign grogshops into the chosen field of the most cruel and bloody crime, and the worst system of criminal violence, debauchery and lawless ruffianism that the world has ever produced.

The inhabitants of the iittle town of Clayton, N. J., a place of 1,500 souls, the other day enjoyed a temperance bonfire. Determined that no liquor should be sold in the town, the leading citizens formed a joint stock company, and bought out the hotel in the place, with its stock of liquors. The latter it was decided to publicly destroy, and the people were called to witness the funeral of King Alcohol. Speeches were made, the doxology sung, and the torch applied to the remains. The hotel will hereafter be kept as a temperance establishment. The value of the liquors destroyed was $261.

If the capitalist and employer would set the example of total abstinence, the laborer would soon be induced to follow his example, and instead of poverty and "strikes," there would be constant employment, peace and plenty.

Praying for the suppression of intemperance, and voting for individuals who not only advocate free whiskey, but get drunk themselves, would be considered by some as inconsistent and hypocritical.—Mirror.

A vote against prohibition of the liquor traffic is a vote to keep deadfalls set to entrap and destroy your neighbors' sons—and perhaps your own.—Nashville Advocate.

Rum shops make murderers, and apathetic Christians make rum shops.—Weekly Witness.

TOO RADICAL.

It is said that quite a number of very worthy people in common with a much larger number who do not deserve that name, have been either hurt or shocked or pained or outraged or enraged at what the RESCUE has said respecting the assassination of PresidentGarfield by the licensed rum system and the ultra barbarous medical fetish poisoning to which the sick man was subjected. Too radical, said one. too extreme, said another; going too far, a third; ultra temperance, a fourth; too radical, a tenth and a twentieth. But so far as heard from, not one of them has said "not true," nor attempted for a moment to assail the facts asserted!

It is open to any one to point out any untruth or misstatement or misunderstanding, but the old argument—that has been used to sweep back every wave and ripple of the temperance reform since the first and most liberal moderation pledge was suggested fifty years ago is all sufficient—too radical—and a parrot can be taught to repeat those words and have quite as intelligent a comprehension of their import as any of those who solemnly say them over.

It is open to any one to point out any error of statement made, but no such thing is claimed. It is too radical to tell the truth, that is all. It is a patent fact that a foul murder has been committed, and it is fashionable to attribute it to God, but it is difficult to understand how any one who believes in and either loves or fears God dares to commit such a blasphemy and so unjustly outrage the name of God.

The matter is as plain as the sunshine or the rainfal. The RESCUE has stated the truth which other papers and other people suppress, because it is too radical to tell the truth on this matter of most vital importance. Better blaspheme anything than tell the plain noonday patent truth about the national rumgod.

Whenever men engaged in any effort which seeks the welfare of their race, have been accused of being too radical by the world, it has been generally if not invariably the case that their radicalism interpreted was nothing worse than a repetition or a rational application of some article of the sermon on the mount or of the ten commandments. And when any one is shocked or pained or angry at the truth, it is not the truth nor its utterer that is to be pitied or corrected. It is a sick position that the truth offends or that has no better armor than the parrot shriek "too radical."

ISLAM.

From a late editorial of the Bulletin (Sept. 9th) upon the subject of the Moslem faith the reader may be led to believe that converts to Islam may enjoy privileges over and above what we grant gladly to every convict, having just served out his term in the penitentiary—or even the weaker sex, as far as political rights and suffrage are concerned. This is a great error. The convert to Islam simply attains to the privilege of a gentile dog in search for crumbs of compassion among the dignified, stealing grave and lying moslem egotist. For the average follower of Mohamed is the image of the policy of moslem rule. And look we beneath his stoical prayerful and meek outward covering, we have the Arab savage in all his native purity.

There is no need of a comparison of intrinsic merit of theChristian faith to Islam. Either has born fruit the nature of which defies distinction while both were in the keeping of a priestly theocracy intent but upon one object —supreme ecclesiastical dominion. The crusades tended to waken both, somewhat, to the lunacy of their aspiration. The extirmination policy—as a preliminary measure for inauguration of their respective empires—proved a mutual failure. Moslem came nearest being victor in a warfare which certainly was more consistent with the avowed policy of Islam than the spirit of the gospel of Christ.

Now let us regard the final result. Nominal Christianity this day rules the earth. With all its schisms and agonies and convulsions, it brought forth a spirit and a power which smiles at the thought of being thrashed into subjection of its ancient foe. In fact, Christian nations stand guard over this once terrible antagonist lest any one should do him hurt and divide his substance.

There is nothing like conscious weakness to convert a man to mild measures. Islam now comes to us a man of peace. He is happy; and desires the Christian dog to share his paradise. The possibility of being converted eventually to sausage meat need not trouble the proselyte for the present. The Mussulman has a long way to supremacy. Bid him welcome and treat him kindly. You know how it is yourself to be sent among the unbelieving.

We heard a melancholy story of the business tact of the Turk, which testifies that he is but little behind the most advanced thought in our midst. Forty thousand dollars were raised among Christians for relief of a famine stricken district in Asia minor, and entrusted for distribution to Turkish officials. Each, of course allowing himself a percentage(according to his rule of faith) the cost of distribution exceeded the collection by several thousand dollars,which our friend the Turk, however managed to raise by confiscation of property of his starved coreligionists and compatriots.

If true, the Koran has hardly suffered more violence than the gospel among some of its most popular expounders. Were vacant offices plentiful in Turkey, we might to advantage contribute several thousand professionals politicians toward filling such. None we know of but would be a shining light, in the way of rectitude for the most aspiring moslem to follow. And we wouldn't miss them.

Islam had its divisions and schisms also. But its spiritual womb was barren. The faith of Mohamed evidently had its day. While it presumes to have superseded Christ it never knew him. Else its history is but an enlarged edition of an early day occurrence—the disciple getting above the Master.

CAL. W. C. T. U.

We wish to call attention to the prize essay plan and to the medals and $1,000 in money given by Dr. R. H. McDonald to the W. C, T. U. for best essays on Intemperance and Tobacco in the public schools of San Francisco. The medals were made by Geo. C. Shreve & Co. Montgomery St., between Bush and Sutter, and are very elegant. One side is engraved handsomely, stating the object of the gift; the reverse has a woman with a sheaf of wheat in one hand, a wreath in the other and her feet planted on a double headed monster; engraved in a semicircle is "Temperance Triumphant," the medal is set in a heavy plain gold band. Money and medals are on exhibition in Geo. C. Shreve & Co's. window. We hope all the readers of the RESCUE who are in San Francisco, will take the trouble to look at this exhibit. It will well repay them. Below is the prize plan.

M. E. CONGDON, Secretary.

"TWIN EVILS, INTEMPERANCE AND TOBACCO."

THE R. H. MCDONALD PRIZE ESSAYS.

The fifteen handred dollars ($1,500) donated to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union by Dr. R. H. McDonald, is to be awarded in the following mauner:

One thousand dollars to be distributed among the public schools of San Francisco for prizes awarded for the best essays on the evil effects of Intemperance and Tobacco, in accordance with the conditions named below.

Five hundred dollars for prize essays on the same subject (Intemperance and Tobacco), for the Public Normal School at San Jose asd the Public High Schools of the State, outside of San Francisco.

This five hundred dollars will be awarded some time in May or June next.

After the work is finished in San Francisco, we shall send out circulars with a detailed statement in regard to the money and exact time of distribution of the State prizes.

I. The High School prizes in each school are, for each Senior Department ten dollars ($10), and for each Middle Department, and each Junior Department eight dollars ($8).

In the Grammar Schools in each school the scholars of the First and Second Grades compete together for one prize of eight dollars ($9).

Those of the Third and Fourth Grades compete together for one prize of five dollars ($5).

Those of the Fifth and Sixth Grades compete together for one prize of four dollars ($4).

In each Primary School containing the Fifth or Sixth Grades the pupils compete together for one prize of four dollars ($4). If the school has only one of these grades the prize is the same, four dollars ($4).

The prize for the Seventh and Eighth Grades of the Grammar and Primary Schools in each school is two dollars ($2) for each grade.

Special provisions will be made for all Primary Schools containing scholars of higher grade than the Fifth; also for the Evening and Ungraded Schools.

Three prizes, one of fifteen dollars ($15) and two of ten dollars (10) each will be awarded in the Normal Class at the Girl's High School Building.

After the prizes have been awarded, the R. H. McDonald twenty-five dollar ($25) goid medal will be awarded to the writer of the best composition, and fifteen dollar ($15) gold medal will be awarded to the writer of second best.

The prizes in the Seventh and Eighth Grades will be awarded for the best speech upon the subject of "Twin evils, Intemperance and Tobacco."

The Normal Class will not compete for the gold medals.

II. Teachers, parents and friends are requested to furnish all the facts possible, and to suggest sources from which the pupils may derive information. This instruction must be given before November 4th, and may form a part of the language instruction, and the essays be credited as a part of the monthly work.

III. Teachers and parents are encouraged to have the pupils write the essays in full at least twice, but no more, previons to the day of final writing, and to correct them; the pupils, if desired, assisting in the work of correction.

This is requested in order that the pupil may have an opportunity for properly arranging and expressing facts and ideas upon the subject, and for improving the manner of expression, through the suggestions of the teacher.

IV. The essays must all be written under the supervision of the class teacher on November 4th. No instruction on the subject is to be given on that day, and no pupil to be permitted to have in possessien any previously written essay, notes or copy, on to receive any assistance from any source whatever.

No manuscript when handed to the teacher,. shall in any way be changed or corrected. nor shall it exceed four pages of foolscap paper, nor contain less than one such page of written matter.

V. During the week following November 4th, all essays must be read in the hea.ing of the class, and the pupils may by vote or otherwise, assist the teachers to determine the best essays—not exceeding one in ten—and those selected are to be marked as worthy of special notice.

Those will be deemed the best which contain the most information segarding the evil effects of liquor and tobacco upon the brain and system.

All manrscripts must be sent to the office of the City Superintendent, on Novamber 14th. and each one must be designated by number, grade, teacher and school, omitting the name of the pupil.

VI. All competing essays shall be the property of the "Union," and any of them may be published in such form as the "Union" may select.

VII. The "Union" will assist each teacher, as far as possible, in obtaining information upon the subject.

VIII. The following schedule of topics may be used, to which others may be added if desired:

1. Brief historical sketch of each evil.
2. How do they affect the wealth of individuals and of nations ?
3. How are they enemies to health and cleanliness ?
4. How do they affect the intellect ?
5. How are they related to crime ?
6. How do they affect home-life ?
7. Illustrate the above as much as possible by facts from history and observation.

The above plan was presented to the Board of Education for modification or amendment. Permission has been granted by the Board to offer the prizes, and this plan adopted.

This will reach between 30,000 and 40,000 children in this city.

The Temperance Union desires that a similar plan be adopted in every town in the State. Very respectfully.

MRS. P. D. BROWNE, President.
MRS. M. E. CONGDON, Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM.

Dr. James G. Holland who was for seven or eight years chief editor of Scribner's magazine and gave it much of its elevated character, died last week. One of America's greatest and best men. Of rare and varied talent, turned always to good account, a copious, vigorous writer, a keen observer and impartial critic of passing events of church or state, he gave no uncertain sound, but was always pronounced and positive on every public question and on the side of morality, justice, patriotism and Christian civilization. Probably there is not an incident of his life or an article he has written, that will ever be quoted to dim the pure lustre of his character, or as other than befitting and worthy of a grand, noble, manly, honest, virtuous gentleman, patriot and philanthropist.

His memory claims a tender, affectionate devotion from all good men of this and other countries. His is the honor of having lived to make this country and this world better than they were, and while our language continues to be understood, James G. Holland will live as a teacher and exemplar of all that is good, honest, virtuous, beautiful and ennobling.

He was more than a hero, more than a prophet.

Died.—Oct. 3, 1881 at Rough and Ready, Mary Augusta Melbourne aged 20 years. She was an active efficient member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 387 I. O. G. T. a devoted earnest friend of temperance and a highly esteemed member of society. The lodge passed resolutions of special love and affection for their deceased sister and duly honor and reverence her memory.

WOODLAND.—Chrysopolis Lodge of Woodland on the 12th instant, passed resolutions of respect to the memory of Sister Retta J. Burton, one of its brightest members and truest friends, whose life and daily walk and conversation, were an example for all Good Templars to emulate.

CRYSTAL LODGE S. F. passed memorial resolutions on the 26 ult on the death of President Garfield and in place of the usual Good of the Order engaged in prayer for the bereaved widow and orphans.

A PUBLIC meeting will be held every day from 6 A. M. till 9 P. M. during the months of October, November, and December, at the tables of the W. C. T. U. Coffee House 629 Sacramento St. A good lunch will exercise a very inspiring influence. Admission free but a small fee taken on going out.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Revolution Temperance Literature. Just opened a new Temperance Publishing House. New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been.

Class Papers.—Instead of tracts or pamphlets, in more readable form and yet cheaper papers each for a special class of readers or work. 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The S. S. Superintendent. 7. The S. S. Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The Common People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18 Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially designed. Each published monthly, and though small in size contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book. The greatest need in temperance work is scattering temperance literature. The greatest difficulty, doing it systematically, thoroughly and yet cheaply. For Five Cents we will address, wrap and mail singly, direct to individual, regularly each month for a year, any one of the above named temperance papers, provided that you do not order papers sent to less than five persons at anyone time—or, at least, that your order comes to 25 cents.

How it Works.—1st. It is only a nickel. Subscriptions are never refused; you have only to ask. As many subscriptions can be taken in a day as you can see persons. Societies or individuals can look after this work. 2d. Fifty cents sends a paper every month for a year to ten different persons, so many will subscribe both for themselves and for friends. 3d. Societies can not adopt a better plan of thorough distribution of temperance literature than to set apart a fund to send one or more of our 5c. papers to each individual in the town. Thus for $5.00 they can reach 100 persons each month for a year, or fifty persons every two weeks, or twenty-five persons every week. See dates of mailing.

Dates of Mailing.—Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 17 and 18, first week of month; Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, second week; Nos. 9, 10, 11 and 12, third week: Nos. 13, 14, 15 and 16, fourth week. Subscriptions received up to the 25th, beginning with month in which order is sent.

So Cheap.—The cost of addressing wrappers and wrapping in the usual way, to say nothing of postage, is alone more than we ask for the papers. A year's issue contains over 300 pages of the W. C. T. Union leaflets, so that at 20c. a year (instead of 5c.) they would be cheaper than these. To mail tracts and leaflets costs the individual 1c. per copy. This would be 12c. per year, or 7c. more than we charge for the papers, mailing, postage, and all.

An Offer.—We will send our Family Pledge Roll, (price 25c.) highly ornamental design, printed in colors, on fine paper, large size for framing, free to any one sending us 50 cents and 9 subscriptions for our 5c. papers.

Other Ways of Using.—We provide hooks, with card attached to each so as to show above it, bearing the words, TAKE ONE—cost in lots of five or more, 6c. each, postpaid. The "class papers" for distribution in this way are furnished at 25c. per 100 copies. Several hooks may be put up in a place, each for a special paper, the hooks refilled with papers from week to week, a later issue being added each month. Papers come ready punched for use on the hooks.

Specimen Papers.—We will send one each of all the above papers—18 papers in all—on receipt of 10 cents.

2c. Story Books.—We are putting up choicest and most thrilling and telling of 75c. to $1.50 temperance story books in large newspaper form, one whole book in a paper, illustrated on first page, for 2c. a paper when bought in lots of 25 or more. One issued each month. Three are now ready. Sample of all three for 10c.

This is a new force, people will read for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or can be distributed gratuitously in various ways.

Save the Children from Rum. We can seldom save the drunkard or stop the moderate drinker; but we can pledge the children, and follow up the pledge with such teachings that they will never break their pledge. Reports from Great Britain United Kingdom Band of Hope Union, go to show that ninety per cent. remain true to pledge—while double the number of Sunday-school pupils join the church from schools having Bands. Best of all, the work is not opposed, parents seldom object, while many who drink seem very glad to have their children join a Band of Hope. No one can cry "oppression" or "after your votes," while it reacts on older people with even greater force than direct work, for the books, paper, etc., go into the homes, and are read by the parents—the lessons too are talked over, and every one comes out to the Band concerts to hear their own little ones sing and talk temperance. Plan of running is like the simplest plan of running a Sunday-school—requisites most complete, practical, beautiful and cheap. A library of $1 00 to $ 50 books at 5c. each; two weekly papers each at 10c. a year; a quarterly lesson system, in two grades; quarterlies and song book combined, costing but 2c. a quarter; certificates, pledge rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc, etc.—all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all expenses. Specimen of everything necessary for complete outfit for Band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving methods of running Bands either with or without teachers, etc, sent free.

Endorsed. From Frances E. Willard, Prest. Nat. W. C. T. U.: "When Mr. Cook takes up the opening of the ammunition for our teetotal army, how much more space the rim of a dime will cover than is possible now; may the day hasten!" Mary C. Johnson, Sec. Nat. W. C. T. U.: "I wish you the highest success, and congratulate the temperance forces on the prospect that an energetic, pushing first-class publisher is likely to take up the literature this great field requires." From Mrs. Fannie D. B. Chase, Prest. Pennsylvania State W. C. T. U.: "I am rejoiced that you are taking up temperance work, and believe that the cause will be greatly advanced by your energy and systematic work." From Eli Johnson, Sec., New York State Temperance Society: "I am ready to do anything in my power to aid you in your new enterprise." From W. H. Wharton, Grand Scribe, Indiana Sons of Temperance: "Best wishes for the success of your undertaking." From A. H. Bowen, Grand Worthy Recorder Nebraska Templars of Honor: "Shall be glad to be of any assistance in my power to help you in this branch of your work." From W. W. Satterlee, Sec. Minnesota State Temperance Union: "I admire your plans and pluck, and will do what I can to help you." From H. W. Adams, Pres. of "The Morning and Day of Reform": "While I deprecate the fact that so many unqualified people rush into the business of supplying the world with temperance literature, your doing so is quite another matter, and I feel as a friend of the cause I ought to give you a hearty welcome."

An Appeal. We wish to reach every temperance worker in the land, man or women, with our samples, catalogue, etc. We can do nothing if we can not reach the people. Will not every one send us names of workers? It only costs a postal card and a few minutes time.

An Offer. We will send free and postpaid a copy of our Family Pledge Roll to every one who will send us names and addresses of six or more temperance workers, taking pains to select those who are most interested and active. We are getting out many other publications besides those advertised above. General circular, etc., free. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison Street, Chicago.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE.

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.—A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c.
Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c.
This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c ; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c
This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.
It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages ; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,
54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞ To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

Band of Hope organized on the 23rd at Black's Station, by Wm. Crowhurst; J. S. Rollins, Supt.

Clipper Gap Lodge is to be organized Monday eve next, so says Bro. J. C. Hawver, who is always disturbing the peace in that way somewhere. 23 victims he has already secured.

With this number ends the eighteenth volume and first year of its present form. Next week will be the first of the RESCUE'S nineteenth year. It is hoped that all who read this will see out in health and happiness the next and many succeeding volumes, and see what somebody will have to say at the close of each year of the contest against evil. It may be proper to state that 3360 copies are now printed and circulated weekly.

MR. HUGH OWEN of Wales, a gentleman who has been a very active promoter of improvements in the system of education, and has been for many years treasurer of the National Temperance League, has been recently reccommended by Mr. Gladstone to be knighted by the Queen. When he is made a Knight, the order ef Knighthood will be a more honorable one than it was before.

PERFECTLY NATURAL.—Ten different attempts were lately made in one night to burn fields and barns in Mendocino county.—Hanford Journal.

And with grogshops all over the State by hundreds and thousands, training men to be murderers, thieves and incendiaries, it is a wonder we dont have ten attempts at arson and murder every night, in every county. It seems as if there are as many crimes committed in California per hundred persons as there are per thousand in the very worst heathen countries of the world.

Thursday the 20th, Valley Lodge S. F. enjoyed a fraternal visit from International and Headlight Lodges. Over 200 Good Templars assembled in the new hall of Valley Lodge, witnessed the initiation of five candidates, and were treated to a fine program of intellectual and more material enjoyment.

This system of fraternal visits in connnection with open meetings is one calculated to make a good impression upon the public and add numerical and intellectual force to onr lodges. A close attention to this mode of spreading the order, thruout the coming winter would produce grand results. International Lodge had 40 visitors present and proposes to continue its open lodge exercises punctually.

THE RESCUE may denounce cheap john and the Amendment may celebrate his virtues in verse but he has scored a recent victory. The grand old State of Ohio in 1869 had 27.329 Good Templars, when cheap john began his war on the degrees and regalia and per capita tax; it voted for a prohibitory amendment to a new constitution about 1872 by an immense majority: it had a splendid prohibitory paper then too. But the other, day the prohibition ticket was nowhere and the membership of the G. L. by last report 2653 has not been enough to report for the past two years. Score 1 big State for cheap john. Our R. W. G. L. spent a great deal of energy and money in missionary work in England to fight down Good Templars there, but it never spent a cent of either to fight cheap john while in a few years he was slautering 25000 Good Templars.

THE LINCOLN TRIBUNE (Neb.) seems to have taken the place of the Western World as organ of the I. O. G. T. and spokesman for the cause of temperance. It is published at $1. a year and is a good wholesome working journal that has its business clothes on all over. It states that the G. W. C. T. Bro. Finch, whose speech at Lake Bluff is now being given in sections in the RESCUE, has provided funds from his own pocket, to send the Tribune free to every Baptist and Congregationalist minister in the State for 6 months. And the paper is offered free for 6 months to all pastors in active work in Neb.

With a good prohibition journal properly sustained, an executive who go in for constant vigorous work, a consistent per capita tax and revenue system, and a studious zealous avoidance of the friendly advances of cheap john, Nebraska is going to be another State which shall prove that our Order is not by any means an incapable or insufficient leader in the temperance warfare; that all the way right up to the final breach and crowning assault of victory, it can be trusted if properly handled.

POWER OF APPETITE.—Once under the power of this awful thirst the man is bound to go on; and if the foaming glass were on the other side of perdition, he would wade thru the fires of hell to get it. A young man in prison had such a strong thirst for intoxicating liquors that he cut his hand off at the wrist, called for a bowl of brandy in order to stop the bleeding, thrust his wrist into the bowl, and then drank the contents.

Stand not when the thirst is on him, between a man and his cups. Clear the track for him. Away with the children; he would tread their life out. Away with the wife; he would dash her to death. Away with the cross; he would run it down. Away with the Bible; he would tear it up for the winds. Away with heaven; he considers it worthless as a straw. "Give me the drink! Give it to me! Tho hands of blood pass up the cup, and the soul trembles over the pit—the drink? give it to me! Tho it be pale with tears; tho the froth of everlasting anguish float on the foam—give it to me! I drink to my wife's woe; to my children's rags; to my eternal banishment from God and hope and heaven! Give it to me! the drink."—T. De Witt Talmage, N. T. Society.

IF we shall learn with positive certainty that Guiteau was really insane when he committed that consistently planned and long premeditated crime, and that he is therefore to be acquitted of punishment, it will occur to some of us that possibly Dr. Crosby, Dr. Bacon, Dr. Burnett, the Wine Dealers Gazette and some reverend eastern editors who fight the temperance reform, ought to be admitted to an equally charitable construction.

"Does it, after all, pay to be honest ?" a disappointed young man writes. No my son, not if you're honest for pay, it doesn't. Not if you are honest merely because you think it will pay; not if you are honest because you are afraid to be a rogue indeed; my dear, it does not pay to be honest that way. If you cant be honest because you hate a lie, and scorn a mean action, if you cant be honest from principle, be a rascal; that's what you are intended for, and you'll probably succeed at it. But you can't make anybody believe in honesty that is bought and sold like merchandise.—Burlington Hawkeye.

FIVE or six dollars a month. The following colloquy passed a few days ago, between a working man, shabbily dressed, and a very worthy citizen of Danish birth, who keeps a coffee restaurant in San Francisco.

Dane—"Five or six dollars a month did you say?"

W.—"Yes, I have to spend about that in the saloons, to amuse myself and be like other people."

Dane—"Well since I have been in this business, my saloon bill has been about the same; forty dollars in eight months. I've kept account of it.

W.—"Why I did not suppose you went to saloons much."

Dane—"I never go there at all, I never drink their or any other liquor; but there are a great many people every week, come here and after getting a meal, say to me, "I'll call and pay for this in a day or two," and they never come back. They are the men who spend five or six dollars a month in saloons, and don't pay for what thy eat."

BRAND NEW FACTS.—The Wine Dealers Gazette assails Dr. Ezra Hunt's position that tobacco and whisky are enemies to health and long life and says the "fully established statistics of our country" declare the fact that in "Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina, the original tobacco States, the inhabitants are longer lived than in any other state of our Union." The Gazette indubitably proves the truth of its own assertion by declaring that Dr. Ezra Hunt and people of his opinion are pharisees and fanatics and blind blathering pragmatical fools. The whisky advocates are very familiar with the use of powerful weapons: they manufacture any kind of history or statistics and have at easy command a plentiful stock of vile epithets to shower on honest peopie.

But the Gazette comes out in a singular strain when it says:

"The State Fair passed off with great satisfaction to the gamblers and horse-racers. Their sway was said to be complete, which placed the rest of the people on a huge disgust."

It ought not to speak disrespectfully of its friends and patrons the gamblers.

APPEAL OF TEMPERANCE TO CHRISTENDOM.

"We are in perfect accord with Mr. Moody, for we are fully convinced that drunkenness cannot be effectually and finally stopped until the voice of the Church, yea, of every Christian Church as well as that of science is raised against it.—Temperance Record

O object of the grace of God,
O purchased by the blood of Christ,
Be not by Satan's arts enticed
To lay upon thyself the rod.

Church:

Why this remonstrance on thy part?
Do not I hate each hateful thing?
Do not I glorify my king,
And bind his mandates to my heart?

Temperance:

I charge thee, then, by this thy plea
Of faithfulness all free from stain,
Treat not my suit with cold disdain.
For it concerns thee vitally,
"Do I not hate each hateful thing?"
Thus thou: Yet hear me. A foul foe
Has crept into thy bosom; lo,
Cherished by thee, it owns a sting,
The treacherous foe—its name to tell—
Is ALCOHOL, that "hateful thing,"
Potent its famous dupes to fling
Down headlong to the blackest hell.
"Do not I glorify my King?"
"So thou; such doubtless, is thy trust.
Then, in the name of all that's just,
Thy substance to His treasury bring,
Nor be a comfort to the host
Of worshippers at Bacchus' shrine,
Who, bibulous of maddening wine,
Their god in furious bumpers toast.
The money wasted thus in drink—
Nay, worse than wasted—would uplift
With education's priceless gift
The minds of those who ruined sink;
Would orphanages rear; would raise,
To beautify and bless the land,
The cottage neat and mansion grand.
The structure meet for solemn praise;
Would build asylums for the blind,
Asylums for the deaf and dumb;
And tidings bear to all mankind
Of bliss too great for man to sum.
I charge thee then, O bride elect,
By thy true love to Christ thy Head,
Be not—ah gross delusion!—led,
Thy bane to choose, and me reject,
Are we not one in steadfast aim
To banish all that dares defile;
To curb oppression mean and vile;
The moral wastes of earth reclaim?
I grant thy high commission far
Surpasses mine—thy servant I—
Yet in "the ointment" a "dead fly"
Will grievously the perfume mar.
Such thy predicament this day;
Thy ointment that should smell of grace,
Offends the nostrils, and of base
Admixture tells. O, put away
Each unclean thing! Lukewarmness flee,
Sloth, pride, presumption, love of dress,
With every species of excess
Savoring of Gentile vanity—
All these put off, and Oh; put on
More of the strength of quenchless love;
The martyr spirit from above,
Displayed by thee in ages gone.
So shall thy firmly planted feet,
With gospel preparation shod,
Shine on the mountains of thy God;
And redolent of odors sweet
Shall then thy bridal garments be,
While thy anointed lips proclaim
The infinitely worthy Name
"Adore and crown Him, this is He."

JOHN B. FINCH'S SPEECH.

"INDICTMENT OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC."—AT LAKE BLUFF, ILL., AUG. 27, 1881.

[National Liberator.]

See again how it meets the issues.—It dare not meet them like an honest business.

In Kansas I had the pleasure of going over the state to help in the prohibition fight. I went down into the Bourbon part of the state; strange as it may seem to some of you, my political proclivities are that way; I never stood on a platform during that campaign that I did not ask the liquor men to come to the platform and discuss the question with us. I said if temperance men are wrong, get your ablest men and bring them here upon the platform, prove us wrong and you have got us beaten. Did they come? I was returning to my home in Lincoln from Atchison, Kansas, when a gentleman from Chicago by the name of Hass came along and sat down beside me. After shaking hands he said, "Vel, Finch, what are you down here for?" I said I had been doing a little work. "Vat kind of work?" Persuading the people to pass the Prohibition amendment. "Do you think you pass him?" No, I dont think so. "Vat you mean?" I know it will be passed, said I. He looked at me and said, "Vel, Finch, you was a pretty smart fellow about some dings, but you are a dam vool about that." After he had finished laughing at his own wit, I said to him: "Well, now, Mr. Hass, you think I am a friend of yours, and I think I am in some respects, let me advise you as a friend, if you have got any money now, put it where you can keep it, for before 20 years the temperance men will have abolished the liquor traffic in every state north of Mason and Dixon's line." He laughed and said, "you cant pass that." I said, "why?" He said, "we have got $150,000 and we will put it into this fight; it is here to be put in." I said, "Bless the Lord for that." He said, "vat you mean?" and I said to him: "I am glad you have got the man in you to make a square up-and down fight." "Vat you mean by a square up and down fight?" said he. "You say we are fools and what we are talking is nonsense. Do you think the people of this state are fools?" He said, "No." "You would be perfectly willing to let them try a case in which you had money involved?" He said, "yes." "If, said I, "we are all wrong why dont you hire the ablest lawyers, ministers, the best and purest women in this land, send them to the platform with us and let them convince the people that we are wrong, let them show the people we are fools and you have dug the grave for this temperance nonsense so deep that a grave robber would not waste the time in hunting for it. Send a man to meet me to-morrow night, send a good one.' "No," he said, in language I will not imitate. "We have got a better way than that. The people up in the frontier counties are starving"—and I am acquainted with the whole frontier of this country and know something of the terrible suffering of those who are trying to make the American desert blossom like the rose—"we have got money enough to divide up and put $10,000 in every county in Kansas. Do you think you can talk against that?" He said that, ladies and gentlemen, the old criminal (I aint referring to the man, to his business)! His only defense upon the trial of the case before the jury of the people was his power to corrupt men and buy them when they were starving, not daring to honestly meet an issue, not daring to make an honest fight; simply boasting of his power to corrupt and debase men.

At Lincoln last winter at the opening of our fight for the prohibitory law, Mr. S. H King formulated an indictment and published a circular addressed to the President of the Merchants and Traders' Union —what does that mean? It means drunkard makers. Last spring a convention of liquor dealers was called, a committee was appointed to formulate a plan of organization. During the time the committee was out a member got up and moved that the organization be called the Liquor Dealers Alliance of Nebraska. One liquor dealer said it would kill it dead to call it that.

The matter was referred to the committee, and the committee reported in favor of calling it the "Merchants' and Traders' Union." Ashamed to own it, or, rather, wishing at least that the child should come out in decent clothes, although its name would make it illegitimate. So at the present time in Nebraska we have no liquor association—we have the Merchants and Traders Union. Mr. King addressed a letter to the President of this association, in which he said, the temperance leaders wish to try the case squarely before the people. They will hire the halls, pay every expense connected with the meeting excepting the expenses of your speakers, if you will send them and try this question with ours."

The temperance men waited three weeks and the drunkard makers made no reply. Then Mr. King offered to pay the expenses of their speakers (all but their whisky bills) if they would furnish them to discuss the question. I met the liquor leader some weeks after this, and shook hands with him. (I always shake hands with these men and always speak to them. it is fun to see them wiggle.) I said as he tried to go by, "when are you going to accept that offer of Mr. King's, when are you going to send a man to discuss this before the people?" Turning round to me with a bitter oath he said, "you dont think I am a fool, do you? I would rather give $20,000 to prevent you from submitting the quesaion to the people than to try to beat you, if you succeed in submitting it." They came to Lincoln, put their money into the banks, and they found men in the legislature who were dishonest enough to accept their money. Drunkard making had twenty-eight votes, Prohibition forty-nine. Prohibition needed fifty one. That is the way, ladies and gentlemen, this criminal traffic meets the issues, by corrupting men, buying men, and destroying the very foundation of the American system of government, and the purity of the individual voter. Did you ever hear of a liquor dealer coming on a platform to defend his business on its merits? Two years ago the editor of the Omaha Herald, a genial, courteous gentleman came to Lincoln to talk in favor of high license. His talk occupied the first two hours, and I talked a half an hour in reply. In opening his argument he said: "Ladies and gentlemen of Nebraska, I dont come to you to tell you that intemperance is the curse of the nation, that it is sapping and undermining our social, civil and political institutions." That was his starting point, from which he went on to say that it was bad, all bad, not a good thing in it; but it could not be prohibited; people would sell, and it was better to regulate and restrain it and get a little money out of it. "You cant stop a man from stealing a horse, so you had better license him to steal if he will divide up the proceeds with the city," is the statement boiled down. A few weeks later Judge Isaac Heskel in the Academy of music in Omaha, took the license side, and I the prohibition side of the question. He said at the beginning: "I despise drunkards, I hate drunkenness! It is the curse of this country." He went on to say, people always have drank; they always will drink. You cannot prohibit it; you had better license it and regulate it and get some money out of it. The church cannot exterminate the devil, so it had better go in partnership with him and divide up the souls of men, is the argument.

In Wisconsin one time while working there, a gentleman by the name of Wooster, an attorney, was discussing the license question. He said, "I believe just as honestly as my friend Finch does, that alcoholic liquor is a damnable beverage." Then he went on to say that people had always drank and always would drink. During my reply I said if alcoholic liquor was a damnable beverage, then it follows that the traffic in a damnable beverage must be a damnable traffic, and a man who will advocate a damnable traffic in a damnable beverage must be—and there I left the audience to infer, and the man became angry.

BROUGHT LOW THROUGH DRINK.

To the Editor of the Temperance Record.

DEAR SIR,—A friend and correspondent of mine, a son of a clergyman in England, but now living at a large store in Chicago, has sent me an account of a few of the 1,200 hands working in their store. He, my friend, is now the paymaster and timekeeper, and knows them all. Their hours of hard work are twelve a day all seasons. You may deem the account useful for the Record, if only to show "education" does not effect the change or prevent the wrong which the use of alcoholic drink too often entails. My friend and five others have taken and kept the total abstinence pledge all the past very severe winter. I give the following from his letter.

I am, dear Sir, faithfully yours.
Reigate. W.

"Did I ever tell you the curious lot we have working in this 'packing store, 'from ye old countree.' There are three parsons, two doctors, three landed proprietors—who ran through £3,000 a year at home—one general, two captains, two bank clerks, and about ten clergymen's sons and young doctors (all gentlemen), working in our different places, not offices, and nearly all of them here thru drink. I have to pay them weekly. and it is a sorrowful sight for me to see as an Englishman. If such be some of the results of drinking 'the Christian's drinks,' I am thankful I am out of it altogether."

MORE LIGHT.

Mr. Moody tells of a blind beggar sitting by the sidewalk on a dark night with a bright lantern by his side. Whereat a passerby was so puzzled, that he had to turn back with—"What in the world do you keep a lantern burning for? You can't see!" "So folks won't stumble over me," was the reply. We should keep our lights brightly burning for others' sake as well as for the good of being "in the light" ourselves.—Happy Pilgrim.

THE writer of an anonymous letter askes if it is fair to suppress it and make comments on a part of it. He is informed that an anonymous communication has no rights whatever. He was very silly to send one, and more silly and stupid to write a cowardly impertinence afterward; all such things go into the waste basket as soon as a glance reveals the first line of their character. No time to waste with them.

We wish to call attention to the prize essay plan and to the medals and $1,000 in money given by Dr. R. H. McDonald to the W. C, T. U. for best essays on Intemperance and Tobacco in the public schools of San Francisco. The medals were made by Geo. C. Shreve & Co. Montgomery St., between Bush and Sutter, and are very elegant. One side is engraved handsomely, stating the object of the gift; the reverse has a woman with a sheaf of whcat in one hand, a wreath in the other and her feet planted on a double headed monster; engraved in a semicircle is "Temperance Triumphant," the medal is set in a heavy plain gold band. Money and medals are on exhibition in Geo. C. Shreve & Co's. window. We hope all the readers of the RESCUE who are in San Francisco, will take the trouble to look at this exhibit. It will well repay them.

A TRUE TEMPERANCE STORY.

The little circumstance which I have to relate occurred in the town of A—— and the facts can all be vouched for.

Some little time ago I was purchasing some articles in a store situated here in our own little mining town, when a very pleasant looking man came in and inquired for some red, white and blue striped ribbon, explaining it was for a little girl "whom he loved very much."

He could not take her to see the fourth of July procession, so he had promised her this ribbon to dress her little doll, and this with some little sweetmeats was to constitute her "fourth."

The merchant told him he did not have the ribbon. Real regret was written upon that man's face. He hesitated, and finally made inquiry for some other little thing he knew would please her; but was again disappointed. This man was evidently poor and obliged to trade at this one place.

He walked to the door and hesitated, partly turned and hesitated again, finally turned and came back and whispered something to the store-keeper, who was all smiles in a minute. He assured him that he always kept plenty of that. They both went into the cellar and got a drink of liquor. Many drinks in a short time.

That man was transformed into a wild man; his eyes glared, he looked fierce. Oh, how my heart ached for that little girl in her lonely home in that ravine. I had an errand elsewhere and returned in about an hour. That man sat on a bench outside the door, his team still standing in the street.

The little one at home waiting, waiting, had counted the hours all day. It was dark when I left him, and she still waiting for the papa whom she had so much faith in. Can you imagine her grief and disappointment?

A short time before this the mother was laid to rest in one of our churchyards. Taken ill, she requested her husband to get her the doctor. Instead he got drunk, was gone all day and night. He did not mean to be unkind, he assured us. The next day when he returned home, what a sight met his eyes. The wife whom he ought to have cherished was dead, and his little girl asleep by the side of her mother, with one little arm around her mother's neck. Mamie, frightened by her mother's anguish and anxiety had been coaxed to climb up beside her and say her prayers, and try to go to sleep, and during that sleep the mother's life ebbed away, and her soul went to him who has promised the "oil of joy for mourning. Where they shall never hunger nor thirst any more. For the Lamb shall feed them and lead them unto living fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

Can we need any stronger lesson than this to show the effects of wine drinking? For that is just where this man began, and this is where the effects are showing themselves.

Dear Savior receive and fold to thy breast
This trembling soul so weary, oppressed;
In that blessed land where sin cannot come
There may she find a much happier home.

No marble will tell how suffered and died
Of want and neglect, the wine drinker's bride,
But each sigh and each tear, each prayer and moan
In heaven was heard, to Jesus is known.

"JINTLEMANLY LADIES,"

In a railroad car the seats were all full except one, which was occupied by a pleasant-looking Irishman, and at one of the stations a couple of evidently well-bred and intelligent young ladies came in to procure seats. Seeing none vacant, they were about to go into the next car, when Patrick arose hastily and offered them his seat with evident pleasure.

"But you will have no seat for yourself," responded one of the young ladies, with a smile, hesitating, with true politeness, to accept it.

"Niver mind that !" said the gallant Hibernian; "I'd ride upon a cow-catcher to New York any time for a smile from such jintlemanly ladies !"

And he retired hastily into the next car amid the cheers of his fellow-passengers.—Exch.

Some of our jintlemanly ladies and gentlemen too might learn a lesson of politeness and true gentility from a poor illiterate Irishman. Tell us pray, did you ever see one of them in a crowded car, stick a valise and a paper parcel and a basket and a spare coat on the empty seat beside him and let men and women stand in the aisle vainly seeking a seat ?. We are as polite a people in the main as any other, and yet it seems as if there is more hoggish selfishness and brutality in this very matter practiced in California than any where else. To prevent a clean decent person from occupying a seat to which he is justly entitled is an act which more than almost any ordinary act of impropriety, advertizes that the title lady or gentleman dont apply to its very mean, very selfish, very ignorant perpetrator. It is doubtful whether any Irishman was ever low enough to do such a thing.

WHAT IS WINE MADE OF?

As wine merchants are petitioning the government to put a stop to the manufacture of artificial wines, the petitioners asserting that not one-third of the wine used in Paris is made of grapes. The many Americans who turn up their noses at the juice of our own grapes will naturally wonder what spurious French wines are made of. An exchange says that there are a number of large factories near Paris in which wines are made from rotten apples, damaged dried fruit of any kind, beets and spoiled molasses. But there is not enough of these materials to make as much wine as is required by foreign trade. Turnip juice has been worked over into wine and Bmerican cider is the basis of millions of bottles of champagne, but good apples and turnips are too costly to be wasted on cheap wines, such as most Americans buy. Some of the temperance societies might find the returns they are after by satisfying public curiosity about what wines are made of.—N. Y. Herald.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The RESCUE, in its new form and dress, hopes in this eighteenth year of publication and henceforth, to acquire a much increased prosperity; and presents a claim to be a valuable advertising medium.

It is read by the most sober and well conducted people all over the State; goes to every minister of the gospel in the State, and to a class altogether whose sobriety and morality indicate superior thrift and good financial standing.

It ought then to be a valuable agency to the advertiser as introducing him to a capable and upright class of customers, valuable to the customer as directing him to honest and

RELIABLE DEALERS,

For no other can buy an ad. in the RESCUE at any price : and it is the interest of the reader to make the paper a success, so that with a consistent patronage its price of subscription may be reduced.

An ad. in the RESCUE will be good for what it says every time. No fraud or matter of at all questionable propriety or probity can hire this paper for a mouthpiece; no ad. will be received unless the publisher is satisfied of its perfect good faith and character.

This rule will be adhered to, if the paper should not realize fifty cents of advertising patronage during the next three years.

BOGUS FINANCE.

NATIONAL BRIGANDAGE.

Ex-Secretary John Sherman boasts of the successful issue of Republican party financiering. "The tax on alcoholic drinks pays the interest on the National debt." But he omits to say that to pay that tax costs the people every year, at the lowest calculation,

700,000,000 dollars in cash.
1,000,000,000 dollars in damages.
100,000 American citizens destroyed and killed.
100,000 American citizens led into vice and crime.

Many thousands of people assassinated and butchered in the shambles of the grog shop—PRESIDENT GARFIELD one of the latest victims.

And the first and most privileged civilization of the world converted by the foreign grogshops into the chosen field of the most cruel and bloody crime, and the worst system of criminal violence, debauchery and lawless ruffianism that the world has ever produced.

A young man of strict habits and good education, and having every endorsement required, desires a situation in a mercantile establishment as assistant book-keeper, accountant or salesman. Apply to C., RESCUE Office.

THE G. W. SECRETARY AND TREASURER.—The following is an extract from the Finance Committee's report presented to the recent session of our Grand Lodge.

Another year's labors have been performed; another annual examination of six days duration, and of a most searching character, has been completed; after which your Finance Committee, with pleasure, submit the following report:

On Wednesday, September 28th, your committee commenced their examination of the financial transactions of the year in the office of our Grand Worthy Secretary.

This has revealed the largest amount of financial work ever performed by the G. W. S. of this Grand Lodge in any one year of the history of the I. O. G. T. of California; consequent upon our prosperity continually increasing during the past fiscal year. For instance, we find upon the various books of the G. W. S, the following

ENTRIES:

Entries on blotters	6 324
Entries on cash book	5 409
Debit entries on journal	2 715
Credit entries on journal	3 607
Debit entries on ledger	2 715
Credit entries on ledger	3 609
Total entries on all books	24 281
Ledger accounts	399

Each item of cash received has been traced from the blotter through the journal, cash book and ledger. Its entries in the various books have been compared one with another, and the footings verified and compared with the report of the G. W. S.

Each item of expenditure has been traced from its bill and voucher through the stub warrant, blotter, journal, cash book, ledger and report of G. W. S. These, also, have been compared each with the other, and their footings verified.

In all this work we have not found a single error in the cash transactions. One clerical error appears in the drawing of Warrant No. 62, for $177, which the stub of warrant, journal, cash book, ledger and report show should have been $177.60. There appear also in the posting up of supplies against lodges, a few clerical errors, which have been corrected on the ledger, and which are set forth in our lists of lodges having debits and credits.

The marked financial capacity and superior financial ability of our Grand Worthy Secretary have been universally recognized by our own and other Grand Lodges of the I. O. G. T. They, together with his manly character, have elevated a most worthy brother to the highest pinnacle of Good Templary, and have given to the Grand Lodge of California Bro. George B. Katzenstein, Right Worthy Grand Templar.

GRAND WORTHY TREASURER.

After the examination of the G. W. S.'s office, your Committee repaired to Vallejo, where we continued our investigations at the G. W. T.'s office. We here compared his stubs of receipts for moneys received, his book and report, with the G. W. S.'s books and report, and also the warrants paid and his book and report with the books and report of the G. W. S. These we found to technically agree with each other, excepting, as previously mentioned, a clerical error in Warrant No. 62.

Our G. W. T., Dr. I. S. Halsey, needs no commendation or endorsement at our hands. His books and report exhibit the usual care and accuracy for which he is so well known to the members of this Grand Body.

A Good Speech.—During the recent session of the Grand Lodge of California, Bro. Peter Powers, colored representative from Rising Star colored Lodge, No 404, Chico, addressed the Grand Lodge, and among other things said the following, which is from the journal of proceedings, and was phonographically reported by Bro. Julius Lyons, G. W. A. S. ; said Bro. Powers; * * *

"I would say, further, that we have been entirely surprised at the cordial welcome that we have received from the hands of our white brothers and sisters. There are two other Lodges in the town of Chico, and I would say to-night, we have never had a single meeting since we have been organized there, without there being present nearly as many white brethren and sisters as of our own race, and we are received in their Lodges just as they are received in ours. [Applause.]

If one of you to-night were in Chico, where that Lodge is at work, in all probability you would not know whether it was a white or colored Lodge—not from the looks of the people in it. They meet all together there in one hall on Thursday night, on Friday night in another hall, and on Saturday night in another. So that we claim we are Good Templars, working for a great, and noble, and glorious cause; and we do hope that the Grand Lecturers in the State of California will urge more particularly upon my people the necessity of taking hold of this work, and showing them that they are welcome. [Applause.]

I am afraid you will be like the gentlemen said the little boy was—he was afraid the old deacon would talk too much, so when the deacon commenced with the remark "Brethren, what shall I say?" the boy suggested he say "Amen," and sit down. [Laughter]

We have a little Lodge there, numbering 25, at the present time; we also have a Band of Hope, numbering 28, and we feel encouraged to go forward; and, although we have come to you at this late day in your work, we hope we will be able to do you good, as we have on other occasions. [Applause.]

I remember, when a brother was speaking last night, he drew an occurrence to my mind: that when he went into the army there were some colored boys came forward and wanted to enlist, and he said they were denied, and told that this was "a white man's government," and this was "a white man's war." But, by and by, after having received and felt the effects of a Minie ball, then he said that he was willing to receive them. Now, brethren, we came to you in that conflict when your armies were staggering and driven from almost every battle field. Then it was the colored man came to you. They did not come simply for the purpose of coming, but they came for the purpose of work, and they did work. I remember, at the time that the 54th Massachusetts regiment won the first battle that they went to, at Port Hudson, on the Mississippi River. When the order was given for them to go forward, they never stopped until they planted their colors on the breast-works of the enemy. [Applause.]

Now, sir, we have enlisted in this army of Good Templars: we have enlisted to fight the enemy of the human race, which is King Alcohol; and we believe, from the way that you are marshaling your forces, that it wont be long until you will be able to march forward with the six thousand colored votes of California at your back, and at the polls be able to bury King Alcohol face downward, never to rise any more. [Applause.]

Will the Watchword, London, please copy?

Coulterville.—Bro. John W. Reed, L. D. of Coulterville Lodge No. 382, Mariposa, writes encouragingly of the prospects of his lodge as follows:

Our lodge is in quite a prosperous condition, is receiving a large share of public attention, and I think is destined to largely increase its membership.

We have lately built a large and commodious hall which we are now occupying, which act alone gives character and standing in the community. Coulterville was a difficult place to start the "Temperance Ball" rolling, but Bro. Hughes was equal to the emergency, and his efforts have been eminently successful.

About Changing the Regalia.—Lodges are beginning to file the returns of the vote on the question of the changing of the initiatory regalia to a metalic badge. So far, thirty-eight lodges have filed returns, and these show members present, 914. Against the change of regalia, 804. In favor of the change 49. Not voting 61. But one lodge so far, has given a majority in favor of the change, and that is Independent Lodge No. 119, which favors the change by a vote of 18 to 4, and this 18 is included in the 49 favorable votes above quoted: which shows the per centage of those favoring a change, so far, in this jurisdiction to be very small, viz: 49 out of 914. Lodges will please see to it that their vote is promptly returned to the G. W. S. office.

Envelopes.—During the past week a dozen envelopes bearing the printed address of the G. W. S were mailed in packages, to the address of every Lodge Deputy. These envelopes are to be used to cover all correspondence or business with the G. W. S. Office. It required 4500 envelopes to supply all. Should any Deputy fail to receive this package, notice of that fact should be immediately sent to the G. W. S. All Lodge Deputies should now be in possession of these envelopes.

Lodge Directory.—The Lodge Directory has been revised and corrected to date, with the exception of the Lodge Deputies recorded as commissioned for the first time. Lodge Deputies and others will please examine the list carefully and notify the G. W. S. of any errors or omissions that may be found if such there be.

Butte Co. D. L. meets at Nelson, Nov. 9th, at 10 A. M.

A Wonderful Difference.—A young lady whose teeth had been seriously affected by some juvenile ailment was preparing to have them all removed and replaced with a set of artificials. The family dentist who always is the best dentist you ever knew, "said it was only money thrown away to do any patchwork; too far gone: cant last more than a year, if fixed up ever so well: snake em out&c.' Another artist was called on who gave a similar verdict: quite right; no use. Somebody said if you are going to have a new set of teeth try Dr. Halsey who advertizes in the Rescue; She went but there she was told there was no occasion at all for such a procedure: with the loss of two or three incorrigibles, the rest were all lathed and plastered and frescoed anddeclared warranted to last for life with a little examination and attention now and then. A good many customers have followed suit since and come away with golden opinions of the effective golden repairs they receive. This little notice is inserted solely because it is true and deserved: not at the instance or suggestion of Dr. Halsey but entirely without his knowledge or consent.

THE PACIFIC BANK.

A Trustworthy Institution.—The success of the Pacific Bank, corner of Pine and Sansome streets, San Francisco, is the reward of merit. Founded in 1863, this institution has held on the even tenor of its way, with an upward and onward course. Adhering strictly to sound business principles, has become so deeply rooted in public confidence, that in every storm of financial distress and panic that has swept the city during the last eighteen years it has stood unmoved. It is now closing its eighteenth year with ample resources, a large surplus fund, and what is more than plethoric vaults—the well-earned reputation of absolute integrity and safety.

Business men have not been slow to recognize its merits, and its success has been commensurate with its deserts. The same prudent, sagacious and conservative management which has built it up to its present proud position, continues to direct its policy and to make it the favorite of sound business men. It enters upon the new year with increased facilities for business, to accommodate alike the borrower, lender or dealer in exchange.—Sel.

New Manifestations. Seances are held all day and every day at the tables of Mrs. E. B. Cooper's temperance restaurant 234 Sutter St. Immense and well prepared lunches are materialized at short notice. Hands and arms can be plainly seen putting the dishes on the table. Admittance free: everybody from the country invited.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, George Bramall, Haywards, or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

BUYING OFF ROBBERS.

In former times gangs of robbers became so powerful in Scily and Spain and Italy that certain classes of people paid them a regular tribute every year, on condition that they should be allowed to pass the robbers unmolested. In the last century pirates from the Barbary coast were so numerous that some nations paid their government a regular tribute to save their ships from capture. The vessels of those who did not pay tribute were taken, their cargoes landed and the crew and passengers sold as slaves in the interior of Africa where there used to be many thousands of christian captives who were never more heard of.

That was a terrible condition of things, was it not? it seems strange that people submitted to such grievous impositions but the Algerine pirates and the pirates everywhere at sea were destroyed or driven off by the Americans and English, principally by the former.

But we have just such a system of piracy and robbery here at home and everywhere except in Maine and Kansas. A few good people build their homes in a village, but a brewer or a saloon keeper comes in and sets up his robber's den to plunder and destroy those homes, to capture their sustenance and drive their boys and girls off to captivity and a hopeless death.

A sawmill or other mill or factory of any kind is started. People come round to live there and work at it and build homes there and a schoolhouse and church and stores, a blacksmith and a shoe and tin shop and a postoffice. Everyone of these does a good kindly service to his neighbor, helps every interest, helps to make everybody better off and happier. One buys shoes and groceries and clothes and tinware for himself and family and pays for them with the money he gets for his work at the mill; his being a good citizen and doing no harm or wrong to any one is a great help to every one's trade and business, and makes everyone's property and business more profitable.

Now if a village was started like that with just such people it would grow to be a town and a city and a big, rich city every time. They would want no jail, no police, no fire company, no police court: the mill and factories would never be bankrupt, they would always prosper; the storekeepers and traders would never fail in business: there would be no poor or ragged people nor hungry children. It would be a completely happy place.

But the moment any little settlement begins anywhere, one or two or more robbers or pirates who wont work, but will only rob, come in and destroy this happy home picture. They set traps and capture the people who work at the mill and in the shoe and tin and blacksmith and carpenter shop. They give them poison which makes them neglect their work and become fighters and loafers and dead beats: their victims dont work well or steadily and the mill and the shops meet with losses and shut up business: they dont buy anything but rum, or if they do they dont pay for what they buy, so the stores and shops get bankrupt or cannot succeed and they close and go away. As soon as the grogshop or brewery opens, there must be a jail and policecourt and policemen or constables and night watchmen; everybody must get extra fire insurances for fear of getting burnt up by drunken men. Everybody must get new bolts and locks for their houses, shops and barns to keep out the thieves which the grogshop is sure to educate, and the village gets to be a poor, sick, helpless place that no one cares at all to live in—and there are a thousand of just such towns and villages in this state utterly cursed and ruined and robbed and pauperized by the nasty thieving lazy rumsellers.

In Berwick Pa. some manufacturers of railroad cars lately took some large contracts to build cars and agreed to pay about $6.000 to the storekeepers and others if they would sell no liquor for a year because they said they knew the liquor if sold to their workmen would cause them a much greater loss than $6000 a year.

It seems however a hard case in this free country that anybody should have to pay a gang of thieves $6000 a year to be let alone. The rum traffic if not put down would soon make the American people the worst and lowest savages

HOW IT IS BREWED.

The following is old but very beautiful and some of our young folks may like to see it again. A talented young missionary, Paul Denton, once advertized in Texas that he would preach in a grove on a Sunday and afterward distribute free the best drinks to be had in Texas. A crowd was present and after the service some one asked for the drink and the preacher pointed to a beautiful clear bubbling spring which was welling up close by. One of his hearers shouted "Paul Denton you have lied!" when the preacher pointing to the spring uttered this beautiful little gem of eloquence:

"Not in the simmering still, over smoking fires, choked with poisonous gases, and surrounded with the stench of sickening odors and rank corruption doth our Father in Heaven prepare the precious essence of life—pure cold water. But in the green glade and grassy dell where the red deer wanders and the child loves to play, there God himself brews it; and down, low down in the deepest valleys, where the fountain murmurs and the rills sing; and high upon the mountain-tops, where the naked granite glistens like gold in the sun—where the storm-cloud broods and the thunder-storm crashes; and away, far out on the wide, wide sea, where the hurricane howls its music, and the big waves roar the chorus, "sweeping the march of God"—there He brews it, that beverage of life—health-giving water.

"And everywhere it is a thing of beauty gleaming in the dew-drop, singing in the summer rain, shining in the ice-gem, till the trees seem turned to living jewels; spreading a golden veil over the setting sun, or a silvery gauze around the midnight moon; sporting in the cataract, sleeping in the glacier, dancing in the hail-shower, folding bright snow-curtains softly about the wintry world, and weaving the many-colored iris that seraph's zone of the sky whose warp is the rain of earth, whose woof is the sunbeam of heaven, all checkered o'er with celestial flowers by the mystic wand of rarification, still always it is beautiful, that blessed cold water.

"No poison bubbles on its brink; its foam brings not madness and murder; no blood stains its liquid glass; pale widows and starving orphans weep not burning tears in its clear depths; no drunkard's shrieking ghost from the grave curses it in words of despair!"

"Speak out, my friends, would you ever change it for the demon's drink—alcohol?"

BE KIND BOYS.

You are made to be kind, boys, generous, magnanimous. If there is a boy in school who has a club foot, don't let him know you ever saw it. If there is a boy with shabby clothes, dont talk about rags in his presence. If there is a lame boy, assign him some part of the game which does not require runnine. If there is a hungry boy, give him part of your dinner. If there is a dull one, help him to get his lesson. If there is a bright one, be not envious of him; for if one boy is proud of his talents, and another is envious of them, there are two great wrongs, and no more talent than before. If a larger or stronger boy has injured you and is sorry for it, forgive him. All the school will show by their countenances how much better it is than to have a great fist.—Crusader.

YOUNG Ladies are an added force in temperance work—the cause needs all the help it can get.

SUMMER, FAREWELL

As softly floats the trembling breeze
Across the fields of emerald glory,
It whispers to the lightening trees,
In tender tones a mournful story.
Oh! hear you not the gentle strain
As on the golden hours are flying?
A sweetness in the sad refrain—
It is the voice of Summer dying.

A graceful queen, and gathered near
Are autumn flowers like maids in waiting.
They bow their heads to drop a tear,
And softly press the folded draping
Of her, whose hand has fully known
The perfect joy of freely giving;
Whom none but Autumn can dethrone
Who brings to us the joy of giving.

Now hidden in her royal breast
There lies a germ of tender sweetness.
That must awake from transient rest
Endowed with Nature's full completeness,
Oh! Summer, while we say farewell
We turn away to hide our weeping,
And ask, can Autum's magic spell,
Restore our joys whilst thou art sleeping?

NO DANGER.

There is no danger at all in not learning to smoke, no danger in not learning any bad habit, like drinking or profanity. But when you find the jails, poor houses, lunatic asylums full of people who made the mistakes of smoking and drinking; when you see thousands of human wrecks of ragged poverty and vile conversation and crime-stamped countenances, tramping, begging, thieving and loafing around the grogshops, you only see a picture of what you or any of your young, ruddy, joyous, happy companions may be, if you make the mistakes which have ruined them.

It gives one a feeling of sadness to see a fine ship lying wrecked on the seashore that if properly guided might have been still joyously careering over the ever busy ocean highways of commerce, laden with precious wares and costly merchandise and wholesome food and dainty ornament to please and bless the dwellers in a distant land, and to return laden with treasures from far off climes for us. We lament to see a thing inanimate of so much use, wrecked, lost, a failure, left out to perish and disappear and rot in idle uselessness.

How much more sad the sight of a human wreck, once gifted with a god-like intellect, capable of achieving a grand and useful destiny of good, and building for himself a monument of noble deeds, but with all his opportunities thrown away: his birthright traded off for nothing in return—a clod of earth with the soul within extinguished, and when he perishes forever from the earth, leaving no one friend to regret his loss.

Our Bands of Hope, the 300 or 400 of them which we hope to see in active training by the end of 1882, are designed to save the future wreckage of our boys and girls; to be the lighthouses to steer them thru life, clear of the rocks and shoals and dangers that Satan and men worse than Satan have set for them everywhere. We want 20,000, 30,000 and 100,000 of the children of this state enrolled in our Bands of Hope: and not one of them will incur the least danger of any harm or discomfort, ever once coming to them because they belong to the Band of Hope. Dont be candidates for wrecks and tramps any more; come with us and preserve your purity and honesty and truthfulness and keep out of all danger.

WHAT CAN A SOCIETY GIRL DO FOR TEMPERANCE?

I have a good many friends, of course, and in society am constantly making new acquaintances among the young gentlemen. Now, what I do is, to ask them, just as soon as I feel free to ask them anything, to do something for me in our Union sociables, or our boys' school. I get one to sing a bass solo at the evening reception of our Union, or I ask another to take a class of boys in the Band of Hope in our school, or I invite them to an entertainment when some of the girls give fine readings. Same way with the young ladies, too. I got one of the nicest girls to play a solo at our last sociable and she doesn't especially care for temperance doesn't know anything about it in fact, as she always sees wine on the table at home. But in these little ways, they're getting interested, and before they know what has done it, they'll be working for temperance. Then, of course, I never take wine when it is offered, and that attracts some notice to my belief that no one should touch it. And at dinner parties I often have to set aside a dish that I know has been prepared with brandy or wine; and if the girls or the gentlemen get to joking about drunken people, or drinking, or temperance fanatics, they soon know that it is not a pleasant kind of conversation to me, and being gentlemen and ladies, they dont do it any more. All that makes its impression and has its influence. It doesn't seem much for a girl to do, but you asked what a society girl can do, and I know for one, that she can do all this without losing her position or her popularity in the set to which she belongs; and I am trying all the while to find out what more she can accomplish."—The Signal.

YOUNG ladies have more reason to be interested in the success of the present temperance struggle than any other class, for it seals the destiny of many of them.

No one has the influence over the opposite sex that our young ladies have. If every one would use it for temperance, we should have no fear, but that in less than five years imtemperance would be a thing of the past.

THE day school is beginning to receive attention, when the physiological effects of alcohol are thoroly understood, it will work wonders in this country—and oh, if this could become a part of our common school education, how soon would the curse of intemperance be banished. We must pound away here and everywhere; everything helps.—Signal.

If you would never have an evil deed spoken of in connection with you, don't do one

If you wish success in life, make perseverance your bosom friend, experience your wise councellor, caution your elder brother, and hope your guardian.—Crusader.

MORE SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK.

The following incident of how our Dr. Crosby and Dr. Bacon Sunday schools operate when they dare is from the Democratic Standard of Humboldt.

"In our issue of the 10th of September last we printed the report of a piece of persecution and vandalism that had been enacted toward a family of temperance advocates in Rockdale, R. I., and indulged in some very decided remarks thereupon. *

Two weeks ago on Saturday evening, September 17th, the Good Templar lodge of Table Bluff met in their hall and were in session till near 12 o'clock doing degree work. Upon the adjournment the various members betook themselves to their buggies and wagons and set out for home in a pleasant frame of mind, having spent a most enjoyable evening. But when the Bartlett family of Eel River came to untie their team they found their horses entirely stripped and the harness literally cut to pieces, scarcely a whole strap remaining. The perpetrator is unknown, but circumstances point to a low groggery crowd that has lately infested and disgraced that neighborhood. This influence is a fatally dangerous one from which to graduate young men, and as recent allurements have been added in the shape of bawdy women, etc., the good people of Table Bluff determined to organize a better school for their youths, one that would prove entertaining, instructive and elevating. They therefore instituted a Good Templar lodge, and this has increased and thriven and waxed so strong in numbers and influence for effective reform work that the low groggery crowd has almost gone frantic with rage, and interested individuals have on numerous occasions made use of threatening abusive and insulting language toward those who are engaged in the temperance cause. The members of the Lodge have taken no particular notice of this, however, for they did not believe the wretches were so low, so utterly debased as to be capable of the act we have described above. They are convinced of it now, and will fight more persistently and harder than ever against the curse that thus threatens them, that dares to lay its lawless hands to the work of stealthy destruction of property. They were but availing themselves of their constitutional and natural rights in thus organizing an association to throw a moral protection and influence about their children, and to lend a helping hand to every one who desired to break away from the demon of alcohol. They impose upon no one, insult no one, but they have incurred the cowardly wrath of the whiskyites and suffered their first act of sneaking malice, Surely and certain and one by one are the whiskyites making the points which will bring about a prohibition of the manufacture of alcoholic liquor. A spirit of indignation at the exhibition of such proscription on the part of saloon men and mongers will make the army of moral reform strong, and the cohesive power of conscious right will make it invincible.

The Table Bluff Lodge of Good Templars are still pushing to the front. The membership now numbers ninety-four, and they have recently purchased a brand new organ of W. T. Bonestel. It gives us much pleasure to record these evidences of prosperity and energetic life in the temperance cause.

This lodge was organized by F. J. Culver on the 7th of August.

TEMPERANCE AND THE CHURCH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ITEMPERANCE BECORD.

SIR,—Indications of progress in regard to temperance principles are always pleasant to record. The little Congregational church at Wednesbury, in connection with which I have now labored nearly four years, affords such indications in a very pleasing form and with your permission I should like to refer to them briefly. For years unfermented wine has been used at the Sacrament, and two or three of our members have been long connected with the temperance society, but no special encouragement has been given by the church to temperance work, nor am I aware that any of my predecessors ever took any interest in the movement. When I commenced my pastorate, in January, 1868, a small schoolroom amply sufficed for our largest congregations; and had I not been able, like Paul, to "labour with my hands" and head, it would have been impossible for either church or minister to exist. I have never preached a special temperance sermon to my people, nor gone out of my way to bring the subject before them, yet the good principles have spread, and at the same time the congregation has increased and our church membership has nearly doubled. We have a flourishing little Band of Hope connected with our Sunday-school; several of the leading spirits of the Temperance Society, and the Sons and Cadets of Temperance are among my members. At a recent meeting to organize a choir, eighteen out of nineteen persons present were teetotalers; the superintendent and most of the Sunday school teachers are total abstainers, and a prayer meeting held every Sunday before the evening service is mainly attended and supported by those who are in perfect accord with their pastor on this matter. I do not know that my experience in these respects is singular; but I can only wish that in all our churches the same evidence of progress in regard to temperance principles could be reported.

Yours faithfully.
FREDERIC WAGSTAFF.

Wednesbury September 24th, 1881.

The experience of Mr. Wagstaff has been that of a great many others. And it is a perfectly natural and consistent one. There are thousands of churches both in England and America barely existing in an aimless and fruitless condition of frigid indifference, which would spring into vigorous useful active life, if they would come out and positively disclaim all fellowshipwith the devil-worship of wine and drink. Serving two masters they are dead, serving and loving God and their fellow man and enlisted properly in the service of the King of righteousness, their condition is one of assured success and constantly accelerating progress toward a record of perfect faithfulness.

UNFERMENTED WINE A FACT.

Norman Kerr, M. D., F. R. S., the distinguished London Physician, has prepared, and the National Temperance society has just published, a pamphlet with the above title, of exceptional interest and value, concerning the existence of unfermented wine in both ancient and modern times. The author, while declining to enter the field of theological and exegetical discussion, presents a great number of authorities, historical, biblical, and scientific, which demonstrate beyond question that unfermented wine was known and used in Bible times, and also that it is made and used in our own times. The work is the result of great research and of most thoro and painstaking scientific experiment. It is a most important scholarly contribution to the literature of the unfermented wine question.

This is the pamphlet referred to by the Rev. Joseph Cook in "The New House and its battlement," recently published by the National Temperance Society, and which called forth considerable unjust criticism from a portion of the religious press of the country. It merits a very wide circulation, especially among the ministers and members of Christian churches. 12mo, 41 pages. Price ten cents. address J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade St., N. Y.

REQUISITES FOR A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

The Temperance Schoool $0.05

However dark the way seems, if you love the children and wish to save them, and at the same time to train up workers for temperance send for the above and learn what can be done. Then if you wish to learn how to do it, send for the following list:

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

THE MINISTER AND THE LODGE.

Members of our Order sometimes pettishly say of the minister of their locality, "he never attends or he never comes near our lodge." As we consider the lodge a potent aid and ally of the church, deriving its inspiration and motives and teachings and its gospel from the same source: enlisted in the same service of preaching and practicing the Sermon on the Mount and the injunctions of the same Savior of the world, we are naturally prone to claim that the minister should be a member of the lodge and a helper in it.

But then he has an exactly equal right to demand if he and his church are friendly to our cause and Order, that at least the officers of the lodge and leading members should be as regular attendants and assistants at his or some other church, as they claim he should be in the lodge. It certainly would be very pleasant and profitable for both parties if a compromise on that basis was agreed to and faithfully carried out by each.

While believing there is no respectable excuse for the opposition or hostility of the minister to a respectably conducted Good Templar lodge, we should not take upon ourselves to judge whether it is necessary for one who sanctions and countenances and endeavors to promote the cause, to be a regular attendant at lodge. He may have other claims upon his time which render it inconvenient. And in very many instances the lodge exercises are not so ordered and selected and directed as to make them inviting to the minister or to others of culture and education. When they are not so the lodge has no right to expect the regular attendance of those to whom they are distasteful.

People are very prompt and decisive in their refusal to attend church services and sermons if they are not carefully adjusted to please their tastes and preferences. It would be well perhaps for them to be more lenient critics, and attend religious services more faithfully for the sake of their example and influence upon others, and thus we should encourage and assist the services to become more attractive and useful.

And again when the services of a lodge dont quite suit the minister, his kindly aid and counsel might much improve their characier, and then if he drops in now and then, when he can do so without inconvenience, the members should be satisfied with that and the practical assurance that he desires the progress of the cause and wills to help it. There ought to be the kindest confidence, mutual respect and sympathy and helpful co-operation between all societies and individuals who are engaged in the effort to inaugurate the kingdom of peace. Let us guard against pulling down what others build up of good.

FARCICAL LAW.

Guiteau acknowledged from the first that he had long and deliberately planned to kill the President; intended to shoot him dead, and supposed without the least regret that he had done so. When he found his shot had not been immediately fatal he regretted it intensely and wished he had done it better or fired another shot. Even yet he has never expressed a penitent regret save for one thing, that the murder was not instantly consummated.

Now if President Garfield had been attended by physicians who are educated in modern medical science and abreast of the intelligence of the day, and had recovered under rational treatment, what a distortion and subversion of justice it would have been to have made his trial, his sentence, his punishment any different from what it would have been had his victim instantly expired as the murderer intended.

Let us suppose there were two assassins instead of one; Guiteau agrees to shoot the President and his mate to shoot Blaine or Arthur, or let us suppose even Conkling, whom the people would not have made much fuss about if he had got shot. Guiteau fires his two shots as he did and his mate fires one, but succeeds in killing Conkling or whoever was with the President on that occasion, while we suppose the latter with intelligent treatment barely escaped death.

Now, what an inconsistency that the successful but perhaps less guilty murderer should be certainly doomed to hang, and the worst criminal who only failed thru his cowardice is comfortably boarded and clad at public expense for eight years and then given another chance to murder.

And what a miserable mess our law makers must have made, when after a century of active legislative labor, nobody is quite sure as to whether the miscreant Guiteau can be punished at all, seeing that the President was not shot in the state where he died. A thousand greater calamities could happen this nation than the burning up of every vestige and scrap of law in the world, except the ten commandments—and the subsequent employment of two-thirds of the lawyers in the development of the iron industries of this coast and of the Union.

A HOLY WELL.

Mecca is the holy city which every Mahomedan tries to visit at least once in his life, to ensure his entry into the paradise of the world to come. Consequently it is visited every year by many, many thousands of pilgrims from all Mahomedan countries. There is a very holy well there strictly guarded and kept. Its waters are sent long distances to be used on solemn occasions and as a cure for disease. Every pilgrim drinks some of it or washes himself with it to act as a purifying influence.

But an English consul has sent a bottle of this purifying water to be analyzed and it turns out to be about the filthiest, most unwholesome and deadly dangerous water, polluted with the vilest drainage. And this seems to account for the cholera and plagues, having so often broken out among these pilgrims. This indicates very clearly that the religion which in its foundation commandments enjoined its use could not have come from God.

We find no such slip up in the Christian system. Our ten commandments are so framed that those who keep them faithfully must naturally be the happiest, healthiest, best and longest lived people in the world. Those who obey the precepts of the gospel and of the commandments run no risk of health or life in doing so. There was not an item of the Mosaic law which it was unwholesome, unsafe or unpleasant to observe faithfully.

If we could find out that those who keep the Sabbath and are upright and sober and pure are more than usually subject to cholera or diphtheria or insanity or any other malady and are not so long lived as others, we would have good ground for doubting the heavenly origin of that grand, majestic and yet so simple code of laws which we are told have come to us from God. But altho the Bible has been subjected to the severest tests by the scientist, the scholar, the antiquary and the infidel, it has never been found guilty of commending or commanding to us any act that is in the least injurious to our own or our neighbor's health, peace and happiness.

THE TOBACCO SMOKE FILTH.

To see a ragged malodorous, unwashed bummer, embracing and dispensing the filth of the tobacco pipe and cigar does not shock one's sense of consistency and fitness. You expect of course to see pigs clad in bristles and their presence unpromising in the line of grateful perfumery. They make themselves no worse than nature fashioned and sent them forth. But without a vigorous and successful and convincing contest with self, one cannot get over the natural expectation of seeing well educated, well dressed, well meaning men, who are gentlemen in other respects, pay some respect to the natural instincts of decent humanity in their use of the pipe and cigar. One cannot help thinking that gentlemen would instinctively shrink from making themselves highly offensive and personally nasty in an intense degree, not only to ladies but to every person who loves the pure air of God's providing and delights in a clean conscience and unswinish habits.

But every day, everywhere, more particularly at railway ticket windows, post office windows and desks, and at the ferry depots where men and women are compelled to stand and wait in one place, the tobacco smoke fiend loves to intrude his infamous and filthy odors into peoples faces and make himself utterly detestable as an excessively unpleasant and nasty and often distressing nuisance, to all who are compelled to stand and suffer and inhale the vile air which his breath and his presence have polluted and poisoned.

And the people who commit these monstrous breaches of even Hottentot social etiquette, who outrage the very name of gentlemen are often not ruffians nor evil disposed people at all. Their appearance and manners in other respects, indicate beyond a doubt that lots of them, who act thus, are worthy, generous, sociable, obliging, honest, kindly, in short the best kind of people in every other matter but this, and in this they mean no wrong, but are thotless or careless or ignorant:—and is it not a pity that such men should set such a pernicious example to the young? so disgrace themselves and friends and country by such execrable, extra cannibal behavior, and inflict so much annoyance, discomfort and dirt upon innocent people who never did them any harm in thot, word or deed, but who are uncomfortably sensitive to the intrusive presence of unnecessary and ungentlemanly and offensive uncleanness.

GAMBLING.

A large portion of the daily press is devoted to details of the horse races gained by a pack of American gamblers in England. It is a matter of moment indeed that our blacklegs can get ahead of the English sharpers and gamblers. It will perhaps become fashionable in time to chronicle the successes of American burglars and American courtezans in England.

The Napa and Solano Agricultural Society have arranged for four days gambling in Vallejo. The writer has a little undivided interest iu that race track in Vallejo. He contributed $50 to the sufferers by the Chicago fire which with $1000 or $1100 contributed by others in Vallejo for the same benevolent purpose was all stolen and used to make that race track and build the gin mill along side of it—to teach the boys around to become gamblers and drunkards. Being a proprietor entitles one to speak with authority. The managers of the gambling concern promised to refund that $50 but begged off till the claim was outlawed.

THE METHODIST SOUTH CONFERENCE.

The Statistical Secretary reported having totals as follows: Local preachers, 44; members, 4368; colored, 7; Indian, 2; baptism of adults, 1470; of infants, 134; number of Sunday-schools, 80; officers and teachers, 490; scholars, 4939, money expended, $1548,64; number of churches, 53; sittings, 13,275; value of churches, $371,800; value of parsonages $29,400, money expended for building and repairing, $13,713.84; other property, $47,522.75. Conference fund. $64,740; sustentation fund, $2500; other objects, $4636; foreign missionary $466; domestic missions, $696; aggregate bishop's fund, $25.075 Presiding Elder's salaries, $3880.85; preachers' salaries, $28,351.59.

The next annual session of the Pacific Conference will be held in San Francisco. General Conference will meet in May next in Nashville, Tennessee.

NEW ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The National Temperance Society has in press and will soon publish the following:

Pen Portraits of Illustrious Abstainers, by Geo. W. Bungay, giving life-like sketches of about forty of the most prominent temperance workers, living and dead, embellished with first-class wood engravings. It will be one of the most readable books of the season.

Alcohol and Science; or, What Alcohol is and What it Does, a $500 prize essay on alcohol, what it is and what it does, by Wm. Hargreaves, M. D. author of "Our Wasted Resources," "Alcohol and Man," etc., etc.

Hand-Book of Evangelistic Work for Women's Christian Temperance Unions, by Mrs. S. M. I. Henry.

The National Temperance Almanac and Teetotaler's Year Book for 1882, full of statistics, stories, pictures, etc. 72 pages. Price 10 cents.

The Society is also commencing the publication of a thrilling and instructive ten-cent series of new temperance tales written by popular authors for general distribution through the country. Four of these are now in press, as follows: "Fife and Drum," by Mary Dwinell Chellis; "A Tragedy by the Sea," by Mrs. J. Mc Nair Wright; "The Quaker's Rule," by Ernest Gilmore; and "Drinking Jack," and other stories, by Mary Dwinell Chellis. The price of these will be only ten cents each.

The following, adapted to Sunday-school libraries, are in press; "Rex Ringgold's School," by Pliny Steele Boyd, and "The Voice of the Home," by Mrs. S. M. I. Henry. Both 12mo, about 300 pages each.

THE OHIO LION AND TIGER—SHOOT THE FOREMOST FIRST.

The political situation over the river seems to us to be about this;

The Republican party, being in the majority, have it in their power to give the people who are crying out in their agony, the relief prayed for against the liquor traffic; but it refuses to do so, and while protesting friendship, is aiding the enemy of the people. The Democratic party, as the avowed enemy of prohibition, attacks the Republican party for its loud pretentions and protestations of temperance in the face of uniform practice to the contrary.

Now what shall the prohibitionists do? Here's the Republican lion, lord of the forest, springing at the very throat of the temperance cause, with the Democratic tiger, with flourishing tail, eager and ready to pounce upon the lion. Shall the temperance citizen shoot the tiger and give his life-blood to the treacherous lion? Verily, no! By all means, shoot the lion first, and then "go for" the tiger upon his first snarl at prohibition. Without whisky to make them drunken to all righteous impulses, you can conciliate neither, and the sooner Christian and temperance voters "quit themselves like men," the sooner will these treacherous political beasts of prey and spoils, be slain or frightened off into the desert jungles where they belong. Vote as men, whether you be many or few. Cast your ballots for principle, bravely and honestly, and let them be counted afterward.—W. Va. Freeman.

DISTRICT LODGES.

If notice is sent, the meetings of each Dist. Lodge will be announced for a few weeks in advance, and kept standing in the RESCUE till date of their occurrence.

Reports of Dist. Lodges.—It would be well that ONE officer or member should be deputed to send in an early concise report of the doings of these bodies. Frequently several people send reports of the meetings, and when the regular authentic one comes it has to go into the waste basket, because it would be a third or fourth repetition of what has been already printed. That was not long ago the case with the best model district lodge report that ever came to this office. It is desirable to have one good official report of these important meetings and it will be understood now in a lump for the year, that the delegates had a rousing good dinner every time without further mention of the bill of fare.

David C. Cook has recently opened, at 148 Madison St. Chicago, a Revolution Temperance House, and we are amazed at the amount he offers for a little money. He furnishes excellent and unique material for educating the children. It is a grand work. We advise all to send for samples and buy what they can afford. A little money expended in this way will hardly be missed, and will do you and others much good.—Prohibitionist, Lewiston, Me.

LOSSES BY DRINK.

Mr, Wm. Hyde of England who recently read an excellent paper before the British Science Association (published in the RESCUE) sums up the indirect losses thru drink as follows:

Annual loss of labor thru drink as calculated by a commission of parliament, at one sixth of the wealth produced was $400 million—we say	250 000 000
Loss of property on sea and land by theft, bankruptcies etc. caused by drink	25 000 000
Crime, pauperism, insanity, premature death ect., the result of drink	100 000 000
Idleness of 1,400,000 paupers, criminals, lunatics, vagrants etc. of whom one-half might but for drink produce of wealth	140 000 000
Non production of capital spent in drink and invested in the traffic	100 000 000
Time wasted of officers of courts, prisons, jurymen, witnesses, guardians, police, etc. employed thru drunkenness	25 000 000
Expenses of extra cost of religious, moral, temperance and social efforts to counteract the evils of intemperance	50 000 000
	690 000 000

Then adding to this the direct cost of drink to the people, 680,000,000 and deducting 270 millions for revenue or for alcohol for necessary or lawful purposes, "we have 1100 million a year as the economic loss to the nation from the drinking customs of our people."

This seems to be a poor way to collect revenue: the people spend 680 millions in cash and sustain 690 millions of consequential loss and damage for the purpose of paying about 250 millions a year of revenue.

A MONUMENT.

The best and most appropriate and most consistent Monunment which could be erected in memory of President Garfield, would be a National Prohibitory Law, called the Garfield Memorial Amendment. It would turn the occasion of mourning into one resulting in supreme joy and happiness to millions. It would be the most enduring monument to the memory of a good man that was ever devised, and the nation owes that act of reparation for the miserable crime which it has committed in the assassination of its most favored son: for it was the nation that committed the murder, one of the many thousands which it licenses and orders every year. If the nation would repent at this solemn warning, Mr. Garfield's death would prove a greater blessing in the end, than his life continued could have ever produced.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

The Committee are desirous of arranging for vigorous work, and therefore wish to know the names of all places where prohibition clubs can be formed, and the names of persons willing to take leading part in organizing them. They also desire to know the names of ministers and others who can and will lecture or address meetings on the subject of prohibition—in what places and on what terms, gratuitously or otherwise.

They will also be pleased to receive the names of those persons who are willing to entertain lecturers. In fact all persons willing to help in any way are earnestly requested to send the information with particulars to the Secretary, Rev. Geo. Morris, West End, Alameda, Cal.

DIVORCES IN SWITZERLAND.

Most grogshops, most divorces as everywhere else. The law now permits divorce there when married people become quarrelsome and want to part. In four cantons there are 37 grogshops for every 1000 males above 15 years of age and there they have 76 divorces per 1000 marriages. In a group of cantons where the drunkeries average 25 to 1000, the divorces are 57 per 1000 and in a third group of 16 rumholes to the 1000 males, the divorces are 36 per 1000 marriages. Same story everywhere; crime, divorce, filth and death just in proportion to the number of soul-traps.

A number of ministers lately removed to new charges. Those who desire the continuance of the RESCUE, will please send a postal card advising their new address. Otherwise we have no means of knowing the changes made.

ANTI-TEMPERANCE.

The Boston Congregationalist, which is an entirely separate affair from the denomination of that name, continues its strenuous efforts to traduee the character of Christ and make the Bible a laughing stock in its utterances with regard to wine and the vine and the grape. Ingersoll points to the bible as it is, and vainly endeavors to ridicule its teachings and impeach its authority and authenticity. The Congregationalist utterly misrepresents the most conscientious and intelligent of its denomination by distorting and falsifying and misrepresenting the Bible, making it blow both hot and cold, bless and curse the same thing and the same act: it makes the God and the Savior of the holy scriptures self-contradictory and inconsistent in their teachings, and the teachings and example of the latter pernicious, dangerous and immoral, and presenting a stultified bible it quotes the nonsense which it has crammed into it, as authority for us to believe in defense of its much beloved and worshiped idol wine.

Next week a minister of its denomination will present in the RESCUE his case against the national organ. In connection with the position of the Congregationalist, and the author of the Biblical Cyclopedia and of Dr. Crosby and others on this whole Bible question, the reader is desired to attentively peruse the utterances of Dr. Richardson under the heading "Alcohol and Falshood" in this number. There the otherwise unaccountable conduct of many who so stoutly persist in deceiving themselves and others, is explained. And if the RESCUE owes any one duty to temperance and Christianity beyond another, it seems to be that of resisting to the last and exposing the falsity every time of every wicked attempt of satan and anti-Christ and depraved humanity to debauch the Scriptures, to degrade Christianity, defile its character and defame and belie its founder for the purpose of serving and saving the foul interests of the worst enemies of God and man.

DAVID C. COOK.

It seems everybody is rushing to Mr. Cook for books and papers and all kinds of excellent literature for Sabbath-schools, Band of Hope and other juvenile and temperance societies. Every body is delighted with what they get from him. There is only one drawback, only one cause of complaint, viz.: when they send for five dollars worth at a time it startles them dangerously to see so much of it for five dollars and they have to hunt up a dray or something to cart it home from the post office. But we can stand it; there are good transportation facilities in Cal. Send in your orders and let us hurry up the funeral of the liquor traffic and then the way is clear for the "Kingdom" that is to come. See his ad in this paper.

ARGUMENT.—The editor of the W. Va. Freeman is Rev. J. H. Johnson, a Methodist minister. He has committed the offence of criticising some asinine utterances in a bummer paper called the Telegram, to which the latter replies, "It looks as if Johnson cared more for the dollar than for prohibition. His forte is blarney and tramping round as a chicken eater." That is a more classical and gentlemanly utterance than comes generally from the whisky fed press and no doubt its stunning logic has extinguished Mr. Johnson and the Freeman. But the Freeman has gained 2250 subscribers in its six months of existence.

LADY ATTORNEY.—Those who need the legal services of an efficient successful and always clear-brained practitioner, can find Mrs. Clara S. Foltz at the address given in her card in the RESCUE. In the bestowal of our patronage, for an equal service, let us give the preference every time to a good worthy woman and try to atone in some degree for the million injustices that have been done to that side of humanity.

JOEL RUSSEL ABROAD.—The Whig and Courier, Bangor, Me., contains a notice of a lively reform club meeting at that place at which spirited addresses were made by talented speakers. It says that Mr. Russel our P. G. W. C., made a telling speech full of encouragement and good counsel for temperance workers. We all know he is making trouble for the rum wolves somewhere sure, if he is alive.

Subscribers this week 19 to 26th, Oct, Bro. Leland 2, Columbia 1. Oakland 1, Mrs. Stevens 4, Granger Lodge for W. C. T. U. Coffee House San Jose 1.

Bro. Leland apologizes for sending only 2 subscribers this week, saying he is at home resting.

WEEKLY TEMPERANCE BANNER.

A circular comes from the Literature Committee of the R. W. G. L. relative to the proposal submitted to the R. W. G. L. to give us a weekly Juvenile paper. It states that the N. T. Society has offered to issue the Banner weekly, provided the I. O. G. T. will agree to take 10,000 copies or guarantee them to be taken thru the efforts of Grand and Sub-Lodges at an expense of $5000.

Such a proposition a year or two ago would have been hailed with pleasure here: but it seems to be now too late. Mr. David C. Cook has come in and filled the gap which was so long a source of regret and anxiety. It appears that he fills the bill completely if not a little more so. And when he has fitted out to do all that is required and given us a choice of 2 or 3 Juvenile papers a week and at a mere nominal price, it would seem a duty for us at least, if not for all workers in the juvenile direction, to aid Mr. Cook with all our might.

We dont want special Good Templar or special society teaching for the juveniles. If the N. T. S. or the W. C. T. U. or the I. O. G. T. or Sons of T. or David C. Cook come into the field with proper temperance literature, giving the truth that we all want, and inculcating no sectarian or society prejudices or preferences which we dont want at all, it would seem best for the cause of temperance that all who love it more than they do sects and orders should rally round the flag and render every possible assistance. We can all draw good pure cold water at the same well.

Our Grand Lodge at its recent session heartily commended the juvenile works of Mr. Cook and our jurisdiction will doubtless be thoroly satisfied with them. These remarks are entirely unofficial. Perhaps our Executive Committee may take another view.

THE CUP OF THE LORD AND THE CUP OF DEVILS.—In a western city, thru the agency of a temperance society, a young man (a hard drinker for many years) was induced to sign the pledge and reform. He was the child of many prayers and had been well instructed. His praying mother and sister brot him under the influence of the church after his reformation, and by the blessing of God he was converted—"saved so as by fire:" a "brand plucked from the burning;" a miracle of the saving power of God.

He united with the church, an infant in strength, not yet attained to the "full grown stature of a man in Christ Jesus," and had a trial that would test his strength before him. Could he sit at the table of the Lord and smell the fatal aroma of the cup as it came toward him, and taste unmoved the thing that had been the destroyer of his young life? His mother, fearing his weakness, instructed her son to bow his head over the cup, but on no account to taste it.

One Sunday morning, another reformed man, once a Christian, but for many years led away by the fatal cup, now again redeemed and restored to Christian fellowship, came with his wife to church. It happened to be on communion day, and after service the gentleman and his wife arose to go out, when the lady in whose pew they had sat, said: "Dont go; stay to communion." "No," whispered the other lady, "if my husband should taste the communion wine, he would be drunk before night; he dare not even smell it.

Another lady, who with much anxiety had watched the young man's struggle, refused also. The consequence was, the deacons inquired into the matter; explanations followed, and a reform in the matter of communion wine was the result.

This happened in the season when grapes were ripe. Four ladies of the church canned fresh, pure, sweet grape juice in small bottles, so as to afford what would be needed at each communion; enough was bottled to do for one year, after that a deacon's wife took it upon herself to make it for the church, and we had thenceforth the pure blood of the grape, such as Christ intended to be used when He said, "Do this in remembrance of me."—Ex.

NATIONAL ALLIANCE.

Mrs. M. McLellan Brown, Secty. National Prohibition Alliance, sends invitation and notice of a Prohibition Convention Oct. 18th and 19th in New York. It came late and no delegates could have gone from here. But the Alliance should receive the aid and God-speed of all who truly and earnestly love temperance and christianity.

A national prohibition Alliance seconded by State Alliances, just as the National and State political parties are organized, is the only rational mode of procedure for the friends of virtue and morality to pursue.

Anything short of that is skirmishing and guerilla warfare and in a measure idle parade. There is no phase of future history that can be more clearly foreseen and predicted than that of a near and clear cut national issue to be fought out between vice and virtue, between civilized peace and barbarous rampant crime, between the American home and the European doggeries, between the American christian mother with the children of her prayers and training—and the foreign harlotry and ruffianism of the brewery, distillery, and beer dive; the old fight renewed between high heaven and hell driven into its last and most formidable stronghold.

And it will result as all contests of the kind have finally ended between honest right and cowardly wrong; between brave, honest manhood and sneaking treacherous villainy; between virtuous intelligent men and slavish brutal thieves. The right will prevail. All hail to the National Prohibition Alliance, or the third party, whatever it may be, that shall embrace this great national issue, compared with which all other public questions are utterly trivial and insignificant. All success to every effort that goes to make that party an immediate and immense fact

A square open temperance issue in every ward, every township, every city, every county, every state and in every national election, is the only rational or possible way to success. And it is the more clearly indicated to us, as for years past, and as it is now, every election has been a beer and whisky issue, everytime, everywhere. The great national question for years past has been everywhere how to fortify the foreign enemy of our peace and homes, the rum power in our midst. Whoever fights against the prohibition party or pooh-poohs it or ignores it, should consult his own conscience and ascertain if perchance he dont find himself at war with God and the best interests of mankind.

AN ANOMALY.

I see it stated, by what authority I know not, that the saloon keepers arrested for violating the Sunday Law are to be defended by Hon. T. H. Laine, I ask, for information, whether it is the same T. H. Laine who conducts the religious services as a minister or elder, each Sunday morning in Santa Clara, at the Christian Church? Surely if so, it is an anomaly for them to break the law of the land while he is obeying the law of God in preaching, praying and partaking of the Lord's Supper and then for him to turn against the Church members, the temperance people and the moral part of the community and defend them in their illegal acts. It may be he preaches as a minister and defends the rumsellers as a lawyer.

It reminds me of a story that I must tell and let your hearers make their own application, A Bishop once entered the army and became a General; some one hearing him use profane language, said "That looks sadly out of place in a Bishop." He replied "I dont swear as a Bishop but as a General." "The rejoinder was "yes but when the Devil gets the General where will the Bishop be?" Respectfully.

CONSISTENCY.

NOT SO RADICAL.—Mrs. Dr. Edson, the efficient nurse, strenuously objected to the alcoholic treatment of President Garfield, and the doctors remaining in charge were gratified when she retired from service. "All honor to her for having represented in this important case, the more advanced and enlightened medical science. The brandy, whisky and champagne was taken under protest and his stomach finally broke down under the delusive and dangerous alcoholic poisoning, in addition to his other blood impurity caused by the assassin's ball."—Nat. Temp. Advocate

NEXT to the assassin's bullet, we think the wine, rum, brandy and whisky administered by the doctors to the President, in milk or other food, are responsible for his death. It is well known that alcohol, in any form, irritates the stomach, the brain, the nerves, and in fact the whole human system; and the irritation is in proportion to the quantity given. By many actual experiments, it has been clearly demonstrated that alcohol lowers vitality, and impedes digestion. The giving of this drug to the President therefore, seems utterly inexcusable, and marks a degree of backwardness in medical science, on the part of his doctors, than is utterly incomprehensible.—N. Y. Witness.

"WISDOM'S WAYS."

The National Temperance Society has just published an excellent concert exercise, "Wisdom's Ways," by Hope Hazel. Composed of scripture responsive texts and well-selected recitations. It is especially adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, and juvenile temperance and religious organizations. It is deserving of a wide circulation, and those desirous of giving such an exercise would do well to send for a copy for examination. 12mo, 8 pages, 3 cents, single copies; 36 cents per dozen, sent post paid. Address J. N. STEARNS, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade Street, New York.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

A young man speaking French and German fluently, has the highest recommendations and is a Good Templar, desires employment in a store or warehouse. Willing to give a trial service on very moderate terms. Address W. RESCUE Office.

A FEW copies of the Proceedings of the recent National Temperance Convention at Saratoga, for sale at this office 25 cents each; sent free by mail. Every Good Templar ought to have one.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c.
Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c.
This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c.; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c
This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.
It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE.—By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,
54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

☞To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

JOTTINGS.

In our reading to-day we found the following quotation, "keep thyself unspotted from the world," and laying aside our book proceeded at once to jot the following thots it suggested. None need be frightened lest a long sermon is to be read to them with these words from Holy Writ as text; for we only wish to hint at the wealth of meaning wrapped up in the two first words, "keep thyself." Who among us—and I refer now to my fellow youth—is qualified to keep himself. Judging from the readiness with which so many give over this sacred trust to the keeping of saloons and evil companions, we fear very few even try to do so. In what succinct form is the gem of truth here stated.

Keep yourself, young man, and to do so distinct effort is necessary. First of all, keep your virgin purity of soul. How unfashionable this is, we well know. The youth of to-day are anxious to pluck the fruit hanging over even the furthermost borders of the wonderland of pleasure. If not plunging into the mire of vice, they are yet eager to be able to show some of its discolorations to their garments—to brush away the delicate but lovely drapery which is to character what the bloom is to the peach. Ah, me! how many millions would to-day unite in saying to the innocent, keep yourself; whatere you learn in this world, never learn the bitterness of lost purity.

We gladly hail reformation, yet it is saddened joy for we are continually reminded that it is reformation. The scar is there and will never wash out, never grow out.

No dishonor is there in being tempted; all dishonor however in yielding. Never, never blush because of innocence nor ignorance of sin's pathways, and shun any who would make you do so as a viper. Believe me; one hour of loved, guarded purity's joys is of far more worth then a life of indulgence. Hence, would you taste the highest pleasure, then keep yourself

Again, would you be independent? then be your own keeper. So soon as you fail to do this you are a slave. If will, highminded and firm do not rule supreme in the citadel of life, then is a foreign tyrant on the throne. We hear much of personal liberty now-a-days. There is such a thing; every man has supreme liberty to rule his own spirit, and until he does so is a slave of the most menial sort. Young friend, be independent: able to plant a firm foot upon passion or appetite; and keep yourself there.

You can never be half slave, half freeman. The contest of right with wrong, of man with appetite, is a war of extermination. Such an anomaly as being both bound and free does not exist.

Finally the words, eternal vigilance is the price of liberty are as true of individuals as of nations. We make no plea for untried innocence or monastic purity, but we do plead with the youth whom we love; be strong in the might of right. To you are given golden hours; hours that are sublime with possibilities of good. Keep the heart pure during them all, the lips untainted, the mind active; in a word, keep self true to the highest ideal of lofty manhood or womanhood.

J. W. WEBB.

San Jose, visited the Normal school. Oh that the hundreds of men and women whom the state is fitting to teach, train and model the minds and hearts of the young could all go out with a strong moral temperance patriotic and consciencious bent. The state has a right to expect if not to demand it. Conversed with several teachers and found them in sympathy with that sentiment. And Prof. Norton told me he does not hesitate to speak plainly the truth according to science and morals concerning liquor, tobacco and other evils.

When Mr. Hollenbach held gospel temperance meetings in the town a general attendance and interest of the students were secured. Our executive should give special interest to this important educational center when sending out lecturers. There is a good coffee house by the W. C. T. U., so that no one need patronize a whisky restaurant.

Good meeting at Gilroy in M. E. church. Brethren encouraged and determined to hold the fort, and advance on the enemy.

At Salinas Sister Stevens was expected, and her telegram that she could not come created great disappointment, but I took the liberty of pledging the ex. committee that she would visit this place, Castroville and Monterey before long. Three hundred assembled and I gave the best I had and received excellent attention. Bro. Harry Morehouse, W. C. T., Dist. Dep. and ex-Dist. Atty presided. He is a power and the right man in the right place. The membership here is about 150 strong, no drones or shaky ones.

A large delegation came from Castroville Lodge, showing that a true fraternal spirit exists. Successful district lodge has just been held there. With some lecture work three or four lodges can be started.

Bro. Rev. A K Crawford introduced me as "one" who could do more than rattle round in sister Stevens shoes in her much regretted absence, but he didn't say what number shoe Sister S wore, whether a 15 or a 20!

Bro. Senator Hill, editor Index and Bro. Clipper ton, editor Monterey Californian were both present, as also leading men of medical, legal, ministerial and other professions.

WM. CROWHURST.

DUNNIGAN, Oct. 22, 1881.

To Pleasant Prairie we were driven by Bro. Sims who presided over a successful and enthusiastic meeting of a growing and profitable lodge; thence to Madison by Bro. Heron and delegation. Met with a lodge not included in the lodges of Yolo in RESCUE list. Eighteen persons are to be proposed at next meeting.

At Capay unbounded enthusiasm, ten propositions and the devil mad. At Yolo (Cacheville) enthusiastic meeting, lodge out in regalia, excellent names obtained; the good work being carried out by a number of earnest young men and women—among them Past Worthy Vice Templar, Sister Kate Miller, who on Sunday night, Oct. 16, in the M. E. church in the presence of the lodge and a large gathering of "outsiders" changed her name to Mrs. Forsyth, and, yes, forgot her name and wondered why Sister Forsyth did not speak to Bro Crowhurst when introduced. Ceremony performed by Bro. the Rev. Mr. Elliot.

They hold the fort in spite of a spy who got into camp and succeeded in getting them expelled without notice, from the hall of another Order, and that in the middle of a quarter for which they had paid three month's rent in advance. Height of meanness! They meet in a miserable room, but are determined. There's a good time coming.

At Dunnigan on Thursday night a good meeting was held, but on Friday night an entertainment by Faithful Lodge at Blacks Station where our program should have placed us on that night, prevented much of a meeting. At close of lecture, exemplifying the unwritten work and announcement of 7 names obtained ended in good social feeling and renewed energy and determination.

C. N. GOULDING.

SONORA Oct 23rd 1881.

As you are aware, I was sent to Bodie on the 13th inst and being the first Grand Lecturer that has ever visited the place, I was regarded as a "curiosity" and after making arrangements commenced my labors on Sunday the 16th concluding Wednesday evening 19th; the largest Hall in the place was crowded each night and hundreds turned away unable to gain admittance and justice compels me to say that the "Bad man from Bodie" was conspicuous by his absence. I have never addressed more intelligent or a better behaved audience in all my Temperance work, and shall never regret my "trip to Bodie." I find the Lodge in good condition, and hopeful, very efficient aid was rendered by each and all and I trust some good has been accomplished; after due deliberation, I decided to give up my trip to Inyo county and come here across the mountains and shall labor in this [Tuolomne County] the balance of this month: being a "modest lecturer" I leave you to select what you may think best from the enclosed report of my lectures.

The B odie FreePress gives a highly commendatory report of Col Goulding's lectures, concluding thus:

"A saloon keeper in Bodie being asked as to what he thought of Colonel Goulding's lecture the previous evening replied: "Well, the fact is, it was a good lecture—perhaps the best I ever heard. I enjoyed it amazingly. He never allows a fellows interest to flag for a moment. and so far as to his shooting it to us fellows so hard for being in the business, that was all right; it was true and we deserved it. If I dont sell liquor some one else will. But I felt grieved, sir, when the speaker exposed the mode of manufacturing whisky; the stuff that is put in it, and how simple and how cheap the cost. I really thought it was unfair in the Colonel to give that away !"

OPINIONS.

Quite a number of others were asked their opinions as to the merits or demerits of the Colonel's lecture, but a few briefly stated, will suffice:

"It is the finest lecture ever delivered on the subject. I am enthused in the movement.—[Harry Bryan.

"It is a good lecture, and should be on the center table of every household."—[Patrick Hogan.

"It meets my cordial approbation."—H. Kerz.

"Yaas; as good as I evaar leestened to."—[Tobino.

"It is the best I ever used. My family cannot do without it."—George Elwood.

"It vaas all hoombug. These fellows vas all faanaatics. Better go vay."—[H. C. Hoerchner.

"The lecture is good: possessed of argument; and no man in Bodie could pass a more pleasant and edifying hour than in listening to it—but if they think they can deliver more temperance lectures than I can sell whisky, why let 'em keep it up."—[Joseph McDermott.

These are simply given as samples of the different feelings with which these lectures are received. But, twist and squirm how they may Colonel Goulding is nightly delivering his lectures to overflowing houses; the enthusiasm of his auditors is unbounded; he is laboring in a noble cause, and when he leaves Bodie he will leave an influence for good behind him.

MRS. STEVENS.

LODI, Oct. 24, 1881.

At Woodbridge I met with hospitality and attentive audiences; an earnestness of purpose gave 21 names to lodge and a collection of $18,25, Bro. Compton Presbyterian minister ably presided: he is well known as an active Good Templar, and an eloquent speaker. The United Brethren, have a college at Woodbridge and oppose the Good Templars for "conscience sake." making it a part of church discipline that no member shall belong to a "secret society, and no teacher is employed who is a Good Templar." They admit the good work done in Woodbridge by Good Templars in closing the saloons on Sunday; they acknowledge that the members there, are consistent and many of them active christians, yet these misguided people, by their attitude against our Order make it possible for the traffic to claim them as their allies in persecuting Good Templars.

It is no uncommon occurrence to hear a saloonist remark "the United Brethren oppose the Good Templars, therefore, it must be a corrupt institution, thus are we slain by those who profess to be christian brethren.

Lockford gave only a fair audience, the lodge is becalmed in a sea of indifference. Sister Ada Locke has left the helm, and is away teaching in Tulare Co. and little or no work is being accomplished.

The saloons are closed on Sunday. At Dexter I found a live lodge, thanks to our indefatigable Bro. Hughes who was my forerunner, and I thank him for generous advertising which gave me a crowded house and a most enthusiastic meeting so that a goodly number of names were enrolled for Dayton Lodge, for which I believe there is to be a future of great prosperity. One of the largest and most thriving Bands of Hope in the state is at Lodi under Dr. Haswell's efficient management. David Cook's lesson books are used; Dr. Haswell conducts the Band on the plan of a temperance school.

There can be no doubt that the marked change for the better in Lodi is largely due to Bro. Haswell's persistent work for the children. If there were more Dr. Haswells as pastors of our churches the tide of temperance would rise as it has done in this town.

The Good Templars of Lodi, faithful in duty and vigilant of their trust have closed all the saloons on Sunday, and driving into town we felt a pleasurable pride in our Order as we marked the peaceful, quiet Sabbath.

On Sunday night the crowded house was another manifestation of Lodi's interest in our cause, large numbers standing thruout the entire evening, and many walked boldly to the front and signed for the Good Templars. Another meeting to-night. I send a few subscribers for the RESCUE.

A PUBLIC meeting will be held every day from 6 A. M. till 9 P. M. during the months of October, November, and Dec. at the tables of the W. C. T. U. Coffee House 629 Sacramento St. A good lunch will exercise a very inspiring influence. Admission free but a small fee taken on going out.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institu ion. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,
First No. Jan., 1881.

Edited by..... ....REV. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.

Price, 15 cents per single copy; or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.

The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

Revolution Temperance Literature.

Just opened, a new Temperance Publishing House. New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been

Ninety Dollars' Worth of Books for Two Dollars.

Rachel Noble's Experience; or the Downfall of a Family. Reprint of a 90c. book by Bruce Edwards. A most thrilling and forcible story book. Prize tale of the Scotch Temperance League. Homedale Rectory, reprint of a $1.00 book, by M. H. R. How drinking habits will transform an affectionate husband into a fiend, and blight forever a loving wife's happiness. Full of pathos and power. Packington Parish. Reprint of a $1.00 book by M. A. Paull, showing the ravages of the liquor traffic when introduced into a hitherto quiet village. Each of these three books is put up in one number of the TWO CENT LIBRARY, a large eight-page paper, in brevier type, on good paper, illustrated; either number for $2.00 per 100 copies, post paid. Sample copy of each for 10c.

These book offer a new force: people will read them for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or distributed gratuitously.

Eighteen Cents pays for 100 copies of the GOUGH LIBRARY, illustrated, four-page temperance talks by John B. Gough. Any number or assorted—12 kinds—sample of each for 6c., or for 18c. we will send 100 copies of SURE AND SAFE, a choice four-page, two-column, illustrated weekly temperance paper suited to general distribution.

CONTRACTS TAKEN AT 5c. A HEAD. To sow every town "knee-deep" with temperance literature without any labor on the part of society or individual by means of our new post-office delivery system and "class papers," reaching every one every month for a whole year for 5c. a head, or every two weeks for 10c. a head; thus for $5.00 one hundred persons can be reached monthly for a year. Papers furnished (not tracts), and sent regularly through the mails direct to each individual person. Society has nothing more to do after sending us names. Eighteen different papers to choose from, and one of a kind may be ordered (five or more in all), as a trial order at these rates. 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The Sunday School Superintendent. 7. The Sunday School Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The Common People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially designed. Each published monthly, and though small in size contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book. No other plan so cheap or effective; gives papers instead of tracts, sent through the mails, sent in wrappers and directed to parties sent, sent at regular interval, suited to the class of readers to be reached—suited to the work to be done. If Society chooses they can canvass for subscriptions; no one will refuse when it is only a nickel, and many subscribe for them to be sent to others. Sample copy of each and particulars as to ways of introducing, for 10 cents.

Seventy Dollars' Worth of Books in book form for $2.50.

Cheapest offer yet is our offer to induce organization of Bands of Hope among the children. We furnish a library of 52 choice $1.00 to $1.50 temperance story books, put up in ordinary book form, only printed on lighter paper with smaller margins and in paper covers (really stronger books than the more expensive), for 5c. each, or the 52 books for $2.50. Also two weekly Band papers at 2½c. a quarter; a lesson and song quarterly for 2c. certificates, pledge rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., etc.—all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all expenses. Specimen of everything necessary for complete outfit for Band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving new and simple methods of running Bands, running them either with or without teachers, etc., sent free.

Endorsed. The "Revolution" has the endorsement of temperance leaders from Maine to California. The following recently received from Frances E. Willard, President National W. C. T. U., will serve as a sample: "DEAR BROTHER COOK:—My heart sings hallelujah as I think of your splendid courage. My secretary arrived last night from Boston, bringing your new temperance literature, all of which she has carefully examined, and she says she sang the Doxology right straight through the happy time thus spent. Her judgment is as good as that of any woman I know. Though my own study of the new goods has been more cursory, I perceive that THEY MEET OUR WANTS. They are varied, bright and attractive. Once get them into the hands of our W. C. T. U.'s and they will go like lemonade in dog days."

We are getting out many other publications beside those advertised above. General circular, etc., free. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison St., Chicago.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED.—In Guerneville, Oct. 14, 1881, Mrs. Ida M. Ayers, aged 18 years.

Sister Ayers was for more than three years a worthy and consistent member of Enterprise Lodge No. 356, I. O. G. T. The usual resolutions of respect were adopted by the lodge.

AMITY, OREGON.—The Good Templars of Amity Lodge had a very pleasant and successful entertainment last week for the benefit of their Reading Room. "Dont go near the barroom, Father," Away with the wine and other songs finely rendered. Three little girls recited" Love, Purity and Fidelity" and a good impression was created as well as a good time enjoyed. While the cause seems to be gaining with us there are still some unfortunates who sneer and ridicule "the temperance fanatics," but there must be a wonderfully enticing fanaticism that bewitches people to favor the slavery and degradation of drinking poison and laying up a future of rags and rumatizm. Some of the prominent citizens work against us but God reigns and He will perhaps disclose to them the folly of such a course. So writes our worthy and excellent Sister Mrs. S. A. McKune.

THE RESCUE at only $1.25 a year. Send in everybody's name.

The addresses of the ministers removed by M. E. Conference have been rectified.

Subscribers this week: Davisville (Mrs. Barker) 6; San Bernardino, 1: Bro. Webb, (Guadalupe) 4: Noradell &c. H. S. Graves, 7: A. Albrecht S. F. 1.

Bro. Webb has not put in an appearance this week, further than sending 4 subscribers on the 30th, making 85 in the short time he has been in the field.

BOUND volumes of the 18th year of the RESCUE ending 27 October 1881, can be had for $2.00. Those desiring them will please order immediately, as they are only a few to be had.

Some rum sellers in England have been fined 25 cents for watering their spirits down 32 and 43 per cent. Same time one milkman was fined $50 for adding 22 percent of water to his milk and another $250 for adding 33 per cent.

TOO BAD.—Mr. Parker, an English clergyman who has been to see Mr. H. W. Beecher at Peeksville says in an account of his visit that the enemies of Mr. B. are a set of scoundrels too bad to be damned. It would be interesting to know how they will be disposed of. To be denied such a privilege as that is a pitiable case indeed.

SEE advertizement of our Good Templar Friend Geo. S. Lincoln; give him a trial: he is well and most favorably known in San Francisco and all his customers come to stay. Everybody in the country ought to patronize the honest grocer and not the poison vender, the soul killer who dispenses rum and rottenness and vice in the neighborhood.

I. H. Norton of Capay Valley Lodge reports a reviving interest. Being a dry region people move away frequently and membership is thus lost. Ten clearance cards have been lately taken out but were all deposited in other lodges, which is creditable to all concerned. Bro. Crowhurst's lecture has had a good effect, adding nine members to the lodge, and that institution hopes to keep pace with the improvement of the rest of the county which is resulting from the lecture efforts now in progress.

THE NATIONAL LIBERATOR publishes the following letter to its editor.

R. W. NELSON—Sir: I appréciate your great temperance work, and I desire to inform you that I discount the credit and character of any man who does business at my bank who is even a moderate drinker. More than this, no man or clerk is fit to pass upon any question of business who spends his money or even his time in saloons, or endorses the liquor traffic, Men who do my bussness must know right from wrong. A BANKER.

At Kingston, Canada, a notorious hoodlum, son of a woman who keeps one of the partner institutions of the grogshop there was lately sentenced to one year and 360 days in the penitentiary for a villainous assult upon a young woman: in addition he gets 24 lashes to start in with and 24 at the end of six months. The first instalment of lashes was delivered a few days ago, the coward howling and begging piteously. Two other malefactors were lately flogged there and it is believed that hoodlums will not make a rush to that prison, as a favorite summer resort nor as the most enticing winter quarters.

DR. Delahoyd at the late Social Science session in England, could not accept the propositian that the use of stimulants should be altogether abandoned in medical practice. "He knew from experience that in the case of old people suffering from bronchitis and heart disease stimulants had been of value. He was in favor of giving them when he thot them necessary, but then only in the smallest possible quantities." Without believing the doctor correct in his opinion we can entertain his proposition with a profound respect for him and a thoro belief in his sincerity. His manner differs much from that of Dr. Bliss.

MR. A. Albrecht calls round on our people with samples of Stere oscopic Views by Kilburn Bros, Littleton N. H. They are of the finest quality of workmanship and the subjects have been selected with a facile and cultured taste. At a trifling expense you can have a dozen or two of these art luxuries and these things in a family tend largely to promote and cultivate a taste for the beautiful and a love for the good. They do an actve part in the education of the human family up to the coming standard when peace and goodwill shall reign in all our borders. Look at Mr. Albrechts pictures and select some for your home furniture.

AN Exchange recently had to decline some poetry of which this was a verse.

"Lets show by deeds of kindness
With hearts both brave and true,
That we ever will stand by them,
For our motto is rescue."

The author is comforted however with the reminder that "it is no disgrace" to be unable to cut and split and cord up good poetry, and "it does one no discredit to try." Lots of people would never have tried to run a paper if they had known before hand how they would have to hurt the feelings of their friends or readers by declining to publish the effusions which to their authors appear quite passable, but which if published would do no credit to author or journal.

At a public demonstration in Oxford on the occasion of the annual meeting of the National Band of Hope Union in September, the Rev. Forbes Winslow A. M. said he was a member of the Church of England Temperance Society and of the United K. Alliance. and that he was also a member of what he considered to be the most perfect temperance society in its organization on the face of the whole earth, he Good Templars. What a pleasant contrast such a Christian as that is to the microscopic soul which takes refuge in an undignified whine of regret because his conscience will pull him back from joining a "secret society": and so he casts his lot and his influence and his vote and his conscience and his soul in with the drunkard maker and the unclean frogs and antichrist.

WHICH pays the better? Here are some figures for those who are continually telling us that distilleries are the farmer's best friends, as they ensure him a good price for his corn.

James Redpath planted ten acres in corn which yielded him 600 bushels. He owed taxes on the land for last year, $20. He paid 3 cents a bushel for having it taken to the distillery, making $18. He sold it for 25 cents a bushel, making $150. Taking ont the taxes and the expenses of getting it to market, he had remaining $112. Herman Hillhouse planted the same number of acres and had the same yield. His tax was also $20. He fed 30 hogs until they weighed 300 lbs. each, making 9,000 pounds, which he sold at 4 cents per pound gross, bringing him for the lot $360, and leaving in his crib several bushels of corn. Moral—feed hogs, not help to make them of human kind.—Signal

And one thing more; that $360 worth of hogs became food for hard working men and sustained and enabled them to produce some other article of food or merchandise, many thousand dollars in value. The corn made into whisky made a good many men worse than hogs. That large quantity never enabled one man to do an hours work or produce a dollars worth of food or property. It probably caused twice $360 loss of time and labor: perhaps caused lots of men to beat their wives, commit crime and go to prison. Perhaps a murder trial or two and any number of arrests came out of it. Mr. Hillhouse acted the part of a good citizen: Mr. Redpath that of a destroying angel, a plague, a pestilence, a betrayer and a curse to his fellowmen; and he cannot plead that he sinned in ignorance.

TAKE HOLD AND LIFT.

"Take hold and lift!" Why stand you here,
With idle hands and folded arms—
When valiant hearts are chilled with fear
And danger rings her dread alarms!
From ruined homes the cry is heard,
From ruined hearts the wail comes up—
From ruined hopes the plaintive word
O, save us from the deadly cup,
Thru North and South, thru East and West,
Destruction rages fierce and swift:
No time for play, no room for rest,
Roll up your sleeves. "Take hold and lift?"

Take hold and lift?"—the Buckeye State,
Personified before you stands,
Lamenting now her helpless fate,
With shackled feet and fettered hands.
The chosen ones to whom she gave
Her royal seal, have proved untrue;
Herself and children both enslaved.
They cry to her—she cries to you,
She pleads for servants wise and just,
With hearts of truth, and brains of thrift,
Whom none can doubt, whom all may trust,
Go, send them out—"Take hold and lift!"

Columbia's "Genius" lifts her hand,
Imploring, gainst the demon's bowl;
And weeps to see her goodly land,
In bondage to his dread control—
He snares the humble and the great,
Unawed by station or degree:
He revels in her hall of state,
And stains her nation's royalty.
She pleads for statesmen true and bold
In honor, worthy of her gift,
Men who are neither bought nor sold.
Go, seek them out—"Take hold and lift!"

"Take hold and lift?"—Almighty God,
Is calling too for Christian zeal—
He marks the shadow, dark and broad,
That scowls upon His Kingdom's weal.
An ebon cloud of storms and night,
Vailing his church around, above—
It shuts His children from the light,
And bars them from a Father's love.
The heathen robe is in the tent
The heathen treasures there concealed:
On all the host defeat is sent,
And Israel's dead are on the field,
Prepare the "Lot" whosejust decree
Shall treason from the loyal sift,
That Zion's song again may be
Jehovah leads—"Take hold and lift!"

"Take hold and lift!"—The mystic band
Of human kinship none may shun;
Woven by an Almighty hand:
It ties you to the suffering one,
And thru its golden cords to-day.
Both charity and duty call—
"Tis yours the crimson flood to stay,
Or answer for a brother's fall.
Shipwrecked, from sober land afar,
And in the midnight storm adrift—
No beacon light nor friendly star—
Reach forth your hand—"Take hold and lift!"

CONSISTENCY.

WILL C. KING.

We are thoroly Congregational in religious matters. We love the principle and take pride in the spirit and institutions of this progressive denomination.

Of late we have felt that the organ of our church was misunderstood, and were not a little sensitive therefor, but rise now to second all that has been said heretofore, and to raise our own voice in remonstrance to such a stand being taken by a professedly Christian paper. In a late issue we find among the book reviews, many words of commendation for the Biblical Cyclopaedia and a half column quoted on this one question of wine alone. Here is what the ed. says in introducing the quotation:

"The article on wine is of a character calculated to disgust all possessors of that modern penny-wisdom which seeks to forward the great and glorious temperance reform by a sham scholarship and illegitimate methods. If anything ever could convince such people, we should almost entertain the hope that this might convince them. We copy (with slight condensation) its summing up as follows:"

Then follows the very lengthy article from which we clip some extracts. Whether we possess "penny wisdom (whatever that may be) or not we cannot say, but we do confess to not only disgust but keenest indignation at the falsities herein endorsed. The italics are our own.

1. As appears from the foregoing examination, the Bible makes no distinction between intoxicating and non-intoxicating wines—never refers or alludes to such a distinction. Yet wine is constantly spoken of in precisely the same way that corn and oil and milk are spoken of—namely, as a blessing sent by God for the use of man,

* * * * * * * *

The use of it is in one case distinctly prescribed by Paul to Timothy. Jesus Christ came, "drinking wine" as well as "eating bread," and in one instance miraculously provided a supply of wine when it was needed. We attach great importance religiously and theologically to these facts. Jesus was no ascetic. He gave no countenance to asceticism. By drinking wine—freely using the blessings of Gods providence—he testified against the error afterwards called Gnostic and Manichaean, which would attach impurity to that which enters the mouth and vindicated the liberty of his followers to use every creature of God as good and fit for food and to be received with thanksgiving by them as those who believe and know the truth." But this error repelled and this liberty asserted, none are obliged to drink wine or to eat meat if they prefer not. There is liberty on this side also. They may abstain if they choose. * * *

Moderation in eating and drinking is the broad Christian law. Abstinence from some kinds of food may become a duty under peculiar circumstances. Self-denial in relation to things lawful is often imperative. Wine is good; is a gift of God. It may be used with advantage, it may be abused, but not innocently or with impunity. * * *

3. There is no positive proof that the fluid used by our Lord in instituting the sacred communion was alcoholic; it is nowhere expressly called wine, but simply the fruit of the vine. That it was wine properly so called, however, is a fair presumption, from the fact that this was the customary liquor of the Jews in the passover meal, as we learn from the definite prescription of the Talmud "There shall not be less than four cups of wine."..... Therefore the use of any other fluid in the communion at the present day must be justified, if at all, from prudential considerations growing out of the modern temperance reform; just as we consider ourselves at liberty to vary the kind of bread [originally unleavened], the posture of the communicant and other unessential details to suit the convenience of the occasion and the parties, etc., etc.,

There is in all of the above such a tissue of absurdities, and so much can be said in contradiction that we approach them only puzzled what not to say Experience has shown us that wise men, yes, those possessed of pound rather than penny wisdom often say and do very wrong, disgusting and ridiculous things. For the writer to pit his opinion or poverty stricken learning against the wealth of erudition so clearly manifest in the first sentences of the above, would be assumption, hence we quote the words of Moses Stuart and Albert Barnes, men as worthy and as capable as the scornful editor of the Congregationalist, or even Messrs McClintock and Strong.

Prof. Moses Stuart says:

" 'Facts show that the ancients not only preserved their wines unfermented, but regarded it as of a higher flavor and finer quality than fermented wine.' There is no ancient custom with a better amount and character of proof than this.....My final conclusion is this—viz, that whenever the Scriptures speak of wine as a comfort, a blessing or a libation to God, and rank it with such articles as corn and oil, they mean—they can mean—only such wine as contained no alcohol; that could have a mischievous tendency; that wherein they denounce it, prohibit it and connect it with drunkenness and reveling they can mean only alcohol is or intoxicating wine.

"If I take the position that God's Word and works entirely harmonize, I must take the position that the case before us is as I have represented it to be.

What then is the difficulty in taking the position that the good and innocent wine is meant in all cases where it is commended or allowed, or that the alcoholic or intoxicating wine is meant in all cases of prohibitiou and denunciation?

Rev. Dr. Albert Barnes says:

"The wine of Judae was the pure juice of the grape, without any mixture of alcohol, and commonly weak and harmless. It was the common drink of the people, and did not tend to produce intoxication."

Would space justify we could continue these quotations indefinitely, but it is unnecessary. As to the reference to Paul's advice to Timothy, very well, what of it? It simply signifies that Paul knew Timothy to be a total abstainer, and advised him not to be so ascetic as to refuse its medicinal use. No temperance man within our knowledge denies to alcohol medicinal properties under certain conditions, even as many other poisons boast. Is it altogether clear however that Paul prescribed alcoholic wines? We opine differently. We learn from history that boiled grape juice was a very common drink for the sick and very refreshing. Which is more reasonable—that the great apostle suggested a drink containing an acrid irritating poison for Timothy's weak sensitive stomach, or the sweet unfermented wine so generally used?

But again our learned men echo the cry of an ignorant Jewish rabble who pointed to our Savior saying, behold a winebibber and gluttonous man. Listen to Dr. Jacobus whose wisdom and candor all educated persons must admit:

Commenting on the wine made by Christ, he says:

"This wine was not that fermented liquor which passes now under that name. All who know of the wines then used will understand rather the unfermented juice of the grape. The present wines of Jerusalem and Lebanon, as we tasted them, were commonly boiled and sweet, without intoxicating qualities such as we here get in liquors called wines. The boiling prevents the fermentation. Those are esteemed the best wines which are least strong."

In striking contrast to the words under consideration are Dr. Patton's clear cut remarks as follow:

"The Savior did not turn aside from his work to clear himself from the charges which malignity and falsehood brought against him. He simply said: "Wisdom is justified in her children'—that is, 'My work and my character will ultimately shield me from the power of all false accusations Those who know me will not be affected by them, and those who hate me will not cease from their calumny.' "

(Concluded next week.)

JOHN B. FINCH'S SPEECH.

"INDICTMENT OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC."—AT LAKE BLUFF, ILL., AUG. 27, 1881.

[National Liberator.]

So whenever you force the beer advocates in this country to first principles they will disavow their connection with the fruits of the traffic, and preface their statement with, "I am a temperance man." Why dont they come out and say, "I am a beer man; I would rather have a boy who would get drunk; I would rather have a wife who would get drunk? Why dont they stand up to their business instead of sneaking and crawling.

Comparisons bring out colors. Compare the traffic with other trades. The liquor men will admit that a minister is just as good as a saloon-keeper as long as he behaves himself as well. Then write with the propositions already stated, the principle of political economy taught us when we were boys at school; that there are but three ways of getting money or wealth—make it, have it donated to you, steal it. Some would say find it, but you cannot base a principle of political economy on chance. Change the form and it is in this shape, without making it or having it donated to him, any man who gets money is a thief. In the course of honest business, every man is bound to render a fair bargain in an honest trade, although it may be an unpopular doctrine in this country. I say I have no sympathy for the accursed thing called sharpness, that lies to a man in a trade, and then laughs about its trick, it is no better than stealing. I would as soon a man would steal 25 cents from my pocket book as to lie to me in a trade and get it that way. When I have taken a man's word, it hurts my faith in humanity to find my trust betrayed. You hire a minister, you pay him money, (that is, I suppose you do,) the minister is hired just as any other man is hired, and you expect he will give you value received for the money he gets. I hire a minister, or help hire one, on the same basis that I hire a man to dig a ditch. I expect him to do good work, if he does not, I will turn him off and get a new one as soon as I can; but when he is hired I am as much bound in honor to pay him what I agree to pay him as I am bound to pay a fellow who undertakes any work for me. You hire a minister and pay him if you are honest; a man who will cheat a minister is just as big a knave as a man who will cheat a merchant. I suppose you men down here always pay your ministers, they dont up in my country—unless they accept promises to pay. I call the minister up here and say to him, "you get money now, sir, tell the people what you give them for the money they pay you; show them what you give them. Mr. Minister, they dont pay you for preaching, altho it is pleasant and instructive to listen. They dont pay you just to run revivals, tho it is a good thing to take the minds of the people away from this world to the future; and let me say here by way of digression, it has been my experience as an attourney, that you can collect debts after a revival, that were not worth 10 cents on the dollar before. The religion of Jesus Christ does make men honest. A town could afford, for the sake of business alone, to run a revival once a year. But, Mr. Minister, you are not living for to-day, for to-morrow, for next week, for next year; will you come up here now and justify your work? We dont want you to justify it by boys, by middle-aged men; we want you to come up here by the death-bed of the Christian and tell us, sir, if you will defend yourself there. Would not he come and say, "That is just the test I want to try, I dont want you to try me by the sunshine Christians who work for the Lord on Sunday, and the devil the rest of the week. Not by the people who are in the church as an assurance society to keep from burning after they get on the other side, but I am willing to be judged by that class of people who have loved God and kept his commandments; apply that test and I am satisfied." Altho this country is to-day ringing with the bitter tones of scoffers, the most fanatical infidel keeps his fingers off of such a test.

We want another trade, and we call to the school teachers to come up here. What do you give the people for what you receive? They pay you, and they expect that you will return value received. What do you give back? The teacher would come, and, calling up the educated merchant, doctor, lawyer and tradesman, would say: "This is the result of my work." She would reach out her hand to the religious teacher, and say: "Educated conscienciousness and educated intellect is the only basis on which this government can stand.

Let me say to you people, too, if I may say it in a temperance talk, that I believe in this country any system of education that does not educate the morals as well as the intellect, is a fraud and a failure. Come with me out to the frontier of this nation, and I will show you graduates from the Eastern colleges that have fled there to avoid the effect of crimes committed in their former homes. They are vile and devilish. To make a symmetrical man or woman, the moral nature must be developed with the development of the intellect.

We want another trade, and we shout out to the blacksmith. We say: "You get money, come up here, and bring up a specimen of your work." He would come, and, holding up a horse-shoe, would say: "Here is my work. Every time I put it on a man's horse he is better off, and I am better off, if he pays me." We stand him alongside the minister and teacher, and we call up a milliner to represent the ladies, and we say to her: "You get money, and it is a mighty important question to us married men what you give back." She comes up, and holding a finished hat or bonnet, says: "I made that—isn't it well done ?" Altho men make sport of these hats and bonnets, yet we are free to confess that our wives look a little prettier when they have them on, and when we take the thing and look at it, almost trembling, fearful lest we crush it, we realize that we could earn the money to buy it in a day, and with our clumsy fingers we could never make it; so, we make up our minds it is a necessity, and we pass her over with the rest.

Now we have them, but we want one more—the man of the dramshop in this state. "Come up, sir. You said a minute ago the minister was as good as the saloon-keeper, if he behaved himself as well. If the minister is just as good you must get into the same scales of political economy where we have weighed him. Now dont plead the baby act, but come. You dare not come ? Do you hesitate ? You get money, you toil not, neither do you spin, and yet few workmen can wear such clothes as you do. What are you giving back for what you get? Come up here, sir, get in; or, what is better, come up, bring a finished specimen of your work and hold it up here for the crowd to see, and show us its fine points! What would he bring? What does the Dramshop manufacture? What has it always manufactured? It has always manufactured drunkards, first, last and all the time. A dram-shop keeper is as distinctly a drunkard-maker, as the man that makes shoes is the shoemaker. That is all he ever did make, that is all he ever will make. Show me a first class sample of saloon work. Could you induce a saloon-keeper to come up here and hold it up? What does he say? You say to him, "You make drunkards." His very first excuse is, "I wont have any old drunkards hanging round me." If it is a good thing to make a drunkard, a drunkard must be a very good thing after he is made. Suppose, ladies and gentlemen, the minister should come here and give a reason why his church should be endorsed, that he didn't have old Christians around his prayer meetings. Would not that be a good advertisement for the Christian religion! That they did not want these men, that they were so old they were ashamed of them.

I saw by the papers that at the Des Plaines camp meeting they had called together on the platform all the old men and women who had been in the Christian service 50 years, and there was a crowd gathered around the platform to hear their testimony, and the paper stated that the feeling pervading the audience was wonderful. Why dont the drunkard-makers come up here and call up a number of their veterans—a number of men whom they have worked on for ten, fifteen or twenty years, with red noses, bleared eyes, ragged clothes, toes creeping out of their shoes? Bring them up here and then stand up and exhibit them, (opening the Bible)—let the saloon-keeper now act as end man in this show—open the Bible and read: "No drunkard shall enter the kingdom of heaven," and then call on them to testify. By their evidence we are willing to stand or fall. Why dont the drunkard makers do it? Is their business so mean, so low, so devilish, that when they have broken down a man who has stood by them thru thick and thin, when he has given his money, character—everything, they kick him out, and say: "We dont want any old drunkards around us!" The business is afraid to meet its record. Such is the evidence in the case.

The temperance men must then continue to press the charges against the traffic, and work to perfect their plan of work against such a dastardly foe. Our work is to save drunkards, prevent drunkenness. Gentlemen and ladies, the temperance people believe in reaching down into the hole of debauchery and getting hold of the poor fellows; I say reaching with tears and prayers, and lifting and holding them up; but after we have got them out we believe in plugging up the hole so other men will not fall in—save the drunkard, and prevent drunkenness.

ALCOHOL AND FALSEHOOD.

It might be well for those who find fault with and dispute the assertions of temperance advocates, to remember that in the fifty years warfare that has been made upon their doctrines and methods by the defenders of the drink plague, they have never once been driven from a position assumed, never been defeated in an argument, never had to retract an assertion, never been once convicted of an exaggeration or untruth, tho such charges have been falsely made against them many thousand times. One after another the points formerly disputed have been invariably conceded by the intelligent world. Science, history, scripture, common sense and daily experience have all coincided every time in confirming every position of ours as to which they have been called to testify.

But as new discoveries are turned up and new ground occupied, the same opposition confronts us at every step, yet the same result will surely follow in the future as in the past. The truth will be vindicated as heretofore.

Dr. B. W. Richardson, the lookout man of our cause on the watchtower of science, in a recent address in which he urged that the work of the Divine and of the physician often are close together, used the following utterances which will be entirely new to some readers and will be at once accepted by many others as entirely consistent with their own observation.

"These thots recurred to me more forcibly than ever, when, a few weeks ago, I presided over those many meetings of the Medical Temperance Association, during which the question of the treatment of the habitual drunkard was so seriously and so ably discussed by men of all others best qualified to speak on such a matter.

I calculated that during the course of the debates as many as from eighty to ninety medical men were present, and tho they did not all speak they were all by training fully qualified to speak, and they acquiesced in or questioned, generally, that which was spoken. There were, of course, some differences of opinion, but taking it all in all there was a spirit of unanimity I have never seen before on every essential point, and on one point in particular, on which my short paper touches, there was a single voice. This point was both of a moral and physical kind, and it is for that reason I dwell upon it here.

Without any concert, and in purely spontaneous form, there was a consensus of opinion on this one observation, that whenever strong drink produces a permanent effect upon the human body, there is established in the affected person, perhaps unexceptionally, the habit of falsehood. No one had met with a dipsomaniac whose word could be relied on. Women or men, the members of the dipsomaniac class had to some extent, and too often to the saddest or extremest extent, forgotten the truth. This is so certain that falsehood becomes a part of the diagnosis, if we may so say, of these cases. The shame of the exposure of the untruthfulness fades away; the dislike to it, once probably, natural, honorable, and moral, fades away. It is as if the very knowledge of truth—as if the distinction between what is true and what is not true—had become utterly lost or forgotten. The most earnest appeal to all that is left good in these lost natures is rarely of permanent service while the practice, which is the bane is retained. They will confess their fault, their great fault; they will admit the offence in its utmost degradation; they will bewail with the bewailer the folly and the evil; they will criticise, as sharply as any, the same folly and the same evil as they see it in others; but so long as they adhere to the practice upon which their own conduct or habit rests, they will, in spite of all reason, remonstrance, solicitation, advice, keep on in their own course.

They are in a word, blinded from the truth, in so far as their own expression of it is concerned. They are, in another way like persons color-blind.

There are two modes of accounting for this remarkable phenomenon. It may be said that the habit of untruthfulness is begotten with, not of, the habit of intoxication. The habit may be looked upon in this light as a part of a general degeneration or deterioration of character. Again it may be said that the habit is begotten of intoxication. It may be looked upon in this light as an effect of the intoxication, in the same way as color-blindness may be the direct effect of a chemical, which like alcohol produces when taken into the body in large quantiaies, nervous aberration. Inscrutable as it may seem, and as indeed it is, I believe this last explanation of the phenomenon. I mean by this to express that a part of the diseased constitution produced by the repeated action of alcohol in the body is indicated by that loss of appreciation between the true and the untrue, which we call the habit of falsehood. It is a form of conscious falsehood, unconsciously uttered that is peculiar to itself, it comes on with the habit of alcohol; it passes off when the complete abstention from alcohol is secured, and when it is established in the alcoholically affected, it is not applied simply to hide the shame that attaches to intoxication, but extends to other acts which may be in themselves as innocent or commendable as they may be wicked and detestable.

I offer this view without the slightest wish to be dogmatic, and with my mind freely open to conversion or to any more certain and clearer explanation But the fact remains all the same for all our meditations, and I hope I have at least stated two positions which will not be controverted; the first, that clerical and medical functions meet on this border land most intimately; the second, that both functions are well and nobly discharged, when they serve to denounce with heart and soul, the systematic employment by the masses of the people of an agent which either by direct or indirect means, leads its victims into a definite vice, uncontroled and uncontrolable so long as the cause of it remains in operation—Church of England Temperance Chronicle.

LOBBYING.

The whisky distillers of the U. S. are going to make a strong fight to have congress reduce the tax on whisky from 90 to 50 cents, at this coming session. They are to have a powerful lobby and can afford without feeling it to use millions if necessary in buying votes. Hitherto this gang of thieves have been all-powerful in Washington; they have made Congress enact and amend laws at their dictation and have compelled two presidents to pardon, scott free, 7500 of them for offenses which would have heavily fined 7500 Methodist ministers or 7500 school teachers or merchants engaged in any honest employment, and would have given every one of them without remedy long years in the jails and penitentiaries, had they been guilty of the same crimes. Their crimes were defrauding the revenue of millions, smuggling whisky without payment of legal duty, and by means of perjury, bribing the officers of the U. S. Revenue Dept. &c.. &c. They were every one pardoned, most of them without the farce of a trial, while the great Christian philanthropist Wm. E. Dodge had to pay $272,000 without any remedy whatever, because without his knowledge, his clerks had made trifling, careless irregularities in custom house entries in a course of five years, thru which Mr. Dodge had short paid $200 of duties, and overpaid more than $1000; had actually wronged himself, and had never once dreamed oi defrauding the government.

The demand which this banditti of murderous lawbreakers make, is a gift of 40 cents a gallon on all the pauperizing, crime-producing swill poison with which they shall deluge the country with crime and misery. When the duty has been reduced the price of whisky has been continued just the same, the amount of the duty being added to their already enormous gains.

What they ask for now, is that 36 millions a year be deducted from the public revenues, and added to the billion with which they already tax the people, and to enrich the worst band of thieves and the most destroying, pauperizing, death-dealing pests that ever afflicted any country.

WESTMINSTER.—Bro. R. T. Harris, Deputy of Westminster Lodge writes saying: Our lodge is progressing finely. The enemy with which we had to contend has left, closed his saloon about six weeks ago, and Westminster still stands a temperance colony. Our returns will be larger this quarter as we initiate nearly every meeting.

Looking seriously at the proposition to have Mrs. Richardson associated with Mrs. Stevens to stump the state for temperance and the Sunday law and prohibition, it seems as if it would produce most excellent results. The idea meets with general approval so far as heard from.

VOTE ON CHANGE OF REGALIA.—The following lodges have during the past week, filed with the G. W. S., the returns of the vote had in their lodge on the question of changing the initiatory regalia of the order as required by the G. L. viz:

Nos. 25, 51, 107, 108, 112, 114, 127, 128, 133, 134, 137, 140, 144, 164, 166, 167, 171, 174, 176, 189, 192, 197, 201, 202, 203, 206, 209, 210, 212, 215, 216, 219, 223, 228, 230, 235, 236, 239, 248, 258, 260, 262, 276, 286, 293, 297, 298, 299, 303, 309, 320, 321, 331, 334, 340, 354, 366, 369, 382, 385, 388, 392, 393, 399, 446, 406, 412, 424, 429, 436, 452, 459, 460, 462, and 463.

QUICK WORK.—The journal of proceedings of the recent session of the Grand Lodge of California left the printers' hands on Friday of last week or in just three weeks from the date of close of the Grand Lodge, and has since been distributed to all entitled to receive it. The journal is the largest published, comprising 181 pages. The report is full and concise, and of unusual interest. Every word and syllable was carefully revised by the G. W. S., and the present journal for accuracy and typographical neatness excels. An official copy has been forwarded to each lodge deputy, with special instructions to deliver it at once to the lodge by filing it with the W. S. in open lodge at the next meeting after its receipt. A copy has also been forwarded to each representative who was present during the Grand Lodge session. Heretofore representatives elected, whether present or not have been supplied, but no authority being given to print a larger edition of the journal than usual, the growth of the order and consequent increase of representation required a restriction in the distribution, since but one thousand copies were printed, and these were nearly all consumed by the distribution of one copy each to every lodge; every representative present during the session of the Grand Lodge; the officers of the R. W. G. L. and G. L. of California; each G. W. S. in exchange, and complimentary copies to temperance and other newspapers. The journals mailed weighed 531 pounds and the postage paid thereon aggregated nearly fifty dollars at five cents postage per copy The appendix to the journal contains a list of all representatives and visitors present during the session of the Grand Lodge, a full record of all the transactions of the Executive Committee during the year; a summary of the quarterly returns for the preceding year of all lodges; an itemized exhibit of all the receipts and disbursements of the year in behalf of our Home for Orphans; tables of the organization of the Grand Lodge, showing all officers, whether elective or appointive, and the place of holding the annual sessions of the Grand Lodge from its organization to date, closing with a full and comprehensive index to the whole volume.

LECTURE LIST.—The R. W. G. L. has issued a list of qualified and reliable lecturers in each state with the intention of supplying a copy to every subordinate lodge, to prevent imposition. Copies were mailed with the last password circular to each lodge deputy in this jurisdiction, so far as the supply furnished by the R. W. G. S. permitted. His distribution of these circulars to G. W. S. is reported as having been based upon the returns of Grand Lodges to the R. W. G. L. for the previous year. At that time California reported 284 lodges, so that the supply was limited to that number, and the shortage was not discovered until during the time of mailing, when it was found to be a difficult task to mail 284 circulars so that each of 350 lodges should receive one. Since the date of mailing, by request, the R. W. G. S has kindly furnished forty additional circulars, all he can spare, and lodges or deputies not heretofore supplied, will be, so far as the number of circulars now on hand will permit, upon application therefor to the G. W. S.

CONSTITUTIONS.—A new and revised edition of the constitution and by-laws of Grand, subordinate and district lodges, together with rules of order and the digest of decisions, to include all amendments, changes and decisions approved at the last session of Grand Lodge is now in press and will be ready for delivery next week. The present edition will be known as the 1882 edition. It will necessarily be larger than usual and will probably make a book of 86 or 88 pages and will have appended blank forms for charges and trials, so that none need go amiss in this particular, and an index to all. It will be printed on tinted book paper as usual, and will be the fullest, handsomest and handiest edition of such a work extant. The price notwithstanding the additions etc. will remain as usual. Orders will be received at once from lodges and filled as soon as practicable. Many orders are already filled.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—It seems necessary to repeat that constitutional questions, whether from lodges or individuals must be addressed directly to the G. W. C. T's. office, as the G. W. S. cannot officially and will not otherwise answer such..... Application for the services of lecturers and all matters relating to lectures and Lecturers must also be addressed to the G. W. C. T., since the entire lecture work has been placed under his exclusive direction.....All matters relating to juvenile work and orders for juvenile supplies, whether rituals or badges, must be addressed to the G. S. J. W., Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras county, Cal. And after all this has been done, the G. W. S. will have sufficient employment to occupy every hour of each day.

ABOUT CHANGING THE REGALIA.—During the past week seventy-five lodges filed with the G. W. S. the result of the vote on changing the initiatory regalia of the Order from a collar to a metal badge. The seventy-five lodges reported an attendance of 2070 members of whom 1866 voted against the change of regalia and 62 in favor; 142 not voting. The result added to the lodges reporting during the previous week is, Lodges reporting 113; membership present 2984; voting against the change 2670; in favor of the change 111; not voting 203. But two lodges have so far favored the change by a majority vote. Independent Lodge No. 119 reported last week and Fairfield Lodge No. 320 which gave a vote of 11 to 17 with 43 members present, nineteen members not voting.

OPEN HOUSE.—On next Saturday evening the 5th inst. Siloam Lodge, No. 2 of Sacramento, will install its one hundreth corps of officers after a prosperous and continuous existence of twenty-five years. The lodge will keep open house on the occasion, and all friends of temperance whether Good Templars or not, will be welcomed. Neighboring lodges are invited to come and spend the evening with the mother of the Order on the coast—Old Siloam, No. 2.

PERSONALS.—During the past week the G. L. Office has been honored with a number of fraternal calls. Among others were Prof. Wm, Crowhurst and Rev. W. C. King, Grand Lecturers; Bro. Geo. Bramall ex G. S. J. W., of Laurel Lodge, No. 202, Haywards; Bro. Bluett of Soulsbyville Lodge, No. 340, Soulsbyville; B. H. Hoag, of Orion Lodge No. 224, Davisville, and J. T. Marr, P. G. W. M. of Tucson, Arizona.

A STRONG Editorial team. The Watchword says the Oxford Times is owned and directed by four brewers, one chaplain and a "hitter," who appears to use hammer and tongs rather than pen and ink. The Times is indignant that licenses to kill people were refused to six scoundrels merely because they were proved to be bad characters. It laments that their poor families may be consigned to the workhouse. but it dont pity the wretched families of their customers so often sent there.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Can a party be retried when once tried and acquitted? No.

Is it proper for a lodge to allow a discussion on charges after the accused has retired from the lodge? Yes: that is the only proper time to discuss the matter. The intent is that the accused shall not know who spoke for or against him.

Can a member who is in arrears for dues at the time a lodge surrenders its charter pay up such dues and obtain a clearance card? He can. The rule as found in section ten of Art. IV of the subordinate constitution should be liberally construed. Those in good standing include all who put themselves in good standing by payment of dues.

Can a member who has been notified that he is four months in arrears for dues come in and pay his arrears after the expiration of four weeks from such notice? He can, unless before he pays, the lodge has declared of record such member to have severed his connection with the Order. See Art. XII, Sec. 16, Sub. Con.

Does a member violate his obligation by selling a town lot when he knows that it will be used for the purpose of selling liquor? No.

Does it take a unanimous vote to enable the secretary to cast the ballot on election of an officer? It does.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Golding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

H. R. HUGHES.

At the close of the G. L. went to Petaluma. Met with Harmony Degree Temple, consisting of members from seven lodges and spoke in the Congl church on Monday evening, thus demonstrating that the rumor that the church was closed against temperance lecturers is a mistake.

I spent a few days in the city arranging for a fall campaign, got marching orders and reached Lathrop in time to find that one poster had been put up behind the door of the P. O.! As Mrs. Stevens was to capture the whole county of San Joaquin I left.

Watched Sisters Stevens and Richardson's method of capturing the children of Stockton.

Lectured in Lockeford Monday and in Washington, S. H. Tuesday. Spent two days in Campo Seco and organized Campo Seco Lodge with 26 charter members, making 13 lodges iu old Calaveras out of a population of nine thousand. Who can beat it?

Drove all night to get home and found the angel of death here to summons my brother's infant child, 11 weeks old from earth away.

We start the present year with brighter prospects than ever before. We ought to get 150 new lodges, and hold and build up the great majority of the 340 we now have.

I confidently expect 25000 members by next G. L. and if the workers of our Order will only hold up the hands of Sister Richardson, our juvenile army will muster ten thousand strong.

Give us Sister Stevens' long pull and the strong pull from the beginning of this year. Let us aim high, press on with a courage inspired of God, with a purpose that knows no faltering and a faith and energy that will insure us a certain victory.

Angels, Oct. 23, 1881.

HORNITOS, Oct., 30, 1881.

Started South the 25th, met the "Man from Bodie," near Sonora, still in love with Webster unabridged. After driving 10 miles through the rain, sent a telegram to Groveland cancelling appointment. Got to Coulterville on time, but owing to the storm but few were out. I organized this lodge a little over a year ago. The town had a hard name but the lodge has done a noble work; their fine new hall is an honor to the place, and they have nearly 60 members. At Lebrights, they had me booked to speak in two different places four miles apart. So I did not get a lodge started, as I hoped. Wine is cursing that locality. At Merced Falls, the lodge turned out in regalia, and we h ad a very pleasant meeting. This is a small lodge but one of the pluckest in the state.

Last night at Hornitos, a fair audience; 13 names for a lodge. Return in a week to try for more so as to organize.

Hornitos has been a hard place; but a few good people have been true Templars during the three years the lodge has been dead.

Mariposa Co. will soon have six lodges and a District lodge. It is only a matter of time. Their young people are wheeling into line and joining the Grand Army of Good Templars who are "toiling on" to redeem our golden state from the curse of rum.

W. CROWHURST.

WOODLAND, Yolo Co. Oct. 29, 1881.

Rousing, enthusiastic meeting at Blacks Station. 80 members in good standing, 4 more elected and 14 more propositions and lodge only six months old. One saloon closed, another about to close—then but one left. Delegation from Dunnigan present and aided in the success.

Davisville turned out a goodly number and listened very attentively and earnestly to an address of one hour and forty minutes. After this we visited the Grand Worthy Secretary and found him in the midst of business.

Visited Capital Lodge and found earnest work for Bands of Hope. Bro. Sam Katzenstein proving himself alive to the interest of the children.

All the way from Sacramento to Capay at the special request of its delegates to district lodge, but found no meeting—only Bro. Brown, L. D. and one other together with the L. D. and P. W. C. T. of Madison. Time and money wasted.

At Knights Landing (Grafton,) we found an earnest set of brothers and sisters, had two good meetings and obtained several propositions. A Band of Hope will soon be organized and the children permitted to work in this cause beside our earnest adult workers. Gather in the children.

C. N. GOULDING.

I wrote you that I should commence work in Tuolumne and arranged with Bro. Holland D. Deputy for lecturers in various parts of the county. The rain prevented the lectures at Columbia on the 25, 26 and 27. 28 and 29, lectured in Soulsbyville to large audiences, and found there the banner lodge of the county. My visit there will long be remembered, especially the "Midnight Lunch" at the house of a brother who "looks like me." Sunday 30th, 2 P. M., visited Confidence Lodge; found them strong in the faith, and Sunday evening addressed a large audience iu Sonora in the Methodist Church. Whisky has a strong hold (20 saloons), shall lecture here a few nights, and hope for good results. I go from this county into Calaveras Co. Have sent you list of appointments, which will be filled as far as possible. Send me next Rescues at Milton.

ABOUT SPELLING.

Several persons have expressed themselves afflicted because the RESCUE spells a few words reasonably and not absurdly and falsely. People who are good spellers have not made any serious objections; but the most of what little noise has been made is by people who cannot spell pork safely, without consulting a dictionary to see whether that depository of nonsense puts an a, u or c into it.

People who admit that our system of spelling is a monstrous absurdity, an inexcusable and unjust imposition upon the rising generation, and has not one redeeming or palliating grain of usefulness—yet object to one man or one paper making a change till every body else does—which would be never. That argument would have drowned this world in rum and death if applied to the drinking customs. "One man should never give up rum and tobacco and opium till the whole Chinese Empire and the world has consented to start fair," they might as well say.

It is amusing to hear people setting up as authority on spelling who cannot spell anything at all themselves. And it is folly to talk of preserving a system of infernal hieroglifics, in which only a few printers, a few of the teachers, a few lady writers and an editor occasionally, can approach to accuracy and which a very large proportion of our most intelligent, talented, educated and cultured men and women could never accurately learn in a school course of fifty years: and thousands could never learn at all without having their brain remodeled and some useful part of it changed off.

The speller of the RESCUE is one of the lucky ones who can remember how about every last word in more languages than one is spelled in the dictionaries: and has never had to consult an English dictionary to spell since school days: but there are few ministers, lawyers, judges, merchants or others, who can write a letter as long as this without getting aground on such a word as irrelevant, parallel, traveler, believed &c &c. And that they were not fitted out by nature with an observant faculty of remembering these nonsensical useless inconsistencies, does not in the least impugn their capacity or scholarship or fitness for all useful and noble occupations.

It is time that all consciencious people should clamor against this abominable unsightly nuisance and give the young people at school a chance to save a year wasted now of their school days and devote it to useful study. Every child should be taut to spell the whole language in two weeks; and to bring about such a reform only wants an active movement of a very few people, to set it in motion.

The Monitor Journal says that on the 18th Oct, at Palestine, Hancock Co. Ind. the saloon of Heffner and Walker was completely demolished by dynamite or powder. No matter which, we can all heartily say, the Lord be praised for his mercies and may they be multiplied exceedingly. Kansas ought to Lompoc every one of its outlawed saloons. Lawsuits are harassing and persecuting and create illfeeling. A hundred lawsuits dont stop illegal selling sometimes, but one bombshell is generally sufficient. Dynamite in some instances may be made an efficient peacemaker.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. E. Richardson, Murphey's, Calaveras Co., or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

FOUR DOCTORS.

In the place where the greater portion of my schooldays were passed there were four doctors. It was a settlement on both sides of an eastern river, consisting of several small villages with farms and dwellings scattered between them. There were good roads, but the river which then was not bridged was the principal highway.

One of our nearest neighbors was Dr. M., a well educated and properly qualified physician, who in his young days had lost his left hand by the bursting of a shot gun. He was very kind to the boys, and we delighted to do any little service or errand for him. The doctor was a general favorite too with everybody. He was pleasant, kindly, cheerful, and a word or nod from him made a person feel better and happier. I always remember yet very kindly the men who used to be good to us boys.

But at intervals of one to four weeks the doctor had a spree: wonderfully jolly at first, he soon became very dangerous as he became more and more intoxicated. Kind and gentle always when sober, he would now strike a treacherous blow at a friend with his iron socket into which his fork when needed was screwed. His wife had then to flee to a neighbor's to hide from his gun or his knife.

One evening, while seeking his wife with a double barreled gun, he shot the minisier's dog at the feet of the minister's sister, and a few minutes after, meeting me returning from a day's shooting with a booty of six pigeons, he spoke pleasantly as always, (we were great friends) and went on. After we had separated perhaps 30 feet I heard his gun click, and looking around he was aiming at me, evidently going to shoot as soon as his unsteady aim covered me. There was no time to consider, my pigeons dropped and in a twinkling the doctor would have been badly shot, but when he saw himself in danger he lowered his gun quickly, and mumbled something, turned and went on, closely watched till he was at a safe distance. This adventure after it was over seemed to me a wonderful and heroic escape, almost equal to that of having passed thru a military campaign. Poor man, tho he scarcely staggered there was a bunch of white foam about his mouth: he was looking for his wife to shoot her, and would certainly have shot me if I had not instantly faced him.

A temperance society was tried and the doctor tried to be an abstainer, he became a changed man to the joy of every one. But several times after two or six or twelve months he broke thru and had his spree again. On one of these he got into a canoe in which were two boys, fell out and was picked up almost drowned, entirely motionless. It was after dark when he was fished out, and I saw them roll and work with him perhaps half an hour before he began to revive. We put him to bed and left him in charge of a nurse. I assisted thru the whole affair thus far by holding a lantern. Everybody was sure now that the doctor was permanently cured. He had a warning he would never forget. But he was into the village whisky mill again next morning at eight o'clock and was drunk next evening.

Again and again he swore off, and once after about fifteen months abstinence during which he had become a first class citizen and gentleman, he went into a hotel on a cold winters day: several people were seated in a room with a quart decanter full of brandy on the table. Ah, doctor, how are you? etc. take a little drop this cold day; and he did; just then a dog fight or a man fight occurred outside, and everybody but the doctor rushed out to see it. They returned, so they said, in five minutes; the decanter was empty and the doctor was dead.

Dr. P. lived about seven miles up the river; he used to come down in his own canoe. He had his regular sprees too. On one occasion he had started for home in his canoe with a five gallon jar of rum. Next morning he was found dead, having gone to sleep and perished in a wet cold night.

Dr. G. lived on the opposite side of the river from our village; he had his sprees quite frequently too and in one of them he was lost in a winter night snow storm, close to his house; was badly frozen when found and died next day.

Another Dr. G., his neighbor, soon after died in a terrible fit of delirium tremens.

These four lived and practiced there for years, and their deaths all occurred within four or five years. The next one who came there was for years a famous drunkard, but finally reformed. They were all when sober, gentlemanly men, considered excellent physicians, had been properly trained for their profession and were estimable men, but for that one terrible habit which enchained them all. No doubt each one of them was once the darling son of a good devoted loving mother. This is no fancy story, but the literal facts, which as well as all the parties noted were well known to me.

FROM DAVID C. COOK'S QUARTERLY.

SUBJECT—INTEMPERANCE AND POVERTY.

1. The drinking custom is largely responsible for poverty, pestilence, insanity, death and crime.
2. Drinking always tends to make people poor.
3. First—By costing them so much money for drink.
4. Second—By making them wasteful and foolish, so what they earn, they canhot keep.
5. Third—By making them shiftless, weak and sick so they cannot or will not earn as much money.
6. Fourth—by making them less likely to get or keep employed, for every employer is most apt to hire and keep sober men.
7. Besides the many poor people who live at home and who partly or wholly support themselves, there are kept in poor houses, hospitals, etc., three million five hundred thousand persons who have to be entirely supported by the country.
8. From those who have charge of these places we learn that seven-eighths of them came to be poor thru drink.
9. Official statistics show that the people of the United States spent over seven hundred million dollars for drink in 1880.
10. This would have given two hundred dollars to every person in the poorhouse and asylums.
11. To make the liquor there was wasted more than forty million bushels of grain, beside much other food which would have fed all the paupers in the country.
12. It took to make and sell it over five hundred thousand men who could have been at work building nice homes for people and otherwise helping the world along.
13. It took a great deal of money that could have been invested in many ways to develop and improve the world.
14. The time lost by drunkards and tipplers occasioned thru drink it is estimated would amount to nearly two hundred million dollars.

QUESTIONS.

1. For what five evils is drinking largely responsible?
2. To what does drinking always tend?
3–6. Give four reasons why drinking leads to poverty?
7. Besides the poor people that live at home, how many people are there in the poor-houses, hospitals, etc. of our land?
8. What do we learn from those who have charge of these places?
9. How much money was spent for drink by the people of the United States for the year 1880?
10. If what this liquor cost the people had been divided evenly among persons in poorhouses and asylums, how much would each have received?
11. What amount of food making material was wasted in making this liquor?
12. How many men did it take to manufacture this liquor?
13. What else did it take, and in what other way could this have been used?
14. What would the time lost by drunkards and tipplers thru drink have amounted to?

Truth.—Drink makes people poor.

Golden Text.—The drunkard shall come to poverty.—Proverbs 23: 21.

LESSON NOTES.

RESPONSIBILITY OF THE DRINKING CUSTOM.

The London Times sums up the whole matter as follows: The use of strong drink produces more idleness, crime, want and misery than all other causes put together.

In a message to the New York legislature, Governor Dix once said, "Intemperance is the undoubted cause of four-fifths of all the pauperism, crime and domestic misery of the state."

Governor Gaston of Massachusetts, in speaking of this subject says, "Intemperance has been the most prolific source of poverty, wretchedness and crime; it has filled the state and country with its destructive influences, and its progress everywhere heralds only misfortune, misery and degradation."

2.—DRINKING MAKES PEOPLE POORER.

The rich drink as well as the poor, but inasmuch as no equivalent in value is received for money expended for liquor, rich and poor alike are poorer by just that amount. The tendency is towards poverty, not towards wealth. The mass of very poor people are drinkers, or have been brought to that condition thru the instrumentality of drink.

3.—COST OF DRINKING.

A young man commencing at the age of twenty to drink in the strictest moderation (say three glasses per day for fifteen years, and four per day for the last five years), will have spent at the age of forty for beer which did him not one particle of good, but more or less injury, the sum of $1222.75 besides loss of time. Now if another young man commences at twenty, and instead of spending the money named for beer each year should put it out at six per cent interest, without any other savings but his beer money, he would be worth at the age of forty years $1,955, having saved his money, his character, his health and perhaps his soul.

4.—DRINKING MAKES PEOPLE WASTEFUL AND FOOLISH.

Many a man under the influence of drink carries home some useless trinket for his wife or children, when they need bread. Many a one pays double for what he buys, because he is too stupid to know that he is being cheated.

Drink deprives one of his judgment: under its influence he does and says things of which he would afterward be heartily ashamed, if he could remember.

5.—DRINKING MAKES ONE SHIFTLESS, WEAK AND SICK.

Perhaps you have seen some villages where most of the people drink. The houses are out of repair, the fences and the gates are broken down, the cattle are half-starved, the fields and the gardens are neglected, and nothing seems to prosper—nothing but the source of all this ruin, the saloons.

6.—DRINKING MEN ARE NOT DESIRABLE EMPLOYES

Abstinence from stimulants makes a man's mind clear, his arm strong and his nerves steady. This is the kind of a man to be depended on, the kind of a man an employer will be likely to hire, and the kind of a man a hard drinker can not be.

In large business establishments or corporations do you find habitual drinkers occupying the places of trust? No, because their judgment is not to be relied upon when under the influence of rum; neither are you always sure of finding them in their places. How extremely careful our railraad companies are that no drunken engineer should have charge of a passenger train. A large proportion of accidents may be traced to a switchman stupid from too much bad whisky, a rash engineer crazy from drink, or a pilot or captain bereft of his better judgment from the same cause.

It would be well if all our boys could know and appreciate what a demand there is for sober, clear-headed men in all branches of industry.;

7–8.—EXTENT AND COST OF PAUPERISM.

You need not go to our poor houses to find the most distressing cases of poverty. The back streets and alleys of our great cities show the most appalling cases of suffering and want to be found anywhere.

It is not the drinker alone who suffers, but it is estimated that at least six hearts on an average carry a life long, overshadowing dreary sorrow for every victim alcohol controls. The undertone of all family and social life is largely silent sorrow and dreary heartache over the victims of alcohol. In this the rich and poor suffer alike, only the wealthy are better enabled to hide their sorrow and shame from the world.

Statistics on the subject of the cost of supporting the paupers of our land are very incomplete.

In the almshouses of Pennsylvania, during the year 1871, $791,987.07 was spent. Beside this amount $156,325.42 was spent for the relief of poor people not wholly supported by the state. This amount does not include the amount spent in private charities, which in the aggregate, amounts to a considerable sum.

9–10—OUR COUNTRY'S LIQUOR BILL.

Statistics show that it would be far more economical for the government to maintain the liquor dealers in idleness and forbid their trade entirely than to receive all the taxes they pay for the right to impose the criminals, the paupers, the idlers, and the diseased upon the body politic for support.

11—AMOUNT OF FOOD WASTED.

The farmers who get a trifle more for their grain from the distillers, often ask the question, "If temperance prevails what shall we do with our grain ?"

A temperance speaker was once interrupted with this question, when he replied promptly, "Feed the drunkard's wife and children with it. They have gone hungry long enough.

Every particle of material that is converted into intoxicating drinks is so much wasted.

12.—NUMBER OF MEN EMPLOYED.

Our poor people need better houses, better furniture and better clothing. If all the men employed in the manufacture of intoxicating drinks should become brickmasons, carpenters, etc., labor would be cheaper, and consequently all necessaries of life would become cheaper, hence we could all have more of them.

The following persons are non-producers, and if non-producers they must be supported at the expense of others: Manufacturers of intoxicating liquors, 40,000; retail liquor dealers including clerks, 510,000; drunkards, 600,000; paupers, 300,000; criminals 200,000; insane and idiots, 20,000; police 30,000; total 1,700,000.

13.—AMOUNT OF MONEY INVESTED.

Intoxicating drinks are not only unnecessary, but the money spent for them is so much capital taken from those branches of industry that add to the growth and the prosperity of the nation.

Thus the very poor would be enabled to procure the necessaries of life, and the better class many of the luxuries. By this means homes could be made more attractive and society in consequence much improved.

Not only does the money expended for liquors give the least amount of labor in proportion to the capital swallowed up in their purchase, but experience proves that while the user of them is impoverished, those that it employs are also most generally debauched and ruined.

14.—LOSS OF TIME CAUSED BY DRINKING.

There are 600,000 habitual drunkards in the United States. If they lose half their time it would be a loss of $150,000,000 to the nation in productive power, and in wages and wealth to both the nation and themselves every year. Beside this Dr. Hargreaves has estimated that the time lost by the 1,403,323 tipplers in the United States in one year would amount to $146,849,592, and he adds that investigation will show this large aggregate is far below the true loss.

NOTES FROM THE GENL. SUPT.

A HINT FOR BANDS OF HOPE.

"Murphys Band of Hope on the 23rd of Sept. gave a social. Mrs. Rhodes our Supt. opened her house for the occasion. A program was prepared, consisting of dialogues, recitations, readings and songs; a collation of cake and fruit was donated; tickets were sold for one dime each; result—a pleasant and profitable evening for old and young; renewed interest in the Band, and fifteen dollars in the treasury.

At the last regular meeting, it was decided to send for David C. Cook's "Band of Hope" Quarterly—a sufficient number to supply each family represented with one copy.

Our Band is striving to win the banner of our Co. We aim at the largest attendance, most interesting meetings, and smallest loss. Every member seems willing to do his or her part and we are bound to win." A MEMBER.

Murphys Band is on the right track and as far as heard from, is the first to send for Quarterlies. Who comes next?

For the benefit of those who have not seen this Quarterly I will describe it. It is arranged like those for Sunday Schools, with 13 lessons on Intemperance, Tobacco and Profanity. It also contains suitable songs, both words and music, and introduces the plan of working in the form of a school similar to the Sabbath School. It costs but two cents each copy, per quarter. It fills the requirements of the Band of Hope and no doubt will be of great benefit.

I would like to hear from each Band of Hope in this jurisdiction. The office conferred upon me, is one of great responsibility, and unless I have the co-operation of all interested in juvenile temperance, it will be impossible for me to fill it with satisfaction to myself or others; but if all concerned (and every Good Templar is, or should be concerned, in this department,) will, as Sister Stevens says "give a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether," this year may be one of greater progress than ever before.

"Be firm and bold, be strong and true, and dare to stand alone;
Determine now the right to do, tho helpers you have none.
Stand for the right, proclaim it round, thou'lt find an answering tone,
In honest hearts, and thou no more be doomed to stand alone.

AUTUMN GLORY.

BY MRS. MARY E. KAIL.

October waves a proud farewell,
With trailing robes of crimson splendor,
And presses with her jeweled hand,
The trembling hand of chill November,
Then bending closer whispers low,
In words of more than summer sweetness,
Behold ! the promise of the land
Now garnered in its full completeness !

White curtains drape the western sky,
Embroidered with the gold of heaven,
While from the amber-tinted folds
A balmy breeze is softly driven,
A robin sings a parting song,
And sets the wooded hills a-ringing
While from trellis at the door
The jasmine bells are grandly swinging.

Tall spikes of feathered goldenrod
Are pointing with their jeweled fingers
Across the emerald fields of wheat,
Where the rich kiss of summer lingers.
The sun looks on with raptured gaze,
And like a fond, devoted lover,
He kisses with impassioned grace
The blushes from late blooms of clover.

Now comes the blissful hallowe'en,
When holly-branch, a gift possessing Reveals the future yet to be,
Endowing life with every blessing,
The blushing maid, with guileless heart,
Turns pale with transport to discover
Reflected in her looking-glass
The features of her own true lover.

Pale violets down beneath the sod,
Have closed their eyes so sweetly tender
To dream of a returning spring
Regardless of a bleak November
Nature, still truthful to the last,
Confirms the oft repeated story
That splendor of the summer time
Can ne'er compare with autumn glory.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

David C. Cook has recently opened, at 148 Madison St. Chicago, a Revolution Temperance House, and we are amazed at the amount he offers for a little money. He furnishes excellent and unique material for educating the children. It is a grand work. We advise all to send for samples and buy what they can afford. A little money expended in this way will hardly be missed, and will do you and others much good.—Prohibitionist, Lewiston, Me.

A number of ministers lately removed to new charges. Those who desire the continuance of the RESCUE, will please send a postal card advising their new address, Otherwise we have no means of knowing the changes made.

A young man of strict habits and good education, and having every endorsement required, desires a situation in a mercantile establishment as assistant book-keeper, accountant or salesman. Apply to C., RESCUE Office.

REQUISITES FOR A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

The Temperance Schoool $0.05

However dark the way seems, if you love the children and wish to save them, and at the same time to train up workers for temperance send for the above and learn what can be done. Then if you wish to learn how to do it, send for the following list:

1 Catechism on Alcohol, 05.
1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, 25.
1 Ripples of Song, 15.
1 Manual Set (Illustrated Tracts), 08,
All sent for 50 cents.

When you have studied these, prepared the way and fixed upon the time for opening the school and decided how many scholars you will probably have, send for catechisms enough to supply one to each scholar, to whom they may be either given or sold, price per hundred, more or less, $5.00

Ripples of Song, per dozen, 1.60

For any number less than one dezen, each 15 cts.

The above are essential while the following are extremely desirable.

Children's Illustrated Tracts, one each for each scholar, per 100, 20 cts. Postage per 200, more or less, 05

Ladder tickets, per hundred, more or less, 1.00

1 manual for each teacher, each 25c.

Chromo Test-Cards, for rewards, per hundred, more or less, 1.00

Youth's Temperance Banner, four or more copies per year each .12.

The superintendent will find it desiradle to have the following.

1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, cloth, .60
1 Alcohol and Hygiene, .60
1 Temperance Lesson-Book, paper, 25 cents, cloth, .50.
1 Temperance Physiology, paper, .50.
1 Pathology of Drunkenness, .05
1 Bacchus Dethroned, paper 50 cents, cloth 1.00
1 Medical Temperance Journal (one year) 1.00
1 Brown's Physiology, 1.25.

While all the above are very useful, the more desirable have the higher place on the list.

If money is available, it will be wise to aim at having a Loan Library.

TEMPERANCE LOAN LIBRARY.

The following valuable temperance publications are cordially recommended for all Woman's Christian Temperance Unions, to own and keep at their headquarters, for the purpose of loaning to ministers, physicians, lawyers, women and all others in the community who will read them, with the view of producing individual conviction, and educating a sound public opinion upon every phase of this question.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

MONOPOLIES.

Previous to the completion of the Pacific railroad system, sharp traders were in the habit of buying up and monopolizing all there was of certain articles in this market, and then selling them out at an enormous price, which consumers were obliged to pay. Coal, flour, coffee, carpet tacks, nutmegs, mule trace chains &c were thus cornered by speculators. But the railroad was to do away with all these unpleasant things: whereas the railroad managers have monopolized all the sources of supply and communication except via Cape Horn, and have vastly increased the burdens, to remove which the government gave them the means of building and equipping a railroad. The Chronicle says

"Of all the outrages of the railroad company the combination with the sugar refiners stands pre-eminent. For a subsidy of $100,000 they virtually permit the sugar monopoly to levy a tax of $800,000 annually on the people of this coast. If there is anything calculated to make people believe that the railroads should be taken possession of by the government it is just such an arrangement as this by which the robbery of consumers is made possible."

It is certainly a most irritating outrage, but it is by no means so bold a stroke of practical brigandage, as that of bribing the Pacific Mail Co. with a vastly larger sum to hire them to add 84 per cent to their passenger rates, and to double the rate of freight at which it would be profitable for them to do a carrying business.

There is now only one way to remedy these monstrous and high-handed exactions, which are not a whit above the moral level of the contributions made by the roving banditti of Mexico upon the defenceless ranchers there, at the mouth of the old flint lock musket.

That method is simply this, that the government or the people must own and manage their own railroads and telegraphs, and allow themselves fair transportation rates, in place of creating and multiplying a system of the most dangerous and treacherous tyrannies that ever oppressed a country or a people.

If private companies had been allowed to monopolize the post office routes and business, we should have had doubtless a ring of post office monarchs and millionaires and the postage of an inland letter would have been from ten to twenty cents and on special occasions would run up two or three hundred per cent. And sparse and distant settlements would have had no postal facilities at all.

Now there cannot be one valid argument used against the public ownership of railroads and telegraphs that does not exactly apply with equal force to the postal system. The latter is managed for the best interests of the people: the others are managed to wring the last possible cent of unjust and unfair extortion from them.

The postal system furnishes accommodation to the people at the lowest possible cost, and there is not, nor ever has been, a serious complaint of injustice or failure, except where an accidental thief has been foisted into the department by politicians and has been kicked out by the P. O. managers. The railroad and telegraph furnish accomodations to the people at an enormously exaggerated cost, and to the entire dissatisfaction of the whole population of the United States.

The first and last arguments against government ownership in railroads, telegraph, and bank interests are exploded. They were, that private individuals would manage these things better than government employees: and that the government should not compete or intermeddle with private enterprise. The post office management has emphatically disproved the first and the folly of the second is fully demonstrated in the patent fact that for seven or eight years Congress and the legislature of almost every state, have been occupied every year vainly trying in some way to protect the people against the blundering errors, the limitless greed, the traitorous combinations, the barefaced conspiracies and the bribe-laden corruptions of these tyrannical and thoroly unprincipled and heartless monopolists of the people's rights; these capable managers of the people's interests.

TOBACCO AND THE SCHOOL.

The San Francisco Courier [French] of Sep 20, says under the above heading: "Have you ever been present at the sessions of the San Francisco Police court? Have you seen the crowds of delinquents, men, women and children who come before that tribunal every day, to answer for crime and violence due to ungoverned passions? Have you ever visited the prison on Broadway, the basement of the old city hall, where are tumbled in pell-mell hundreds of miserable outlaws, enemies of society? Have you visited the industrial schools, filled with juvenile offenders whom school discipline and paternal authority fail to direct aright and whom philanthropy seeks to arrest in their downward career to crime. Have you ever visited San Quentin swarming with convicts, expiating the wrongs they have done to others? Have you seen at Stockton and Napa the asylums always full of unfortunates? Have you, after that, asked yourself whence can come all this ruin, all this mass of degraded, wrecked humanity, which so signalizes this present era.

It is not only at San Francisco that these sad pictures of our degeneracy exhibit themselves: everywhere we perceive a profoundly devastating evil. And wherever we may look for its source, we can find it most surely in two foolish indulgences, which are mastering us more and more, as the phylloxera and the oidium invade our plants and destroy them.

These two parasitic pests of humanity are tobacco and alcohol, which we could easily shake off, did we understand their degrading action upon the body and the mind.

It is then in turning the light upon these two enemies of our organism, that we may one day escape the abyss to which they are dragging us, leading our conscience captive and creating in us the most vulgar and unnatural appetites.

The passions for tobacco and alcohol are two maladies voluntarily acquired and very often incurable. Once they gain possession of the organism, the efforts of science. the counsels of morality, the will power even of the sufferer whom they consume, are unable to deliver him: an invincible power seems to push him to suicide, to put an end to the sufferings entailed upon humanity by its degeneracy.

The only remedy we can bring against these infirmities is that of prevention; making them known and teaching people to fear them. This is the means employed by modern philanthropy with science by its side. And to save the man, they address themselves to the child!

In France the anti-tobacco society, in the primary school, thru the careful aid of the teacher, spreads the light and the truth upon this poison plant, which returns so many pains and so much ruin to those who seek from it enfeebling and unwholesome enjoyments.

Certain philanthropists are beginning to apply in California this method of instruction, of which France already appreciates the benefits. All the pupils of the schools are invited to write a composition on the dangers of the use of tobacco, which leads forcibly, fatally to alcoholic intemperance. Prizes and medals will be publicly awarded to those who present the best treatises on this subject, the highest and most useful in which our youth can be interested; for it is that upon which depends all their future, the future of civilization.

If Nicotine makes such ravages among mankind, it is because it has never been known till our day, what tobacco really is. The science and experience of four centuries tell us. No one can better learn the truth of this matter than in the careful perusal of the two pamphlets of Dr. Depierris, which are extracts from his large work "Social Physiology," and translated for the use of our public schools by Miss Bertha B. Block of this city.

These two pamphlets which have been scattered broadcast in France, will give our California youth an exact idea of the Twin Evils, Tobacco and Alcohol, upon which they are required to write a classical composition. They are to be had at Bancrofts, at Gregory's 6 Post Street, or at the Rescue Office, price 25 cents each."

And they are very useful in any latitude of California, Oregon and W. T. and are calculated for any age between 12 and 91. Fifty cents expended in those two little tracts may save you five or ten dollars a month for life.

A NEW ORDER.

The National Temperance Relief Union is the name of a mutual assurance company whose headquarters are in Missouri. It has agents in California and its entrance fee is $8 or $10 which allows a liberal commission to its agents for securing members.

Mr. Brown the agent for California called at this office and suggested a favorable notice. The presumption is that it is a square institution and intends to do an honest business and extend its branches all over the nation. But with us at this distance, tho disposed to believe this, we have no certain knowledge of the facts of the case as to the capacity and integrity of its projectors and managers, If it is all right and people are assured of that fact, it is probably the best thing for those who are temperance people and not Good Templars and cannot join our Mutual Aid to avail themselves of its provisions.

But we have a mutual aid system run by our G. L. which we know all about: we know it is run without any expensive machinery and with the least possible expense: that its security, its business principles, and its entire reliability are beyond a shadow of a doubt. But if there are any Good Templars who think it better to pay $10 to somebody in Missouri whom they know nothing about, than to yay $4 to enter an institution of their own at home which has the most indubitable guarantees of fidelity and security, they may as well inquire into the new affair and if satisfied of its integrity go into it.

It is certainly a good thing for those who have dependent families or relatives to make some provision for them: it is quite as certain that our Mutual Aid if once started fairly will afford them the cheapest and safest mode of doing so.

There have been some malicious falsehoods used to prevent the success of our Mutual Aid; but the only argument worthy of note used against it by any member or friend of the Order, is the condition exacted of remaining a member of a lodge and keeping dues paid up. They can afford to do this—if they consider it a burden or tax to remain a Good Templar—and then be far less out of pocket for their insurance than they can in any society which insures moderate drinkers. That is, adding $6 a year for lodge dues to their benefit assessments they will have to pay much less on a $1000 or $2000 policy than other people do, who are insured in the drinking societies. And most of these require lodge membership, large dues and frequent outlay for suppers and heel music.

Our California Good Templars should rally at once, fill up the classes and put our excellent system at once on a par with any other in membership.

Everybody says it is time to vote for temperance now but nobody seems to be getting ready to present any rational mode of carrying out the process. Perhaps the best way is to wait till 2 or 3 days before next election as usual. We always succeeded that way in doing no harm.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

The intelligence of the judgment rendered by Chief Justice Morrison, tho long expected will be received with great satisfaction by all friends of morality, honesty and decency. And there will be mourning and gnashing of teeth in the dens of crime and infamy, and among those who draw their daily rations from those sources.

The subversion of the christian American Sabbath and the systematic attempt of an insolent faction of foreign outlawry, to trample under foot the institutions and traditions and the sacred things of the people, who have made a freeman's home possible for them in the world, deserve the application of a sumptuary and heroic remedy.

Whatever contest there may be in this matter of the enforcement of the Sunday law, it should be remembered that no one's liberty is being abridged: no one's creed or religious practice is coerced: no one denies that the rest of the Sabbath is necessary and healthful and helpful to all, and that its proper observance as a day of peace and rest and sober behavior is a source of untold blessing and has no harm or wrong for any one. There is no one to dispute the right too of the working men and their wives and their children to be protected for one day of the week at least, from the pirates and bandits and vampires which make this world, for so large a portion of the poor, a purgatory, desert of all pleasant things, and fruitful of curses and miseries.

This is a campaign which aims to let the sunshine of God come down once a week upon happy homes of the people with the bloodhounds of crime and plunder chained up for one day. It is to decide whether American freemen will stand up and defend American women, American institutions and the children of their homes against the murderous assault of a crew of howling foreign brigands, reeking with blasphemy and infidelity and inhumanity.

Let every worthy patriot stand up now for the right and force the first act of the drama which shall end in a saved and regenerated country; let us push the battle to the gates in favor of American institutions versus barbarian anarchy and infamy. And let those Americans who espouse the side of the howling red-nosed rabble of crime in its fight against American manhood, American womanhood and the children of America, stand up and be counted.

THE RESCUE.

For the purpose of running the circulation of the Rescue up to 10,000 in a very short time, the executive committee of G. L. have made arrangements to issue the Rescue at $1.25 a year, and to endeavor with a large circulation to make its advertising capacities available for its support. Every copy of the 3360 printed now, costs a little over three cents; and a year (52 copies), costs the publisher $1.62. But as the number printed increases, the cost per copy decreases; so that with a circulation of 10,000 the paper may be made to meet its cost, and with a consistent advertising patronage, may go on its mission without costing the Grand Lodge a cent of outlay in future.

It is hoped the clubs which renew henceforth will double their number and that large clubs will roll in from places heretofore not reached. There is only one temperance paper in the U. S. now, as low priced as the Rescue; let us all try to help make it such a journal as should represent this active and enterprising jurisdiction.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's Advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

Ventura Dist. Lodge will meet at Hueneme, 4th and 5th November, Grand Lecturer Webb, Sister Mary Guthrie and others are expected to take part and speak at the public meetings. Bro. Cadwell, fraternal delegate from Santa-Barbara Dist Lodge will also assist. A full representation and a very profitable time is looked for.

Butte Co. D. L. meets at Nelson, Nov. 9th, at 10 A. M.

The next regular quarterly session of the San Francisco D. L. will convene at Grand Central Hall Sixth and Market Sts. on Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 25th and 26th 1881, at 7:30 o'clock. All members of the Order from far and near are cordially invited to attend.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

CHIEF JUSTICE MORRISON SUSTAINS ITS CONSTITUTIONALITY—HOW AND BY WHOM IT WAS ASSAILED

A case has just been settled by the Supreme Court in which the so-called Sunday Law is sustained. The case in question was a petition for release under writ of habeas corpus, made by Isaac Burk, a Butte county saloon-keeper, who was found guilty and committed by Justice of the Peace Robert E. Warren of violating the law prohibiting keeping open saloon on Sunday for the purpose of transacting business therein. The section of the Penal Code (Section 300) under which the prosecution and conviction were had reads as follows:

Every person who keeps open on Sunday any Store, workshop, bar, saloon, banking-house, or other place of business therein is punishable by fine, not less than five or more than fifty dollars.

The case was heard by Chief Justice Morrison, who renders the opinion sustaining the law. The opinion is very lengthy and exhaustive. It answers the ground taken by the petitioner that the Sunday law is a special law and unconstitutional, as it is in violation of Section 25 of Article 1V, of the Constitution which forbids the enactment of special laws, by declaring that the law was framed and in operation before the adoption of the Constitution, and that the latter is not retroactive, but affects future legislation only. The Chief Justice does not, however admit that the Sunday Act is a special law in the sense indicated by the Constitutional inhibition. Another objection set forth by the petitioner was founded on Article I., Section 4 of the Constitution, which declares that "the free exercise and enjoyment of religious profession and worship, without discrimination or preference, shall forever be guaranteed in this State." After quoting a vast number of authorities on this branch of the case, Chief Justice Morrison sums up as follows.

I have examined the questions involved in this case at some length, because they are important and because there are many other cases similar in their nature which may possibly be determined by the views herein expressed. My conclusion is, there is nothing in the so-called "Sunday law," which in any manner interferes with the "free exercise" and enjoyment of religious profession and worship secured to all men by Section 4, Article I. of the Constitution.

The Chief Justice, consequently, dismissed the writ and remanded the petitioner.—Bulletin Oct, 31.

Lodi Oct 25th, 1881.

Editor Rescue:—We have been favored with another visit from Mrs. E. P. Stevens G. W. V. T. and never was she more heartily welcomed, nor her labors more highly appreciated or signally successful than upon this occasion.

It is simple justice to the Lady to say that each visit to Lodi has but added to the reputation accorded her of being an earnest and eloquent lecturer, and a true friend and eminently successful solicitor for "The Home for Orphans."

Mrs. Stevens first meeting upon this visit, was at 2,30 on Sunday afternoon with the children at a meeting of the Band of Hope. Her address was in words well chosen, and the effect upon all present was useful and inspiring.

On Sunday evening the M. E. Church was crowded, and extra seats demanded to seat the congregagation, notwithstanding services were being held in the Congregational Church. Her earnest appeal touched many hearts, and about twenty signed a pledge of temperance.

It was reserved for Monday evening to witness the greatest triumph. A good audience were present and from the first until the close of the meeting enthusiasm ran high, as evidenced in securing twenty-six names for the Lodge, the same number of names of persons, mostly young men who walked bravely, in the presence of the audience, to the front, and signed a pledge in honor to abstain during their lives from the use of tobacco in any and all forms.

I may not forget to mention a circumstance occurring in connection with this meeting, which for independent character, and manly nobleness of purpose, stamped the gentleman an honor to the profession. Mr. Wilson R. Ellis, Editor and one of the Proprietors of "The Lodi Sentinel" rose and read the pledge and the names signed there-to, and then in earnest words, tremulous with emotion, urged each and all whose generous natures touched with the stirring appeals which had moved them to do a right and manly deed, to stand by this act of their better self, and never prove recreant to themselves by disappointing the hopes of mothers whose tearful eyes attest to their mother love. Would that the Press of California were outspoken for temperance reform and that men in all responsible positions were living examples of practical reformers. Yours Truly.

C. S. Haswell.

THE MUTUAL AID.

After a year's very remarkable lack of interest in this most important institution, a little curiosity is being awakened and enquiries made for information. For many months of last year the fuilest details of the plan of our Mutual Aid were given, but it appears that not very much attention was excited.

There are at present two divisions A. & B. A member of our Order in good standing may belong to either or both on passing a satisfactory medical examination and paying an entrance fee of $4 for A or $5 for B. A member of one joining the other only pays half entrance fee—and it will be remembered this entrance fee has never to be paid again. The Benefit in class A is $1,000: in B $2,000.

Then when any member of your class dies, each surviving member is assessed according to his age from 75 cts if between 20 and 29 years up to $1,40 if between 49 and 55 and to $1,70 if over 56 years: the aggregate sum, less expenses of collection are paid to the heirs of deceased. But when the membership has increased so that the sum assessed will exceed $1000 in class A or $2000 in B only those respective amounts will be paid; the remainder going over to meet the next assessment.

There is no President or Board of Directors to pay; no $200,000 building to erect or rent; it is a part of our Grand Lodge work and system: no waste whatever in this arrangement. No one risks a dollar or pays for anything in advance. When a member dies each survivor settles up and pays just what the bedrock expense of insuring his life among sober healthy abstainers has amounted to thus far. If one goes out of the concern and gives up his policy he loses nothing, for he has only paid for the insurance he has had so far: but in case he should die soon after, his heirs would lose the one, two or three thousand dollars he would have been entitled to.

There is no danger of loss or failure. There are now so many members that one dying next week the benefit coming to his heirs would make his entrance an excellent investment.

VERY IMPORTANT STATISTICS.

The Weekly Call of Oct 20, has a valuable table of the annual death rate in the Oddfellows from various states for 18 to 28 years. It has been from 5.06 per 1000 in Iowa to 25 in Louisiana and averages 9,42 per 1000, for 31 states. The average for this state is 9.29.

Compare this with the Good Templar Statistics in the Report of the G. W. S. for this year. It will be seen there that the death rate in our Order for 21 years has averaged 6,15 per 1,000. Last year it was 7,1: the year before 6.

It must be remembered too that our Order includes people of both sexes from 12 years upward while the Odd Fellows only counts men of 21 years and over. All other things being equal the death rate ought to be much larger among the Good Templars, whereas that of the Odd Fellows is greater by over 50 per cent.

There is a very unmistakable advantage in insuring with total abstainers in this M. A. Society, unless you are pretty sure to die in a few months from now, in which case you count for less than a $1000 benefit: but as there are only about 4 or 5 persons per 1000 of those who insure with us who will die in the first year, any of us can chance it and may feel pretty well assured that after one year is gone they will find they are members of the safest and best benefit system in the world and at an annual cost of about half of that of any which insures drinking people: for we know that almost every living drunkard to-day was a few years ago a moderate drinker and a good subject for insurance in an ordinary benefit society.

There is no good reason why we should fail to have our classes full this coming year and this is one of the best movements our Order has ever instituted.

The Call speaking of our California Good Templars, says," for these 21 years, the aggregate membership is 165,989, in which but 1,025 deaths have occured, being but 6.01 per 1,000 which is far below the average of other societies, and a strong argument in favor of temperance. If the Good Templars had collected $20 from each of their members, it would have made $3,319,780, out of which they could have paid $3.000 on each of the 1025 deaths, and had on hand to-day a surplus of $244,780.

Facts are stubborn things, and in this day, where so much attention is given to societies of a mutually cooperative and relief character, figures and facts pertaining to the same connot be otherwise than of value and interest to many of our readers."

OUR BAND OF HOPE CHILDREN; THEIR INFLUENCE AND WORK.

BY MRS. G. S. REANEY.

To-day, I purpose dwelling rather upon the work which gathers about and emanates from the children themselves, whom the Band of Hope has interested and reached. * * * *

Surely, there are results of to-day which to-day may be gathered in; and of these I would speak.

Now one of the first results of Band of Hope work amongst the children is to give them an unconscious influence and power in making other people think—and because thought must ever precede action, so this is the first step to greater doings.

* * * * * *

It is a birthday, and a bottle of home-made wine and a large plum cake of mother's baking are on the supper-table. Why does little Ted take the cake but refuse the wine? "You know I'm a Band of Hope boy, father." Well, what if yon are? Once in a way can't matter. You needn't tell your teacher, if that's all." "But, please," says little Ted, nervously, "how could I look teacher in the face if I had broken my pledge?"

"Bravo, little chap!" muses the father, as he dexterously turns the conversation. "To think, now, that he can stand against my suggestion. There is something in the lad that there isn't in me. Where am I—five times Ted's age, yet with not half his wisdom? The admission once made led to further thought, and as Ted's father was a man of determination he let his worthy vicar into the secret of his thought the first time that good man called, which happened to be the following Sunday afternoon—the vicar had been in next door to baptize a dying infant, and looked in on Ted's father as he passed homeward—and that is what the vicar heard from the lips of the man he had always thought hard and indifferent and most difficult of impression—

"Look ye here, sir, I want to thank you for your Band of Hope. It's not so much that you are bringing the youngster up to do without the beer, which is no man's true friend, and is the enemy of many, but it's because your rules and principles and teaching call out the best that is in us. My Ted—" and then he told the story of the birthday wine, and added plaintively; "The lad s words made me feel how little I loved true goodness. I was ashamed of myself, and then I wished I was half as brave, as little Ted. I've touched no strong drink since and there's no telling what it may lead to."

"No telling!" No, not much talk about it, but Ted's father is a good man to-day, and Ted has the credit of making him so, as far as human instrumentality can avail anything, and the teacher—one of the workers of that Band of Hope—wonders why he he had always looked upon Ted as one of the least interesting of his boys, one never likely "to set the Thames on fire." No, Ted has not set the Thames on fire, but he has done something much more worthy of praise, tho possibly the teacher does not know enough to get all the comfort out of it.

MESSENGERS.

It is a grand idea to make the children messengers to their homes. Once let the little ones grasp the idea that there is work for them to do, and well or badly the majority will seek to do it. Possibly no evening is quite complete in its efforts for good until this has been achieved.

Now, little people, I want you to tell father and mother this—so now my young friends try to remember this proverb and quote it when at home, "Habits at the beginning are like cobwebs, easily broken. At the end they are like cables. The habit of taking strong drink with our meals may grow from a cobweb into a cable. Easily given up now, it may, if continued, become the master-passion of our lives."

Johnny Wheeler sat looking into the fire with a sad face. He had just come in from his Band of Hope meeting. His aunt, with whom he lived, watched him in silence. By-and-by she spoke.

"What is it, Johnny?"

"Nothing much auntie; only teacher made us all promise before we came away to-night to go home and be little missionaries to somebody, and I've no one to be a missionary to;" A sob finished Johnny's confession.

"What do you mean, my boy? said his aunt, not caring to let him see how his words touched her. Johnny was the child of a dead sister and very near to her heart.

"Everyone was to do something to make the people at home teetotalers, but it is no use my trying, you say you never will be one and so does uncle. Oh! I do wish I had some one to be a little missionary to," and Johnny wept silently, as if under great oppression.

Now his aunt had withstood all the pleadings of the district lady, all the wise counsel of her rector: and had even laughed secretly at the kindly suggestions of her favorite doctor, who thought she would be much better without stimulants—he was a doctor of the new school!—but Johnny's tearful face had never before pleaded the cause of temperance.

With a generous impulse worthy of the woman, she caught Johnny in her arms and kissed him earnestly, while saying softly. "My darling boy, you shall be missionary to me. I will be a teetotaler for your sake."

Nor was the uncle less tender in his thought of Johnny's wish. He heard the story from his wife, and laughed to hide his deeper feelings; but the following day he astonished everyone by saying to Johnny, "Come, my lad, I want you to tell me a bit of your temperance, for I mean to join you along with your Aunt."

Now these are cases which come to the light. Is it not just possible that there are hundreds of which we never hear? And if this be true, what encouragement for teachers who prayerfully seek to bring a very definite and marked influence upon the Band of Hope children under their care! When shall such influence die or cease to be felt by others?

Upon a recent bank holiday, having attended some meetings in London, I found myself in a train at 10 p. m. going from Victoria to the Crystal Palace.

* * * * * *

As the train was about to leave the station, the guard hurriedly put in two people, a young man—possibly a clerk—and a young servant girl, who spent the last few seconds of time before the train started in taking tender leave of some one who belonged, I could see at a glance, to the class of "the nearer one yet and a dearer one." "Take care of yourself, dearest," she whispered gently and as I glanced at the young man's flushed face and brilliant eye, I wondered whether there were the shadow of a fear in the young girl's mind about him in regard to drink. The train moved on, stopped at the next station, and the young man alighted. I was thus left alone with the young girl. It was not difficult to get into conversation with her. She had been looking earnestly, but not rudely, at me ever since the train was in motion. Soon I had learnt that she was a servant, who had been for some years in one place—her mistress had allowed her to spend her holiday with her young man, &c. "And is your young man a teetotaler?" I inquired cautiously.

"Yes, or he never would have been my young man," she said with spirit. "I was always brought up in a Band of Hope, and I made up my mind never to engage myself to any one who was not a total abstainer, and I kept to it."

"How pleased your Band of Hope teacher must be," I said warmly.

"Oh! it's years since I saw her;" she replied thoughtfully, "a good eight, I was but a child of ten when she married; she's—you are very like her—her name now is Mrs. Reaney!"

There was a glad surprise for me to be actually hearing an experience which did my heart good, of one of my own pupils years ago, a child then, a woman to-day.

Now every one may not have these sweet surprises but they may be there just the same. And hence I would say, Courage, dear workers, make your girls in earnest, and they will carry that earnestness into their after lives.

It will influence them long after you may not have passed away from them to other spheres of labor. Perhaps if this subject, the subject of a girl's engagement were practically discussed, life long lessons would be learned which are sometimes as a sealed book. Why wait until the so-called children are old enough, which often means are of an age whan they are actually forming engagements or cultivating friendshisp which will lead to engagements. Is the thought of marriage and a "home of their own" something that may not be spoken of to children of tender years? When the ages are neared surely the question answers itself. If we waited for the youngest to be "old enough" when can the advice be given? Rather regard the whole matter as an implanting of principles and the duty will clearly be to grasp the opportunities of the present.

There may possibly have been failure in the past in separating childhood and womanhood, or boyhood and manhood too much in our thot. If we could but realize that our Band of Hope children were our country's future men and women, and train them accordingly, we should see the need of linking the future with the present by clear definite teaching, teaching which testing facts cannot fail to strengthen. (To be continued.)

"WISDOM'S WAYS."

The National Temperance Society has just published an excellent concert exercise," "Wisdom's Ways," by Hope Hazel. Composed of scripture responsive texts and well-selected recitations. It is especially adapted for Sunday-schools, Bands of Hope, and juvenile temperance and religious organizations. It is deserving of a wide circulation, and those desirous of giving such an exercise would do well to send for a copy for examination. 12mo, 8 pages, 3 cents, single copies; 36 cents per dozen, sent post paid. TEMPERANCE LITERATURE,

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

BACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c.
Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c.
This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c ; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c
This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.
It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAITURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

MISS JULIA COLMAN,
54 Bible House, New York City, N. Y.

THE National Freeman,
A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,
First No. Jan., 1881.
Edited by..... ....REV. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.
Price, 15 cents per single copy; or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.
The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

Revolution Temperance Literature. Just opened, a new Temperance Publishing House. New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been.

Ninety Dollars' Worth of Books for Two Dollars.
Rachel Noble's Experience; or the Downfall of a Family. Reprint of a 90c. book by Bruce Edwards. A most thrilling and forcible story book. Prize tale of the Scotch Temperance League. Homedale Rectory, reprint of a $1.00 book, by M. H. R. How drinking habits will transform an affectionate husband into a fiend, and blight forever a loving wife's happiness. Full of pathos and power. Packington Parish. Reprint of a $1.00 book. by M. A. Paull, showing the ravages of the liquor traffic when introduced into a hitherto quiet village. Each of these three books is put up in one number of the Two CENT LIBRARY, a large eight-page paper, in brevier type, on good paper, illustrated: either number for $2.00 per 100 copies, post paid. Sample copy of each for 10c.

These book offer a new force: people will read them for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or distributed gratuitously.

Eighteen Cents pays for 100 copies of the GOUGH LIBRARY, illustrated, four-page temperance talks by John B. Gough. Any number or assorted—12 kinds—sample of each for 6c., or for 18c. we will send 100 copies of SURE AND SAFE, a choice four-page, two-column, illustrated weekly temperance paper suited to general distribution.

CONTRACTS TAKEN AT 5c. A HEAD. To sow every town "knee-deep" with temperance literature without any labor on the part of society or individual by means of our new post-office delivery system and "class papers," reaching every one every month for a whole year for 5c. a head, or every two weeks for 10c. a head; thus for $5.00 one hundred persons can be reached monthly for a year. Papers furnished (not tracts), and sent regularly through the mails direct to each individual person. Society has nothing more to do after sending us names. Eighteen different papers to choose from, and one of a kind may be ordered (five or more in all), as a trial order at these rates. 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The Sunday School Superintendent. 7. The Sunday School Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The Common People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially designed. Each published monthly, and though small in size contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book. No other plan so cheap or effective; gives papers instead of tracts, sent through the mails, sent in wrappers and directed to parties sent, sent at regular interval, suited to the class of readers to be reached—suited to the work to be done. If Society chooses they can canvass for subscriptions; no one will refuse when it is only a nickel, and many subscribe for them to be sent to others. Sample copy of each and particulars as to ways of introducing, for 10 cents.

Seventy Dollars' Worth of Books in book form for $2.50.
Cheapest offer yet is our offer to induce organization of Bands of Hope among the children. We furnish a library of 52 choice $1.00 to $1.50 temperance story books, put up in ordinary book form, only printed on lighter paper with smaller margins and in paper covers (really stronger books than the more expensive), for 5c. each, or the 52 books for $2.50. Also two weekly Band papers at 2½c. a quarter; a lesson and song quarterly for 2c. certificates, pledge rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., etc.—all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all expenses. Specimen of everything necessary for complete outfit for Band sent post-paid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving new and simple methods of running Bands, running them either with or without teachers, etc., sent free.

Endorsed. The "Revolution" has the endorsement of temperance leaders from Maine to California. The following recently received from Frances E. Willard, President National W. C. T. U., will serve as a sample: "DEAR BROTHER COOK:—My heart sings hallelujah as I think of your splendid courage. My secretary arrived last night from Boston, bringing your new temperance literature, all of which she has carefully examined, and she says she sang the Doxology right straight through the happy time thus spent. Her judgment is as good as that of any woman I know. Though my own study of the new goods has been more cursory, I perceive that THEY MEET OUR WANTS. They are varied, bright and attractive. Once get them into the hands of our W. C. T. U.'s and they will go like lemonade in dog days."
We are getting out many other publications be-ide those advertised above. General circular, etc., free. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison St., Chicago.

WHISKY MURDERERS.

On October 14th a murder was committed at Claraville, Kern county, and the supposed murderer was arrested and taken to Kernville for examination, pending which he was lodged in jail. Friends of the murdered man excited by the harangue of a partially intoxicated professional man, gathered in the saloons and openly discussed the hanging of the prisoner. The more they drank of the whisky furnished freely for the occasion. the higher rose their Dutch courage until about four o'clock on the morning of the 26th they started for the jail, where however Deputy sheriff Ben Michell had stationed a strong, well armed guard.

Mitchell heard the crowd coming, and with a view of dissuading them from their mad purpose, met them a few paces from the jail, commanding them to halt. He was immediately fired upon by some one of the mob, a load of buckshot striking him in the stomach. Crying out to his fellow officer, "Tib, I'm hit," he returned the fire, and fell, receiving another shot as he was falling. His shot took effect in the breast of the leader of the mob.

Mitchell expired immediately. Immediately upon the shots being fired the crowd dispersed, leaving their wounded comrade in the hands of the officers of an outraged law.

It is supposed there were thirty or more in the mob, and as they are all known to the officers, they will every one be arrested and tried at an expense to the county of not less than $30,000. How many years' license will it take to repay the cost of this spree, and who will have to answer for the death of a good officer? Not the angelic rumseller, oh, no; nor the advocates of the license law.

THE GARFIELD PRAYER TEST.

There has been a variety of utterances with regard to the confessed failure of the recent prayers for the recovery of the sick President. Most of them as reported indicate an exeeedingly childish idea of the Infinite Creator and seem to forget altogether there must be among his attributes, an infinite dignity and consistency, as well as an infinite power.

However and whenever this world was planned and made and set in motion and man was created and put in possession of it, it does not seem possible for any one to seriously doubt that it was done by an intelligent power whose operations, viewed from our standpoint of power and cause and effect, were miraculous. That admitted, the power which created and put in motion this solar system and covered the once silent earth with life and peopled it with the human race, must have been able to restore a sick man to health, or a dead man to life, if he so desired.

Then it is altogether inconsistent with an intelligent belief in the accepted system of christianity, to doubt that if the united earnest prayers of the servants of God in Europe and America had agreed to ask, that the President should be restored to health—the petitioners confessing their sins, humbling themselves, repenting, obeying and promising amendment—their prayer would have been certainly answered.

But the conditions under which the gift was asked, were such as no dignified man, a mill or mine or factory owner could consent to, consider or accept. If a lot of factory hands should strike and hoist the flag of rebellion and endeavor to oust the proprietor and set up a stranger in his place, and then when worsted, should seek peace or pardon or benefit while they still flaunted the rebel flag in his face, we should have a contempt for his lack of dignity and consistency, if he acceded to their demand.

That has been our case. We have set up by common consent one temple of God and twelve of satan: one school of virtue and twelve colleges of of vice; we make 100,000 of the children of this country every year pass thru the fire to Moloch: we offer 100,000 human sacrifices a year on the bloody idolatrous altars of Rum. The temples of satan, the chartered pest houses of a christian nation, are deluging the land with drunkards, thieves, human monsters and murderers whom they educate and train to rapine and theft and murder. And we share in the spoils; we receive the price of blood to help pay our taxes.

But one day we killed the wrong man: one of our national Sunday school graduates killed the President. We did not want him slain. If he had shot Conkling we would not have cared. We would not have made much of an outcry if any member of congress had been slain. We would have said nothing if any one of the other fifty millions of citizens, the Smiths, Browns and Joneses, save a very few individuals, had been sacrificed, as they are every day. But we had just elected Mr. Garfield for four years; we liked him and wanted him to live. Therefore, "oh Lord, spare his life, dont send us this affliction; let the rum-crazed assassin's bullet crash among the brains and ribs of the common people, as much as you please, but save us the President." That was just what christian America did. The petitioners presented themselves before God with the rebel flag flying, right in his face, and all their images of Baal erect and his altars smoking. They never confessed the sin of the national devil-worship, never owned the truth of what had been done, never promised a symptom of amendment, never stopped one rum mill, nor intended to, and their prayers went up as a blaspheming mocking insult to God.

While these prayers were going up, the high priests of Bacchus were intrusted with the care of the President's life, and it demanded a double miracle now to save it. If the patient's physical stamina had survived the double murder, or the miraculous power of God had restored the sick, three people of four would have stoutly affirmed with Dr. Bliss that it was the whisky and not the prayer or the healthy body that saved him, and God would have been mocked by the others with the monstrous claim that he wrot an inconsistent miracle in answer to an utterly inconsistent, irreverent and baseless demand from an utterly impenitent and undeserving quarter. And it seems the Presidents must continue to take their chances of being shot as we all do.

SCIENTIFIC TEMPERANCE INSTRUCTION.

NATURAL FOOD.

Can you tell me, first of all, what we mean by Natural Food? You know that in order to live we must eat,—and the first question which naturally comes to us is: "What shall we eat?" We must remember that in this respect we are just like any other animal,—that is, we know in the same way as the horse or the cat or the dog knows, what is good for us to eat, and we call this knowledge—instinct.

It is not taught to us; it is knowledge that we possess when we are born, and is common to men everywhere, no matter whether he is taught anything or not; it is part of our nature. God has given us a natural taste for what is good for us to eat, and in the same way He has provided food that is best suited to our wants, and we call this "Natural Food."

I want you to remember these two facts: 1st—that we have a Natural Taste for that which is proper for us to eat and drink, and 2nd—that Natural Food is given to us to satisfy this taste.

The most natural food which Nature supplies is that upon which we all feed during the first years of our life, namely milk. In milk we find both food and drink. The solid parts are the real food and form one-eighth of the milk—the other seven-eighths is water. Later in life, we find the fruits and vegetables of the earth, in their many forms, suitable for food. There are some people who live entirely upon these; others add to them various kinds of animal flesh, which we are accustomed to call meat.

These foods are all of them Nature's provision for our wants, and we may notice one very important thing which is true of all of them:—they are best fitted to form our food only when they are in their fresh natural condition. When milk has soured, when fruits or vegetables are over-ripe, when meat has begun to decay, we say they are no longer fit to use; they are "bad;" more correctly speaking they have passed thru a chemical change which has to some extent altered their nature; they are apt to cause sickness if we eat them after they have passed into this condition. Our own natural taste tells us that they have become unfit for our use. This natural taste guided by the experience of those who learned more than we, is the means of protecting us from the use of a great many things which are poisonous in their nature, and which would destroy life or injure health. There is an old saying "that what is one man's food is another man's poison," but like many other old sayings, I think it is quite untrue. In the main what is food for one man is food for every man, and what is poison to any of us is poison to all. I think we may take it to be a good rule that to the natural taste of a child every poison is unpleasant.—Signal.

READERS of the RESCUE will please remember that no one can get an ad. into this paper at any price who is not thoroly reliable.

CONSTITUTION OF PROHIBITION.

The National Temperance Society have just issued an able address delivered by Hon. O. P. Mason, ex-Chief-Justice of Nebraska, entitled "Constitutionality of Prohibition." it is a legal and thoro argument in reply to the liquor advocates who claim that prohibition interferes with property rights and violates the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution. A wide range of legal opinions and decisions by the most prominent jurists in our country are cited and the entire constitutionality of prohibition is clearly proven.

The pamphlet should be in the hands of every prohibitionist in the land who desires to sustain his position from fact. 13mo, 29 pages, price 10 cents.

ANOTHER SUNDAY LAW DECISION.

My saloon will be open for business next Sunday and on all Sundays hereafter until further notice. I wish to do an open, straight forward Sunday business and not a dodging backdoor traffic. I respect all laws which are generally observed but I have no respect for the corpse of a dead Sunday law which is resurrected in Marysville but generally ignored thruout the State. A lunch of special excellence will be spread for my patrons next Sunday.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHAN'S HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searls, Nevada City; A. G. Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto, Vallejo; Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., San Francisco; Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S., Sacramento, ex-officio.

Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED at Forest City, Whitford A. Derr, a member of Forest City Lodge, I. O. G. T. No. 265, a brother blameless, without reproach, ever faithful to his vows, upright in his dealings and setting a worthy example for all good Templars to follow.

The lodge passed the usual mourning resolutions.

DIED:—At Rincon, Oct. 25th, 1881, Mrs. E. N. Corbin, in her eightieth year, after a short and severe sickness.

Sister Corbin was one of the Charter members of Rincon Lodge, which was organized in June, 1881, and the first to be called from our lodge as we trust to the lodge above. She had in early years given herself to the Savior, and has now been called to her better home. The lodge mourns the loss of our much beloved sister, who always met with us, notwithstanding her advanced age and many infirmities.

A German saloon keeper committed suicide as usual on Monday evening. He took an extra supper and hung himself with a handkerchief to the door knob of his bedroom. A perfectly natural death for a rumseller.

In Napa, Stockton, Riverside and Marysville the law was pretty well observed last Sunday, and no doubt in a large number of other places not specially heard from. If the law was universally observed in this state there would be a much diminished list of murder, even from one day's sobriety.

What a sweet voyage of life it must be to start on, to spend one third or one fourth of one's waking hours in sucking the smoke of a filthy weed thru a pipe or cigar, Man was made for something better than a smoke chimney or a tobacco vat. He need not have more brains than an oyster for that purpose.

TOBACCO costs the country about half as much per annum as rum: Only think of five hundred millions expended yearly in this filthy narcotic! Little boys are smoking their vitality away on cigarettes. There are ten millions of heads of families in this land. If they spend an average of two dollars a week for liquor and beer the aggregate per anuum would be one thousand and forty millions per annum. How many pay this tax upon their appetites every week without wincing!

CAMPAIGN Documents will always be wanted for years to come. One of the best of these to study and get your neighbor to study is No. 15 of the National Liberator which contains the speeches of Gov. St. John, G. W. Finch and Miss Willard at Lake Bluff, three of the best ever made. These are to be had for 70 cents a hundred and every temperance worker and lodge and union and society should circulate 100 in the community and put another 100 away for future use. The Liberator is only 50 cents a year and everybody can afford to take it too right along.

WE will make every effort to justify the reduction in the price of the RESCUE, for if we could circulate 100,000 for two years, prohibition would be as easy at the end of that time as it now is to procure a license. J. C. HAUVER.

Auburn, Nov. 7, 1881

Clipper Gap Lodge was instituted last week with fifteen charter members present. The officers of the district lodge were in attendance filling the offices pro tem while the new members were being initiated. The lodge will be ably conducted by its corps of officers, Bro. E. C. Cook being W. C. T. and a prompt increase and useful membership is predicted for those constituting the new lodge. J. C. H.

INTERVIEWED. People who are "interviewed" ought to see what they say in writing before the reporter leaves; The Chronicle erroneously says the Editor of the RESCUE proposes to make a universal sweep with the Sunday Law. Whereas he was particular in stating that the business of the Good Templars is to stop liquor selling on Sunday and they hope to present such results from stopping it one day that it would be easy to abolish the traffic on week days. He said that the Good Templars would only devote their attention to the prevention of the sale of liquor, but that very probably the saloon keepers would try to close every other place now open on Sunday. The Good Templars dont intend to assume any dictatorial measures as to what people shall do on Sunday, save that they will try to prevent the open commission of crime on Sunday and see the laws obeyed. And it is believed that Sabbath trade is solely desired and permitted for the sale of liquor. All other trade will do as much in 6 days as 7, but in some places the grogshop does more on Sunday than during the rest of the week.

Temperance people everywhere, will please remember that the San Francisco cash grocery was the first temperance grocery house, who openly and aggressively attacked the rum interest at this point, and good results have already followed this departure in this city.

WANTED—125 new subscribers every week of the year, are wanted to the RESCUE, to make it pay its way and secure an early enforcement of a prohibitory law, that will save the state fifty millions a year of waste, a hundred millions of direct loss and damage, and a hundred millions more of pullback to the prosperity and financial progress of the state. Rum and its vile associates have pauperized this state, beggared its opportunities, swamped every one of its ventures and slautered its people long enough. Let us have prohibition, peace and prosperity. The spread of temperance literature and temperance principles and temperance ballots, is the only agency that will ever help a particle to banish rags and vice and crime and the devil's saddle of thorns from the people of this state.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C, Cook's Advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise.

HOME CIRCLE.

If our readers appreciate good goods for family use at moderate cost, they should send for copy of Home Circle; the only paper published giving explicitly both retail and wholesale quotations for groceries, provisions and family supplies, with full directions for ordering and shipping, and where and how to buy to save money—sample copies mailed free to any address. Write to Home Circle 519 Post St. S. F. Cal.

MURDER NO CRIME.

The Chronicle of last Sunday stated that the following sentences were passed on Saturday by Judge Ferral in Department 12:

James Snowdon for the murder of Ed Herlihy at the door of his blacksmith shop in March last found guilty of manslaughter only—six years penitentiary.

Joseph Herman for robbing James Murphy of $8 and intimidating him with a spittoon, 8 YEARS in the penitentiary.

Too Ah Kit, convicted of burglary in the second degree six years and Chin Song for attempted burglary five years state prison.

Thomas Mahoney (which is not a Chinese name) found guilty of burglary in the second degree, 2 years in the house of correction.

It will be remembered that the murder by Snowdon was a cruel, unprovoked cool murder of an innocent man who had a wife and children, and by a victim of the beer shops.

There will perhaps be another trial some day in these cases when the Chinaman and the Irishman will get equal justice, where deliberate murder and trifling theft will not be held of equal triviality, and where the voters who license the beershops which give us lots of murders every day will also be put in the culprits dock.

THE DEVIL.

Men dont believe in a Devil now, as fathers used to do:
They have forced the door of the broadest creed to let his Majesty thru.
There isnt a print of his cloven feet or a fiery dart from his bow
To be found in the earth or air to-day, for the world has voted so.

But who is it mixing that fatal draught that palsies heart and brain,
And loads the bier of each passing year with ten hundred thousand slain?
Who blights the bloom of the land to-day with the fiery breath of hell,
If the Devil isn't and never was? Wont somebody rise and tell?

Who dogs the steps of the toiling saint, and digs the pits for his feet?
Who sows the tares in the fields of time wherever God sows his wheat?
The Devil is voted not to be and of course the thing is true;
But who is doing the kind of work the Devil alone should do?

We are told he does not go about as a roaring lion now,
But whom shall we hold responsible for the everlasting row
To be heard in home, in church and state, to earth's remotest bounds,
If the Devil by a unanimous vote is nowhere to be found,

Wont somebody step to the front forthwith, and make his bow and show
How the frauds and crimes of a single day spring up? We want to know,
The Devil was fairly voted out, and of course the Devil's gone,
But simple people would like to know who carries his business on.

JOHN B. FINCH'S SPEECH.

"INDICTMENT OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC."—AT LAKE BLUFF, ILL., AUG. 27, 1881.

[National Liberator.]

A doctor comes in here and shouts, "A man has got the small-pox next door!" Can you imagine the excitement? Some one would say, "Doctor, how do you know?" He says, "I have just come from there, but dont be scared, I have disinfected my clothing." But they say, Doctor what shall we do?" "I dont know anything you can do; his wife has had the small-pox, she will nurse him, I will doctor him and he will get well. It would do him no good to pound him with a policeman's club, he is sick, and the only way you can treat a sick man is by kindness and scientific treatment." "But doctor, is that all? What else can you do? Wont my wife, wont my babies catch it? Now, doctor, we know you are doing all that can be done for the sick man, but we dont want the disease to spread; how shall we prevent it?" "Oh," says the doctor. "that is simple enough; quarantine the house, throw out a red sign, say that man or woman shall not enter."

Treatment for thesick is moral suasion, quarantine of the disease is prohibition. Prohibition is quarantine to stop the spread of alcoholism. Reach down in the gutter and take up the sick drunkard. Would you ask me if drunkenness is a disease? No doctor questions it; it is as well known as any form of chronic poisoning.

Yellow fever swept up the Mississippi and located at Memphis. The second year, within twenty-four hours after the time it appeared in Memphis, every city whlch had communication with that city had a quarantine; they stopped the passage of merchandise, and even stopped the passage of United States mails until those mails were disinfected. Why did they do this? They could not legislate those poor fellows well who had the yellow fever, but they could legislate them into a quarantine to prevent other people from catching it; 21,384 people in this country died from yellow fever in the last ten years. Take that number, think of it! Does any man say it was wrong to quarantine Memphis, tho it destroyed merchandize, tho it destroyed business, tho it wrecked the whole city? No, it was right! The disease of alcoholism has killed more than 650,000 of American citizens in the past ten years. This is not the statement of a temperance lecturer, it is the statement of Willard Parker, the first surgeon of this country, and it is the statement of N. S. Davis, the celebrated physician of your own State, and it is the statement of every doctor in this country who is tall enough in his profession to be seen over three counties. And yet do the drunkard makers cry out at quarantine. Alcoholism killed 650,000, and there are men in this audience, I presume, with these facts before them, who have been so mistaken that they have voted to license a man to take the seeds of this terrible disease in his hands and sow them among the boys and girls of this country. Yellow fever has ruined less men, less women, and less children in Memphis than alcoholism has in the State of Illinois. The one is prohibited, the other licensed.

Such a position the Temperance men cannot endorse. They believe in saving drunkards. "But hold on," cries some one; "you cant legislate a man sober." The only men who ever said you could are the men who advocate license. Temperance men dont propose to legislate a man sober, they propose to legislate the men out of the business of making men drunk. "License men to make drunkards."

That is the first plank in the License Temperance man's platform. Suppose you have a dozen dram-shops in Lake Bluff; what else would you find necessary? Suppose you have a dozen churches or a dozen dry goods stores; you will not need anything else to take care of them. Start a dozen dram-shops, and what is necessary? A "cooler"—a "cooler" goes with a dram-shop just as a tail goes with a kite. When you have organized a dram-shop you have got to organize a police force to watch it. You do not need policemen to protect the public from men who have become filled with God's spirit at prayer meeting. You do not need a policeman to protect the public from a man under the influence of calico bought in a dry-goods store; but open a dram-shop and a policeman is a necessity. The License Temperance (?) man's theory of work is: License a drunkard-maker, hire a policeman, build a "cooler" and establish a Police Court.

A poor man goes into a dram-shop and gets drunk. In the State of Nebraska I have never known a rich man to get drunk. "Why," you say, "that is very strange?" The statutes of Nebraska made drunkenness a misdemeanor. I have met men with plug hats, carrying a cane, who could not walk on the sidewalk. I thought they were drunk. I looked in the Police Court record the next morning and I saw they were not drunk. I have seen laboring men who could walk with little difficulty, whom I thot were a little full. I looked in the Police Court record the next morning, and they were drunk. I dont know how it works in this country, but in the State where I live the young snobs who never do an honest days work, who will live on their papas until they find a girl who is fool enough to marry them, and they will live on her papa. If they are found drunk by the police they are helped home. If too drunk to be taken home, they will be taken to a hotel, and their heads sponged: but the man who works if he gets drunk, is always punished. Do you suppose, as a matter of fact, that the police would arrest a man who has got any money? The workmen of this country have long enough stood by this system which makes it a crime for a poor man to do what a rich man may do with impunity. The poor man is arrested by the police officer, and put into the "cooler," the next morning he is brot into the Police Court, and what is the result? The saloon keeper got half of his money, the police officer thru the Police Magistrate, gets the other half, and the poor devil has not a cent left: and the license people cry, "Served him right; why he ought to have been punished."

Come with me down to some wretched part of your cities, and raise the curtain, and I will show you the boy and girl with naked feet, and ask you who is being punished?

One night I sat in my office, preparing a brief. It was very late, about 2 o'clock in the morning, and there came a knock. I went to the door and there stood one of our city policemen. I said: "What do you want?" He said: "I went down a little while to the coal-yards, I was sent down there to look after the coal. As I went out to the cars I heard some one moaning in one of those little wretched shanties, and when I was coming back I knocked at the door, and they admitted me, and I tell you, Mr. Finch," and the tears came into his eyes, "I think they are starving; I went and built a fire for them. Just think:" said he, " of the poor things starving to death on this bitter, cold night!" and the words came direct from his big, Irish heart. I said to him, 'Jim, where did you get the coal?" He said it was none of my business. "I came up town, Mr. Finch," he said; "the restaurants are all closed; I saw a light in your window, and thot you would help me." I said "Certainly." I went home and called my wife, and she called the girl. A basket was packed, My wife dressed and went with me, It was a bitter, cold night in December. We went down the streets of the city, out into that wretched section, and went into that home. You, ladies, have perhaps seen such homes in Chicago. There was no need for words to tell that they were suffering. There sat the poor woman in her wretchedness. My wife asked what she could do for her. She straightened up and said. "Mrs. Finch, I am no beggar. I dont want you to give me anything, If you will just lend it to me I will pay it all back to you some time. If I just had some clothes and shoes I could take care of my own babies. It is hard. oh, so hard. to be with such clothes that you cant go out in the street, and the baby dying in your arms." I thot so too. I asked her where her husband was. I knew him to be one of the best stone masons in the city. I knew that because he had done some work for me a short time before. She said he had been put in the county jail for eight days to serve out a sentence for drunkenness.

Any system of law that punishes the wife and children for the sins of the father is a disgrace to a civilized people. If it is right to license a man to make men drunk, it is right to get drunk; and a nation that licenses the manufacture of drunkards, and then punishes them for doing exactly what it has licensed a man to make them do, is a long way from civilization of the highest type.

Briefly, in closing, the temperance men believe that the only way you can save the drunkard is with loving kindness—the kindness taught by the Master. And we believe that the only way you can prevent drunkards is the destruction of the place where the germs of drunkenness are disseminated.

I talked in New York one time, and the next day a lady stopped me on the street, and said, "I dont think much of you." I told her that was a good thing for me, especially if my wife should find it out. She said: you have no business to talk against liquor sellers when it is your business to save drunkards." I said, "If you will give me half as much money for saving drunkards as your husband gets for manufacturing them, I will make it a business to pull them out of the gutter. She said, "You cant think I am very smart." I said to her, "Suppose there was a window in your house all covered with mud, what would you do?" She said, "I would go and wash it." "And I see a boy and say to him, "Boy, I will give a dollar if you will creep down, and when she gets that window washed, slap it with mud." You would go and wash it the second time, and he would again splash it with mud; and you would wash it again, and he would put on more mud; and the fourth time you would go—" "No," she said, "I would go for that boy." "Well," I said, that is my position. I am perfectly willing to go down in the gutter and pick the fallen man up, but I tell you after having seen him redeemed, his children in the Sabbath-school, and his wife happy, I will go for the man who is mean enough to drag him down for money."

Such ladies and gentlemen, are the positions maintained, and the methods of maintaining them, believed in the opposing hosts. Firm in the belief in the righteousness of their cause, the temperance hosts will move for a verdict of guilty; and demand that sentence be passed on this hoary-headed criminal; and then, when the people have settled the question, and settled it right, we can say in reality as we now say in theory. 'Vox populi, vox Dei.'"

INDIANA.

It is better to spend a few dollars now for temperance than to spend hundreds of dollars and years of sorrow and worry; and perhaps lose all that is near and dear to you on account of intemperance in the near future.

The Grand Lodge at this session raised the per capita tax to fifteen cents, which takes effect immediately.

These two items are from the Monitor Journal, Ind. It looks like a turning of the tide. Indiana had a decrease of membership last year, and it is a mere cipher for such a State anyway. No doubt cheap john has been in business there for years past. Pity they had not raised the tax to 25 cents in view of the pressing necessity of the times. But it is good news to hear of an increase of the revenues. Lowering them means making a failure of the I. O. G. T. Raising them is making its complete success an easy possibility.

DR. PETRIE of Cario Ill, declared the only reason this is not a christian nation fully and completely, is because license is granted men to tear down good work and put in its place the work of the evil one; No christian can vote "license."

And any American citizen that cannot see that the Dr. spoke the literal truth about our devil worship, must be blind indeed.

WOULD WOMAN'S VOTE HAVE HELPED HER.

A woman came to consult me a few days ago about domestic difficulties. Said she, my husband is a laboring man who drinks; when drinking he abuses me. He has not only cursed and sworn and deprived me of my clothing, but he has beaten me. Some months ago he went to a neighboring town and became involved in a quarrel in an infamous house, was arrested and lost some twenty-five dollars by it. A day or two ago he went on a spree and lost another twenty-five dollars. Now he threatens to take his team and wagon, load up the household goods and carry them away, then sell them and leave me to my own resources. I would not complain but I have a babe five weeks old. What shall I do? Can I hinder him from selling all the goods, his team and wagon and leaving me in this helpless condition?

No, said I, you cannot hinder him in any way I know; if he chooses to do as you have said he threatens, he can, and you cannot help yeurself. Tears rolled down her pale thin cheeks, and she sobbed, What can I do? I have no friends able to help me, and I am at this time unable to help myself, or I should not care, for I live in a hell upon earth with him. I have been kind to him, done nothing to irritate him, but when he drinks it does no good. Said I, is he so ugly when he doesn't drink? No, sir, he is kind enough, and he works hard and can and does make good wages, but it nearly all goes for drink. Said I; his drinking then, seems to be the only trouble. Yes, she said. Well, I said, if the saloons were shut up and liquor was not to be obtained, you might be a happy woman. Oh, yes, was the answer. I said, would you vote if you could to have the saloons closed and liquor kept out of the town? Oh, yes, I would gladly do so. Said I, I wish our women could vote, and women might soon be rid of this terrible evil that destroys their dear ones and their homes. Oh, she replied, if women could have their say about it, it would soon be made an end of.

Having given her some advice about her own action in her trouble, she went away, and I sat thinking I would that all women were a unit on this vital subject. Yes, dear women, we must be willing to help our struggle with the alcohol ruin, even if it imposes on us the duties of 'voting' citizens.

OUR BAND OF HOPE CHILDREN; THEIR INFLUENCE AND WORK.

BY MRS. G. S. REANEY.

It has now become a leading feature of Band of Hope work to enlighten the members as to the nature of alcohol. * * *

To-day we seek to enlighten as we have been enlighten as we have been enlightened (thanks to our scientific doctors), and can assert without fear of contradiction that the action of alcohol upon heart and lungs, even when taken in moderation as a daily beverage is deleterious to health—that drunkenness is by no means the only evil for which alcohol is responsible, but that the hundred and one maladies of headache, bad temper, and moroseness, which on their part lead to idleness, cruelty in speech or manner, lack of energy and the poverty which is not honorable—all these facts are distinctly traceable to one cause, a mind or body with health more or less impaired by the use of alcohol.

When speaking in the country some fifteen months ago my attention was called to a little girl of seven, with gentle face and pleasing manners. And this was the story they told of her. She was a

BAND OF HOPE CHILD.

Her father sanctioned her attending the meetings, allowing her to go with a neighbor's children, but he had but little sympathy with the movement.

He was no drunkard, but simply a moderate drinker, prone to call for his glass at a favorite inn which he passed on his way home from work. One night on reaching home something "put him out," and he spoke roughly to his wife, little Annie sitting by. Evidently vexed with himself for his hasty speech, he went out for a walk, returning to make apologies—"Forgive me wife, I had no right to speak so hastily," when up jumped little Annie.

"Father, it was NOT you that spoke just now, it was the al-co-hol that was in you."

"And what does my little Annie know about alcohol?" he asked both touched and amused. Annie was generous in her thot surely not to have allowed the possibility of her father getting angry unless under some special influence.

"Teacher taught us at the Band of Hope," she answered very gently.

"Taught you what?" inquired her father.

"That alcohol made people cross and all sorts of things!"

"I think I must go with you to the Band of Hope and have some of your nice lessons," the father said. And sure enough he did go to the next meeting, told the story himself, and signed the pledge.

Now let us, while gathering these few ears of wheat from the harvest field of seeds sown by patient and loving Band of Hope workers, remember that we are only viewing a sample—and possibly a very small one—of the rich harvest of results which belong to the seed sowing. To deem it otherwise would be to doubt Him in whose name alone all true work can be done. "Without Me ye can do nothing," He said; "With Me ye can do all things." Possibly the true worth and strength of the work done depends far more upon the condition of the workers than we at times are disposed to think. The hopeful worker goes forward, fighting his way thru obstacles; the work must succeed simply because it is Christ's work, and Christ's work can never be a failure. Cut off from his dependence upon a living Christ, the most hopeful worker will lose heart, and losing heart he loses power. David said, "All my fresh springs are from Thee," and in proportion as we can say so will our lives be lives of usefulness.

To consider the influence and work of our Band of Hope children in the temperance cause is to enter upon a subject from which we cannot fail to gather inspiration for future effort, future toil.

The children are to-day in their homes what we succeed—not endeavor to make—but succeed in making them at our Band of Hope meetings. Are we in earnest, whole-hearted, and real, they will be so far as our influence touches them—and between our desi-e and our power there may be disparity, but this may be balanced and righted by our personal devotion to the master in whose strength we work. Are we in earnest, whole-hearted and real, they will be the same.

Do we feel the force and power of the great temperance work as one way of living out our love to our neighbor, so will they; and thus aroused to see that their work is to awaken others, they will, they must do it.

Youth may limit opportunities, but no tenderness of years need limit or curtail the power of influence. The baby's kiss and pleading look may stay the foot-steps of a tempted father, from his public-house resort, when the faithful counsel and wise persuasion of a gifted lecturer may have failed. The home-thrust from the little son or daughter may touch the heart closed hard against ministers and deacons, district visitor or companion in the work-shop. There is an influence, the gift of children, which hath a power almost divine in its wondrous force and beauty. And it is this gift which you, dear Band of Hope workers, are by the grace of God permitted to develop and unfold.

This work of temperance some have said must fail, because it is not "preaching the Gospel." To this suggestion but one answer can be made. and in this answer lies the secret of our power and the hope of our every effort.

Temperance is not preaching the Gospel, but it is living it.—Temperance Record.

A Texas paper, seeing the good effects of closing the saloons on the day when men are elected to office, suggests that it would be equally wise to have them all closed at the state capital while the members are deliberating for the welfare of the State.—Exchange.

The church of God needs one more thing. She needs an addition to her creed: "I believe in the Holy Ghost, the holy catholic church, the communion of saints, the forgiveness of sins, total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, the resurrection of the dead, and the life everlasting.—Rev. Dr. Newman.

REQUISITES FOR A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

The Temperance Schoool $0.05

However dark the way seems, if you love the children and wish to save them, and at the same time to train up workers for temperance send for the above and learn what can be done. Then if you wish to learn how to do it, send for the following list:

1 Catechism on Alcohol, 05.
1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, 25.
1 Ripples of Song, 15.
1 Manual Set (Illustrated Tracts), 08,
All sent for 50 cents.

When you have studied these, prepared the way and fixed upon the time fcr opening the school and decided how many scholars you will probably have, send for catechisms enough to supply one to each scholar, to whom they may be either given or sold, price per hundred, more or less, $5.00

Ripples of Song, per dozen, 1.60

For any number less than one dezen, each 15 cts.

The above are essential while the following are extremely desirable.

Children's Illustrated Tracts, one each for each scholar, per 100. 20 cts. Postage per 200, more or less, 05

Ladder tickets, per hundred, more or less, 1.00

1 manual for each teacher, each 25c.

Chromo Test-Cards, for rewards, per hundred, more or less, 1.00

Youth's Temperance Banner, four or more copies per year each .12.

The superintendent will find it desiradle to have the following.

1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, cloth, .60

RETURNS RECEIVED.—During the past week the following Lodges have filed Grand Lodge returns with the G. W. S. and their receipt is acknowledged.

Nos. 12, 51, 107, 110, 115, 134, 152, 160, 163, 165, 167, 182, 183, 186, 189, 210, 211, 214, 224, 248, 254, 262, 283, 288, 296, 301, 313, 324, 328, 343, 350, 354, 364, 366, 370, 388, 405, 443, and 457.

VOTE ON CHANGE OF REGALIA.—The following lodges have during the past week, filed with the G. W. S., the returns of the vote had in their lodge on the question of changing the initiatory regalia of the order as required by the G. L. viz:

Nos. 27, 32, 111, 135, 161, 172, 177, 178, 184, 195, 199, 214, 224, 265, 273, 275, 295, 336, 346, 361, 364, 369, 378, 384, 396, 400, 404, 405, 415, 419, 433, 442, 443, 451, 461, 463, 464, 470, and 473.

SILOAMS CENTENNIAL.—Siloam Lodge No. 2 on Saturday evening last installed its one hundredth corps of officers, having been instituted Sept. 15, 1856, a quarter of a century ago. The occasion was a happy one, the capacity of the lodge room being severely tested to accommodate the many visitors who honored the occasion with their presence. Among the numerous visitors was a full delegation from Chrysopolis Lodge of Woodland headed by the L. D. Bro. J. J. Bowman and the W. C. T Bro. B. F. Loomis; likewise a delegation from Orion Lodge of Davisville led by the L. D. Miss Nettie Marden and W. C. T. Bro. W. H. Bradshaw who came by a specially chartered car. The G. W. C. T., Bro. Robert Thompson of San Francisco was present to congratulate the lodge and install its centennial corps of officers. The evening was spent in short extemporaneous speeches, select readings and instrumental and vocal music. At the conclusion of the exercises refreshments were served in a bounteous manner by sisters in charge. Many lingered long after the meeting was ended, and all united in voting the occasion and reunion a grand success.

VIRGINIA.—The G. W. S. had the pleasure of meeting the people of Virginia school district, Reed Station, Yuba county on last Friday evening, and there organized Virginia Lodge with 28 charter members, H. H. Hollister, W. C. T.; Julius Hollister W. S. and Mrs. D. A. Hollister, L. D. The lodge for the present will meet on Friday evenings. The lodge commences under propitious auspices. Already a citizen has offered ground sufficient to erect a Good Templars hall and $100 toward the building fund. A delegation was present from Elizabeth Lodge, eight miles distant, headed by the W C. T. Bro. P. Hutchinson. Bro. Hugh Morrison of Wheatland also aided materially. With the aid of the brothers and sisters mentioned the work of the Order was fully exemplified and the lodge instituted in due form. The hospitalities of Bro. Chris Kelser and wife were kindly accorded and fully enjoyed. Success to the Virginians.

ABOUT CHANGING THE REGALIA.—Up to the present writing 152 lodges have reported the result of the vote taken upon the question of changing the initiatory regalia to a metal badge. The result so far as reported is as follows. Members in attendance 2907; voting in favor of the change 86; against 2592; not voting 229; total 2907. The vote so far as recorded reveals the average attendance of lodges to be 19⅛. The vote against the change is 30 1-7 against, to 1 in favor.

LACONIC—The following from Bro. J. R. Whitlock, D. L. of Paskenta Lodge, No. 309, Tehama county, tells a long story in a few words. The Brother writes: "Lodge progressing finely. Three initiations for installation night. Everything pressing forward steadily. Number 15 of the National Liberator distributed in every household and saloon in this vicinity."

PROCEEDINGS OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

GRAND LODGE I. O. G. T. OF CALIFORNIA.

LICK HOUSE, SAN FRANCISCO October 31, 1881.

Pursuant to call of the G. W. C. T. the executive committee convened and was called to order at 8 o'clock P. M.

There was present a full committee as follows: G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson of San Francisco; G. W. C., Henry S. Graves of West Butte; G. W. V. T., Mrs. Emily P. Stevens of San Francisco; P. G. W. C. T., Will D. Gould of Los Angeles; G. W. T. Dr. Isaac S. Halsey of Vallejo; G. W. S., Geo. B. Katzenstein of Sacramento.

The records of the previous meeting held Oct. 8, were read and duly approved.

The G. W. S. reported having approved amendments as follows:

October 29, Sutter Creek Lodge No. 225. By laws.

'The regular degree meeting of this lodge shall be held on the tenth meeting night of each quarter."

Oct. 29, Pro Bono Publico Lodge No. 346. By laws. Adopting the scale of fees and dues as set forth in the uniform code of By laws.

October 29, Prohibition Lodge No. 412. Uniform code of By laws with alteration in Art. 1 Sec. 1; fixing night of meeting on Friday, and Art. 1 Sec. 4, fixing hours of meeting from Oct. 1st, to April 1st, at 7.30 o'clock, and from April 1st, to Oct. 1st, at 8 o'clock.

The G. W. S. reported having supplied Mt. Echo Lodge No. 245, with a full set of Lodge work, free of cost, to replace the lodge work and supplies of the lodge destroyed by fire. The action of the G. W. S. was unanimously approved.

A communication was received from Grand Lecturer, Bro. Hugh R. Hughes, and upon motion his salary was fixed at $65 a month and all necessary expenses of himself and team.

A communication was received from Sheridan lodge No. 260, announcing the destruction of their lodge charter by fire, and requesting that a duplicate charter be issued in lieu of the one destroyed. The request was on motion granted.

A bill was presented by the G. W. C. T. against his contingent fund for stationery, clerk hire and office rent, amounting to $104.30, which was allowed and a warrant ordered drawn for the amount.

Capt. A. D. Wood, Editor of the Rescue, being announced, upon motion he was invited to sit with the executive committee.

As requested at the previous meeting of the committee, Capt. Wood presented a detailed exhibit of his transactions as editor and publisher of the Rescue, the recapitulation of which was as follows:

The following was also presented in accordance with the previous request of the committee:

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31, 1881.

To the Executive Committee, G. L., I. O. G. T. of California.

DEAR BRETHREN:—I submit for your consideration the financial exhibit of the publication of the RESCUE for the past year.

It will doubtless be considered that the paper as a property of the Grand Lodge, has materially improved its financial status during the year; starting as it did with a little over 400 subscribers, very few of whom, a small percentage, renewed their subscriptions—and now having about 1450 paying subscribers on its list.

But because of a lack of interest on the part of the order, those who have at all endeavored to assist its circulation, being the merest handful of individuals, Mrs. Stevens, Bro. Webb, Bro. Leland in Oregon, and here and there widely scattered, a warm and active friend, or a live, interested lodge—the RESCUE has fallen far short of the success it might have achieved, both financially and as an educatory and reformatory agent.

A large number of our 340 lodges do not subscribe for a copy, or have a subscriber in their community.

In several such places, where not a single subscriber existed, some active friend has gone to work and raised a club of 10 to 30 without the least difficulty; and there are probably 150 or 250 communities in the state, where a club of 10 to 30 subscribers could be obtained by an efficient and interested canvasser.

The editor, publisher and proof-reader has not a moment to canvass for anything; and after a twelve months labor panning out less than a week's board, one does not feel like making further expenses to secure a benefit which does not nor cannot accrue to him, but may be of vast aid to the owner of the paper, the Grand Lodge.

It is notable that whenever an effort has been made by lecturers or others, the Rescue at its present price has found subscribers, and no complaints have ever come from them. Whence it is fair to presume that if all our lecturers and lodge deputies had desired the success of the paper, they could have doubly increased its circulation in the past year.

The present cost of the Rescue, 3300 copies, ½ on 50 lb. tinted paper, and ¼ on 40 lb. white, is $3.12 per 100 copies, or $1.62 a year for single copy.

5000 copies as now, of 40 lb. white paper, sample herewith, could be put in the post office for $1.19 a year; and of 50 lb. tinted, as sample, for $1.36 a year.

10,000 copies could be mailed for 98 cents a year of the 40 lb. or for $1.17 of the 50 lb. paper.

The above estimates comprise no charge for editorial or managers services, but include just what I should have to pay out in cash. Office rent is not included either, which on 5,000 or 10,000 copies would be but a trifle.

Were the paper issued at $1. a year on the common paper or $1.25 on the better, and an efficient, active canvasser employed for subscriptions and advertisements, there would be no difficulty as it seems to me, in securing 10,000 subscribers; all the lecturers being also instructed to work for the paper, which they would no doubt feel disposed to do, were it considered working for the Grand Lodge.

In that event, (with 10,000 or 7,500 sub's.), the advertising capacities of the paper ought to be sufficient to pay a salary to the editor and manager, and at the end of 1883, the term of the present engagement, the Rescue should be doing a work consistent with its possibilities; and would need no further subsidy or effort from the Grand Lodge, beyond that of making a valuable piece of property remunerative, as well as an active agency in pushing the conquests of the order. Submitted in F. H. and C.

ALBERT D. WOOD.

P. S. I omitted to call your attention to the fact than in the event of a spell of inaction like the present continuing in the business field of the Rescue—for instance, if in any week of the present month, or succeeding ones, no subscriptions or advertisements should come in, I am $30 a week out of pocket, and working for nothing, besides finding my own support—and of course anything less than $30 a week coming in, leaves a proportionate loss to me; which, seeing that such a sacrifice is not called for on my part, and the defects might be remedied without detriment to any interest of the order, I present for your consideration and attention.

A. D. W.

After full discussion and careful consideration the following was voted.

That the G. W. C. T. and G. W. S. be instructed to modify the existing contract between Capt A. D. Wood and the Grand Lodge, so that the RESCUE shall return at once to the Grand Lodge.

That Capt A. D. Wood be employed as Editor, Publisher and Manager of the RESCUE at a salary of $450 per quarter from this date.

That the subscription price of the RESCUE be reduced to $1.25 per year of 52 numbers.

That a commission be allowed active solicitors and canvassers in its behalf.

That a special edition of the RESCUE be printed so as to supply one copy to each member of the Order in this jurisdiction, as reported by the Lodges according to the Quarterly Returns filed for the previous quarter.

The special committee appointed to draft rules governing Grand Lecturers reported as follows and the report and rules were adopted.

Rule 1. Grand Lecturers while in the employ of the Grand Lodge, will be required to devote their entire time to the various interests of the I. O. G. T. and will not be permitted to engage in business of any kind, personal, private or otherwise during such employment.

Rule 2. Grand Lecturers are required to keep a detailed account of monies received and expended in behalf of the I. O. G. T. and they are also required to keep an accurate detailed record of their work upon blanks and books to be furnished by the Superintendent of Lecturers.

Rule 3. Grand Lecturers are required to make out and transmit to the G. W. Secretary, at least once per month a statement of the work performed by them, together with a detailed statement of all monies received and disbursed, and to forward a duplicate of the same to the Superintendent of Lecturers.

Rule 4. Grand Lecturers are required to write a condensed report of their work, as nearly once a week as they can find it possible, and forward the same to the RESCUE for publication; such report to be published as by the Lecturers written.

Rule 5. Grand Lecturers will take collections for the general interests of the I. O. G. T. at their lectures, unless for special cause the same is omitted, when the reasons will be reported in their monthly report.

Rule 6. Grand Lecturers are required to form Bands of Hope wherever practicable, as well as to institute Lodges of the I. O. G. T. and notify the General Superintendent of juvenile work whenever a Band of Hope is formed, giving a list of the officers and details of organization.

Rule 7. Grand Lecturers are required to canvass for subscriptions to the RESCUE in each community visited. Also to gather such information as may be required by the Superintendent of Lecturers and transmit the same to him at his request.

A communication was read from the Committee of the R. W. G. L. on Temperance Literature relative to the establishment of a Weekly Juvenile Temperance paper, and it was voted to guarantee the proportion requisite from the Grand Lodge of California, up to $200

Bills of H. G. Parsons for composition, and electrotyping tracts on the Wine question by Capt A. D. Wood, amounting to $71.80 cents was read, allowed and a warrant was ordered drawn in payment.

A bill of Capt. A. D. Wood as Editor and publisher of the RESCUE for appropriation, free copies etc. for the quarter ending November 1st and amounting to $943,20 was read, allowed and a warrant was ordered drawn in payment.

Electrotype plates of temperance tracts presented by Dr. R. H. McDonald were gratefully accepted and an edition ordered printed for distribution as soon as the funds of the Grand Lodge will warrant.

The G. W. C. T. was authorized and empowered to employ any D. G. W. C. T. to render any special service he may require.

At 1.15 A. M. the Committee adjourned.

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN.
Secretary.

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. E. Richardson, Murphey's, Calaveras Co., or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

DR. HARVEY.

William Harvey was born in 1578, 303 years ago, on the first day of April. Tho that was April fool's day, he was as far from being a fool as it is possible for a man to be. He was without any help the author of one of the most important discoveries that had ever been made in medical science and in the knowledge of the human system.

People had been for thousands of years acquainted with the machinery of the bodies of men and animals: doctors and scientists had examined the heart and veins and nerves of that wondrous piece of mechanism, had felt the heart beat and the pulse throb as regularly as the tick of a clock, but had never suspected that the machine had been wound up to go, and was going all the time that life lasts. The doctors knew that blood is distributed all over the body, but never suspected that there was a regular circulation or a constant pumping of the blood thru the system, until Dr. Harvey discovered it. And it appears so simple and natural to us.

The editor of the Rescue was not personally acquainted with Dr. Harvey, but history gives some very interesting particulars of his life. First thing, as usual, he had a good mother. There is a tablet to her memory in the old church at Folkestone, as follows:

A. D. 1605, Nov. 8. Dyed in the 50th yeere of her age, Joan, wife of Tho. Harvey, mother of seven sones and two davghters; a Godly, harmless woman a chast loveing wyfe, a charitable qviet neighbovr, a cofortable frendly matron, a prvdent, diligent hvswyfe, a carefvl, teder-harted mother, deere to her hvsband, reverensed of her children, beloved of her neighbovrs, elected of God, whose sovle rests in Heaven, her body in the grave; To her a happy advantage, to hers an vnhappy loss."

He went thru school and college, learned Latin and Greek, studied medicine four years in Padua, Italy, and at 24 years was licensed "to practice and teach Arts and Medicines in every land and seat of learning," He then practiced in London, married, joined the college of physicians, was given charge of St Bartholomew's Hospital and became a prominent man among his fellows. In 1615, his 37th year he was chosen lecturer on anatomy in the college of physicians.

He then began to make known his views as to the circulation of the blood, but not till 14 years later did he publish his theories in book form. You will suppose he now was very much admired and honored, but no, he was maligned and persecuted with bitterness. He wrote, "After my book came out I fell mightily in my practice, it is believed by the vulgar that I am crackbrained, and all of the physicians are against me."

It is said that none of the doctors who were over 40 years of age at the time of Harvey's discovery, ever admitted its truth: they are reported as ridiculing and cursing it while they lived. But it was true just the same whether they believed it or not. Similarly to-day, the most scientific, learned, practical and eminent of the physicians of our time have learned and proved by the most indubitable tests, that the old system of using alcoholic liquors as a food or medicine is the extreme of folly and has destroyed many thousands of lives. Yet very many physicians resolutely shut their eyes and ears obstinately to the truth, and continue to prescribe these wretched poisonous quackeries.

It is the opinion of a large number of people that President Garfield might have easily recovered, but for the poisoning of his stomach and blood and system with the alcohol administered by his doctors. It is thot by many that a strong healthy man subjected to exactly the same treatment without any wound, would be pretty sure to die in 80 days. It has been charged that thousands of wounded soldiers, during the war of secession, failed to recover because they were dosed with whisky.

The whole medical world was against Harvey; but he was right and all the rest were wrong. Fifty years ago a very few men like Dr. Harvey said it was best not to drink rum: the rest of the world called them crack-brained, as they did him. Now the world confesses they were right.

But a very few years ago the ablest doctors found alcohol as a medicine bad and useless. Foolish people ridicule them, but there is every probability that in a very few years a doctor will as soon prescribe rattlesnake bite as the rumsnake poison.

Doctor Harvey was a christian too and always loved to recognize the hand of God as an active and immediate agency in nature. He was physician to James the first and was also to Charles the first who had a very strong attachment for him. In 1881 August 6 a statue of Dr. Harvey erected in his native Folkestone, was unveiled in the presence of a concourse of people, among them many eminent men, and women assembled to honor the memory of the great physician, scholar, philanthropist and christian gentleman, who like so many more were ridiculed because they pointed men to something good and true, that bigotry had not found out before.

ALL ONE FAMILY.

Away down or up or round in South Africa, almost on the opposite side of the world, where they never can see our North Star, and where the sun is true north of them at noon, there is a good temperance paper published called the Templars Standard. Away there the rumcask and the drunkard-maker have been doing mischief as everywhere else, and people have to organize lodges, publish temperance literature and form the children into juvenile temples, to protect them from the snares which are set for their feet to lead to destruction.

While it is very sad to see elsewhere the trail of the serpent of mischief that plans poverty and misery for your future destiny, it is pleasant and cheerful and inspiring to hear and know and feel that the same spirit of love which God has implanted in the human heart, is equally elsewhere, seeking to rescue the perishing, to find the lost, to restore the wandering, to guard the lambs of the human fold, protect them from their ravenous enemies and tenderly guide them into the pleasant paths of innocence and peace.

Like the wires that connect the telegraph poles all over the continent and link them together in one great solem purpose, there is a chain of fraternal sympathy which reaches all round this globe and binding in one brotherly and sisterly union all who love God and their fellowman and who delight in what is honest and pure and noble. And the spirit of the loving Master leads this union of loving hearts by the same loving impulses to engage in similar enterprises and to adopt similar methods wherever our people and our language and our bible and our gospel have reached thruout the earth.

And it is agreed now everywhere to teach and train the children to abhor and detest and despise this miserable wicked and cowardly but dangerous enemy, which has so long and so cruelly plagued this world.

Now the Standard tells its people there of what our G. L. is doing with the juveniles, as it finds in the reports which the Rescue carries there every week after its long long journey, and it stirs them up there to go to work likewise and train the young people there to be valiant soldiers for the truth.

It will perhaps interest you to know that your paper that comes to you on Thursday to Saturday or Sunday, travels away east and west, north and south and carries the news of what you are doing and what is being done for you every week. Our paper goes eastward a good deal more than half way round the globe, and it goes westward also till it more than overlaps the other: every number is carried a little more than around the world; some of the news it carries of our Home for Orphans and our juvenile temples and our great temperance work is reproduced in the papers of other places in the far distance. You are read about sometimes by the camp fire of the travelers to the diamond fields of South Africa and in the cabin of the miner of Australia and on board the ships and steamers that traverse the trackless deep of every clime. And the result of all this sympathy of interest and interchange of kindly feeling and pleasant words and thots and all this united effort for the good of men —will be that when you grow up to take our places in the world, there will be among the members of the great human family more love and kindness and good will and charity and comfort and happiness and less hate and malice and selfishness and sin and sorrow than have ever marked the history of our race. Now let us be sure that a good report shall always be made of us.

CHESTER.

Americans who go to Liverpool ought to pay a visit to the very ancient city of Chester, which is about 18 miles distant. It is a pleasant trip thru a beautiful country. Chester is the only walled city left in England, and it is not at all probable there will ever be another there. In several streets the side walk is under the projecting upper stories of the houses, the fronts of which are supported by posts or pillars. These walks are 14 or 15 feet wide and the various shops and stores are inside the walks, steps ascending to the dwellings above. There is a pleasant walk around the city on the walls, with a fine view of the country and of the ancient battlefields around the city; the ditches now dry and the vestiges of the drawbridges and defences, last in activity when resisting Oliver Cromwell's republican army about 235 years ago, who took it after a long stubborn siege.

There are two very old churches in the city, the Cathedral and St, John's Church. Of course every visitor to Chester goes to see these old curiosities; in a certain part of the former there are rows of seats so balanced that if the ancient worshippers became inattentive to the service and fell into a doze, they would lose their balance and their seat would topple over 4 or 5 inches and strike a loud slam on its stone supporters, which not only awakened the sleeper but advertized his irreverence to the congregation.

In 1864 there was an aged sexton at the Cathedral, whether he was sexton in Cromwell's time or not, or whether he was built with the church he did not tell us. He is no doubt there today just the same. He was the most intensified personification of solemnity I ever saw. His gown and priestly garments from head to foot in every seam and fold and wave indicated a solemn admonition, just ready to break forth on you and preach you a serious homily. The glossy whiteness of his silvered head would have melted a snowdrift in tears of disappointed ambition, and every movement of his well-fleshed person seemed a fitting prelude to something stupendously solemn just about to happen. His face reminded you when you looked at it that what you had deemed solemn in his presence thus far was but an outer surrounding of the awful solemnity expressed and experienced and lived by the soul of which that countenance was the index.

On this occasion we were a party of four, three being ladies; we hauled up alongside of the solemn sexton just as he had taken in tow another party, mostly ladies, to show them the church. He at once shook out another reef of solemnity, and let it completely overshadow us, and as if under an intense feeling that our time in this world might be very short indeed, welcomed us as compatriots of Henry Ward Beecher, who had lately been in Chester and last Sunday two weeks had mentioned in his pulpit in Brooklyn that I (the sexton) had requested him to remove his hat when he entered this church.

While we solemnly followed in his solemn wake, he stopped in front of an altar or platform and said, "this is St. Bridget's chapel, oh there was a dreadful thing happened here only last summer!" Here the speaker seemed to be utterly overcome with a burden of grief which no life under a century and a half however industrious could have succeeded in accumulating. Yes, said one of the ladies, hesitatingly, lest the solemn intelligence should be too much to bear, what was that? Oh, said the sexton, and here his face elongated and became a whole theatrical stage of solemnity, actors and all: It was a dreadful thing. a dreadful thing; a man married his own sister right there, right there!!! What! Married mar—mar—married his own sister!!! said half a dozen ladies all at once. Yes, his own sister; and what made it more shocking, he was a minister, a clergyman too, (here the solemnity was up to 340 a minute) What! do you tell me a cler—cler—clergyman married his sister in this—in this—this country, in England? True, true, I assure you, true, every word of it; but—he—married—her—to—another—man, and the sexton without the least impairment of his stupendous solemnity, proceeded to explain the remainder of the show to us, concluding with a room of pictures where he solemnly pointed out to us the solemn portrait of what he said was the last king of America, which puzzled some of the ladies, but of course you all know.

There are many singular old inscriptions on the fronts of the houses; the letters cut in and the words anciently spelled. One house which it is said was the only one which escaped the plague in 1665 has the following in antique capitals right across the front if seventeen years have not tangled it in my memory.

MAN'S EXTREMITY IS GOD'S OPPORTUNITY.

And of all the things I saw in several visits at various times in Chester nothing was more interesting and impressive than that short old sermon, which has every day for more than two hundred years returned the thanks of its author for God's mercy and preached a sermon of God's goodness and man's duty, to the thousands who live in Chester and to every stranger that visits that city.

TEACH THE YOUTHS.

It is a cruel thing to send a boy out into the world untaught that alcohol in any form is fire, and will certainly burn him if he puts it in his stomach. It is a cruel thing to educate a boy in such a way that he has no adequate idea of the dangers that beset his path. It is a mean thing to send a boy out to take his place in society without understanding the relations of temperance to his own safety and prosperity, and to the safety and prosperity of society. Of course, the great barrier between youth and correct knowledge—the great mystifier and misleader—is respectable society. This is practically saying to the young, pretty universally, that wine is a good thing. Fine dinners are never given without it, and good men and women drink it daily. They do not get drunk, they may be conscientious and religious, and many of them not only do not regard wine drinking as harmful but as positively beneficial. The boy and the young man see all this, and think, naturally, that those who have experience in drink should know better about the results than those who let drink alone.

Now what we want to do in our schools is to do away with the force of a pernicious example, and a long cherished error by making the children thorolly intelligent on this subject of alcohol. They should be taught the natural effect of alcohol upon the processes of animal life. They should be taught that it can add nothing whatever to the vital forces or to the vital tissues—that it never enters into the elements of structure, and that, in the healthy organism, it is always a burden or disturbing force. They should be taught that it invariably disturbs the operation of the brain, and that the mind can get nothing from alcohol of help that is to be relied upon. They should be taught that alcohol inflames the baser passions, blunts the sensibilities, and debases the feelings. They should be taught that an appetite for drink is certainly developed by those who use it, which is dangerous to life, destructive of health of body and peace of mind, and in millions of instances ruinous to fortune and all the high interests of the soul. They should be taught that the crime and pauperism of society flow as naturally from alcohol as any effect whatever naturally flows from its competent cause. They should be taught that drink is the responsible cause of most of the poverty and want of the world. So long as six hundred million dollars are annually spent for drink in this country, every ounce of which was made by the destruction of bread, and not one ounce of which has ever entered into the sum of national wealth, having nothing to show for its cost but diseased stomachs, degraded homes, destroyed industry, increased pauperism, and aggravated crime; these boys should understand the facts and be able to act upon them in their first responsible conduct.

The national wealth goes into the ground. If we could only manage to bury it without having to pass thitherward in the form of a poisonous fluid thru the inflamed bodies of our neighbors and friends, happy should we be. But this great abominable curse dominates the world. The tramp reminds us of it as he begs for a nights lodging. The widow and the fatherless tell us of it as they ask for bread. It scowls upon us from the hovels and haunts of the poor everywhere. Even the clean, hard working man of prosperity cannot enjoy his earnings because the world is full of misery from drink. The more thoroly we can instruct the young concerning this dominating evil of our time, the better it will be for the world.—Casket

WHAT TIME IS IT?

What time is it?
Time to do well—
Time to live better—
Give up that grudge—
Answer that letter—
Speak that kind word, to sweeten a sorrow;
Do that good deed you would leave till to-morrow.
Time to try hard
In that new situation—
Time to build up on
A solid foundation.
Giving up needlessly changing and drifting;
Leaving the quicksands that ever are shifting.

What time is it?
Time to be thrifty;
Farmers, take warning—
Plow in the springtime—
Sow in the morning—
Spring rain is coming, zephyrs are blowing;
Heaven will attend to the quickening and growing,
Time to count cost—
Lessen expenses
Time to look well
To the gates and fences:
Making and mending, as good workers should;
Shutting out evil and keeping the good.

What time is it?
Time to be earnest
Laying up treasure,
Time to be thotful,
Choosing true pleasure;
Loving stern justice—of truth being fond;
Making your word just as good as your bond.
Time to be happy
Doing your best—
Time to be trustful,
Leaving the rest;
Knowing in whatever country or clime,
Ne'er can we call back one minute of time.

GOD WANTS THE BOYS AND GIRLS.

God wants the boys, the merry, merry boys,
The noisy boys, the funny boys,
The thotless boys—
God wants the boys, with all their joys,
That He as gold may make them pure
And teach them trials to endure:
His heroes brave
He'll have them be Fighting for truth
And purity.
God wants the boys.

God wants the happy-hearted girls,
The loving girls, the best of girls,
The worst of girls—
God wants to make the girls his pearls
And so reflect his holy face,
And bring to mind his wondrous grace,
That beautiful
The world may be,
And filled with love
And purity.
God wants the girls. —Ex.

You have heard of "the snake in the grass," my boy,
Of the terrible snake in the grass;
But now you must know
Man's deadliest foe
Is a snake of a different class,
Alas!
'Tis the venomous snake in the glass. —J. G. Saxe.

THE "EVERGREEN BLACKBERRY."

ED. RESCUE:—I want to tell your readers about a prodigy in the fruit line. I have just been to see the vine again, and found it still loaded with flowers, and fruit in every stage, from the flower to the great luscious, ripe berries, almost as large as hen-eggs. The vine is an immense grower, of running habit, the tops taking root wherever they touch the ground. They train it on a scaffold, and the mass looks like an immense pile of green and ripe berries, with flowers and leaves arranged for ornament. In this climate, it begins to ripen its fruit about the first of July, and continues without rest or slackening until long after severe frosts. A Christmas pie, fresh from the vine, is sometimes the "close of the season."

"What would it do in California?"

I hope the Home Folks will be first to answer the question, as I have secured several plants for that institution, and will send them at the proper time. It originated here from seed, and is yet quite rare, not having found its way into any nursery catalog. It presents rather a striking appearance, the ample leaves being far more divided than those of any other variety. And now here is a proposal to the folks at the Home. If I can procure several hundred cuttings this winter, and send them at my expense, will they root them and sell the plants? From what I have seen and learned of this most wonderful product, I am sure that $5 for a single plant would be a grand investment; and if I lived there, I would gladly pay five times that price rather than fail to get it. I am by no means sure that I can get the cuttings, and if the Home Folks should decide to accept my proposal, it might be well to answer soon, that my chances may be the better. T. J. ALLEY.

ASTORIA, Oct. 28, '81.

The folks at the Home will please reply at once to the kind proposal of Bro. Alley.

ALCOHOL THE CAUSE OF INTOXICATION IN ALL INTOXICATING DRINKS.

Alcohol was first discovered by heating wine and condensing the vapor which rose from the heated liquor. For a long time it was called spirit of wine, as it was not known that it could be obtained from anything else. The alcohol is not made by heating the wine, it is only separated from the water and other substances which together make wine. Later it was found that the water called spirit of wine could be obtained from other kinds of intoxicating drinks, such as beer and ale, as well as from the wine, and it then received the name of alcohol. This process of separating alcohol from water and other substances, by heating and then condensing or cooling the steam is called distillation.

Rev. J. T. Crane says: "In this way alcohol can be separated from the various beverages of which it forms an element. Distil wine, cider, beer, ale, metheglin, the fermented sap of the sugar cane, the palm-tree or the agave and the result is the same. And when the alcohol is gone, the most ardent devotee of the original drink turns with disgust from the flat and powerless residue. Take the alcohol from ale, and there remains only a poor, weak, vegetable soup. Take it from lager beer, and the residue is only a very thin gruel. Take it from any of the various beverages of which it forms a part, and not only is the power of mischief at once gone, but the charm, the exhilaration, the supposed virtue is fled, and not a vestige remains of all the excellencies which its admirers attribute to it."—David C. Cooks Quarterly.

POLITENESS.

A boy who is polite to his father and mother is likely to be polite to everyone else. A boy lacking in politeness to his parents may have the semblance of courtesy in society, but is never truly polite in spirit, and is in danger, as he becomes older, of betraying his real want of courtesy. We are all in danger of living to much for the outside world for the impression which we make in society, coveting the good opinions of those who are in a sense a part of themselves, and who will continue to sustain and be interested in us, notwithstanding these defects of deportment and character. We say to every boy and girl, cultivate the habit of courtesy and propriety at home—in the sitting-room and kitchen, as well as in the parlor, and you will be sure in other places to deport yourselves in a becoming and attractive manner. When one has pleasant smiles and a graceful demeanor, it is a satisfaction to know that these are not put on, but that they belong to the character, and are manifest at all times and under all circumstances.—Anvil.

GRAFTON, Yolo Co., Oct. 29, 1881.

On Tuesday night a visit to Sacramento proved to us that the juvenile work in that city is not forgotten. Discussion on Band of Hope work resulted in the appointment of a committee to take steps in the immediate organizing of a Band of Hope. Twelve of the brothers and sisters ranged across the room and received the B. of H. pledge, and made up their minds to proceed at once. The idea upon which Sacramento is to work would be good for San Francisco, San Jose, Oakland and other large cities. Instead of organizing "the" band, their idea is to organize several in different parts of the city, not forgetting the suburbs; then to have a weekly meeting for each band and a monthly meeting of all in which there shall be Union exercises and one or more addresses by competent parties. The work of instruction is to be conducted in each band and general reviews are to be held in the monthly union gatherings. Let other cities try the plan.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

The rest of the Sabbath is as necessary to the physical health, capacity and endurance of man, brute or inanimate machine that works, as the sleep of night is to man or beast. One might as well try to prove that the sun gives us the light of day as to adduce argument to prove this. We have only to look with eyes open upon the human races and peoples of this day, to be equally assured that their moral health as well as their physical capacity is good or bad or indifferent, in just about the proportion that their observance of the Sabbath has been good or otherwise.

No honest business lawfully carried on, has an interest in stealing the Sabbath rest from the people to whom God and the law and the universal code of honor of civilized humanity, have accorded that precious boon and privilege. No more bread is sold or eaten because Sunday baking is carried on. No more clothes or furniture or meat or pictures or fish or newspapers or food or coal or any necessary of consumption, are sold or used because they are made or sold on Sunday. Every body uses of these just the same in seven days, whether they are made or sold in 7 or 6 or 4 days of the week.

Seeing that nothing is to be gained by one day's extra labor, but a good deal of comfort and enjoyment and health lost and strength wasted thereby, it does not seem that any class of people, engaged in a lawful calling or an honest, decent business desire to give up the Sunday rest. If the worker works right along, he cannot help suffering in health, strength and comfort, and if his employer pays him for seven days in a week, he does a foolish act, because he dont get as much work nor as good work in 3 months of 30 days as he would in 3 months of 26 days, and he must pay a good deal more for it.

But there is one trade that lives by preying upon and plundering and consuming every other trade. Its main and almost entire support is derived from the wages of the workingmen, which should furnish food, clothing, home and home comforts for the wives and children of the workers. In place of the workers having plenteous food and raiment and happy joyous song, and a cheerful loving intercourse of family and friends in their own well furnished and well cultured homes, the drunkard makers, wholesale and retail, set their traps for the working man's wages, which are verily and truly and solemnly, the property of his family.

Wearied with his six days toil and coveting the blessed rest of Sunday and home, the working man, if no traps were set for his feet on that day, would naturally enjoy it with his family and in the comforts of his own little kingdom. But the Sunday snare is set for him, and when he is caught, his home, which might be the scene of so much brightness and happiness, goes down step by step, till it becomes a cold, bare, miserable hell of gaunt famine, of howling discord, of devilish brawls and fights: a nursery of tramps and criminals in so many cases —and all this wrong and robbery and misery is permitted, that a few wretched, wicked outlaws and reprobates, lost to all sense of honor and decency, callous to shame and infamous report, may live without work and by the plunder of the innocent and helpless.

And for this class of men solely, the subversion of the Sabbath, the subversion of the laws of the land, the subversion of the decent usages of reputable society, the subversion of men's sobriety, and women's chastity, the subversion of American civilization and liberty, the surrender of the safeguards of life and property, the severance of all homage from earth to God, is demanded and to the detriment and ruinous injury of every reputable individual and interest of our land.

Some will say that other interests demand Sunday labor. There must be some labor done on Sunday, but no necessary Sunday work is demoralizing, and none or very little of it should ever be done by people who work 6 other days. The great mass of Sunday excursion by rail and steamer is to carry people somewhere to the decoy traps of drink, and altho many sober, respectable, worthy people take part in such, with little present apparent harm, the Sunday excursion coupled as it is with the Sunday drunk, sends its thousands of the one sex to crime and shame, and of the other to shame and crime.

If the bar and the beer barrel shall be no longer the center piece of the Sunday excursion, and when the grogshop shall no longer curse any day of the week, the worker and the man of leisure can a thousand times better afford to have two Saturday excursions for their one Sunday trip as now, and the Sunday can be devoted to its intended rest and recuperation and to mental and moral upraising and improvement. The only enemy of our Sunday rest and our Sunday peace is the grogshop.

Shall the grogshop continue to defy God and man and stamp out human happiness in this State and gorge itself on the blood and ruin of this people ?

PUT THIS AND THAT TOGETHER.

An Anti-Mormon Resolution has been passed by the Cincinnati Methodist Conference on Mormonism. It is thus worded: "That it is the urgent duty of the general government to apply at once adequate remedies for the extirpation of Mormon Polygamy. If the ordinary processes of the civil and criminal courts are not enough, then the laws should be executed by arms. That we call upon the people everywhere, by discussion, appeal, and petition, to cease not to agitate on the subject until the crime shall be abolished." There ought to be no delay in responding to this resolution. The apathy of governments is soon quickened when the people are determined. The blood of men, women and children murdered by those miscreants at the head of the Mormon community, cries to heaven for vengeance. * * * * *

Compared with that vicious city, (Washington,) Sodom was virtuous. God will not hold us guiltless if we do not agitate in this matter, and use what power we have for its extirpation."

"Seventy-Five Pretty Barmaids" is the attraction openly advertised in the less scrupulous of the daily papers to induce gentlemen to visit the Cremorne, a nocturnal resort in Thirty-second Street, New York. The place is so contrived as to be a moral pitfall. In 1879 scores of young men, more fools than knaves, met their ruin and sealed their damnation in that place. In 1880, scores of others did the same thing. Scores more are doing so this year. The story of the "barmaids," if told would be more pitiful still. Nearly every one represents a blighted home, and everyone lives a hopeless life. The lessee, a man without pity and without remorse, regardless of God and eternity, is piling up wealth and using every known device to keep up the supply of "barmaids," who fade away and die off at an awful rate, and to entice the best manhood of the rising generation into his gay halls. The place is also much frequented by middle-aged and elderly gentlemen, whose whole lives are unsuspected frauds. They go to their business in the morning guilty; they return to their families in the evening guilty; guilty; they move in genteel society guilty. Such is a place which the civilized and nominally Christian city of New York allows to flourish in its midst with complacency.

We proceed with pleasure to say that a counter-influence is very soon to be established in the Cremorne building by Jerry McAuley, of the well known Water Street Mission. He has purchased for $3000 a portion of the premises 100x25 feet in extent, abstracting so much from the large room where the "barmaids" entertain their customers till the small hours of the morning. A cloth curtain is all which separates at present Mr. McAuley's part from the space where the jingling of glasses and the noise of laughter tell of Satan's work in full operation. That curtain is to be replaced by a solid wall, and the premises are to be altered so as to form a suitable room for Gospel meetings on the ground-floor, with dwelling-rooms up stairs. These alterations will cost $5000, making a total cost of $8000, of which $6000 have been secured. Subscriptions to the amount of the remaining $2000 will be gratefully received and promptly acknowledged by Mr. McAuley, if sent to him at the following address; 316 Water Street, New York, N. Y."

These two items are from the N. Y. Christian Herald, which is a very excellent paper and does credit to its name. But these two paragraphs seem a little inconsistent. The sick Chinese passengers at sea used to refuse any remedy from an American medicine chest, because they said, "Chinaman inside not all same Melican inside;" so the Herald seems to think the same medicine that is good for New York debauchery would not suit a much milder type of immorality in Utah.

The Mormons, or a portion of them, have been instructed to believe from childhood, that a plurality of wives is scripturally approved and right. It would be impossible to change that belief with the bayonet or faggot; especially seeing that their religion entirely kept the grogshop, gambling den and brothel out of their whole territory, until all these villainies were forced upon them by gentile representatives of American Christianity, and Federal Judges and officials backed by U. S. bayonets. None of these things exist in Utah yet, unless where forced upon them by our superior civilization, in spite of their entreaties and determined resistance.

On the other hand, Cremorne and a thousand similar infamies in our large cities all over this continent, of a type of debauchery a thousand times worse than anything that ever existed in Utah (except under protection of Federal bayonets) are matters of altogether minor importance; altho each one of them piles up a daily record of crime and devil-worship, and filthiness that probably dwarfs a whole year's volume of the crime of Utah Territory.

The bayonet and a dynamite policy has been and is frequently proposed for the rectification of the church doctrines of Utah, which have produced a civilization that in peace, order, morality and thrift, has no equal in any rum and beer state. But, for the little moat in the eye of New York and San Francisco Christianity, which has a result in daily crime, rapine and murder that has had no parallel in all this world's history among pagans or Christians, the medicine must be very sweet and soothing; no bayonet, no dynamite, no faggot of persecution, but an $8000 Jerry McAuley mission, to try and snatch from the jaws of death, one per thousand that are ready to perish of the Cremorne and beer garden barmaids, and the armies of victims whom our Christian licenced rumsellers and harlots have seduced, polluted, debauched and utterly depraved and ruined. A penny remedy for a million dollar crime and a death penalty for an error of belief. But dont touch the image of Baal; there is too much money and clothes and good things in its treasury.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

David C. Cook has recently opened, at 148 Madison St. Chicago, a Revolution Temperance House, and we are amazed at the amount he offers for a little money. He furnishes excellent and unique material for educating the children. It is a grand work. We advise all to send for samples and buy what they can afford. A little money expended in this way will hardly be missed, and will do you and others much good.—Prohibitionist, Lewiston, Me.

The board of trustees then adjourned sine die.

HOME for ORPHANS, Vallejo, Nov. 1, 1881.

The newly formed board of trustees was called to order by Geo Katzenstein, when the roll of trustees was called and the following were found present: R H McDonald, San Francisco, Wm. Sims, Winters, Isaac S. Halsey and Samuel Kitto of Vallejo, Robert Thompson of San Francisco and Geo. B. Katzenstein, Sac.

There were noted absent Wm. H. Mills of Sacramento, A. G. Clark of Napa city and Niles Searls of Nevada city.

The board organized by the election of the following officers: President Wm. Sims, vice president Dr. R. H. McDonald; Secretary, Geo. B. Katzenstein, Treasurer Dr. I. S. Halsey, Vallejo.

Upon motion duly made and carried the secretary was directed to have a pamphlet printed containing the reports of the trustees, lady managers, Treasurer and special examining committee of the Good Templars Home for Orphans as presented at the last session of Grand Lodge and to print an edition of two thousand copies thereof for general distribution.

Upon motion duly made and carried it was ordered that the donation of $105 heretofore made by Bro V. Doan, be placed in the endowment fund of the Good Templars Home for Orphans.

Upon motion duly made and carried a vote of thanks was extended to past sec., Bro. C. H. Haile for efficient services heretofore rendered this Board.

At one o'clock P. M. the board took a recess for inspection of building and grounds.

At two o'clock and thirty minutes the board resumed and received an apologetic telegram from Trustee W. H. Mills announcing his inability to attend the present meeting of the Board.

The lady managers were now introduced and a joint meeting of the two Boards was now held.

The following was unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS General John Bidwell of Chico, Cal. donated to the Good Templars Home for Orphans the sum of one thousand dollars, and

WHEREAS the Grand Lodge recommended that a hall and class in the Home for Orphans' school be named Bidwell Hall and Class, therefore

Resolved: That the south lower schoolroom and the class being taught therein be designated the Bidwell class.

Upon motion duly made and carried the executive committee of the joint Board of Trustees were directed to have a suitable plate made and placed over the door of the schoolroom above designated.

Upon motion duly made and carried the Board of Lady Managers were directed to seat one of the upper schoolrooms of the new school house with patent school desks to correspond with those now in use.

Upon motion duly made and carried, Prof. Smith was directed to have suitable plates made to bear the name of the donors of desks.

After an informal discussion the Lady Managers retired and the Trustees resumed regular session.

Upon motion duly made and carried Halsey and Kitto were appointed the Executive Committee of the Board.

Upon motion duly made and carried the salary of the treasurer was continued at $20 per month.

The Executive Committee of the Board were directed to inquire as to the price of certain land etc. and to secure a refusal of the same and report at the next meeting.

Upon motion duly made and carried Trustee Kitto was appointed a special committee to enquire as to the probable cost of a tank and tower for an additional water supply of ten and twenty thousand gallons respectively.

At 3:30 P. M. the board adjourned.

THE RESCUE.

To the Good Templars of California is committed mainly the aggressive temperance work in the state. The Order has grown to power and influence by vigorous action. We have undertaken a great and noble work, but we must not expect to find it all sunshine as we proceed in our advance. Difficulties there are in our way and difficulties we are bound to encounter, but none that are insurmountable. They can be overcome and before complete peace is restored they must be completely and forever removed. To say that we are powerless is to acknowledge that man is incapable of self government. This none of us believe. This year our order has taken extra burdens. This year we have started an extra number of lecturers on their mission of peace, sooner than usual. This year we have assumed the publication of the RESCUE and reduced the price to one dollar and a quarter per year. This may seem a hazardous policy, but the object is to scatter it like autumn leaves all over the coast. It is an excellent paper, filled with excellent matter, and no family can take it without benefit to the household. This has been done to give new life and new courage to our Order, so far as the paper is concerned. But we ask our members to rally to its support at once. Start your list in your lodge now. Our best lodges take and read the RESCUE. We want and expect prompt action to run our subscription up to eight or ten thousand. Do not stop with members, but go out and ask others to subscribe. They will not regret taking it when it comes to the end of the year.

CONSISTENCY.

WILL C. KING.

And now we reach the fourth point, this—By drinking wine—freely using the blessings of God's providence he ..... vindicated the liberty of his followers to use "every creature of God" as fit for food and to be received with thanksgiving etc.

Before the grandeur of such logic we stand aghast. God made wine, hence it is a blessing of his providence, and by drinking it Christ has vindicated that nothing is impure or unfit for food but has given liberty to use all things thankfully.

Let us try again. God made arsenic, hence it is a good creature and fit for food because Christ so vindicated. God made the viper, hence it is a good creature from him, and of course must be one of the "every creatures" referred to which are good, and toward which liberty is vindicated.

Considering that toward the social evil Christ took the extreme attitude that to think lustfully was sin, how absurd is it to endeavor to prove that toward this twin crime he said "sin moderately." When we add to this the fact that the ground upon which this would be argument is based is false, its absurdity is more clearly seen. God never made wine—it is blasphemy to call it his good gift, even in the sense that the viper is such.

In Revelation eternal life is a boon, death a woe. In nature life beautifies, builds up, fits all bounties for our use. Death and decay make drear—tear down, make useful things useless and must be guarded against and when it comes we hasten its results out of sight as loathsome. Hold! cries modern wisdom, Christ drank wine and thus vindicated the liberty of his followers to reverse the laws of nature and thankfully receive and regardless of consequences drank that which he never created, which is the result of and stamped with the fatal brand of decay, which is a foe to life and has received the woe of his father's revealed word. Away with such ensnaring sophistry. The Christ whom we worship never stultified himself by drinking fermented wine, was never inconsistent.

There is perfect harmony between God's words and works. Hard as some divines strive to maintain the contrary. The Bible I strive to follow teaches that temperance is self restraint from and not in the use of whatever is injurious. Once more we read, "wine is good, is a gift of God and may be used with advantage." Touching its goodness, the oriental breathes his last from opium poisoning asserting the same of his drug. That it is a gift of God nature most emphatically denies. That there is advantage in its beverage use the best medical talent of two continents declares false.

We deny that the wine drinker has in health, clearness of mind or economy, one single advantage over the abstainer. Over against this we place the fearful disadvantage of being in the line of promotion to drunkardship. "History lifts its warning voice saying, 'beware!' " The use is the abuse, and thus believing, we also say, "it may be abused, but not innocently.

2. Of the many things that may be said against the assumption regarding the wine of the institution of the Lord's supper, we may note only a few. We affirm that the assumption is not only unfair, but unchristian. Among our reasons are, 1. It does violence to the spirit of all Christ's teachings.

2. It robs the ordinance of its significance. Alcoholic wine is not a fruit of the vine. In the juice of the grape was the life, even as it is in the blood of the body, and this was used as the symbol of Christ's blood, being the life of the Christian. Savor of life unto life. Alcohol is the result of decay—a poison that attacks and destroys life—a savor of death unto death.

3. The Jews at the present time carefully prepare and preserve unintoxicating wine for their passover feast.

4. Hundreds more learned than the above authors assure us that the Jews used no intoxicating wine at sacred or marriage feasts.

5. Had it been fermented the passover would have been one general debauch, for they were commanded to use four cups or from one and one-half to three pints.

6. Finally, what significance in their strenuous effort to have unleavened bread while they introduced fermented wine?

After thotfully considering these reasons can any candid mind have a vestige of uncertainty remaining? If there is however, is it not best and safest to give the spirit and tenor of religion the doubt to cast it on the side of temperance and morality?

Were Christ to walk and talk in Judea now, what think you would be his words touching the efforts of his learned followers to make him the foe to humanity's best good? It is time they conceed that "we may abstain if we choose." Oh how magnanimous!

THE GERMANS.

During last month 65,000 emigrants landed in this country. These were mainly from the drinking nations of Europe. Of these, 19,000 were Germans, almost double those of any other nationality. If the Republican party is forever to cater to the "German vote," and that is always to be counted a beer and distillery vote, then it is high time that temperance republicans were looking into their future, for the average monthly emigration to the United States has been 50,000 for many months, and the tide from Germany has been unprecedented.

We have no doubt that part of it has been caused by liquor dealer agents, and part of it is the movement among Germans to get where there are temperance influences, and better times for the industrious poor man.

Temperance people cannot begin too soon to educate this German vote, for it is growing faster than any other vote. You should lose no time in getting ready for Mrs. Skelton's work in your country, and in getting her temperance paper, Der Bahn Brecher into the hands of Germans.

They like it, and will thank you for it.

She has left the state for the present, but returns to us in the winter when we have her engagements worked up ready for her. She will aid you admirably in your English work, and among your colored people. Lose no time in getting ready to meet her expenses and facilitate her work, and notify Miss Auretta Hoyt, Secretary Central Committee, of your desire to secure her services.

An intelligent German called at headquarters this week, to procure prohibition documents from which to get data for a prohibition paper to be read before a German Church society in this city soon.

The temperance Germans are coming up to the work. We have Rev. M. C. Peters, of Clinton Co., and H. W. Kemper, of Dearborn county, two Germans who are already among our very best workers. A young German in Evansville wrote us last summer for certain material to aid in the preparation of a prohibition speech.

Mrs. Skelton, during her stay in Indianapolis, spent two days in a German settlement in the southeast part of Marion county, and found the people eager and hungry to hear her. There are German settlements all over Indiana, especially Southwestern Indiana, which would do the same. Their blood will be required at our hands, if we fail to put her at work, among them, and unless we do, their vote may fasten the liquor traffic upon us.—Monitor Journal.

In the Friday noon meeting each week at the Young Men's Christian Association Hall, the subject is "temperance," and it is always one of the best meetings of the week. And "temperance," we understand, is regularly the subject of the Friday noon meetings in every association in the land. Why is it not a good plan to make this the subject of the Sabbath evening meeting once a month in all our churches. Not that the minister should preach a temperance sermon every month, but that he should introduce temperance speakers from his own congregation and from outside, and have singing adapted, and make this one of the largest and most profitable meetings of the church. Does not the condition of the people demand that special prominence be given to this subject? Are there any of our churches where no special temperance meetings are held even once a year? If this is so, why is it so? and is it not time for a change? We invite responses from our ministers and churches in regard to temperance work.—Pacific.

If ministers and church members would take hold of this temperance question in earnest, they would banish drunkenness, almost entirely the attendant evils of the rum traffic, and save more souls than in any other way. But so long as they talk dogmatic religion, with wine bottles in their cupboards and cider barrels in their cellars, the dimples will play on satan's face as lively as when he watched the persecution of the saints, and their prayers will annoy him about the same as the barking of a dog up a hollow tree.—Sun.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo, 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAITURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

THE
National Freeman,
A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,
First No. Jan., 1881.

Edited by..... ....REV. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.

Price, 15 cents per single copy, or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.

The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents caght to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed [illegible]

Revolution Temperance Literature. Just opened, a new Temperance Publishing House. New goods, adapted to new methods of work, at fabulously low prices—making, as we hope, the plan of using temperance literature for temperance work, far more popular and effective than it ever has been

Ninety Dollars' Worth of Books for Two Dollars.

Rachel Noble's Experience; or the Downfall of a Family. Reprint of a 90c. book by Bruce Edwards. A most thrilling and forcible story book. Prize tale of the Scotch Temperance League. Homedale Rectory, reprint of a $1.00 book, by M. H. R. How drinking habits will transform an affectionate husband into a fiend, and blight forever a loving wife's happiness. Full of pathos and power. Packington Parish. Reprint of a $1.00 book by M. A. Paull, showing the ravages of the liquor traffic when introduced into a hitherto quiet village. Each of these three books is put up in one number of the TWO CENT LIBRARY, a large eight-page paper, in brevier type, on good paper, illustrated; either number for $2.00 per 100 copies, post paid. Sample copy of each for 10c.

These book offer a new force: people will read them for the sake of the story, and results must follow. Incomparably better for general distribution than the common argumentative tracts and pamphlets. Each number punched for hanging on hooks. May be sold at news depots or by newsboys, or distributed gratuitously.

Eighteen Cents pays for 100 copies of the GOUGH LIBRARY, illustrated, four-page temperance talks by John B. Gough. Any number or assorted—12 kinds—sample of each for 6c., or for 18c. we will send 100 copies of SUBS AND SAYS, a choice four-page, two-column, illustrated weekly temperance paper suited to general distribution.

CONTRACTS TAKEN AT 5c. A HEAD. To sow every town "knee-deep" with temperance literature without any labor on the part of society or individual by means of our new post-office delivery system and "class papers," reaching every one every month for a whole year for 5c. a head, or every two weeks for 10c. a head; thus for $5.00 one hundred persons can be reached monthly for a year. Papers furnished (not tracts), and sent regularly through the mails direct to each individual person. Society has nothing more to do after sending us names. Eighteen different papers to choose from, and one of a kind may be ordered (five or more in all), as a trial order at these rates. 1. Our Young Ladies. 2. Our Young Men. 3. Our Women. 4. The Christian. 5. The Pastor. 6. The Sunday School Superintendent. 7. The Sunday School Worker. 8. The Catholic Total Abstinence Banner. 9. The Pledge. 10. The Prohibition Banner. 11. The Saloon Curse. 12. The Home Protection Monthly. 13. The Common People. 14. The Railroad. 15. The Anchor. 16. The Soldier. 17. American Farmer. 18. Freeman's Paper.

Title of paper will suggest the class of readers or character of work for which especially designed. Each published monthly, and though small in size contains over 6,000 words in an issue, fully 70,000 words in a year, or the matter of an ordinary $1.50 book. No other plan so cheap or effective; gives papers instead of tracts, sent through the mails, sent in wrappers and directed to parties sent, sent at regular interval, suited to the class of readers to be reached—suited to the work to be done. If Society chooses they can canvass for subscriptions; no one will refuse when it is only a nickel, and many subscribe for them to be sent to others. Sample copy of each and particulars as to ways of introducing, for 10 cents.

Seventy Dollars' Worth of Books in book form for $2.50.

Cheapest offer yet is our offer to induce organization of Bands of Hope among the children. We furnish a library of 52 choice $1.00 to $1.50 temperance story books, put up in ordinary book form, only printed on lighter paper with smaller margins and in paper covers (really stronger books than the more expensive), for 5c. each, or the 52 books for $2.50. Also two weekly Band papers at 2½c. a quarter; a lesson and song quarterly for 2c. certificates, pledge rolls, pledges, reward cards, badges, etc., etc.—all so cheap that penny collections of Band more than pay all expenses. Specimen of everything necessary for complete outfit for Band sent postpaid on receipt of 25c. Paper giving new and simple methods of running Bands, running them either with or without teachers, etc., sent free.

Endorsed. The "Revolution" has the endorsement of temperance leaders from Maine to California. The following recently received from Frances E. Willard, President National W. C. T. U., will serve as a sample; "DEAR BROTHER COOK:—My heart sings hallelujah as I think of your splendid courage. My secretary arrived last night from Boston, bringing your new temperance literature, all of which she has carefully examined, and she says she sang the DOXOLOGY right straight through the happy time thus spent. Her judgment is as good as that of any woman I know. Though my own study of the new goods has been more cursory, I perceive that THEY MEET OUR WANTS. They are varied, bright and attractive. Once get them into the hands of our W. C. T. U.'s and they will go like lemonade in dog days."

We are getting out many other publications beside those advertised above. General circular, etc., free. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison St., Chicago.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:
Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

C. N. GOULDING.

San Andreas, Nov. 6, 1881.

Monday 31st, we had a regular boom in Sonora; house crowded; general good feeling; obtained twelve applications for membership. Having been announced in Columbia and Jamestown for the 1st and 2nd,—same evenings both places—compromised the matter by lecturing in Columbia evening of the 1st; Quartz Mountain, Jamestown the 2nd; Copperopolis Thursday 3rd, to the smallest audience of the season, actual count fifteen present. Had written that I would be in Milton on the 5th and 6th, but no attention was paid to the matter, and came here on the 5th. Installed the officers of Calaveras Lodge No. 407. Sunday evening addressed a fair audience. Shall remain here 7th and 8th, be in Angels Camp 9th and 10th, and at Murphys, District lodge, on the 12th. Lectures also on the evenings of the 11th and 13. This will conclude my work in Calaveras County. I then go North into Shasta, Siskiyou and Trinity counties, for a four months tour, among the hills and mountains, will communicate with the Rescue as often as opportunity may occur.

Why the Ex. Com. should select me in preference to some of the older lecturers, for this protracted trip, I don't understand, but presume they do. I learned during the war to obey orders. It will be Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years, all in one. All the business houses and saloons are closed here to day and quite generally throughout the county. The prosecuting attorney having through the press notified them that if they violated the law, they do so with the full knowledge they would be dealt with according to law. The decision of the "Supreme Court" regarding the Sunday Law, causes considerable talk and comment, and is quite a pill for saloon men to swallow; they are beginning to realize that there is a power higher than themselves.

Will write you concerning Murphys District Lodge. Send additional copies of next Rescue to Murphys.

J. W. WEBB.

Met with San Luis Obispo Lodge; about 90 present, from 12 year olds to grey-beards. The committee on literature still intends sending for some for gratuitous distribution. Over 40 copies of the Rescue are taken. Lectured twice; audiences fair in number, good attention. On Sunday night Presbyterian and M. E. Churches held union meetings. Bro. Wood, W. C. T. and principal of the school introduced me in each of 6 departments as desiring to speak on temperance. Addressed M. E. South and M. E. Sunday school; established a good Band of Hope in each. Many thanks for Bro. Kirkland's hospitality.

Cayucos; two lectures: good attention. Lodge has some discouragements but Bro. C. S. Clarke, formerly Dist. Depty. of San Joaquin Co. and wife will join and help, tho they live 6 miles away. Bro. Rev. Wenk, M. E. Pastor, of Merrill Lodge, will assist. This will encourage the faithful few who are determined to hold on. Individuals have sent and lodge will send for temperance literature. Schools not in session or we would have started good Bands of Hope. Left rituals and badges for Sister's Gemmill McMillan and Cole who will start one in connection with the Sunday school. Cayucos stage reached San Luis too late for Arroyo Grande stage. Bro. Kirkland drove me some 8 miles and by walking 5 reached Bro. Rice's for supper and meeting. Next night open lodge and good attendance. Lodge afterwards met and I initiated a gentleman. Co. Supt. Beckett collected scholars of both departments in his room, next day, and cordially seconded my Band of Hope talk. Many scholars wore badges and had their rituals and we practiced a number of B. of H. songs. Sister Lovett Supt. is an earnest worker; Band meets every Sunday. A number of members sent for temperance literature, and I think the lodge will. The Good Samaritans have their hall out of debt and will ceil and otherwise improve it.

LOMPOC TEMPERANCE COLONY.

Called at home to arrange for my family's comfort thru the winter and to strengthen the two lodges and two Bands of Hope. Large attendance ai the old lodge Saturday night; assisted at initiation and gave unwritten work. Five dollars voed for 100 pages of D. C. Cook's cheap temperance literature, weekly, for a year—nearly 5000 pages in all. Individuals sent for papers and books. Splendid Band of Hope meetings Sunday afternoon, good attendance of parents and other adults. Full house at Union Gospel Temperance meeting in Methodist Church at night. Both M. E. and M. E. South preachers assisted earnestly; deep feeling.

Lompoc Valley lodge had good open lodge same afternoon but I couldn't be in two places at once and Band of Hope work must not be neglected. Lectured there Monday to crowded house of earnest listeners. At Santa Rita, rain spoiled our meeting; very sorry for they are in earnest and always turn out well.

Santa Maria; met with lodge and presided in absence of W. C. T.; just sent for supply of Nation-Liberator with the 3 great speeches; elected good officers, a lady for W. C. T. Sunday morning good attention to a temperance sermon; afternoon Band of Hope, doing well; have sent for 40 volumes of D. C. Cook's 5 cent story books; other Bands should do the same. Trustees of Maple school have nearly killed Band of Hope by refusing to let it meet on Friday after school. It still lives.

Guadalupe; another crowded house at night, to Union Gospel Temperance meeting; Bros. Rev. Holdridge and King, pastors, ably assisting. Band of Hope still advancing; meetings enlivened by good singing. This week obtained 5 subscribers to Rescue and took many orders for tracts, story books &c. Am now off for Ventura District Lodge and vicinity, then to San Diego, to open a vigorous campaign there, on Sunday night Nov. 20th.

H. R. HUGHES.

Cathay's Valley Lodge has 47 members and is doing a good work. Installed their officers at the public meeting and made an address, they need a hall. 12 miles brought us to Mariposa, addressed the public school 62 bright children, and no form of organization to save the boys from drink. Lectured in the church, got 17 names for a lodge, and will try to organize on return trip. Nov 1 and 2, at Buckingham S. H. Got 21 names and organized Buckingham lodge—meets on Sunday 2 P. M. Joseph R. Green L. D. J. H. Hurd W. C. T.

There are two Saloons within a stones throw of S. H. and it was time to have a lodge. Mariposa from its isolated position has been exempt from much temperance work, like all old mining counties, its people have formed convivial habits, and some of the best citizens have been robbed of life by the curse of strong drink. It has been a hard field, but the ice is broken it is slowly thawing out, and I hope very soon to see a list of at least 5 lodges in the Rescue credited to Mariposa. These people are slow to move, but if they take hold they will push the battle to the gates.

I am under obligations to Sister Rowland of Cathays Valley Lodge, teacher of Buckingham school for making arrangements for meeting etc. In fact we owe the formation of this lodge to her efforts.

Many of our members, who are teachers, if they made the effort could work up the matter, so the leeturers could organize lodges in places as little known as this was.

Let the members of the order put on the harness, and work this year, the field is white for the harvest, thrust in thy sickle and reap. The gratitude of the ones we save pays well for the jeers and sneers, that temperance workers so often receive.

Our State is growing under the burden imposed on us by the "Demon Drink," and every lover of his God and fellow man, should join hands in the mighty effort now made to break the shackles and make free the slaves.

Buckingham Nov 3rd 1881.

WM. CROWHURST.

At Woodland, in the M. E. Church, Rev. J. W. Bryant, Pastor one of my old schoolmates in the California State Normal School—we had some most excellent meetings, considerable enthusiasm, a good Band of Hope meeting, qutie a number of propositions and 13 applicants for a charter for a colored Lodge. List in hands of a committee of five colored ladies, will be conpleted and then forwarded to Bro. Hoag, who drove all the way from Woodland via Madison to attend that meeting. Bro, Hoag will then organize the second colored lodge of California. Five ministers belong to Chrysopolis Lodge, persons of influence are taking hold. About one week's good work there would be of endless value to that town and county.

Brentwood was alive; a revival meeting going on conducted by Rev. Brothers Winning, Tubb, P. G. Chap., and Kearney. One evening was set apart for Temperance work and the Officers of the lodge publicly installed. Besides the usual collections—$10.75—$23,50 was raised for supplying the room with chandeliers side lights, etc. Notice was given to business men, and saloon-keepers were publicly notified that past violations of the Sunday Law would be forgiven, but future violations would be prosecuted. Somersville and Nortonville were reported, as having closed everything on Sunday.

Fairfield the meeting place of Solano District Lodge, was visited in company with the G. W. C. T., Bro. R. Thompson, who gave a most excellent and thoroly logical address in public meeting, and rendered valuable service in regular session. His good impressions must remain permanent in the minds and hearts of many present. Proceedings will be reported.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

The next regular quarterly session of the San Francisco D. L. will convene at Grand Central Hall Sixth and Market Sts. on Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 25th and 26th 1881, at 7:30 o'clock. All members of the Order from far and near are cordially invited to attend.

Sutter and Yuba District Lodge meets at Yuba City Dec. 7th at 10 A. M. Public meeting in the evening. Come everybody.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

TRUSTEES OF ORPHAN'S HOME.—Wm. H. Mills, Sacramento; H. S. Graves, Yuba City; Hon. Niles Searls, Nevada City; A. G. Clark, Napa City; Dr. R. H. McDonald, San Francisco; Dr. I. S. Rare Premiums FOR Clubs!

The Literary Revolution.

Either "The Library of Universal Knowledge," or "Chambers' Encyclopædia," which are described elsewhere, ought certainly to be in the hands of every reader of this paper. No work ever published, except the Bible, should more properly be considered a necessity to any person aspiring to even ordinary intelligence, than a cyclopædia. It should be ranked even before a dictionary. Before the days of the "Literary Revolution" encyclopædias were an impossible possession, on account of great cost, to the majority of readers. Ten years ago Chambers's could not be had for less than $50. Now you can get it for but a fraction of that amount, or without cost in money by terms given below.

An Amazing Offer.

By special arrangements with the publishers, The American Book Exchange, we are able to offer our subscribers the following very extraordinary opportunities to secure either one of these great encyclopædias:

FREE!

For a club of 18 subscribers to this paper at $2 each, "Chambers's Encyclopædia," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented; or for a club of 30 subscribers, at $2 each, "The Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 volumes cloth, will be presented, postage paid.

FOR $11.50 "Chambers's Encyclopædia," as above, and a copy of this paper will be supplied three years to one subscriber, or three copies one year to three subscribers.

FOR $22.50 "The Library of Universal Knowledge," as above, and six copies of the RESCUE one year to six subscribers will be sent, all postage prepaid.

Copies of these magnificent and marvelously cheap encyclopædias can be seen at the office of this paper. ☞As an accommodation to subscribers, their orders will be received and forwarded for any other of the publications of the American Book Exchange.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED at Live Oak, Berthiah McAuslin, a worthy and faithful member of Good Shepherd Lodge, No. 158, and of exemplary character and promise. The lodge passed usual resolutions Nov. 5th.

DIED—At Nicolaus, Oct. 22nd, R. O. Davis, a brother of Harmony lodge No. 172; always zealous and prompt in the effort to advance the interests of the order, an upright honest citizen, maintaining the kindest relations with all. The lodge attended his funeral and passed the usual mourning ceremonies.

THE Temperance Revolution is about to issue a book, to be sold at their popular price, and which will reveal the general lawlessness of the liquor traffic. The book will cover these general topics among others: The Ostracising and Abuse of Temperance Workers; Personal Abuse and Injury; Intimidation by Threats of Lawless Proceedings; Actual Destruction of Property, etc.; Bribery in Elections and Legislatures. Those possessing definite information upon any of these points which will be of value in a book of this character, are invited to communicate with The Temperance Revolution, David C. Cook, Manager, Chicago, Ill.

Should the other Grand Lodges move in the matter of the Weekly Temperance Banner, they may be assured that Cal. will not fail to do its full part to make it a success. There will always be room for another juvenile paper.

BERLIN boasts of a new prison with 732 single cells, other rooms for 195 prisoners and accommodations for 118 employees and 40 rooms for the warders: also rooms for 220 women. It is fitting for our modern governments who licence for money the active manufacture of their citizens into criminals and prostitutes to boast of their prison accommodations and of their success in filling them.

THE city of New York derives a splendid revenue of $350,000 a year from its grogshops, that is about $70 or $80 apiece for the people murdered every year there by the rumsellers. And it costs the city seven millions or $20 for every $1. it receives, to watch the rumsellers and take care of the drunkards, criminals, tramps and harlots which they turn out every year.

THERE is a Mrs. G. S. Reaney in England, who will be canonized by and by, in heaven if not on earth, as a glorified saint. In an address before the Band of Hope Union Annual Meeting, at Oxford, she said:

"Some have told us this work of temperance must fail, because it is not preaching the gospel. To this suggestion, but one answer can be made, and in this answer lies the secret of our power and the hope of our every effort. Temperance is not preaching the gospel. but it is living it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BURKE.—The Burke who has been openly defying the Sunday law in Chico, is said to have become wealthy by selling drunkenness there for years past. He is one of the town trustees also, and is reported as buying all his groceries, clothing, furniture, shoes &c in San Francisco. Of all that he wrings from the poor of that community he returns nothing but a little tax, and now he has the impudence to claim that he can steal the Sunday from the people of Chico and convert it into a day of especial debauchery to fill his already abundant coffers with the food and clothing of the children of the poor.

JOSEPH G. MYSELL.—A very worthy German citizen of San Francisco, who is an ardent worker in the cause of temperance, left last week a couple of temperance tracts at the office of several of his countrymen engaged in the wholesale drunkard making business. Two of the documents were returned to him thru the P. O. next day crossed over with pencil and on one of them was written "you confounded———miserable old humbug go to——— the sooner the better." That was bad advice for them, for if by any chance he should ever go to that final abode of all liquor sellers, he will make it excessively uncomfortable and ever so much hotter for them. He would give them no peace while there, and it will lighten their lot considerably in their warm quarters when they discover that he has been assigned a pleasant location among another class of people in the future life, where he will make no trouble, and have no enemies.

Secretary Windom is a close student of political economy. He loves to pore over the statistics of trade, and call out from them the results which must instruct the Statesman of the neccessities of the country which must be met by legislation. These statistics show that the labor of this country is under a tax—a voluntary tax to be sure but nevertheless a tax authorized and licensed by law—equal to one thousand million dollars annually for the support of the liquor traffic. What does the liquor traffic do for the country in return for this annual drainage from the coffers of its laborers? Does it produce anything? No! Nothing but vice, want, misery and death! Does it add to the wealth of the country? No! It only gathers the earnings of labor into the pockets of a few non producers. Why, then, should the country legalize and license this robbing traffic? This is the conundrum for the secretary to work out. Will he do it?—Anvil.

BRO. Thomas J. Cross reports Rincon Lodge No. 443, (San Bernardino Co.) getting along finely with a good and growing attendance. They have had Bro. Webb there, and expect him again soon. Meantime they have started out with 6 copies of the RESCUE to begin with.

Sir Wilfred Lawson deserves a title. He devotes his energies to the pushing of a local option bill thru parliament and planks down his annual subscription of $5,000 to the Alliance funds. How many men have we in the U. S. who do like that? We have plenty who could do it and no more miss the amount than they would a clipped half dime.

THERE is a great variety of opinion as to when a man has had enough liquor, but according to the Pacific Censor, the liquor seller always draws the line punctually and unerringly at the point where his money has just given out, and he has no credit. The drunkard maker becomes humane then and directs the sufferer to some Good Templar to beg something to eat.

When it was thot the President would recover Dr. Bliss said: "Some people think prayer saved him, but I know it was whisky saved him." What Dr. Bliss may now think the whisky did to Garfield, we do not know, but we believe it killed him. Had his system not been exhausted by constant doses of alcohol it would have been strong enough, to have recovered, and had his blood not been poisoned with the alcohol, his body would not have festered with putrefaction as it did.—Transcript.

HATES DRUNKARDS.—The drunkard maker always hates his oldest and most liberal customers, and is proud of cursing them and kicking them out. How we should be surprised to hear a shoemaker slam the door against an old customer and say, "you villainous old scamp, I've made boots and shoes for you and your family for twenty years, and you have paid me for them, and here you are again after more shoes; get out, and dont let me ever see your face again." How funny it would look to see a tailor basting an old schoolmate into the gutter because after getting his clothes there for fifteen years, he wants to buy an overcoat. Or a minister assaulting an old standby because he has been twenty-five years a communicant and elder in his church; and therefore must be unfit company for anybody. But that is the way the League of Freedom and the Grocers Protective Union treat their old patrons. By the way, it is time the old drunkards were beginning to get ashamed of the drunkard makers, who are ashamed to call their own business by its own name.

How to like a paper. About fifteen years ago a friend happened to see and read a copy of the "Friend" a monthly paper published by Father Damon in Honolulu. It was a strong temperance paper and he liked it for that. Altho not infatuated with every line of its contents, he subscribed for about 30 copies to be sent to friends in various parts of the world: the subscription was kept up on a less number down to 12 for 3 years. Later he met with the National Temperance Advocate and in place of complimenting the publisher on his paper, ordered a club of 10 or 12 for some time to various addresses. Soon after the RESCUE hove in sight and then the Keystone Good Templar. Those were liked to the extent of a club of 10 or 12 each and the RESCUE club tho it has not been continuous is running still. If every friend of temperance would give some little help to the circulation of temperance literature we might look for a surrender of the enemy in a year or two, in place of working for something a century in the future. The best kind of temperance and prohibition is the "now kind."

LIGHT.

Best image of the Holy One,
Who dwelleth in the light;
Forever streaming from the sun,
The conqueror of night.

Gliding unseen thru worlds of space,
Down to our atmosphere,
Gentle and harmless in its race,
Its footsteps who can hear?

No scientific scales on earth,
This subtle power to weigh,
No mortal tells its place of birth,
Or where it loses sway.

Shining in faith, yet ever pure,
It cannot be defiled;
Best medicine earth's ill to cure
Never by the druggist spoiled.

Pencils with marvelous skill the flowers
In rich variety;
Makes beautiful this world of ours,
And gilds eternity.

It comes, and darkness flies apace,
Cannot be driven away;
It leaves, and night resumes its place,
Each power in turn has sway.

In marvelous beauty decorates,
The cloud at morn and even;
Discloses thns the gorgeous gates,
The lower side of heaven,

WAITING.

I am watching and waiting to-night by the shore,
In the gloaming which tells that the day's work is o'er
And the purples which gather afar o'er the sea
Are fringes of glory there waiting for me,
Tho weary the feet which have come to the tide.
Long shall rest be, and sweet, on the farthermost side.

All along the broad fields, and on top of the hill,
Dark shadows of sorrow and care linger still;
But the furrows, if crooked are honest and true
Of the ploughing the Master's hand gave me to do.
No ploughing, no reaping, no shadows there be
In the land on the calm other side of the sea.

The voices of day in the twilight wax dim,
Sighs, laughter, and sobbings, plaint, pœan or hymn;
But I wait in the stillness a call that will come
When the Master is ready to bid me go home—
A voice whose low accents are sweeter to me
Than all the glad sounds on this side of the sea.

I wait bnt in patience, I watch, but with cheer,
Nor dare to pray "quickly, Lord Jesus, come here."
There are hearts that will ache when that summons shall come,
And shadows will dim the dear sunlight of home.
Or, it may be, some pebble my hand must yet lay
In the temple of God ere the close of my day.

So I fold up my hands, to my heart say, Be still!
And looking in trust unto Thee, wait Thy will.
Since living is Christ and dying is gain,
In living and dying alike is no pain.
In the gloaming I'm waiting and watching for Thee,
Content with Thy presence both sides of the sea.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE SOLANO DISTRICT LODGE NOV. 5TH.

1. Resolved: That all members of the subordinate lodges of Solano County, be earnestly solicited to give aid and encouragement to any person or persons who may move in the enforcement of the Sunday Law; and that the committee of this District Lodge be specially encouraged in the performance of their duty in this respect.

2. Resolved: That, for the steady growth and prosperity of our principles and for the final overthrow of the awful curse of intemperance, the children of the county should be instructed and trained in these principles, and every lodge should do all in its power to institute and sustain Bands of Hope, and make them as nearly as possible, schools for temperance instruction.

3. Resolved: That every member of the order in this county be urged to take the RESCUE, now placed at $1.25 per annum, and make it a special duty to procure subscribers from outside the order; and that every Worthy Vice Templar be reminded of her duty, ex officio, to procure subscribers in her lodge, as explained in Section 2 of Article VIII, Subordinate Lodge Constitution.

4. Resolved that to promote the more rapid growth of a healthy public opinion in Solano County the District Deputy of this District Lodge be instructed to appoint a committee on temperance literature, consisting of one member of each lodge in the county; that each lodge in the county be requested to appoint a local committee, of which the W. V. T. shall be one member, to act in conjunction with the county committee; and that tracts, pamphlets, circulars, temperance periodicals, etc., be distributed, if possible, in every family in the county.

5. Resolved: That we recommend for Bands of Hope, the Catechisms, Manuals, etc., of Julia Colman, and the new Band of Hope literature of the Revolution Temperance Publishing House of Chicago, David C. Cook, Manager.

SOLANO COUNTY D. L.

Our D. L. met in Fairfield last Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th. Friday evening was devoted to open meeting; G. W. C. T. Judge R. Thompson, and G. L. W. Crowhurst, delivered two excellent telling addresses, driving arguments against rum and the rum traffic, home to every heart. They strengthened and encouraged temperance workers, and certainly convinced the judgment and influenced the will of those cursed by the use of intoxicants.

The D. L. met in regular annual session Saturday morning, D. D., G. W. Frazer in the chair. Of the nine lodges in the county, only one, Vallejo No. 64, failed to have a representative present. In votes and attendance, the session was very encouraging. The main item of business that occupied most of the day, was the report of the committee provided for last session of the G. L. to take into consideration the enforcement of the Sunday Law. The report was brief, plain and practical, coming right to the point in plans. It provoked animated discussion, which resulted in increased interest and determined purpose on the part of the lodge to see this wholesome law enforced. The plan adopted was to give notice all over the county, that all persons continuing to violate the law, should after the 1st day of December, 1881, be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. A general superintendent was appointed to visit all parts of the county, post the notices and appoint local committees in each lodge to assist him in his work. D. D. was appointed general superintendent, and his appointment will insure the execution of the plan in closing places of business as required by the law of the land.

The temperance sentiment is gaining fast in this county, and if the next legislature will just give us a chance at Local option, almost every township in the county will adopt it. The lodges in the several parts of the county are doing much to increase the influence of the temperance cause. They are all prosperous. The presence of the G. W. C. T. and G. L., added much to the interest of the D. L. The next session will be held in Dixon about full of moon February. Would like to see the editor of the RESCUE at that session. I enclose you copy of resolutions adopted. L. C. RENFRO.

CONSISTENCY.

WILL C. KING.

Several months since we were doomed to spend a few hours in a car crowded with lumbermen going to the woods. The heat, jam and tobacco smoke made reading impossible and so we spent the time studying faces. Few books are as readable as the faces one constantly sees, and certainly a less number are as profitable study. Faces fair, but marred by vices; faces brutish, and not lightened by one gleam of nobility; faces dark, faces light, yet no two alike. Thus we sat watching the variety, until a sudden ripple of excitement across the aisle attracted our attention. A young man partially intoxicated, was, with much gusto, fishing a flask of liquor from the depths of a sack. He then passed from seat to seat, bidding all drink. This they were only too ready to do, until it came to a youth who had watched all with a puzzled expression. He promptly and firmly declined to touch it. His near companions laughed and were about to use that weapon which drips with the blood of more slain souls, than all others combined, viz: ridicule. "Stop" said the owner of the bottle leaning forward, "Give me that bottle; I never have, and never will ask any man twice to take a drink of whisky. Stick to it my friend, you are better off to let it alone." The much depleted bottle disappeared in the sack, and did not reappear again while we were on the car. How much we wanted to grasp that young man's hand and say well done. How often since, we think of the lessons he taught us that day, mentally praying that he may never be less firm. A few thots were uppermost in our mind as we walked from the depot. (1.) Charity. We had in a hasty glance classed all the company as rude and vicious; and regarded the owner of the bottle with disgust; when lo! one of the number shows a manliness most fine, and even the bottle owner shows commendable instincts. Henceforth I will not apply the "Poor dog Tray" adage too closely, for circumstances do at times compel true men into unsought and distasteful society.

While a man may be known by the company he seeks, yet he must not always be judged by the company he is at the time found in. (2.) I learned anew the fact that men will persist in doing things they know to be base and injurious, and against which both conscience and reason rebel, simply because they are the slaves of a habit, or too weak to say no. Of all masters, habit is the most tyrannical, most despicable. (3.) No matter how low or weak a man may be, yet he respects true principle wherever he may see it manfully honored. How many fail here; they think that to gain favor, to be respected, or even to secure preferment, they must of course sanction all that others do, must conceal principle and unite in the excesses of their fellows. This is a sad, a disastrous failure. The man who is a traitor to his temperance principles, who lays aside his religious vesture to curry favor, only succeeds in inviting well-merited contempt. Rest assured, that as the polished Pharisees flung these galling words after a despairing Judas, "What is that to us?" so will your tempter despise and finally spurn you for yielding.

Always be firmly but courteously true to principle and count all scoffing as evidence of respect at heart for the nobility shown, and the loud noise only made to drown the voice of conscience. I wish I might give you a pen picture of the silent, tho manifest respect paid that young man, while none of the crowd who yielded were heeded.

Finally—treating is the worst foe we have to meet. It springs from a debased idea of generosity, and is as senseless a custom as it is debasing.

Why one must be in honor (?) bound to treat companions to whisky or cigars and not to calico, sugar or glassware, I could never conceive.

Had the young man drank from his bottle and replaced it, he alone would have been injured while as it was, half a score were tainted.

GRASS VALLEY, Oct. 26, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—May I ask you to correct an error in your issue of the 20th inst, where you say that the main business of the Grass Valley reform Club is to furnish dances and dramatic exhibitions. This is untrue; at no one of our regular weekly meetings has there ever been any dancing.

The club has given three concerts ending with a dance in the first six months of its existence. These were special, and for the sole purpose of clearing our indebtedness; since we have been out of debt now some seven months we have had no dance.

The dramatic exhibitions have yet to be exhibited.

The object of the club is to provide a social meeting place for young men. A reading room open from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M, well supplied with books, periodicals and newspapers, rooms for games such as chess, draughts, croquet, etc., a gymnasium and debating society.

We work in harmony with the Good Templar lodges and our club is one of their best recruiting ground. Our president, vice president and active members are all Good Templars.

W. C. POWELL, President.

The RESCUE did not say what Mr. Powell claims. It merely said such had been reported "by visitors" without endorsing the statememt, but allowing that if such were really the case it was to be commended.

This journal has no word of unkindness for any society or individual whose labors or teachings tend to promote temperance; but it always urges upon the Good Templars as much as upon any others, that to insure any success or make success at all possible, there must be a main effort to teach people good reasons for their temperance principles and practice. And if it is true that the club in question with a revenue of $3014 or any Good Templars lodge in the state with an outlay of $100 has neglected to use a consistent portion of it in the very excellent, interesting and most eminently useful temperance literature which is to be obtained so reasonably and from so many different sources, a grave error or oversight has been permitted. No one is ever reformed or converted till he is first made to learn or believe something which he did not know or believe before.

David C. Cook has recently opened, at 148 Madison St. Chicago, a Revolution Temperance House, and we are amazed at the amount he offers for a little money. He furnishes excellent and unique material for educating the children. It is a grand work. We advise all to send for samples and buy what they can afford. A little money expended in this way will hardly be missed, and will do you and others much good.—Prohibitionist, Lewiston, Me.

WHY THE JEWS ARE PERSECUTED.

It is not flattering to Christian pride to know that the chief cause of the persecution and pillage to which the Jews have been subjected in Russia, Germany and the Principalities, is their possession of more property than other people. They are more intelligent, industrious and economical than their Christian neighbors, and accumulate more property. This is what renders them odious and brings down upon them the scourge of their professedly orthodox fellow-citizens. Southern ladies and gentlemen used not only to tolerate the blacks, so long as they were slaves, but to admit them to all the intimacy of body servants, nurses and domestics; but when the blacks became free, it was discovered that they were too offensive and disagreeable in every way to sit in the same room, sleep in the same hotel, or ride in the same car! So with the Christian persecutors of the Jews. So long as the latter are very poor and make themselves useful by doing hard work at low wages, they are treated as well as others of the same station; but when they accumulate property and set up in business for themselves their denial of Christ becomes too blasphemous to be borne by those who profess to be his followers! The governments, sustained by the better classes of society, have made vigorous efforts to protect the Jews in the enjoyment of their lives and property, but the persecuting spirit is so general and so bitter, that the poor people have a hard time of it. If they could be made to understand how perfectly free they would be in this country from any form of persecution on account of their creed, it would seem only reasonable to suppose that those of them with money enough to pay their passage would come here. It is hard to understand why an alien race like the Israelites, without many of the strongest ties by which other people are bound to the country of their birth, seem less disposed to leave places where they are persecuted than others are to abandon everything which can endear people to a country. Canada will welcome the Jews, protect their synagogues, and refrain from meddling with their faith.—St. John Sun.

That is exactly what is the trouble with the Jews. They are not good customers at the beer shops; so the Greman brewers and beer divers have stimulated the beer slaves and beer paupers to plunder, persecute, abuse and murder them. The beer interests of Germany have no use for sober, industrious, peaceable, thrifty Jews. They set a bad example of virtue and morality to the patrons of beer.

And if the Good Templars and other active temperance agencies do not succeed in preventing it; if the brewery and wholesale drunkard makers, and the retail drunkard and pauper and harlot manufacturers gain a little more power and influence here, the Jews, and other sober people in California, will find themselves in the same catalog of persecution and abuse as the Chinese.

But for the hells and traps of the drunkard makers we could do without the Chinese, and they would do without us. But for every able, decent white worker that the drunkard makers transform into an unreliable worker, an idler, a loafer, a tramp or a thief, we will have to get two Chinamen to do his work and earn his wages. And but for the aid of the drunkard maker, not a single Chinaman would here ever be employed or allowed to do a job that a white man wants to do.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

A corres pondent of the "San Diego News" writes that paper as follows:

San Francisco tastes are not "esthetic" in the line of amusement. Some speculator has got up a villainous place called the "Tivoli," where men and women flock nightly to drink what are called "schooners" of beer. They all sit around tables and drink and talk, the men smoking; meanwhile a cadaverous looking lot of fellows walk around clad in pigeon-tailed coats and carry the "schooners" and cigars, and after the average San Franciscan and his "girl" have got a couple of "schooners" apiece below their belts, they become very appreciative of the jerky music of the orchestra, and the very silly acting of the performers—composed of several very broad-faced and beery Teutons of unmeasured lung power, and from ten to thirty poor young girls in tights, who form objects of anatomical and lecherous interest to the "schooner" males in the audience. The play was "Lurline." When I looked in, it consisted of a spectacular representation of an ocean cave, with the male characters armed with stuffed clubs, the females in tights as fairies. No earthly being could distinguish a spark of sentiment in the whole business. It was a general mixture of bawl, beer and legs.

When San Diego becomes a metropolis, no such amusements as now seem to delight people here will over make a living there.

There is another "Tivoli." called the "Fountain." Its chief card is to pick out some very sweet-faced very young girl, dress her and stand her up to sing some medley or ballad for a few nights, and then hunt up another, alternating from blonde to brunette; must be of good shape or no go.

There has been no rain yet, but what a horrid cold afternoon was yesterday. They dont believe yet that we are to have a railroad. Yours.

OCCASIONAL.

AND Another:

The brokers seem as tho their occupation is gone. Around California and Montgomery corners stand the same old curbstone mob, in diminished numbers however. The strawberry plant is yearly growing brighter on many of their noses, and the word "bum" seems almost written on many of their faces. A wild looking stranger, with a calico suit of clothes and immense calico sombrero stood in a handsome carriage with four ponies in front and harangued the mob, while he sold vials of some stuff warranted to cure corns. He got two bits a bottle, and it went off like hot cakes. The biters were surely being bitten. The corn vampire sat in the seat of the "point manipulator" and took him in; I said "Selah," it is well.

In a window on Montgomery street are exhibited two elaborate gold medals, and $1,000 in gold and silver to be given by Dr. R. H. McDonald of the Pacific Bank, to the pupils of the schools of San Francisco who shall write the best essays on intemperance and tobacco. I saw a score of young girls looking at these things, and listened to their prattle to-day as they talked and walked away, each, as I imagined resolved to compete for the prize. The Doctor is a great backer to temperance in the State. When the temperance people can see their way, they will make him their nominee for Governor, and then let the "boys" look out for the wagon.

ADIOS.

LEAGUE OF FREEDOM.

If a gang of American born outlaws and ruffians had emigrated to Germany to live by keeping dens of vice and debauching the sons and daughters of the Germans—and had met on Friday evening and published an impudent defiance of the laws and customs of the German people, threatening to disregard all moral restraint and legal authority, they would have been on Monday following carefully housed in a German penitentiary, and very deservedly too.

If the American people have freely permitted the people of various countries where crime and debauchery have scourged the land with pauperism and starvation—to come here and enjoy the benefits which a Christian civilization has planted in a new country, it should be remembered that thugs and thieves and poisoners and debauchers and debauchees availing themselves of this escape from their famine and crime cursed condition, bring no rights with them to cultivate the tastes and habits here, which pauperized them in their former home. Even if that course of life has for them a peculiar fascination, they may have to learn that the American people of decent habits, and who believe in earning an honest livelihood, have some rights in this country which barbarians who know no right but brute force, no virtue but brute indulgence, no reason but brutal passion—will not be permitted to trample on too brazenly.

It is a most enchanting and bewitching business for men who have no humanity, no principle, no feeling, no honesty, to live by the robbery of the poor and especially of the helpless, powerless and unresisting poor, the children and the wives and the mothers and daughters of the working men. The men who live on beer are too much enslaved to rebel against the beer thug who owns and runs them, and the women and children cant fight, so it is a bewitching and delightful process to rob them and skin them and starve them.

But this taste acquired among barbarians and ruffians, is going to be conclusively snubbed and restrained. There is reason for it. Our foreign outlaws and rumsellers and the train of criminals, harlots and paupers they have made in this country, would, if unmolested, oblige us to leave this continent and seek a new home free from the leprosy of their presence; but there is no place to go to; and we are going to say stop thief and stop the thief; and we are going to stay in this country and make it a fit abode for civilized beings and resist the efforts of a ring of ruffianism and blackguardism to reduce it to a pandemonium of drunken paupers.

VOTE ON CHANGE OF REGALIA.—The following lodges have during the past week, filed with the G. W. S., the returns of the vote had in their lodge on the question of changing the initiatory regalia of the order as required by the G. L. viz:

Nos. 102, 104, 120, 122, 129, 130, 149, 155, 156, 179, 180, 181, 188, 198, 217, 222, 254. 264, 284, 294, 327, 337, 343, 350, 359, 360, 391, 418, 430, 434, and 455.

Up to date 183 lodges have certified up the result of the vote on the question of changing the white regalia. The 183 lodges show an attendance of 3.500 members of whom 3109 voted against any change; 130 favored a change, and 261 declined to vote on the question. The average attendance at lodges remains exactly the same as last week 19⅙.

RETURNS RECEIVED.—During the past week the following Lodges have filed Grand Lodge returns with the G. W. S. and their receipt is acknowledged.

Nos. 27, 48, 102, 114, 121, 122, 127, 128, 129, 137, 139, 140, 144, 145, 149, 150, 155, 156, 164, 171, 177, 181, 184, 188, 190, 192, 198, 200, 201, 207, 209, 216, 217, 219, 222, 223, 230, 233, 239, 247, 255, 259, 261, 264, 269, 275, 278, 279, 280, 284, 286, 290, 293, 301, 303, 304, 307, 314, 321, 323, 325, 326, 327, 331, 334, 337, 339, 340, 345, 356, 357, 359, 360, 361, 365, 367, 369, 382, 385, 391, 392, 406, 409, 415, 418, 419, 431, 433, 438, 440, 441, 446, 452, 455, 456, 461, 463, 471, 472.

GLEANINGS.—Chrysopolis No 210 of Woodland, according to Lodge Deputy, J. J. Bowman, is doing splendidly; having initiated 34 during the last quarter, and a dozen more already awaiting initiation during this.....Success lodge No. 366 of Grafton, is booming, writes Bro. P. Gutcher, "seven initiated at one meeting with 10 additional propositions to act upon".....Our lodge (San Bernardino No. 220,) is doing finely," writes Bro. H. C. Brooke, D. D. "and our report for last quarter shows quite an increase.".....The L. D. of Prairie lodge No. 423, Yuba Co., Bro. W. E. Gleason, writes, "Notwithstanding we have lost a number of active members by removal, we are doing well, we recently listened to an excellent lecture, preceeding our lodge meeting, br Elder Bateman .....Red Bluff lodge No. 192 is expecting a boom; having 35 names now upon its proposition books, with 25 already balloted for and elected. The hall is too small, and a new and larger one is one of the things talked of for the near future. So writes the L. D. Bro. M. J. Frank..... The L. D. of Soulsbyville Lodge No. 340, Tuolumne County, reports a gala time on the occasion of the installation of officers, with visitors present from Bald Mountain and Confidence Lodges, who were regaled with a fine program of literary exercises, a collation concluding a pleasant evenings. entertainment.....Sierra City lodge No. 359, looks more prosperous than it has for some time. Initiated three candidates at the last meeting, and have two more for the next.....Bro. A. J. Buckles L. D. of Fairfield Lodge No. 320, reports his lodge prospering with a membership of 81 and 7 propositions pending. He also expresses the opinion that the Sunday Law will be generally observed thruout Solano County.....Redding lodge No. 102, according to the Lodge Deputy, Bro. J. H. Cooper, "is prospering finely. Initiated 5 candidates at the last meeting.".....The new lodge at Georgetown, El Dorado Co., is reported by the Lodge Deputy, Bro. S. Watson, as prospering. At a recent meeting, 19 propositions for membership were presented..... Castroville Lodge, No. 446, is in a healthy condition, and is working harmoniously, is what the L. D. A. H. Longly, writes of his lodge.....Columbia Lodge, No. 128 of Gilroy, commenced the initial meeting of the new quarter by reinstating one member, initiating three others, and has fine prospects for the future, as reported by the L. D., Bro. J. W. Thomasson.....Bro. F. O. Swinney, L. D. of Madison lodge No. 463, reports his lodge as marching on. He writes that a pleasant occasion was enjoyed on the occasion of the installation of officers when visitors were present from neighboring lodges at Pleasant Prairie and Capay, in honor of which event a collation was served.....Faithful lodge No. 431, of Blacks, Yolo Co., is working true to its name; having initiated ten new members and received five additional propositions on the night of their installation, according to the report of Bro. J. H. Murphy, L. D.....The L. D. Bro. C. A. Mc Fane, reports Little River lodge No. 334 of Mendocino County, as still increasing, both in numbers and interest. A new outfit of regalia has just been purchased, the hall nicely fitted up and the lodge out of debt. The lodge was organized July 4 last, now numbers 64 and not one member yet expelled for violation of the obligation.

VENTURA.—Sister Myra Walbridge , the efficient lodge deputy of Constancy Lodge, No. 209 at Ventura, writes under date of the 7th: "Our lodge is steadily tramping on, and gaining victories all the time. Have already several trophies, and are working for more. Bro. J. W. Webb, Grand Lecturer is among us this week and we are having a revival thru the county. The district Lodge was very interesting and some good work was done. The saloons were all closed in Ventura yesterday. I think the people here will stand for the right, and make them keep closed every Sunday hereafter. The D. Lodge took hold of the plan of distributing temperance literature very well, and we will soon have the county overflowing with it, I hope.

LIVERMORE.—The L. D. of Livermore Lodge, No 200, Bro. F. A. Anthony, in transmitting quarterly returns adds: "We are still marching on, and altho we cannot say that our victory is complete, we can report a much improved public sentiment, and rejoice that it has been strong enough to suppress two of the worst dens in the suburbs of our town. There is much interest manifested in the Sunday law, and it is hoped the desired end will soon be accomplished.

On Monday evening, the 7th inst our lodge held a public meeting and installation of officers. A very large attendance of members and friends. After an intermission a very interesting program and a ringing temperance speech by one of our young members.

One of the prominent features was our manuscript paper, Temperance Star Sister M. F. Buckeber editress, from beginning to end full of humor, sound sense and the true ring of temperance. It is our intention to devote one meeting each month to public meetings.

BOARD OF LADY MANAGERS' REPORT.

The Board of Lady Managers met at the Home Tuesday, Nov. 1st. Called to order at 11 A. M. Mrs. Thompson presiding. Roll call, members of the old Board were noted present, with the exception of Mrs. Benjamin. Roll call of the newly elected Board, the following ladies responded: Mesdames Thompson, Partridge, Alsip, Robbins, Rix, Mayhew, Carpenter and Stevens, G. W. V. T., every member being present.

The Board on motion, proceeded to re-organize, by the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted in the re-election of the retiring officers. President, Mrs. C. B. Thompson, of San Francisco; Vice President, Mrs. M. A. Alsip, of Sacramento; Corresponding Secty. Mrs. M. M. Carpenter of S. F.; Financial Secty. Mrs. M. E. Partridge, West Oakland; Treasurer, Dr. I. S. Halsey of Vallejo.

The following standing committees were then appointed. Executive Committee; Mesdames Thompson, Alsip, Carpenter, Partridge and Robbins.

Auditing Committee, Mesdames Mayhew, Stevens and Alsip.

Purchasing Committee, Mesdames Partridge, Thompson and Carpenter.

Visiting Committee, Mrs. S. L. Robbins.

Committee to procure help for the Home, Mesdames Carpenter, Robbins and Mayhew.

After the re-organization of the Board, the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Officers reports read and accepted; Financial Secty. reports the amount of warrants drawn on the Treasurer since Oct. 3rd, $1151.

Matron reports the number of children admitted to the Home during the month of October, six; discharged nine; number in the Home Oct. 31st, 115. All enjoying good health.

APPLICATIONS FOR ADMISSION.

Applications received for the admission of 11 children to the Home; seven of that number admitted; three rejected because both parents were living and one referred to the Secty. for investigation.

Several applications for children to adopt were read and referred to the Secty.

Communications read and filed. After transacting some miscellaneous business, the Board took a recess for the purpose of meeting in joint session with the Board of Trustees; called to order in due form by the President of the Board of Trustees, Bro. Sims. The action and proceedings of the joint Board are found in the report of the G. W. S. in the RESCUE of Nov. 10th.

Bro. Katzenstein, G. W. S. reported that he had on hand money enough to purchase twenty-two seats for the school; moved and carried that the Lady Managers be directed to seat one of the upper rooms with such seats as may hereafter be designated by the teacher; also that Mr. Smith be furnished with a list of the names of those contributing for this purpose and be instructed to procure the plates, the same as before.

Nothing further appearing for joint action, the ladies withdrew; reassembled, and completed their work.

DONATIONS.

The following donations were received in October. From Mrs. Watson of Vallejo, number of pictures; from Mrs. Ira Austin also of Vallejo, a box of pears, and ten nice spring chickens; from an unknown friend, two pairs of button gaiters; from Herbert Folger W. C. T. of Valley Lodge, cash $5; from Mrs. Rainey of Rio Vista, (who has four children in the Home, and says she is not able to pay anything for their support) six boxes of apples and five dozen cans of fruit.

On motion a vote of thanks was tendered the donors for the above donations.

Respectfully and Fraternally submitted in F. H. and C. MRS. M. M. CARPENTER.
Secty. B. L. M.

BUTTE CO. DISTRICT LODGE.

OROVILLE, Cal., Nov. 10, 1881.

Met at Nelson, Nov. 9th. Ten lodges were represented by 43 delegates and visitors at the morning session, and 51 in the afternoon. Officers were elected and installed for the ensuing year.

Reports from lodges represented showed them to be generally in a healthy condition. A resolution was passed to invite Mrs. Stevens to lecture thruout the county, and a committee appointed to map out a route and confer with G. W. C. T.

An ample and excellent lunch was served by the ladies of Nelson Lodge at the noon recess.

Report from the Sunday Law committee showed that the law had been very generally observed and enforced wherever lodges were established in the county.

An animated discussion was had over a resolution offered at the afternoon session. "To instruct the Sunday law committee to confine their complaints and prosecutions to liquor dealers on the grounds that as a temperance society its committee were not justified in prosecuting other violators of the law." The members of the committee, as also a majority of the delegates who spoke, objected strongly to the resolution, which on being put to vote was lost by a vote of 18 to 7.

All bars and places of business were closed at Chico and Oroville last Sunday, and four parties have pleaded guilty and paid their fines this week at Oroville for former violations.

The session proving too short to finish business before the lodge, it adjourned at 5 P. M. to meet at Nord third Wednesday in March 1882.

W. S. READ, Dist. Sec.

AMADOR CO. DISTRICT LODGE.

Met with Pine Grove Lodge on Sat. Nov. 5th. A large delegation was present; reports from all the lodges in the Co. show a steady increase in membership in the District

The annual election of officers took place, Bro. J. W. Perry recommended for D. D., the evening meeting was addressed by Bro. E. Haskell of Volcano Lodge; also a very lengthy program, consisting of recitations, readings, songs &c was listened to by a large audience. This has been the most interesting session of Amador Dist. Lodge since its organization.

Next meeting at Oleta in Feb. The Sunday law will be enforced in this county.—H. G. MURRAY, Dist. Sec. Sutter Creek Lodge, No. 225.

THE Kansas Methodist which has always been a pleasant exchange, falls into the uncomely error of permitting a correspondent (P. H. W.) to quote from the RESCUE the opening paragraph only of a recent article on Christianity, and to comment in such a manner upon that paragraph, as to most unfairly and untruly convey to those who do not see the Rescue the idea that the article afore said was one hostile to and derisive of Christianity. The Rescue to its readers needs no apology or explanation as to its attitude on that question. P. H. W. seems more afraid of hurting the whisky interest than of injuring Christianity. He objects to the Rescue's desire to rid the latter of all association or complicity with the other, and as usual, quotes Christ to enforce his objection, "let both grow together till the harvest." The Kansas Methodist dont want the grogshop and Christianity to grow together till the harvest, any more than the Rescue does.

THE RESCUE should have stated last week that Mrs. Stevens has been unable for over a week to take the field, owing to an illness from which she has not entirely recovered,

Juvenile Department.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

THE SWORDFISH.

The sword which gives that fish its name is of the hardest bony substance known and is covered by a sort of enamel still harder. Sailors and whalemen have reported terrible attacks make by the swordfish and thrasher upon tho whale, the thrasher jumping out of the water to a great hight and falling upon the whale's back like a pile driver, while the swordfish punches him up from below. These stories are disbelieved, tho I have met people who said they were eye-witnesses of such combats. The whale was always reported as vanquished; cut and stabbed to death.

But the great naturalist, Professor Owen says he is acquainted with two instances of the swordfish having penetrated ships, the swords having been broken off and left in the ship. They have one such specimen at Surgeons Hall, London. In breaking up an old English oak man of war brig, a sword of this fish was found which had penetrated the copper sheathing, felt, plank and oak timbers to a depth of 14 inches: the fibres of the oak wood bent and crushed as if by a canon ball. This force which could drive a blunt instrument, shaped like a flat board, with rake teeth growing out of each side of it thru 14 inches of very hard oak must have been due to a wondrous velocity, for the fish is not very large, only 6 to 12 feet long. In another vessel a sword was found which had penetrated also 14 inches and several others have been reported as found in the bottoms of ships.

It seems natural to suppose such a weapon and such a force behind it must have been intended for offensive warfare, and the whale would be a likely subject of attack. Very probably when they have struck ships they imagined their contract was to kill a whale, and the result must have been a great surprise to them.

In the Bay of Panama a ship received a shock and a swordfish that had broken off the instrument with which he asked questions, was seen rolling over and sinking dead in the clear waters. The sword is about 3 feet in length. The fish are found frequently in the warm waters of the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean and are harpooned and eaten by the fisherman of the latter. It tows a boat when struck with great rapidity and is a difficult conquest. The sword is a projection of the upper jaw and as the fish has no teeth except the nobs or points on the sword, it is supposed to be a temperate liver and subsists on squid and food of the jelly fish description.

The combination of the thrasher with the swordfish in deadly assault upon a whale is probably a fish story. I looked out pretty sharply for such things for a good many years but never had the luck to see lots of things, which lots of other people have said they saw. Once in the vicinity of the Azores however, some kind of a fish which at the time we supposed was a thrasher, jumped perpendicularly out of water to a hight that was perhaps 8 or 10 or maybe 20 feet at a distance of perhaps 150 yards from the ship. It was a chunky creature like a large grizzly bear rolled up. It did not seem to have any special business except to get a plunge into the air and retire. None of us knew what it was, but people who are posted on thrashers say it was not one. Seeing anything at a little distance off at sea, it is impossible to tell correctly how high it may jump or fly above the water, 8 or 20 feet.

GEORGE CRUIKSHANK,

ARTIST,

DESIGNER, ETCHER, PAINTER.

Born in London Sep. 22, 1792,

Died Feb. 1, 1878,

Aged 86 years.

In memory of his genius and his art
His matchless industry and worthy work,
For all his fellowmen: this monument
Is humbly placed within this sacred fane,
By her who loved him best, his widowed wife,
ELIZA CRUIKSHANK, Feb. 9, 1881.

That is the inscription on the monument of England's greatest caricaturist. In early life he was employed by a publisher to ornament his books and songs with pictures. He afterward became famous in satirical pictures. His attention was attracted by the terrible ruin inflicted by drink upon his countrymen and many years ago, perhaps 40, he painted six or eight pictures representing the story of the bottle, which together with the written story that soon followed had an enormous circulation, and doubtless exerted an excellent warning influence.

The first picture represented a youthful carpenter, at his table with his wife and two children in a cosy comfortable home. The next, he is employed to do some repairs for Morrison the rumseller, who "treats" him and seeing that he rather likes the taste, gives him a bottle of "nice cordial" to take home to his wife. And so the bottle does its work as usual; poverty, quarrels and misery ensue and at last the man in a frenzy kills his wife: the daughter goes to ruin and dies a shocking death.

The last chapter of the story shows the boy reclaimed, on a visit to his early home, where passing the insane asylum he recognizes old Morrison the rumseller who first tempted his father to ruin, chained up behind iron bars, a raving madman.

The story was a favorite one and ought to be republished now by David C. Cook. It would be very welcone to our young folks. But would you believe it, after painting those beautiful pictures and writing that touching story, Mr. Cruikshank was a drinker himself, and now we come to the main object of this talk, which is to direct your attention to the influences we may exert upon mankind.

Mr. C. was traveling in a railway car and in conversation with some one who knew him slightly or had just been introduced, but knew all about his great work. The latter addressing Mr. C. happened to say "you teetotalers," but he was answered, "I am not a teetotaler." What! said the stranger surprised, is it possible that you Mr. Cruikshank who understand so perfectly the terrible evils of strong drink and have so eloquently portrayed them with pen and pencil, can be anything but a total abstainer?

That set him to thinking and he became very soon a consistent and most earnest advocate of temperance. His "Sunday in London," Gin Shop, Upas Tree and various other pictures were aids to the cause and for many long years no important gathering in London in the interest of temperance was complete without Mr. George Cruikshank, the great philanthropist, on the platform.

Now there are great numbers of men scattered here and there, who drink and set a bad example, and are going down hill, doing no good to themselves or others, and missing a large amount of happiness and usefulness that God fitted them with a large capacity to enjoy and accomplish. But often a kind word fitly spoken turns such a one from his thotless career and makes everyone notice what a fine, hearty, genial fellow he is; what an active temperance man he has become: how much happier and better he looks and is: and a glorious promise is before him: he has set out for the Heavenly city and he invites and helps others to go with him and makes this world ever so much better and happier, and all because someone, perhaps a noble little girl or boy of our juvenile temperance organization, went for him, in a kindly loving way and said something to him which let the light of God's truth shine right thru into his heart, and chase away the mists and clouds and shadows of ignorance with which the evil one had blinded him.

"And a little child shall lead them." Did not the grand old prophet when he said that the little child should lead the leopard and the wolf and the lion into peaceful companionship with the kid and the lamb, have a vision of what our young workers are doing and going to do right along till the reign of peace has been proclaimed. The little children are going to lead the world, and they have begun to do it: keep right along.

BATTLE HYMN OF THE CRUSADE.

BY MRS. EMILY J. BUGBEE.

On the plains for bloodless battle they are gathering true and strong,
All the hero-hearted women, who have wept in silence long,
At the terrible oncoming of this raven-winged wrong,
Now God is leading on.
CHORUS.—Glory, Glory Hallelujah, etc.

They have rallied forth to conquer, and will never call retreat
While the banner of the rum-fiend is still flaunted on the street,
And his hellish snares are waiting, for the unwary feet,
For God will lead them on.

They will pierce the bending heavens with united prayer and cries,
Till the strongholds shall be shaken and the foe defeated lies,
Who has slain his many thousands of the strong ones and the wise;
For God will lead them on.

For the future of their dear ones, for their country's power and pride,
Onward moved by bitter memories of the past, whose pains abide,
They are working, weeping, praying, in their weakness, side by side,
For God is leading on.

Be still, oh tongue of caviller, be strong, oh heart of fear,
See you not the cloudy pillar. that is ever hovering near,
Know you not an ear is open, that will not refuse to hear,
For God is leading on.

Oh, the beauty and the blessing, when the CURSE is swept away,
That has turned to midnight darkness so many a golden day,
And is throwing weary shadows over many a life-long way.
For Christ is coming near.

All the desert and the wilderness shall blossom with the flowers,
Of industry and plenty, in this blessed land of ours,
And the grace of God unstinted shall come down in gentle showers,
For Heaven will be begun.
—Our Union.

THE OLD WOMAN'S APPEAL.

The inhabitants of a thriving town of Pennsylvania were assembled, as was their custom, to decide what number, if any, of the saloons should be licensed. There was a very full attendance. One of the magistrates presided, and upon the platform were seated, among others, the pastor of the village, one of his deacons, and the physician. After the meeting had been called to order, one of the most respectable citizens of the boro rose, and after a short speech, moved that the meeting petition for the usual number of licences for the ensuing year. He thot it was not best to get up an excitement by refusing to grant licenses. They had better license good men and let them sell. The proposition seemed to meet with almost universal favor. The president was about to put the question to the meeting, when an object rose in a distant part of the building, and instantly all eyes were turned in that direction. It was an old woman, poorly clad, and whose care-worn countenance was the painful index of no light suffering. And yet there was something in the flash of her bright eye that told she had once been what she then was not. She addressed the president, and said she had come because she had heard that they were to decide the license question.

"You," said she, "all know who I am. You once knew me mistress of one of the best estates in town. I once had a husband and five sons, and woman never had a kinder husband, mother never had five better or more affectionate sons. But where are they now? In yonder burying-ground there are six graves, filled by that husband and those five sons, and oh! they are all drunkards graves!"

"Doctor, how came they to be drunkards? You would come and drink with them, and you told them that temperate drinking would do them good. And you, too, sir, (addressing the pastor), would come and drink with my husband, and my sons thot they might drink with safety, and follow your religious example."

"Deacon, you sold them rum, which made them drunkards. You have now got my farm and all my property, and you got it all by rum."

"And now," she said, "I have done my errand. I go back to the poor-house, for that is my home. You, reverend sir; you, doctor; and you, deacon, I shall never meet again until I meet you at the bar of God, where you, too, will meet my ruined husband those five sons, who, thru your means and influence fill the drunkard's grave.

The old woman sat down. Perfect silence prevailed, until broken by the president, who rose to put the question to the meeting: "Shall we petition the court to issue licenses to this town for the ensuing year?"

And the unbroken "No!" which made the very walls re-echo with the sound, told the result of the old woman's appeal. There were no more licenses granted.

Dear reader! You may not have seen such results from the saloon curse in your town, for much of the work of the saloon is hilden from public gaze; but doubtless you have seen something of the ruin caused by it, and may we not trust you will use your influence in favor of anything that may mitigate the evils?—Saloon Curse.

GUERNEVILLE, Nov. 9, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—As our temple has not been heard from lately, I thot I would write you what we are doing. Our meetings had become rather dull, but we have lately revived our interest, and hope to be soon as prosperous as ever. Last Sunday evening, the Juvenile Temple gave an open temperance meeting, which was quite a success. The church was crowded, and all expressed themselves very well pleased with our program which was as follows:—

Opening Ode, by the congregation; Devotional Exercise, Bro. Trombly; Recitation, "Faith, Hope and Charity," Dolly Willits; Recitation, "Temperance Song," Edith Mc Fadgen; Song, "What Children Can Do," by five girls; Rec., "Our Promise," Daisy Deitz; Rec.. "A Little Girls Speech," Edith Deitz; Song, "The Pleasant Home," Nellie and Hattie Folks and Yetta Schloss; Recitation, "The Rum Seller," Lily Morrow; Recitation, "Old Rye Makes A Speech," Emma Morrow; Song, "Tremble, tremble, liquor dealers," five girls; Rec., "Nothing but leaves," Sarah Haas; Song, "Drinking Gin." Nellie Folks and Yetta Schloss; Rec., "Dont say he died thru drink," Hattie Folks; Rec., Henrietta Schloss; Song, be a sober man," Congregation; "Serpent and Wine-glass," six girls; Rec. "Look not upon the wine," Belle Morrow; Rec., "Closing remarks," Nellie Folks; Voluntary Remarks; Closing Ode, by the congregation. We have recently received from D. C. Cook's revolution temperance house, 500 papers of different kinds. We distributed 100 copies at our open temperance meeting, Sunday night. We have placed a hook in the depot, and another in the post office and hung papers on them with a request to "take one," and intend to keep them supplied with temperance papers of various kinds. Our Juvenile Temple would be pleased to hear of the success of other Juvenile Temples and Bands of Hope, in this state through your paper. I remain,

In Truth, Love and Purity,
HENRIETTA SCHLOSS.

THE GEM.

That was the name of a very handsomely printed and an interesting and effective temperance paper published in New York for the past three years by Bro. John B. Jackson. It was a monthly journal and only 50 cents a year. No one found fault with its ability or its price, but it seemed to be a favorite with its readers and was often the subject of favorable comment. And typographically it was the neatest and most tasty of all the temperance journals.

The Good Templars of New York State number 23.000 and they let the Gem die rather than relieve it of a paltry debt of $200 or get up a few more subscribers for it. The National Temperance Advocate is published in New York but it is a monthly and is a general national journal. A first class excellent weekly the "Living Issue" is also published in the State, but it is not the organ of the Good Templars, so that now those 23,000 people are unrepresented by any journal.

Consequently yon may feel assured that the interest in the cause languishes and people look to some other organization to do the work necessary for prohibition.

In some counties there are district deputies and district lodges doing a good work and probably increasing the membership a very little: but as they have not a single State lecturer employed and the leading men are divided as to prohibition and the republican party—and as there is no weekly or monthly means of communication between the lodges and members of the Order—there is a very poor showing for such a great populous State, in the progress of temperance. It is doubtful if as large a prohibition vote could be polled now in N. York as 20 years ago.

And there are as sincere, earnest, excellent, devoted temperance people there as anywhere in this world. But there seems to be a sad lack of competent organization and leadership. It is perhaps reasonable to believe that had New York State pursued the same course as Cal: kept moving onward at something all the time, maintained a weekly journal, put all the competent lecturers it could in the field and kept them there, adopted our financial scale and shut up cheap john in a lunatic asylum the last 12 years, their Grand Lodge might have reported now a membership of 250,000 and the State might have been counted with Maine and Kansas; Prohibitory.

Somebody may say, what has this to do with the Juvenile department? Much every way. Let the juvenile members know these things as early as possible. If we could have them all at 15 years of age know as much as any of the Grand Lodge Officers or Past Officers, so much the better. Let them learn early wherein lies the success of our work, so that they may be useful and capable when they take hold.

NO NOURISHMENT IN INTOXICATING DRINKS.

Alcohol and Hygiene says: "In making beer the brewer uses grain and yeast—hence some say that beer is like bread and as good. But beer is not bread, nor is it like bread. The object in making bread is to preserve the nourishment in the grain and make it into good food. The object in making beer is to destroy the nourishment and make an intoxicating drink.

The first step in making malt liquors is to sprout the grain. Now, a baker is very careful not to allow his grain to get wet and sprout. We know that when potatoes and other vegetables begin to sprout, they taste sweet and are thrown away by housekeepers as worthless. In the same way, grain when it sprouts is injured and loses most of the nourishment that was stored away in the little cells.

"No brewer," says J. W. Kirton, "who understands his business ever intends to make an article which will either strengthen or nourish the body."

The same author further says: "Instead of trying to make an article to nourish, the brewer does all he can to prevent anything which could nourish getting into the liquor. See how careful he is to cleanse it, rack it and fine it. How anxious he is that no solid materials should be seen floating about it! Indeed if he does not serve it up clear, bright and sparkling, his customers soon say, 'We are not going to drink such muddy stuff.'" And he goes on to show how these solid particles were the only part of the liquor that could contain any nourishment, and how, as far as possible these particles were all taken from the liquid.—Band of Hope Quarterly.

We might have ten preachers of the gospel where we have one, ten churches, ten sunday schools, ten public schools, ten colleges, ten Y. M. C. Associations, a hundred prayer meetings and a hundred bible and missionary societies where we now have one of each, and we should never advance one step toward making this a godly people or a christian nation until enough men and women combine with the help and blessing of God to make it a SOBER nation.

It would be singular indeed if God would call a people his people who own and run and worship ten altars of Satan for one that acknowledges the God of heaven. The only hope for the salvation of this country from the fate of the perished rotten nations of old and the perishing, plague stricken older nations of this day, is in the juvenile temperance organizations. In raising the children of the coming generation with a full temperance instruction, which is simply educating them to know the devil's traps when they see them, to despise and avoid them, to help destroy the altars of Satan and love the only true God and all Father.

TOBACCO.

The Lancet says juvenile smoking is getting more and more common, with the result of impaired eyesight, thinning of the hair, and other symptoms of excessive drafts upon the trophic nerve centres. And how is the practice to be stopped when it is directly encouraged, even Sunday-school prizes taking the form of meersham pipes? Not till youth are instructed in the fabric and functions of health, and inspired with a manlier ideal than that of aping their elders, will premature indulgence of every kind cease to act on them for evil."

The Lancet is the spokesman of the English Medical Association 20,000 strong.

Mr. Wm. Chambers of whom a short biography lately appeared in the Rescue, says, the odious practice of smoking by the young concerns the national welfare and is worthy of very general consideration. Every onein his sphere is called on as a matter of moral obligation to do what he can to abate a practice so needless and reprehensible.

The Dean of Carlisle says that the use of tobacco especially by young folks is destroying the physical stamina of our country, stripping youth of its bloom and beauty and manhood of its virility with a reflex influence on morals which is truly deplorable.

Germany has by law prohibited people under 15 years to smoke and several counties of Switzerland have followed the example.

MARK THIS, BOYS.

Did you ever know a man who grew rich by fraud, continue successful through life, and leave a fortune at death? this question was put to a gentleman who had been in business forty years. After reflecting a while he said: 'Not one. I have seen many men become rich as if by magic, and win golden opinions, when some little thing led to the exposure of their fraud, and they have fallen into disgrace and ruin. Arson, perjury, murder and suicide are common crimes with those who make haste to be rich regardless of the means.'

Boys, stick a pin here. You will soon be men and act with those who make money. Remember this man's testimony, and also the word of God; 'He that hasteneth to be rich, hath an evil eye and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him.

Let these words lead you to resolve to make haste slowly when you go into business in the matter of making money.—Casket

Two weeks ago a letter was quoted from the Temperance Record, written by an Englishman in Chicago, which reports as working in one pork packing house there, 3 land owners who had run thru $15,000 a year, 3 parsons, 2 doctors, 1 general, 2 captains, 2 bank clerks and about 10 clergymen's sons and young doctors from England; 23 persons nearly all reduced from affluence thru drink.

Now from the professions of all these parties, it is fair to presume that every one of them was a Sabbath school pupil and the subject of religious teachings beside. It is claimed too that 30.000 people are expelled or drop out of church membership in England every year thru drunkenness.

And all this is a perfectly natural result of the failure to teach temperance, where it ought first and most frequently and most persistently and most thoroly to be taut: in the Sunday school and in the church. As it has been in the past and is in many instances to-day, the children of the Sabbath school are not in the least degree shielded from the dangers of drunkenness, by their church or Sunday school instructions and it is reasonable to suppose they run a greater risk of being left out to perish, than the children who enjoy no religious privileges at all; the latter can be easily warned of the danger of drink: the Sunday school pupil will be slow to believe there is any danger in a practice against which his Sabbath School teacher and his minister failed to warn him, and upon which he has been led to believe the Bible is either silent, or lends its sanction and approval to the master trap which Satan has constantly set for his soul.

And in view of all this the International Sunday School committee give no more lessons on temperance, with the approval of our American S. S. leaders. The explanation of this attempted by some apologists is that they are going to let the lessons that the bible teaches on temperance come in course; but that is a lame and idle evasion. Nobody who hates temperance work and temperance societies and likes wine will ever teach a temperance lesson of any kind that will be of the least service.

ALL the boys in this band of hope who hope to grow up drunkards, hold up their hands———

All the boys that would like to be jolly, jolly tramps when they get to be men, with noses like a decaying carrot badly mashed, wearing old cast off clothes, an old boot on one foot and a worn out slipper on the other, living on raw turnips and refuse victuals and all your property and income and comfort and happiness invested in an old black horribly scented clay pipe, please stand up and be counted.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

BUSINESS VERSUS GROGSHOP.

Every citizen of San Francisco engaged in any decent reputable honest business has a serious financial interest in the success of the enforcement of the Sunday law.

Every dollar of the 25 to 30 millions spent for liquor in the saloons every year, and every dollar of the millions also which are lost in gambling and theft by saloon frequenters, ought to be expended with the people engaged in honest trade. The entire closing of all the grogshops would be 20 to 30 millions a year added to the custom of the honest traders of the city.

It is fair to suppose that on Sunday at least five millions a year are spent for drink and in drunkenness in San Francisco. All but a fraction of this is lost to the honest business men and a great deal of it should go to pay them debts which they never recover. A large number of men get drunk on Sunday who would not but for the open bars. These closed on Sunday, all the Sunday rum money or nearly all of it would be added to the receipts of other traders thru the week.

The property owner is defrauded very frequently of his rents because the grogshop collects them on Sunday from his tenants. The baker, shoemaker, tailor, butcher, milkman, printer, carpenter are equally robbed of their just dues by the mantraps which are set for their customers and which collect from those they entrap the money due to their creditors.

There are many thousands of people in this city who are made by the open grogshop so poor, that they are not customers of any decent business at all, or to any extent worth considering: who never take a newspaper or buy a book, a picture, an article of furniture, a new article of dress, or any product of labor; who seldom pay for the miserable food they eat, and who only pay for beer or gin and tobacco. All of these but for the grogshop would become useful citizens and good customers for the products of labor and the materials of commerce, in place of being burdens upon the honest industry and good citizenship of the city.

It would be impossible to offer one respectable reason why a single nasty poison den or grogshop should be allowed to prosecute its infamous business any day, much less on Sunday contrary to law. Its only purpose is to debauch, to injure fatally all who enter it: its only effect is to make good citizens bad, to convert innocent people into loafers, thieves, debauchees, prostitutes; to incite murders, divorces and crimes of every kind, and to incite every form of evil and blast everything that is good and honest and decent in this world.

The existence of a single one of these infamous pest houses of crime and villainy, is a disgrace to our civilization on any day of the week. No heathen nation ever permitted such a monstrously cruel and degrading iniquity. Any argument that applies to closing these public nuisances and crime-breeders on Sunday, applies equally to closing them every day: except one, which is that the law forbids the exercise of their satanic business on Sunday; and every good citizen should see that law enforced.

Every other business will do as much and have the same amount of custom in six days as in seven: and they will do the same amount of business at 14 per cent less expense of toil and help and have the countless benefit of the seventh day rest. The rumseller and criminal manufacturer, and pauper-maker is the only one who profits by stealing the Sunday from the people: the sale of bread and clothes and books cannot be increased by Sunday work; but the work of destroying health and virtue and honesty, the work of moral corruption and death can be almost doubled by consecrating Sunday to the worship of crime.

THE SECEDERS.

Some one who belongs to the loyal branch of the I. O. G. T. in England has felt aggrieved at the Rescue for exculpating the seceders, in the matter of the charter suit, which it has not done. It is not necessary to believe that the act of separation was necessary, politic or justifiable; but to preserve a character for consistency, we must admit that the seceders thot it had all of those qualifications. From their standpoint, they believe themselves entirely right; no doubt of that. From our standpoint, we believe them entirely wrong; no doubt of that. But, taking it for granted they were all wrong, and we all right; we must admit two things: that they were and are a body of earnest and sincere temperance workers, and they were and are going to continue right along to labor actively for the destruction of the Kingdom of Satan and the advent of the Kingdom of Peace.

And that is just what we are working for, and we know we are in earnest, and we are going to use precisely the same methods for the same ends. Then, still adhering to our belief that they were entirely wrong, and even if they were determined to be hostile to us, was it wise for any of us to train a single gun of ours from the enemy and turn it upon them? Assuredly not. We could afford to exercise toward them the kindest forbearance and wish them unbounded success in their separate career, without in the least justifying the separation.

It will doubtless be generally conceded at some future time that the most unwise course to pursue was to assail and abuse and go to law with each other. We took on both sides the course that carried the greatest joy into the council chamber of Satan and his rum agents on earth. And from all the mass of unkindly words, thots and acts that have passed between the two parties, you could not rake out as much wholesome, beneficent, useful influence for good as would have resulted from one kind, gentle whisper of conciliation and the tender of even one of the 77 pardons which are commended to us to have on hand in our dealings with our brethren.

The unity of the great Order has been broken. It is a misfortune. But if the rupture has been a folly, no possible benefit can accure from widening the breach. We can each work separately for the common end without belittling ourselves or our cause by impeding each other's progress and thus aiding the common enemy.

The members of a family or church or society who disagree are generally more bitter and unforgiving than strangers similarly affected. But if such has been the case in the past, there is no necessity for any other family or church or society to follow the old rut to do wrong. Good Templars should set the best example in all things.

THE PRISON REFORM COMMISSION.

This body held its session during a whole week and debated and speculated upon every subject except the cause of crime. Everybody had a little pet motion to offer or speech to make, but everybody seemed to have been placed under bonds not to allude to anything which really does cause any serious amount of crime. There was a very solemn taboo on the word "grogshop."

Now, everybody who took part in these proceedings must have known that the ten thousand drunkard, pauper, thief and harlot factories of this city and state are the sole producers of the crime for which our jails and asylums are required. The exceptional crime that has not its source in the grogshop is a mere trifle which could be easily disposed of.

The subjects discussed and action taken may have some result in making prison fare and prison treatment more attractive to criminals, and reforming 1 per cent. more of the convicts. But as no one there but a few of the last rpeakers, working men's delegates, &c., who were uninvited participators, seemed to care any thing about preventing crime, saving men before, not after, the penitentiary, it is not likely to be followed by important results. One speaker made the startling announcement that criminal tendencies were either pre-natal or post-natal!!! Next week this matter will be referred to. The only action at all appropriate to the objects of prison reform, was the unanimous adoption of the following resolution offered by Judge Thompson, G. W. C. T.

Resolved, That after due consideration of the various causes of crime committed in our state, this Convention is of the opinion that at least three-fourths of all crime committed in California arises, directly or indirectly, from the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and that the only means of relief is to remove the cause that produces it.

Passed unanimously.

R. C. GRIDLEY.

The readers of the Rescue will remember the "Gridley sack of flour" which contributed $200,000 gold to the Sanitary fund during the war. Gridley, the man thru whose efforts this vast sum was raised, died from disease contracted in the noble work, and left a family destitute. A movement has recently been started to raise a fund of at least $10,000 for Gridley's distressed widow, who resides at Modesto. It will be a reproach upon the charitable people of this state if the family of one who did so much gratuitous labor, and accomplished so much for the relief of the sick and wounded soldiers, shall be permitted to suffer for the necessaries of life. Contributions can be sent to Mr. J, J. Porter, Modesto, or to the San Francisco Chronicle. The moneys raised will be deposited in the Modesto bank and made subject to the order of Mrs Gridley.

There can be no more worthy object than this, none more deserving of their country's generous care than the widow and orphans of the man who himself rendered such immensely generous services to those who needed care and help, and who so sacrificed himself to render aid to those in need. It would be sad indeed if his family should be forgotten and allowed to feel the bitterness of evil rendered for good, of generosity and selfsacrifice rewarded with cold neglect—which render undeserved poverty so much more harrassing.

MORE OF THE SUNDAY LAW.

In Calaveras Co. public sentiment has closed up all the saloons on Sunday. In Monterey and other places a similar result is reported. Brother R. S. Wade writes from Ukiah, November 13th: "Yesterday, Sunday, a most unexpected event took place. Without the least opposition, every saloon and store in the city closed its doors, and remained so all day. Since the recent decision of the Supreme Court, one of the local papers has published a stirring editorial, and one of our ministers has preached an eloquent sermon on this topic; temperance workers have quietly talked among the people, and the result has been a moving of popular opinion in this direction, which saloon-keepers could see would not tolerate a violation of the law.

This, it seems to me, is the true way to work; not by proceeding by hasty prosecution to arouse all the dogged opposition of our opponents, but quietly, and from a secure basis, to create public sentiment. For you know the saloons are dependent on public favor for their very existence, and their owners least of all men dare to oppose the public will."

Life Boat Lodge had a very lively open meeting on the last Saturday in Oct: a musical and recitation program of great variety and good selection was followed by an unsuccessful assault on a supper of such an abundance that when the last gun was fired and the retreat sounded, the tables looked as if nothing short of a combined attack by the whole police force of the city could clear them. At their installation on the 7th, good reports of progress were made and one of the best alluded to $145 in the treasury.

THE YEAR'S RAISIN CROP.

Some weeks ago, a commercial paper of this city roughly estimated the raisin crop of the state this year at 91,000 boxes. The Riverside (San Bernardino) Press of a later date, corrects this estimate as follows:

	Boxes
Produced at Briggs'	65,000
" by Blower	9,000
" at Rocklin	12,000
" in Fresno County	8,000
" at Riverside	27,000
" at Orange	10,000
" other places	20,000
Total	151,000

The Press is located in the heart of a raisin district, and has means of obtaining correct information on the subject. From its figures, the value of the raisin crop of this state this year will reach half a million dollars. The progress of this industry has been remarkable. In the reports of 1878 the Assessors made no mention of it. At least none is made in the embodiment of their reports in the report of the State Surveyor-General, dated 1879. It now reaches the grand aggregate of half a million, and this will probably be doubled next year if no unforeseen accident happens to the grape crop in the raisin districts. The one great advantage of the business is that to produce a crop worth $500,000 not more than 1200 to 1500 acres of land is required. In some favored localities, as at Riverside, as high as $700 to $800 per acre has been realized. To produce the aggregate value of $500,000 in wheat at $1 per bushel, with the high average of 20 bushels per acre, 25,000 acres of first-class land must be planted and well cultivated.—Chronicle.

A BOYCOTTING BEER-SELLER.

Tho the Germans have not been noted much for their admiration of the Irish, and seldom adopt any Irish customs, one of the beersellers of this city favors adopting Boycotting in the matter of enforcing the Sunday law. Being interviewed by a representative of a contemporary in regard to shutting up his saloon on Sunday, the following report was obtained:

"Charles Brutschy, at the Old Lodge saloon declared that he would keep open, and was in favor of united action upon the subject, and the withdrawal of patronage from all tradesmen favoring the law."

With so terrific a threat hanging over the public as the withdrawal of patronage from people who do not think as he does, it is quite likely that Brutschy will have little difficulty in getting his ideas on matters and things very widely accepted. The better class of liquor-sellers—to their credit be it said—have no objection to the enforcement of the law providing it is uniformly and stringently enforced. Brutschy attempted to break the Herald up in business by withdrawing his patronage, twelve and a half cents a week, because the Herald aroused public opinion against gambling and thus saved the city this year from the disgraces that were permitted in former years, of open shameless robbery by dice, rondo, chuck-a-luck &c during Fair week. He wanted a game in his saloon.—Stockton Herald.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

Ed Register:—The recent decision of the Supeme Court in regard to the Sunday law has called forth the wrath of the saloon men upon all Orders of temperance and Christians who desire that the Sabbath day shall be kept sacred. Only to-day, I heard a saloon man say that "this wonld only last a few days and then we will go on as before." Now to all who entertain such ideas, I have this simply, to say: Beware; don't violate the law; we are prepared to maintain the majesty of the law with as much firmness as you are prepared to violate it. We mean to use all the law in our cause. We will see that District Attorneys do their duty. We have the law on our side, and rest assured we will invoke it. You are further notified that the law prohibits you from selling liquors or intoxicating drinks to inebriates, insane and minors and it reqnires no notice from the hands of interested persons to commence acti ons against any one violating said statute. You may boast of your license power—you have no license that permits you to disregard the Sabbath day. The statute is plain and plainer still will it be made if not complied with. Thousands of forms are in good hands to be filled out in case of open defiance.—Napa Register. Law.

MURDER OF A TEMPERANCE MAN.

At Omaha Col. Watson B. Smith, clerk of the U. S. Court was shot thru the head on Friday night at the door of his office. He was a prominent member of the Baptist Church, a man most highly esteemed and respected by all honest people and had served thru the war in a Michigan regiment. But he had been active in forcing the saloons to comply with the law which places their license at $1000, and the suspicion is very strong that the murderer was one or more of them or was hired by one or more of them. The U. S. officers are actively engaged in hunting out the assassin, as the victim was a U. S. officer and murdered in a U. S. building.

It is a nice business to tolerate at all, that assassinates and waylays anyone who merely seeks to make rumsellers comply with the law, as honest people have to do at all times. The murdered man had received several villainous threatening letters from saloon thieves. Reward of $6000 is offered for the assassin.

Bro. A. D. Boren writes from San Bernardino that the good work recently revived there, still goes gallantly on. People are becoming aware that the grogshop is accountable for nearly all the crime, violence, poverty, depressed trade and taxation that oppresses the country.

He wonders at politicians opposing temperance, as they should aim to be statesmen not tricksters and upholders of interests in the least degree hostile to the people. A statesman should have a talent and soul above the planning of jails and penitentiaries. He should be able to discern a higher national glory than that derived from extensive and elaborate prisons, madhouses and poorhouses, and should be endowed with common sense to advocate the abolition of the pestilence of the dramshop. And the only sensible remedy is prohibition in its simplest and most absolute form.

They have tried moral suasion for years in San B. but have not been able to induce even one saloon keeper to let up an hour on Sunday, altho not one of them could claim his business was in the least degree honest.

But lately a committee was appointed and measures taken to enforce the law; it put up a hot contest. A case was tried, rummy convicted and fined $40 by Judge Knox; appeal to Los Angeles dismissed, and now Sunday closing is observed save in the Southern hotel, which it is proposed to endeavor to close, and all good citizens should give their custom to the best hotel there which obeys the law and has no bar at all.

Riverside has also moved against their man killers. A very great improvement in the peace and comfort of San B. has followed the enforced Sunday law. Bro. Boren sends good tidings.

Uses of a temperance paper. Died lately in Halifax England Mr. H. Hughlings aged 75 years, a member of the Wesleyan Church. He is reported as having become a total abstainer thru reading the Alliance News, handed him by Mr. Ch. Watson the man of many million tracts. He gave $5.25 a year to the cause for some time, then wakened up suddenly and the past 3 years made it $525, a year for himself and $52,50 for his daughter who is a magnificent temperance worker. The way the odd money comes in there, the sums above named are respectively 1, 100 and 10 English guineas even. The Alliance News has probably been of more economic value to England, saved more waste and produce more wealth than any other journal England ever had. Since its foundation nearly 27 years ago, without doubt it and the other temperance papers of England and Scotland, have been of incomparably greater benefit morally and religiously than all the rest of the journals of England of whatever kind combined.

Ashantee. The King has lately ordered 200 girls to be killed (so say the papers) to use their blood in the plaster of some public buildings that are to be erected or repaired. San Francisco, New York and our other cities do the same thing in a different way; they dont send out the executioner to bring in the blood like the Ashantee King. But they farm out to the grogshop for $10 or $15 a quarter, a great many times 200 girls and women and children and men every year, and their City Halls and Public buildings have their mortar mixed and tempered and their walls cemented with the blood and tears and the virtue and lives and souls of their citizens and children, male and female. The Ashantee man in this matter is far ahead yet of his civilized brother in humanity and mercy and morality.

ANOTHER CONFIRMATION.

A few days ago the Herald discovered and published to the world a very beneficent work that is being accomplished by the I. O. G. T.s' for which that worthy order has not hitherto received due credit. The Herald stated that a very large proportion of the marriages that are solemnized among the young people of the city are the fruit of social relations established while members of that order. Another confirmation of that theory comes to hand in the issuance, by the County Clerk, of a license to M. L. Wilbert to marry Miss Mary Hampton. In the list of officers installed in Stockton Lodge No. 182, I. O. G. T., published in the Herald last evening, it appears that M. L. Wilbert was installed as Worthy Chief Templar and Miss Mary Hampton as his Worthy Right Hand Supporter. The lady was yesterday installed as the gentleman's worthy right hand supporter for life, according to the statutes of the State of California in such cases made and provided. The Worthy Chief Templar is a carriage-smith at Wm. P. Miller's carriage factory, and his Worthy Right Hand Supporter is an accomplished milliner. The example they have set to other Good Templars is a good one; and it would be a good thing for society if more of the young people would expose themselves to the matrimonial influences that pervade Good Templar Lodges.—Stockton Herald.

Those who desired to cast an invidious fling at the Good Templars, used to designate the lodges "courting societies," supposing that term to be a discreditable one. The reply was made, that the associations of the lodge were the very best under which courting could be carried on.

The Herald has truly put the matter in the most creditable light to our Order and the fact that the order teaches young men to be economical and sober and well conducted cilizens, fit and able financially and morally to be worthy husbands and gives them an introduction to the best girls of the country, upon whom it has also exercised a beneficent educatory influence—is one of the highest glories that ever graced any association of people.

THE DIME COLLECTION.

Next Thursday is the day set apart for the National Thanksgiving, and it is presumed a circular from the Ex Com of G. L. has reached all our Lodges and the ministers of this State asking that they interest themselves in raising a thanksgiving collection for the purposes of a National Temperance Literature fund. The amount collected is to be divided equally between the N. T. Society and the N. W. C. T. Union, who shall each return one half their receipts to the donors in temperance literature and employ the balance in the production and dissemination of temperance literature during the coming year. If we can organize the system all over the Union, we can raise after a year or two from one hundred thousand dollars a year upward just in proportion to the effort made.

Geo. S. Lincoln.—A business item which appeared in the Rescue of last week may have unintentionally done injustice to Mr. Lincoln, one of the first and best known temperance grocers of the city. A Good Templar who has for five years or more earned a most creditable record as a fair and upright dealer and a thoroly consistent temperance man. The most entire reliance may be placed in him, and no stronger claims to the patronage and sturdy support of all good citizens can be urged than his.

Bro. B. H Hoag gives good report of Orion Lodge always progressing. Ready for the enforcement of the Sunday Law. One of the best indications too, from there, is a frequent addition to the club for the Rescue.

The Monterey Californian advocates the maintenance of the Sunday law and gives good reasons therefor. And so does the Los Angeles Mirror and San Luis Obispo Tribune and others.

There was a full audience at Dixon on Sunday evening addressed by the G. W. C. T. and an active interest manifested: all the saloons closed there on Sunday but one.

International Lodge at its open meeting on Monday evening secured 16 applicants for membership.

IS THE I. O. G. T. A FAILURE?

In quite a number of states that question has been practically answered in the affirmative. When their grand and sub lodges should have been making entrenchments and building secure fortifications for their permanent security, and for a determined assault along the whole line to carry prohibition, they set out in a squabble over their own camp kettles and swamped themselves and the R. W. G. L., and nearly quenched the light of the Order in trying to destroy its machinery, its attractions, its degrees, its regalia and more particularly its revenues.

Twelve years ago Ohio had 27,000 Good Templars but dwindled every year till in ten years nine-tenths of its numbers were disbanded. Two years ago it became too sick to make any more reports, and perhaps no one outside of that state knows whether it exists any more in Ohio. The original I. O. G. T. was a successful, aggressive, prosperous institution; but cheap john remodeled it and Ohio Good Templarism of the cheap john brand became a most contemptible fizzle as a temperance organization. Its deliberate self ruin is in the last degree disgraceful to its leaders and its membership, and it is a grave commentary upon the usefulness of our R. W. G. L. that it looked on deliberately at all this slauter and never once took interest enough in the matter to make it a subject of comment. It was perfectly satisfied with that kind of success.

In 1872 the I. O. G. T. in New Jersey was in full activity and vigor. It was one of the most faithful, pushing, energetic loyal members of the great family of temperance workers. Bros. Morris and Graw and Simpson led a talented corps of temperance lecturers and writers and their journal, the N. J. Good Templar, preached faithful doctrine every week, the equal in ability of any of its contemporaries.

Under good management the membership had nearly quadrupled in the three years ending in 1872 and was over 11,000. Then cheap john appeared upon the scene. He came, he saw, he conquered. He opened the eyes of the hitherto opaque Good Templars to see that nearly 5 cents a year of their hard earned money was wasted in paying Bro. Simpson a salary of about $500 a year for his services as G. W. S. and editor of their weekly journal; and about as much more was squandered in the lecture field, converting two Methodist preachers into Vanderbilts and Jay Goulds. It was altogether too much of a sacrifice to save New Jersey from a whisky bill of 40 millions a year. They almost had prohibition, but it could not be thot of at that price. So down went the capita tax, down went the paper, down went the lecture business, up went cheap john and the whisky business and down went prohibition and the membership fizzled to 2330 in 1880.

It was too sick in 1881 or there was not enough of it to make a report to R. W. G. L. But enough of the Order was left to send a petition to R. W. G. L. to abolish the catechism of the degrees and to sow a knee patch on each of the odes. If that catechism could be used as a scapegoat, cheap john's priestly hand and the sins of the Order laid upon its head, and the goat sent out to but the stumps in the wilderness, the N. J. order could compose its limbs gracefully and peacefully retire from this life. Cheap john would have had but half a victory in N. J. had the order been embalmed there without accomplishing a victory over that catechism.

And New Jersey Good Templary of the cheap john brand has made the order so far as it could, a laughing stock of derision for our enemies, and a pitiful and contemptible failure. The two states named have done just a little worse than a long list that might be named, who have surrendered to the devil in the guise of cheap john.

The R. W. G. L. has met all these years; its duty to watch and guard against all impairment and assault of enemies without and within. A body of good, honest, philanthropic, well-meaning, innocent people, every one of them, full of ardent hopes and wishes for the success of temperance, but unfortunately deeming that when they individually felt good and enthusiastic and were having a good time, the whole world was going exactly right. They have seen for ten years the Order going to ruin in state after state and in dozens of states, and they have always sung peace, never seemed to know there were a thousand leaks and rat holes at work sinking the ship; never made an enquiry into the havoc or its causes, but have devotedly worshiped cheap john and sung his hymns right along. Never consulted the doctor or proposed a remedy. But year after year they have utterly ignored and neglected the true interests of the Order and have tinkered and wrangled and resolved and voted and reconsidered little wretched issues about changes in charges and degrees and signs and have completely belittled their history with meddlesome and unwarranted and utterly puerile changes for the worse in the machinery of the Order, which they never should have been allowed to meddle with in the least.

There are Good Templars who will call this croaking and growling, but it is no real friend of the Order who desires silence on these things. It would be a crime to stand idly by and see this greatest and noblest and best of Orders rat-holed and gnawed to pieces and its life quackdoctored away without a protest. The question has to be faced right away, shall the Order die and get out of the way of something better? The sooner the better if the old style of wanton misrule and apathetic incompetence is to continue to prevail in our R. W. G. L. and so many of our Grand Lodges.

But those who come out with the truth on these matters are determined the Order shall not die, but take on new life, go back to its first condition of success, banish cheap john and all his infernal gewgaws and playthings and nonsense forever, and resume and pursue its holy and noble mission. The cowards who keep silence say, let it die.

In California we have our journal, our temperance literature, home made and imported, six lecturers at constant work; our Home for Orphans, our juvenile system well generaled and liberally equipped and supported, our 350 lodges, 17,500 members, and above all things our revenue system never once ratholed or barnacled, and all these elements must grow and increase. If any decrease or damage ever occurs in any department we shall try to stop the leak right there, without seeking a remedy in the abolition of the catechism or the substitution of a tin whistle for the regalia.

NEBRASKA.

Believes the order can live too. Its organ, the Lincoln Tribune sets out to build up and its G. W. C. T., Bro. Finch commences the year with the following circular to his state and district deputies.

"The time has now come when the campaign must be pressed all along the line. We do not want, nor can we afford to have any officers or deputies for mere ornament. During the dry hot weather it has been practically impossible to work, but there can be no excuse for idleness now. Every deputy can and must institute at least one lodge before November 1st. Those deputies who cannot work will please at once return their commissions in order that workers may be put in their places." Nebraska will help to prove that the Order can be made a success.

FARM FOR SALE.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen nd in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAITURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

THE
National Freeman,
A MONTHLY MAGAZINE,
First No. Jan., 1881.
Edited by.....REV. JOHN RUSSELL,
Published by.....STONE & HALL.
148 Madison St., Chicago.
Price, 15 cents per single copy; or, $1.75 a year. Discount on 5, 10 or 20 copies, sent to one address, 2, 3 and 4½ cents per copy.
The publishers are life-long temperance and prohibition advocates, and Mr. Russel's name as editor is a sure promise as can be that the magazine will be inferior to none in ability. This is a publication much needed, is not the organ of any special society, but will reason mightily for the overthrow of the most desolating curse that ever infested the world and tormented mankind. Any one who has 15 cents ought to send and get a sample copy, and then subscribe regularly so as to do what is the duty and charge of of every individual, to keep this much-needed enterprise from going to the wall.

Startling Exposure of the Liquor Traffic.
"DRINKS FROM DRUGS," OR "THE MAGIC BOX." BY ELI JOHNSON.

A book that cannot fail to arouse the American people to the gigantic swindle now being perpetrated. The writer offered $10,000 by a leading brewer to keep still. Liquor not only doctored but made entirely from drugs. Extracts from a whole library of secret books giving receipts for making and doctoring—advertisements of essences, facsimiles of labels, engravings, etc. etc. Claret, port, sherry, champagne, whisky, brandy, gin, rum, etc., all out of one barrel and made at less than 25c. a gallon. Wine that never saw grape juice—cider that never saw apples—beer factories in place of breweries, fine cream ale without barley or brewing, whisky from arsenic, millions of gallons of liquor that pays no revenue tax. The farmer's corn and barley "all in your eye." A wholesale liquor store in a ten foot square cellar—more French wine sold in New York City than is produced in the whole of France.

This book is no mere toy, but an exhaustive work—a work of years of close research and investigation, and cannot fail to prove an invaluable auxiliary to the temperance cause. It forms one volume of our "Popular Temperance Library," and we shall sell it at the following fabulous prices:—Single sample number, 10c. Five or more sent to separate addresses for 8c. each—5 or more to one address 5½c. each—25 or more to one address 5c. each. Special rates on large lots. Book nearly ready for delivery. Orders filled in turn.

We also publish 90c. to $1.50 story books in large newspaper form. One complete book, illustrated, in quantities, at 2c. each. Samples of three books already issued, for 10 cts. A whole library of choice $1.00 to $1.50 story books in book form (paper covers) especially for Sunday-schools and Bands of Hope, for only c. each (sample copy 8c.) Eighteen monthly papers at 5c. a year, (samples of each for 10c.) We take contracts to sow towns knee-deep with temperance literature for a song, and that, too, with papers in place of tracts. A full line of Band of Hope supplies so cheap that the penny collection pays for library, weekly paper, badges, pledges and all. Also a host of other temperance documents, all at revolution prices. Send for catalogue. We have the indorsement of the press, societies, and prominent workers in all parts of the country. The following was recently received from Governor St John, of Kansas:

State of Kansas, Executive Department, Topeka, Oct. 22, 1881.—I heartily approve of your plan of work. Your publications will accomplish great good, and should be liberally patronized by the friends of Christian temperance everywhere. Very truly yours, JOHN P. ST. JOHN.

An Appeal. We wish to reach every temperance worker in the land, man or women, with our samples, catalogue, etc. We can do nothing if we cannot reach the people. Will not every one send us names of workers? It only costs a postal card and a few minutes' time. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madi on St., Chicago.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:
Mrs. E. P. Stevens, Prof. Wm. Crowhurst, Col. C. N. Goulding, Elder J. W. Webb, Hugh R. Hughes, and Rev. W. C. King.

W. C. KING.

TULARE CITY, Nov. 7, 1881.

ED. RESCUE.—From Grand Lodge we went to Folsom and spent a fortnight with relatives whom we had not seen for fifteen years and the last time amidst the associations of our boyhood home so it is unnecessary to say that the visit was enjoyed and the rest refreshing. Our marching orders from the "Powers that be," were to return to this valley, and from the way work develops here we are likely to remain for some time. On Sabbath, Oct. 30th, we had a most profitable time at Fresno and was glad to receive the written promise of fifty persons to take hold of the Band of Hope work again under Judge C. G. Sayle's leadership.

At Mendocino on Tuesday, we rec'd the application of 12 persons for a lodge, and request to return, which we promised to do on the 10th. On Wednesday evening at Kingsburg, at an appointed children's meeting, a house full of old and young gave kind attention, and at the close, 24 signified their readiness to join a B. of H., which was at once organized with Prof. A. A. Smith as Supt. At Visalia, we did not accomplish what we hoped, but trust that when we return a thorough notice will be given.

On Sat'y evening we met the members of this lodge and found them ready to co-operate in a thoro campaign, which opened at 11 o'clock yesterday A. M. At three o'clock we had a fine time with the children and in the evening a crowded house; altho the Grandma Birthday Co. was making the Sabbath eve hideous with their band down town.

We wish to return thanks thus publicly to Mr. J. F. Walker of the Delta, for courtesies extended and others promised, which are quite in contrast to the open opposition or neglect thus far rec'd from the press. As a proof of Mr. Walkers business tact, as well as friendliness to our cause, he each quarter encloses each L. D. a directed postal, with request to send him promptly a list of officers installed.

H. R. HUGHES.

Hites Cove is on the Merced river, within 20 miles of the Yo Semite Falls. The grade is four miles long, said to be one of the longest and steepest in the state. The isolated position of the place, dependant on the famous Hite mine, not having but half a dozen families and the miners being fond of the cup that inebriates, I was advised not to go there. Not one could be found either in or out of the "Cove," that gave me a word of encouragement. But the result of two meetings, was a live lodge and an excellent list of officers. The W. C. T., Bro. Johnson was formerly L. D. of old Mt. Vernon of Tuolomne County.

Mariposa, the County seat, I found by two previous visits, was a hard field for a temperance advocate; but this time Providence smiled, and a lodge of 28 charter members organized, which under the leadership of Bros. Comerse and Maddox, will soon be the banner lodge of the county.

I am under obligations to Mr. Reynolds of the Gazette, for kindly notices of meetings and free advertisements for Mariposa and Hornitos meetings. It is a pleasure to notice the growing interest manifested by local papers in the progress of our cause and order.

I also organized Mariposa Band of Hope on Sunday morning, with 30 members, and Miss Eva Farnsworth is Supt.

Hornitos, when I first visited the place a year ago, seemed about as hopeless as any of the old mining camps, that I ever visited. But last Sunday evening, a change had seemed to come over the spirit of their dreams, and Odd Fellows Hall was crowded. 15 Templars fromMerced Falls, and 10 from Cathays Valley, in their officers regalia with good singing, inspired one to speak with energy and hope; and 34 names were obtained, and Hornitos lodge starts out with a fine corps of officers and bright prospects.

The W. C. T., Dr. Corbet, and Bro. Robinson, L. D., will spare no pains to have a live lodge, doing their whole duty to redeem the good name of the town.

So my prediction of 10 days ago is verified. The 2 lodges of Mariposa county are increased to six, and there are four other places where we hope to plant the order, and then get a D. L. to foster and sustain the lodges that do so much to bless the people.

ANGELS, Nov. 10, 1881.

C. N. GOULDING.

My last letter was written from San Andreas, Calaveras Co. I lectured there on Sunday and Monday evening 6th and 7th, and Tuesday 8th, organized a lodge with 16 charter members; on the 9th and 10th, lectured in Angels Camp to attentive audiences. Bro. Hughes was present, and trust some good was accomplished. Friday the 11th, went to Murphys; open lodge meeting that evening in the new hall, of Murphys Lodge No. 361. Saturday 12, was the day set apart for the meeting of Calaveras District Lodge. A large attendence; a number of lodges being represented; also Bands of Hope. At 11 A. M. Saturday, dedicated the new hall; 2 P. M., business meeting of the District Lodge; 7½ P. M., installed the officers; then followed music, quartettes, tableaux, &c. &c. On Sunday at 11 A. M. and 7½ P. M., addressed the people on temperance. The hall was densely crowded on each occasion; the best of feeling prevailed; ample justice was done to feast of "good things." (Bro. Peters and Sister Wing of Mountain View No. 342, represented Tuolumne Co.) the lodge is in a flourishing condition; D. D., Bro. A. J. Cooke, being the right man in the right place. Sister Richardson and the quartette gave us choice music. Bros. Wood, Beal and Culberston and others, represented San Andreas in quite a dignified manner. The claims of the RESCUE were presented, and a premium of $10. offered to the lady or gentleman obtaining the largest number of subscribers before the meeting of the next District Lodge. It is considered one of the best of the many meetings of the District Lodge, and cannot fail to be productive of good.

The Sunday Law is enforced thruout the County, and was strictly observed in Sonora; "when next they meet may I be there."

I leave for the "Artic Regions of Trinity, Shasta, and Siskiyou; cool but pleasant; will communicate if not "froze out."

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12, 1881.

I have spent the past week as one of observation in the interest of the Rescue. Monday visited International; full attendance with public installation. Tuesday visited Golden Gate, and found that the wave of adversity closed the gate against admittance for this evening; consulted the lodge directory, and to my delight discovered that Mission Star was still above the horizon. Invested a nickel for car fare in order to reach Mission Star in time before its disappearing for the evening; found it in full blaze, installing officers. Had for the first time an opportunity to put in a good word for the RESCUE, and good results are expected. Some names were given to the Vice Templar. May Mission Star prove a shining star in the constellation of Good Templarism.

Wednesday turned northward to catch a glimpse of the Headlight, found it in good trim and throwing its effulgent rays in the right direction; was well received and by a good Sister introduced to every member present, put in a few remarks under the Good of the Order. Headlight is well established having a stable foundation. May its radiance never be tarnished.

Thursday visited Valley, and found it true to its name, located on the level of the valley, concluded that its membership must be composed of very aged brothers and sisters who find it hard to ascend flights of stairs, but to my surprise found them to be the very youngest Templars; and such smiling and dimpled countenances, that it was a great solace to a weary man to find rest in such a pleasant valley. Found the lodge up to the full standard of Good Templarism. Witnessed initiation and work was well performed. May Valley Lodge prosper, and add many more to her roll.

Here for the first time announced my title in the Order as that of Solicitor General for the Bescue, whose maximum speech is two and a half hours, and the minimum fifteen minutes, which took every body by surprise, and the W. C. T. immediately cut me down to less than five minutes, well done!!

Friday visited Constitution, found open meeting with a good program. May Constitution follow the example of this state and make a revision of her organic constitution so as to hold on to her membership.

Saturday visited Spartan and found them a true band of invi(nc)sible Spartans. This concludes my first week's observation. Next week will be devoted to observation and skirmishing, to be followed up by a terrible onslaught on pocketbooks for investment in the RESCUE. SOLICITOR GENERAL.

PILOT ROCK, Oregon.

EDITOR RESCUE:—We are trying to do our little in the great temperance conflict—God grant success, and a glorious victory for the right, all over our beloved country. We feel that the two armies are face to face, and the roar of a mighty, deadly battle is already sounding in our ears! Who shall be the victor? Woe unto that nation that forgets God. Our whole nation is guilty. Our national debt is being paid by the price of blood. Almost every state and county in our land is guilty of accepting this "blood money" to pay its expenses. Oh, the depth of the infamy of this whole licence system. Oh, the offense is rank; it smells to heaven. It hath the primal eldest curse upon it—a brother's murder.

A few copies of the RESCUE are taken here, and, for one, I am well pleased with its out-spoken, decided manner of dealing with the enemy. It is refreshing to hear things called by their right names. May you meet with abundant success. MRS. E. S. SAMPSON.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

The next regular quarterly session of the San Francisco D. L. will convene at Grand Central Hall Sixth and Market Sts. on Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 25th and 26th 1881, at 7:30 o'clock. All members of the Order from far and near are cordially invited to attend.

Sutter and Yuba District Lodge meets at Yuba City Dec. 7th at 10 A. M. Public meeting in the evening. Come everybody.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise.

John G. Mysell, of San Francisco, and T. J. Sutton, of San Jose, are agents for the RESCUE.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

Rev. L. A, Banks has retired from his position as editor of the Pacific Censor, which is much to be regretted unless his successor shall continue to keep the Censor up to the efficient character which it has hitherto maintained.

AMONG the many excellent papers published in different parts of the country that are devoted to the cause of temperance, there are none more ably edited than the RESCUE, published in San Francisco, California. It is published under the auspices of the Good Templars of that State, and we are pleased to learn that it is receiving a good support. In the last issue a reduction of price is announced, from $2.00 to $1.25 per year.—Kansas Methodist.

GREAT BRITAIN has closed the door on Sunday liquor traffic in Scotland, Ireland and Wales; America has closed the doors on election days. Maine and Kansas have run up the flag of prohibition. Iowa, Indiana, and other States are lighting up the beacon fires of their amendment clubs, and the workers of the new crusade from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are in earnest and on this line we'll fight it out. Blood poisoning must cease. Prohibition must rule. —Liberator.

SUNDAY LAW ITEMS—The business men of Sacramento have taken up the enforcement of the Sunday law in their city as a business matter, and propose to see it out. The young people's association of San Jose and Santa Clara have taken up the Sunday law enforcement; weekly meetings are to be held to discuss and promote the enterprise on Friday evenings commencing Dec, 2. Active sympathy from all parts of the state reported, Stockton excepted. There have been 75,000 Sunday law leaflets sent out and 25,000 more are called for and will be supplied.

The vote of Astoria Lodge, Oregon. was unanimous against the change of regalia. And so it seems elsewhers so far as heard from. Now there wsll be a chance for some other Good Templar John the Baptist to invent another peanut conundrum to take up the time and attention of all the lodges in the world, and make the world outside believe the I. O. G. T. is a peanut organization. Let the Solons and Nestors and Lycurguses of the Order propose another vital issue.

RIVERSIDE RAISINS.—At Riverside, San Bernardino County, there are now 65 raisin producers, and five persons owning lime orchards. The curing of grapes is advancing rapidly to the front rank of industries there. This year 28,000 boxes of raisins have been put up, some of them being of unexcelled quality. The raisin product of A. P. Combs' vineyard is pronounced by San Francisco merchants to be equal to the best Malaga raisins ever imported here, the skin being thin and the pulp clear and almost seedless.—Chronicle.

MR. BLAINE.—The most brilliant entertainment of the season was given last night by Secretary Blaine in honor of the foreign guests. The elite of the Diplomatic corps, Army, Navy, official and society circles were present. The rooms, as well as the table, were a marvel of floral decoration, and, from the quantity, excellence and variety of the wines, it may be said that when Mrs. Blaine is mistress of the White House, it will not be the headquarters of total abstinence propagandism.

The above is from a Washington correspondent of the Halifax Watchman. It may be all true, but the part of it which refers to wine is probably altogether false, like the charges so frequently made against Mr. and Mrs. Hayes in the Philadelphia Times. Mr. Blaine has always passed for a temperance man, so far as this deponent has heard. Will the Anvil please tell what it knows?

The wine makers blow hot and cold with great facility of somersault. They tell us, now and then, that France is going to be a grand market for California wine, and Bordeaux will take 100,000,000 gallons a year, and yet it makes their hair stand up on end to hear of a reciprocity treaty, which would admit a free exchange of French and American wines. The treaty, made or not made, will not affect the grape grower at all in either country. The glucose wine growers in Bordeaux, New York and San Francisco, are the only parties interested. It is fortunate for the grape men that they cant fabricate raisins, table grapes nor natural grape juice, out of glucose, cabbage leaves, pulque and old boots. The viticulturists have nothing to fear, it is only the drunkiculturists.

ONE of the curious bequests of the England of former centuries was that of Sir John Gayor, a merchant of London, who, traveling about 240 years ago in the wilds of Arabia, was separated from his attendants and interviewed just then by a furious lion. Sir John had only one resource, and that he used; he fell on his knees and prayed, and the lion instead of attacking him prowled around him (how many times not stated) and trotted off. On his return the grateful traveler gave $1,000, a large sum then, to his parish church for the poor, on condition that a sermon should be preached every year in commemoration of the deliverance which God afforded him.

The Santa Cruz Transcript is no longer the organ of the S. of T., the Saturday Local having been adopted. But the Transcript is no less an advocate of Temperance, and a glance at its healthy columns indicates a prosperity not at all impaired. It now has a Baptist department edited by Rev. Theo. J. Neil. It remarks very truly:

"The brewers, distillers and tobacco men have organized and raised a corruption fund, and propose to buy from congress a reduction of the tax on liquor and tobacco. Whatever is taken from the tax on those articles will have to be added to other taxes, while the consumers of liquor and tobacco will pay the same price for their poison. Thus the result of a reduction of a tax on liquor and tobacco will be simply the taking of a few millions from the pockets of consumers of useful articles and putting the stolen money in the coffers of the wholesalers of the poisons. We sincerely hope this corruption fund will be expended in vain.

CENTRAL LITERARY SOCIETY, Central M. E. Church.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21, 1881.

ED. RESCUE:—The Central Literary Society is an organization intended to promote moral and intellectual culture among its members and others who choose to attend its meetings. We endeavor to have an entertainment to this end every Saturday evening. Usually our program consists of music, recitations, readings, essays, addressess on various subjects, and occasionally a debate, mock-trial or other novelties.

The object of this note is to ask you to assist us in this laudable undertaking to provide a resort for the young where they can, "without money and without price," have the advantage of lectures, music, etc., thereby elevating and fitting them more fully for the battle of life.

Resolved, "That the Sunday Law shall be enforced," is the subject for debate in the Central Literary Society, Central M. E. church, Mission street, above Sixth street, next Saturday evening, 8 P. M., November 26. As this subject is attracting more than usual attentoin just now, the public are invited to attend. The disputants are: affirm., Rev. E. R. Dille and J. Alva Watt; neg., W. A. S. Nicholson and Mr. Hutton.

We would specially invite members of the various temperance organizations to be present.

THE NATIONAL W. C. T. U.

This Union of the best and most useful organization the world has ever seen for 18 centuries, has recently closed its annual convention in Washington. It was intended to give a synopsis of the proceedings from the Signal, but some good natured friend has walked off with that paper (accidentally?) and it cannot be done. Senator Blair of N. H. was received and introduced to the convention with enthusiasm and a conference was held upon his proposed amendment to the constitution of the U. S. prohibiting the manufacture and sale of strong liquors after 1900. The senator says the bill shall come before every congress in which he lives to be a participant.

The Lake Bluff resolutions were adopted which favor political action for Home Protection and the ballot for women. This is a practical evidence of the capacity of the earnest leaders and actors of the W. C. T. U. Men are very much divided on the proper practical mode of dealing with the liquor demon; a large majority of them will cling to the idea of doing away with its evils without hurting or annoying or removing the demon itself. But the women who have been harrowed and clubbed and tortured and crucified under the sanguinary reign of the tyrant, have come to the conclusion that the only way to tame the beast is to destroy it, and every body always knew the only way to destroy it was with the ballot.

But there was a small faction of the W. C. T. U. as might have been expected, who have always been trying, and always will, to solve the problem, "How to get thistles out of the ground without pulling them up, and how to devise the most efficacious and gentle means of moral-suading them to quit growing, or to grow only a little." Under the leadership of that very excellent christian lady Mrs. Wittenmeyer, a small party have seceded from the Union and call themselves the N. C. Evangelical Temp Union.

There is only one way, (it is suggested to both parties,) that harm or weakening can result from this movement: that way is if either evinces the slightest bitterness or antagonism or opposition to the other. If one party should make the mistake of cherishing or exhibiting a hostility to the other, the latter can best meet it with a soft answer and a challenge of rivalry in best promoting the welfare of humanity and best observing the injunctions of the Master.

When a section of an organization takes the ground of active opposition to the main objects, movements and field operations of the Association, the latter is immensely reinforced by its separation. Each party can then do its utmost without hindrance. Miss Willard's presidency has been fruitful of busy active movements of immense utility in various departments of the great field of labor.

Her Mrs, Hayes picture scheme with its far reaching influence, her "march from Atlanta to the sea," as a herald of the gospel of peace and good will, her well appointed embassies to the assemblies and powers of other organizations, political and religious, her treatment of the question of the ballot and her devotion and personal industry have all eminently attested her fitness for the high office to which she has been re-elected. Miss Willard is no tarrier by by the wayside, no halter between two opinions, no temporizer with questions of tobacco policy and fashion tolerance and fashion deference. It would be well if all the W. C. T. U. presidents and officers adopted her as their model, as so many have done with good results.

According quite as much sincerity and earnestness to Mrs. Wittenmeyer and with the highest respect for her good intentions it must be admitted that her published answers to the Rev, Joseph Cook's grand arguments on the ballot for women are the very sickest and weakest, illogical specimens of temperance literature ever attempted. Those articles with her known obstructive attitude toward the ballot for women should utterly disqualify her for the leadership of an army of progressive, intelligent, efficient modern women, who mean to succeed. But let her do what good she can in the circle of her limited beliefs and possibilities; the W. C. T. U. and the cause of temperance will welcome Mrs. W and her new society with a God speed and all will be strengthened by what has occurred.

The members of the W. C. T. U. will excuse the intrusion into their councils of an outsider who has in the success of all their aims and projects as warm and hearty a sympathy as they can have themselves.

THE GREATEST MISTAKE OF HIS LIFE.

A THANKSGIVING STORY.

BY THE EDITOR OF OUR UNION.

[For want of space the opening part of this very excellent story is abridged. Parson Ely had been among the first to sign the Washingtonian pledge in the early days. Many others had followed his example, but after some months the enthusiasm died out: many fell away and the anti pledge members of his community had severely and painfully criticised their pastor for having done such an inconsiderate act.]

They said it in the parson's ears in a most uncomfortable way for many of them were his elders and deacons, his churchmembers in highest standing, and from whom his salary must of necessity come. Some went so far as to say that in signing a pledge the minister had done dishonor to his ordination vows, which ought to cover temperance as well as all other kinds of godliness, and others that he had introduced schism into the church by joining an out-side society. And the poor pastor, self-distrustful as usual, went around with his head bowed like a bulrush, vainly bemoaning his inability to undo the work of that enthusiastic impulse.

It was when the hard cider which always preceded apple-jack, perry and other well-known compounds at the thanksgiving festivals of those days, was passed first to the minister who refused it with a painful flush that he added to his tremulous denial the phrase so familiar to his hearers:

"It was the greatest mistake of my life."

"How a mistake?' said one present, who having recently returned to his home which he had left during the excitement of the temperance movement was not acquainted with the present reaction in public sentiment. "I remember hearing you say, parson, that when you put your signature to that pledge it was the happiest moment of your life, and that you felt as tho your influence with this people would be redoubled by this act."

"Did I say that? Well I was excited and enthusiastic. It was a great mistake, I have lost all my influence, the best people dont come to the service as they used to, my elders are estranged, and I fear there will be trouble in the church before we are thru with this thing."

"Why not put an end to it then, and break that foolish pledge once for all?" said his host, courteously offering the thanksgiving cider.

"I have given my word" said the pastor, faintly but firmly. "A man's word is as good as his bond they say, and the pledge of a minister of the Holy Gospel ought to be as sacred as the immutable word of Jehovah himself. Forgive my seeming discourtesy; I am pledged to total abstinence as long as my life shall last, and tho the promise be a foolish one God helping me, I'll keep it."

Of course courtesy forbad that more should be said; the conversation drifted to other things, full justice was done to turkeys, pies and other good things, and dinner being over, the company adjourned to the seldom used "best room" where there were nuts and apples, more hard cider and plenty of New England rum, then at the "gloaming," horses were "hitched," and the whole company set forth toward their homes.

The minister was ill at ease. He had not enjoyed those Thanksgiving festivities. His singularity had, he felt, thrown what is familiarly known as a wet blanket upon the company; his influence with those young people was gone, they would no longer look upon him as a genial, friendly pastor, on whose sympathy they might depend, as he attempted to draw them into the fold, and the elder men considered him as an enthusiastic fanatic, whose judgment was unreliable. Somehow, in spite of his morning sermon on the text, "In everything give thanks," the pastor's Thanksgiving had not yet begun.

As he neared his home he perceived some dark object directly across his own front door, and hastening on to see what it could be, found a cart, which two rough-looking men were busy in unloading. On the top lay a fine turkey, attended by two pairs of fat chickens, all prepared for roasting, and sure to keep in this cold weather. Then came three barrels of apples, golden fall pippins and spitzenbergs and Baldwins hard and sound for winter use. Next came five bushels of potatoes, and underneath lay in square-edged logs, half a load of good hard fire-wood.

"It's a present, parson, from the people down to the mills," said one of the men, as having finished unloading, and put all the things where the minister's one servant suggested, he first became aware of that gentleman himself, "an' I was ter say, least wise the ould 'ooman tould me ter, that its a Thanksgivin' present 'cause yer got the men ter sign the pledge. Yer see we was that given to the drink that we didn't have nothin', not hardly enough to put in the babies' mouths, an' no shoes nor nothin' nice to send the childer to Sunday school in, an' my old 'ooman an' me, we felt bad about it, because in the ould counthry they always went to the school where the genthry was, 'an whin the Timperance spaker came along, Mike, that's the bhoy that lives forninst me, sez:

"Pat", says he, "if ye'll soign the pledge I will shure."

"Thin, sez I, "No sure I wont, this is a free counthry, an' if the rich men is free to dhrink their wine an' their cider, I'm free to have my whiskey an' my rum, shure." "But we wint to the matin', and when we saw you, parson, stip up an' sign the pledge, Mike sez:

"Thar, now, Pat, there's one of the genthry signed away his liberty, just to set an example, for sure the minister isn't fond of the dhrink, so lets you an' me sign too;" "an' we did, an' we got lots of other fellers in the mill ter sign, too. We've all kep' our pledge, for we're dacent people from the North, an' we'd be ashamed to go back on our word, an' somehow the money's stuck to us iver since. The homes look clane an' tidy now, and the childer's got enough to ate, an' my ould 'ooman thot it would be nice-like fur us all to put together some o' our savins an' sind ye a Thanksgivin' present, 'cause we'd never a signed but for you."

My dear fellow, I am very much obliged," said the impulsive minister, touched in his innermost sensibilities; "but do I know any of you, are you my people, do you come to my church?"

"We didn't use to go ter meetin' much, we men went to the tavern Sundays, and the women staid at home an' claned up. But we were well brot np at home, and afther givin' up dhrinking we got ter thinkin' o' the old times, an some on' us have tended pretty reglar, yer might a' seen us all together in the back seats. But it's a long way ter come, a matter over two miles, an the wimin an' children cant walk so far; besides we havent all got good clothes to come among gentle folks. So we thot if we might be so bold, we'd ax yer to come over some time an' preach to us in the dryin' room of a Sunday afternoon: the overseer sez we may have the use of it, an' we bhoys wil fix up the seats.

"Come? of course I will every Sunday afternoon, if you want me," said the pastor, his thanksgiving anthem swelling up at this opportunity for extended work in his Master's vineyard. And he kept his word finding a most attentive and devout congregation, trained in the reverent churches of the Scotch Presbyterian of the north of Ireland. He went again, and God greatly blessed his ministrations, pouring out a large spiritual baptism in answer to his prayers. From the "drying room" of the mill the fire spread to the church in the village, and multitudes of souls there openly professed the faith of Christ.

Years afterwards, when the Temperance movement had taken its place among the other legitimate objects of Christian labor and prayer, and it was looked upon as a rather disgraceful thing in Poncoke for a church member to own a distillery, Parson Ely, standing with the popular side now, would often tell the story of the Thanksgiving of 18—, and pointing to the flourishing condition of his church, as well as of that which has been built at the mills, would offer to God thanksgiving for that "greatest mistake of his life."—Our Union.

The Christian Herald has the two following items. Preparations for rebuilding Solomon's Temple are said by newspaper correspondents in Jerusalem to be in progress. They report that the Turkish Sultan has issued imperative orders to the Turkish governor at Jerusalem to commence at once the work of clearing the site of Solomon's Temple, desecrated for so many centuries by the Moslem religion. This is stated to be a direct result of the representations made by the reigning Imperial Austrian family. The alms of the pilgrims are in future to be applied to the clearing of the ground upon Mount Moriah, and this may be taken as an indication of the earnest intentions of the Sublime Porte in the matter. This circumstance when taken in connectio n with the marvel exodus of Jews into Spain and and other places adjacent to the Great Sea, notably Turkey, where upward of 60,000 Israelites recently found refuge from serious persecution, may, with solid grounds be accepted by all students of prophecy as an evidence that the time to favor Sion, yea, the set time is come.

Gospel cars on the railroads is a suggestion made by a Christian business man who spends much of his time traveling. He pleads that as the railroad companies provide a car for smokers they might also provide a car in which those who desired might spend the time on their journey in the worship of God. Conductor Harris of the Old Colony Railroad in a letter to the Boston Journal avers that the suggestion is a practicable one. He writes; "There are hundreds of Christian men who delight in the worship of God, who spend from six to twelve hours a week on the railroad between home and business. Now, why not utilize this time to the glory of God? What a fitting it would be for the business of the day. Instead of card tables have an organ or a piano, have the seats arranged facing the center of the car. Instead of spittoons have a carpet; instead of cards have Bibles and Gospel song books. I venture twenty years railroad experience that it is practicable."

There is a good opportunity in that idea of a gospel car. A good time might be enjoyed in religious services on a railway trip, but the only way the "time could be utilized to the glory of God" would be to make the services useful in putting down the all prevailing devil worship of the day and teaching and preaching temperance. The glory of God dont seem to want any help or improvement, but the condition of man needs altogether remodeling.

ALCOHOL FOR NURSING MOTHERS.

In a letter to Mrs. G. S. Reaney, on the use of alcoholic liquors by nursing mothers, Dr. A. W. Edis, of Wimple St. London says:

"I have often thot that if mothers were only fully aware of the enormous amount of misery and suffering produced by the imprudent use of alcohol, whether taken in the form of beer, wine or spirits, during the time they are nursing their offspring, they would have considerable scruples as to the indulgence of such a habit. Many a child born of healthy parents, with every prospect of attaining adolescence, has had its little life cut short, its constitution deteriorated, or the seeds of much future suffering and premature decay sown in its system by the pernicious custom of its mother resorting to the use of stimulants with a view to increase or to keep up, the supply of that upon which alone the child is nourished.

Women who were little given to alcohol at other times become for the nonce determined tipplers; this being, perhaps, of all times, that when alcohol is calculated to do most harm and least good. Apart from all consideration of the risk of encouraging the habit of chronic tippling in the mother, the influence upon the child is most injurious.

Many a case of convulsions, marasmus, so-called consumption of the bowels, diarrhœa, flatulence, colic, vomiting and countless other disorders among infants, is due to the popular fallacy that the nursing mother cannot properly fulfil her duties unless she resorts to the aid of stimulants.

I have had frequent and numerous opportunities of testing practically the truth of these statements.

When mothers have relied on drinking milk in place of beer, and have studiously avoided the use of alcohol in any form, their children have been strong and healthy, suffering little or seldom from any stomach derangement, and running the gauntlet of the usual disorders of childhood without causing undue anxiety to their parents, or being more than temporarily inconvenienced by the course of the malady.

Not so in the case of mothers who depend largely upon stimnlants; the children are frequently puny, excitable, and always ailing. They succumb readily to attacks of bronchitis, diarrhœa, and other similar ailments, and even when they survive the period of childhood are often subject to various forms of dyspepsia that unfit them for the actual warfare of existence, and render their lives miserable.

In cases where the mother's milk is inadequate to the supply of the child, it is a far wiser plan to give cows milk (diluted with one-third water and slightly sweetened) by means of the bottle to make up the deficiency, than for the mother to attempt to force the secretion of milk by resorting to stimulants.

It is a popular fallacy that it is not a wise plan to mix the milks. This has no foundation in fact.

Children thrive and do well where the bottle is alternated with the breast, provided no thick or starchy food be given.

In those cases where the mother's milk is deficient in quantity or defective in quality, much may be done to improve its condition by the mother taking a more liberal diet, of which cow's milk forms an important element.

This will be far more likely to prove successful than by resorting to stimulants—such as stout, port wine or even spirits, which more often tend to produce a feverish state of the system, and thus defeat the very object we have in view by diminishing the secretion of milk.—Med. Temp. Journal.

PARTIZANSHIP.—Let us beware of partizanship. It is the rock on which our Ship of State has many a time come near stranding; the gulf into which men often cast their principles, their convictions, and the best interests confided to their care; let us women show them "a more excellent way." The Shibboleth "our party right or wrong," is a war-whoop, suited only to the legislative action of savages. Righteous conviction is a sacred trust from God that we may no more lay down at the bidding of a party than we may surrender our allegiance to moral law because a world that lieth in wickedness commands us to do so.—Our Union.

DANCING.

Here is what a purely secular paper, the New York Journal of Education, says about dancing: "A great deal can be said about dancing; for instance, the Chief of Police of New York City says that three fourths of the abandoned girls in this city were ruined by dancing. Young ladies allow gentlemen privileges in dancing, which, taken under any other circumstances, would be considered as improper. It requires neither brains nor good morals to be a good dancer. As the love of the one increases the love of the other decreases. How many of the best men and women are skilful dancers? In ancient times the sexes danced separately. Alcohol is the spirit of beverages. So sex is spirit of the dance. Take it away, and let the sexes dance separately, and dancing would go out of fashion very soon. Parlor dancing is dangerous. Tippling leads to drunkenness, and parlor dancing leads to ungodly balls. Tippling and parlor dancing sow the wind, and both reap the whirwind. Put dancing in the crucible, apply the acids, weigh it, and the verdict of reason, morality and religion is, "Weighed in the balance and found wanting."—Christian Advocate.

TEMPERANCE.

The Metropolitan Temperance Union is now fully organized with the following officers: President, W. P. Joseph: Vice Presidents, Miss Nellie Leavitt and Russell Coldwell; Secretary, Wm. Simpson; Treasurer, Miss Nellie Davis. They held their first public meeting in the lecture room on Friday evening last. The attendance was large, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental music, speeches; recitations etc. Miss Belle Hobron presided at the piano. Rev. John Francis made the initial speech. It was most concise and eloquent, abounding in rare classical allusions and impromptu verse. We were a little surprised, but greatly delighted. After a solo by Miss Laurie the Rev. W. F. Raveling, of Chicago delivered an address, drawing some vivid comparisons illustrating the evils of the license system. Those friends who were absent on this occasion missed a rare treat. Miss Nellie Davis gave a choice dramatic recitation. A large number signed the roll. Next Friday evening the Union will hold its usual meeting and invite the public.—Metro Banner.

GOING EAST.—People who travel overland should remember the Chicago and Northwestern Railway whose ad. appears in the RESCUE. It has never permitted a grogshop at its stations: it has consequently been remarkably free from accident: it has always been the smoothest and best equipped and most comfortable route between Omaha and Chicago. Whatever chances it offers of superior safety and comfort and treatment, our friends might as well take advantage of them. There are some temperance people who always see when they buy a thru ticket that it carries them over the Ch. and N. W. line and no one ever feels dissatisfied with his choice. Take the safest and best.

REQUISITES FOR A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

The Temperance Schoool $0.05

However dark the way seems, if you love the children and wish to save them, and at the same time to train up workers for temperance send for the above and learn what can be done. Then if you wish to learn how to do it, send for the following list:

1 Catechism on Alcohol, 05.
1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, 25.
1 Ripples of Song, 15.
1 Manual Set (Illustrated Tracts), 08,
All sent for 50 cents.

When you have studied these, prepared the way and fixed upon the time for opening the school and decided how many scholars you will probably have, send for catechisms enough to supply one to each scholar, to whom they may be either given or sold, price per hundred, more or less, $5.00

Ripples of Song, per dozen, 1.60

For any number less than one dezen, each 15 cts.

The above are essential while the following are extremely desirable.

Children's Illustrated Tracts, one each for each scholar, per 100. 20 cts. Postage per 200, more or less, 05

Ladder tickets, per hundred, more or less, 1.00

1 manual for each teacher, each 25c.

Chromo Test-Cards, for rewards, per hundred, more or less, 1.00

Youth's Temperance Banner, four or more copies per year each .12.

The superintendent will find it desiradle to have the following.

1 Juvenile Temperance Manual, cloth, .60
1 Alcohol and Hygiene, .60
1 Temperance Lesson-Book, paper, 25 cents, cloth, .50.
1 Temperance Physiology, paper, .50.
1 Pathology of Drunkenness, .05
1 Bacchus Dethroned, paper 50 cents, cloth 1.00
1 Medical Temperance Journal (one year) 1.00
1 Brown's Physiology, 1.25.

While all the above are very useful, the more desirable have the higher place on the list.

If money is available, it will be wise to aim at having a Loan Library.

TEMPERANCE LOAN LIBRARY.

The following valuable temperance publications are cordially recommended for all Woman's Christian Temperance Unions, to own and keep at their headquarters, for the purpose of loaning to ministers, physicians, lawyers, women and all others in the community who will read them, with the view of producing individual conviction, and educating a sound public opinion upon every phase of this question.

VOTE ON CHANGE OF REGALIA.—The following lodges have during the past week, filed with the G. W. S., the returns of the vote had in their lodge on the question of changing the initiatory regalia of the order as required by the G. L. viz:

Nos. 117, 125, 185, 200, 258, 291, 308, 329, 338, 349, 368, 417, 423, 471, A. T. 1.

The result so far shows 198 lodges reporting an attendance of 3907, of whom 180 favored a change, 3427 were opposed to the change and 300 were so indifferent as not to vote upon the question. The average attendance of all the lodges so far reporting, rises this week to a fraction over 20.

There remain fully 150 lodges yet to report the result of their vote on the question of change in regalia, and it will be well for lodge deputies to urge and secure the prompt forwarding of the vote upon the blank furnished by the G. W. S., for that purpose. Should the blank form have been mislaid, lost or spoiled, another will be furnished upon application to the G. W. S.

CHRYSOPOLIS.—As previously mentioned, at the recent installation of the centennial corps of officers of Siloam Lodge No. 2, a goodly number of the members of Orion Lodge No. 224 of Davisville and Chrysopolis Lodge No. 210 of Woodland, were present. An invitation was extended and accepted to pay return visits to these lodges. It was decided to visit Chrysopolis Lodge first, because the most distant and in the hope of preceding the winter rains which make the roads all but impassible between the capital city and Woodland. Meanwhile, the rain which is said to fall alike upon the just and unjust, and which alike disarranges the plans of persons in either category, came down in torrents. An overland excursion had been planned, but was abandoned by all save one wagon load, composed of a dozen (less one) of intrepid and gallant Good Templars of Sacramento who breasted the storms and marine disasters of the Yolo plains, and its "adobe" which sticketh ever so much closer than a friend. Instead of reaching Woodland at 7,30, it was 9,30 before the visitors were ushered into the Hall of Chrysopolis Lodge, in which the initiatory ceremony had been performed and recess declared. The greeting received by the visitors, was so warm, cordial, and truly fraternal, as to immediately dissipate all recollection of the trials of their difficult journey and to enter heartily into the true spirit of the meeting, which was large and representative.

Visitors were present from Siloam No. 2; Capital No. 51; Vallejo No. 64; Orion No. 224; International No. 291; Alamo No. 415; Capay No. 419; Faithful No. 431, and doubtless other lodges whose representatives were not called out.

Each member seemed ready to contribute to the edification and instruction of those present when called upon, so that the "good of the order" was exceptionally well sustained with addresses, recitations, vocal and instrumental music. An elegant repast was provided by the sisters of the lodge in the banquet room adjoining the hall. Not to be outdone it is presumed by the sisters of Success Lodge, who presented a handsome cake to a prominent member of the Order upon a similar occasion there, the same individual was made the recipient of a handsomely ornamented article of the same description here; the presentation being made by the W. C. T., Bro. B. F. Loomis. It was precisely one o'clock Thursday morning last when the gavel fell, closing the lodge, but fully two or three hours later before the denizens of the neighboring towns and lodges separated and the Sacramentans undertook their homeward journey, all delighted with the attentions and fraternal courtesies extended by the Chrysopolites. Orion Lodge is next upon the list to receive a fraternal visit, which however will be made by rail, and not by the more primitive but (if congenially laden) quite pleasant conveyance known to the earlier settlers, and sometimes yclept mudwagon.

The Sunday law and hotel keepers.—In the town of Galt two arrests were recently made to secure the observance of the Sunday law, one being a merchant, the other the proprietor of the hotel, who was complained of because of his selling liquor etc. at the bar connected with his hotel. The merchant pleaded guilty and paid his fine without trial. The hotel keeper, C. H. Harvey, concluded to test the matter, claiming exemption under the law. He would not, however trust his own friends and neighbors, but asked for a change of venue, which was granted by Justice Smith, and the case was sent to Sacramento for trial before Justice Coggins. The defandent was represented by three attorneys, the people by the district attorney. The case came on for trial on the 15th, when the defense interposed a demurrer to the complaint which raised the question as to whether a saloon connected with a hotel was a legitimate part of the hotel business. Section 300 of the Penal code provides that bars, saloons and certain other kinds of business shall not remain open during Sunday, and Section 301 of the same code permits hotels and boarding houses to carry on their legitimate business during Sundays. In this case the testimony showed that the bar, office and sitting room were all one and the defense claimed that the right of keeping open the office and sitting room being conceded, the law did not punish the mere act of selling liquors in a room permitted by law to be open. That the crime consisted in the keeping open of a place required by law to be closed, and not in the mere act of selling liquor on Sunday.

The District Attorney in reply argued that section 301 did not modify section 300 so far as bars and saloons are concerned, and that the latter section expressly prohibits the keeping open of such places for the transaction of business during Sundays. He further urged that a separate licence is required to conduct the bar business, thus showing that the law separates the hotel and saloon business and that the one is not a legitimate part of the other. He further stated that many hotels have no connection with bars and that the hotel business does not comprehend the transaction of a saloon business. In conclusion he argued that the law was meant to be uniform and just, and that it was not just to permit bars connected with hotels to carry on business and compel bars unconnected with hotels to remain closed. After a full argument the Court overruled the demurrer, thus virtually deciding that the defendant was guilty, whereupon the defense demanded a trial by jury, and accordingly the case was set for trial, but has not yet been concluded. Meanwhile, the decision of Justice Coggins stands as the law until it is reversed by higher authority. The enemy dies hard and employs every species of dalliance and low cunning which money can procure. But justice seems to assert her sway and vindicate the right.

Though the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small.
Though with patience He stands waiting, with exactness grinds he all.

A Consummation Devoutly to be Wished:—It would appear that the unhappy feud that has been been so long in existence within our Order, chiefly in Great Britain. is about to terminate and the two branches of the I. O. G. T. (which should never have separated,) be again united. In the now celebrated charter suit of Dr. F. R. Lees vs J. Malins, being tried in the Queens Bench division of the High Courts of Justice of England, the following proceedings were had at Westminister Hall on the 27 of October before special referee Alfred Wills Esq, Q. C.

"The Reference herein adjourned from 13th June last, was opened this day.

Mr. Digby Seymour, Q. C., Mr. Gainsford Bruce. and Mr. Macdonnell appeared for the plantiff; and Mr. Barker and Mr. Strachan for the defendant.

The examination of William Stockbridge was resumed by Mr. Bruce, and the cross-examination was entered upon by Mr. Strachan. It having been clearly brought out by Mr. Stockbridge that, while Mr. Malins was addressing the Grand Lodge of England Session in London, in July, 1875, charging the Right Worthy Grand Lodge with neglecting to make a provision for the introducing of the negro into the Order, he neglected to inform the members there assembled that he had, at the previous Session of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge (in May, 1875), given notice to rescind the very resolution adopted by that body, by which the negro had been, and could be admitted into the Order in those parts where Mr. Malins alleged he had been excluded. The withholding of this important information of which Mr. Stockbridge complained, and which led to the false issue of "Negro Exclusion" being raised, induced the interposition of the learned Referee, who, after putting questions to the witness which clearly brought out the true position of matters, stopped the cross-examination, and, addressing the learned counsel, strongly urged an amicable settlement with a view to re-union. After hearing the learned counsel, the Referee suggested a private interview, and they retired with him, accompanied by Mr. Stockbridge and Mr. Clegg, representing the Solicitors of the parties. After an absence of an hour the following recommendations were, with the consent of Dr. Lees and Mr Malins, adopted and signed by their leading counsel."

Recommendations.

1. That both parties accept the advice and suggestions of the Referee, as to the desirabitity of re-union on the following basis:

2. That it is admitted that both sides are equally anxious to uphold the principle of the absolute equality of the white man and the Negro, as regards admission to the order.

3. That the parties endeavor to procure the appointment of a Committee of Conference—seven on each side—to consider and prepare a scheme of re-union and settlement of differences.

4. That it be understood that the contemplated re-union involve the restoration of the connection between the Right Worthy Grand Lodge and the whole of the Good Templars in England.

5. That such a restoration be subject to the adoption by Right Worthy Grand Lodge of such amendments of constitution, or other measures, as may be necessary to carry out the recommendations of the Committee of Conference.

6. Mr. Wills, Q. C., at the urgent request of the parties, consents to preside at the Confereuce, and to report. The committee to meet on the 28th Dec. in London.

7. The further hearing of the case to be adjourned till after the meeting of the committee.

(Signed), W. D. Seymour—for the Plaintiff, John E. Barker—for Defendant.

Almost a dead lock.—This has been the condition of things in the G. W. S.office for several weeks and an average of fifteen hours of daily labor and the aid of an assistant has scarcely been sufficient to keep even with the increasing flood so as not to be completely overwhelmed. The G. W. S. department last week showed 107 items of cash received and acknowledged; 221 packages of supplies done up and forwarded by mail and 17 bulkier ones forwarded by express; 99 quarterly returns recorded; the vote of 31 lodges verified and recorded on the question of a change of regalia; 15 commissions issued to D. G. W. C. T.s. These things appear, but the hundreds of letters written, the fitting out of new lodges and the drudgery of routine work cannot be made to appear. The correspondence has been so great, and so much of it requiring personal attention since the commencement of the present fiscal year, that it has been filed and received attention in succession only. If any there are who have become impatient at apparent delay in attention to their communications or orders, tho no complaints have been received, the foregoing it is hoped will suffice as the explanation of the G. W. S.

Constitutions.—The 1882 edition of the Constitutions, bylaws, rules of Order etc for Grand, District and subordinate Lodges is now ready and has been distributed to all Lodges having previously filed Orders for them. The new edition appears enlarged to 88 pages so as to include all the decisions approved at the last session of the Grand Lodge, as well as all amendments passed thereat to the Laws of the Order. It has also attached a miniature certificate of membership and has appended, the approved form for charges and trials. The present edition is printed upon tinted book paper and is in every way superior and the most complete edition of a similar book extant. Orders from Lodges can now be promptly filled by the G. W. S. and at the usual prices.

Col. Goulding.—The genial and witty Grand Lecturer, Col C. N. Goulding, spent a day in Sacramento last week, and was present at the reunion of Chrysopolis Lodge of Woodland on the 16th, Bro. G. reported himself en route to the "Arctic regions." Judging from the weather prevailing in the Valley during the past week, his pleasantry will doubtless have proved a stern reality ere this.

Music Ode Cards.—A fresh supply of the new music ode cards for use in subordinate lodges, and containing the music to all the subordinate odes has just been received by the G. W. S. from the R. W. G. L. The new lot are printed upon extra heavy card board which makes them practically indestructible. Every lodge should be supplied with these.

A Good Commencement.—Twelve new Lodges have been instituted since the commencement of the present fiscal year, the leading items of which will be given next week.

CALAVERAS DISTRICT LODGE.

The fifth quarterly session of C. D. L. met at Murphys Nov. 12.Bro. A. J. Cooke in the chair. Delegates present from seven lodges and four Bands of Hope. Col. Goulding, assisted by the officers of Murphys lodge dedicated their new hall in the forenoon.

Afternoon session, a prize of $10 was offered by the D. L. to the person getting the largest number of subscribers for the Rescue by the next meeting in February, and the D. D. Bro. Cooke offered an additional $5 to the prize provided the number did not fall under twenty subscribers.

In committee of the whole, the Sunday law was discussed, a great many members took part, and it resulted in appointing a committee of three to ascertain if the business places of Sheep Ranch had been kept open in violation of law, and the whole matter of the Sunday law and laws to suppress the illegal sale of liquors were referred to the executive committee of the district lodge with full power to act. Resolutions passed thanking Bros. Goulding and Hughes and Bro. Cooke and Murphys Lodge for their zeal and untiring efforts to make the meeting a success. In the evening, after installation by Col. Goulding assisted by Bro. W. W. Hughes and Sister Mattie Coulter; there was an interesting program by Murphys Lodge and Band of Hope followed by general good of the Order and reports of lodges, showing 14 in the county, 11 in good working order, one not meeting regularly and two not meeting at all.

The new hall is a credit to the place and an edifice of which the order is proud. No pains were spared by the Murphys members to make the session a success. Refreshments provided for all. Band gave us excellent music: singing and speeches all good; the session harmonious, and all acknowledged it the best meeting we have had. Bro. Peters and Sister Wing of Columbia were present, and seemed as much at home as if they had been in Tuolumne D. L. Next session will be held in Copperopolis the first Saturday in February 1882.

Creighton Duffy, D. S.

DISTRICT LODGES TO MEET.

The next regular quarterly session of the San Francisco D. L. will convene at Grand Central Hall Sixth and Market Sts. on Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 25th and 26th 1881, at 7:30 o'clock. All members of the Order from far and near are cordially invited to attend.

Sutter and Yuba District Lodge meets at Yuba City Dec. 7th at 10 a. m. Public meeting in the evening. Come everybody.

Paskenta, Nov. 13, 1881.

Ed. Rescue:—The saloons and stores are closed to-day, lest the proprietors might be compelled to defray the expenses of a suit for violation of Sec. 300 of the Penal Code. The profits of the saloon business in this locality have decreased in the last year about one-third. We expect to put a genuine prohibition ticket in the field for county officers at the next election. Hence our motto, "No preaching without practice," by voting the straight out prohibition ticket. J. R. Whitlock, W. C. T.

Ed. Rescue:—A meeting of the Good Templars of El Dorado county has been called to convene at Placerville on the 29th of November to consult in regard to enforcement of the Sunday law in that Co.

A correspondent laments the sad ignorance of so many people on every phase of the temperance question, but adds half the temperance people have no knowledge of what is doing outside of their own lodge.

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

MEAN TIME.

There are very few people who comprehend the difference between "Mean Time," and "Apparent Time," but they might just as well know all about it as not. Mean time is no meaner than any other time, it means the middle or mean between fast and slow time.

If the earth were revolving round the sun in a perfect circle, we should have our days of equal leugth measured from noon to noon or from the time the sun comes to the the meridian one day, till it does so the next day. But the orbit of this earth, its path around the sun, is not a circle, it is an ellipse; somewhat resembling the oval picture frames and picture mats you see sometimes. The sun is not in what would appear to us the centre of that ellipse, but is considerably nearer one end than the other.

If we had contrived the motion of the earth around the sun, we would have made it go in a perfect circle with a uniform velocity. To make it go in an elliptical orbit, round a sun not in the centre, travling much faster when nearest the sun, then slowing up as it goes away from it, and never failing a single second of time in performing its rounds with the most perfect regularity—was a work that could never have been projected, designed or carried out by any agency of chance, nor by any other than a Creator of infinite wisdom and power.

Therefore, because our motion around the sun is faster and slower several times a year, it would be impossible to make a clock or watch which would run perfect days of 24 hours, and always show 12 when the sun marks noon. Four times a year it would agree with the sun, but every other day it would be too fast or too slow, and would have to be set back or forward to agree with the sun.

To meet these difficulties. astronomers have creaated an imaginary sun, which keeps mean time or even time all the year; that is, it is exactly 24 hours of mean or even time, from one mean noon to the next mean noon, all the year. The real sun keeps what is called Apparent time; the imaginary sun keeps Mean time; and with this latter, the clock and chronometer are made to ruu exactly and uniformly. The difference between mean and apparent time, is called the equation of time, which is calculated for every noon of the year in the Nautical Almanac and can be figured to the hundredth part of a second for any hour of the year.

April 14, 1880, at midnight, the sun and the clock agreed exactly, and there was no equation of time. Then the sun got ahead every day a little, for 30 days to May 14, when it was 3 minutas 50 seconds ahead; then it slowed for 30 days till June 13, when it was even the second time. Then for 42 days it fell behind a little every day, till it was 6¼ minutes slow, July 25; and in 37 days more, got even the third time, Aug. 31. It now gained for 63 days, and Nov. 2, was 16⅓ minutes fast. In 51 days more, it got even the fourth time, just before Christmas, Dec. 23 and in 51 days more, had daily slowed to 14⅓ minutes on Feb. 12, and in 61 days more, got even to the starting point, Apr. 14.

It is a very wonderful thing that this clockwork of the wondrous Creator never gets out of order, never wants oiling, cleaning or regulating; we just measure its rate of motion and having learned that, we can calculate to half a second the exact time of sunrise or sunset or the beginning and ending of an eclipse anywhere, 100 years ago, or 100 years in the future Surely none of you will ever be silly enough to believe, that these wondrous motions of the solar system so miraculously punctual and accurate, in their variations for centuries, and tens of centuries, could be the effect of chance.

There are also "civil time', and "astronomical time." The first begins at midnight and is the common mode we use. Using astronomical time, the day begins at noon of the civil day, and counts 24 hours; thus, our Nov. 17, at 10 A. M., would be called by astronomers and chronometer observers, Nov. 16, 22 hours. The clock time used on the railways of California, is San Francisco mean time. More of this another day.

THE CAPTAIN RIGHT.

Yes, boys, the captain was right, and I'll tell you about it. Coming up street, just as I neared the Occidental Hotel, a group of men, having the appearance of ship officers, were standing around one who sat in a chair, and whose vigorous gesticulations, accompanied his emphatic speech. Now, I am not much disposed to stand and listen to street gossip, but when you have read a little further you will not wonder that I was caught by the dainty bait of that old sea-captain's speech, and here it is: "They just shoot for the accursed holes the moment the ship tooches the dock. Expostulation is worthless, restraint is impossible; away to the dens they shoot, no matter what becomes of the ship. Now, here I am, with a ship and no men, and who knows when I'll get to sea!" And then, in answer to a suggestion by one of his hearers, he continued in the bold and energetic accents so peculiar to the Scottish seafarer, (for the Captain hails from the bonny land that gave birth to our noble Band of Hope enterprise,) "I tell you, gentlemen, its no use pounding on these confirmed drinkers. We cant save them! They're gone—lost! The only hope of the nation is in the boys and girls! Let us save them from learning the use of whisky and tobacco, and when these old sots are gone, and we pass from this earthly battle field, we will have the blessed thot of leaving a pure world behind us! The Band of Hope! The Band of Hope! that's the thing we want!"

"You're right, Captain," said I, (unable to keep longer quiet,) and his great hand clasped mine like a vice. "Will you be here over Sunday? said I, "I expect I shall," was the welcome answer, in the frank Scotch. "And can you attend my Juvenile meeting at 4? "Yes, sir, and glad of the chance." "And give us a speech?" "Yes, sir, and glad of the chance."

This was Captain Aspeth of the Bankfields.

The next day, Cap. Thompson of the Grassmere, and president of the Mariners' Temperance Union of the world, sent me word that he would be with us also, and authorised me to announce them in the daily paper. But both those brave temperance sailors were unexpectedly called to Portland, and we were disappointed. And, boys, was'nt the Captain right? Isn't the Band of Hope the hope? Isn't it time to be heartily sick of casting our temperance pearls before wallowing, alcoholic, lost victims of the whisky den, to receive only vulgar profanity, and insult, and lying slanders upon every thing good?

You, boys and girls, are the people most concerned in this sanguinary battle; "For God and home and native land!" Will you lose or win? We young folks of Astoria are pressing hard toward the gates of the enemy's dark city, and intend to be found in the very front of the battle. Our subscription list to the Y. T. Banner is full 75, and our two Bands of Hope highly prosperous and rapidly gaining in interest and influence. Tho far away from you, dear California Juveniles, I still feel that I am in the same battle field with you, and side by side we'll fight and conquer. T. J. Alley.

KEEP IT TO YOURSELF.

John Munro many years ago was about to leave his home for the first time to take a junior place in a mercantile house about 200 miles away: that was a long journey in those days when there there was no railway in that section. John's father the squire, a remarkably austere and solemn old gentleman called him into his study on the eve of his projected departure. to give him a full code of parental laws and instructions for his future guidance. At the termination of the interview, John's companions, the boys of the vicinity, were waiting to take him in tow and have a farewell evening with him. In reply to a question as to his long detention by his father he said the latter had given him a most profoundly serious lecture for an hour and a half, (John probably threw in the odd hour for good measure;) he gave me all sorts of advice and admonitions, I dont remember any of it at all, said he, but the last sentence, which was;' "Now John, if, after all the instructions I have given you, you should ever be guilty of any improprieties, have the good sense to keep them to yourself."

Whether John, who did not live more than seven or eight years more, remembered or profited by this advice is not recorded, but there was one of those to whom he told it, upon whom it made a deep and lasting impression. And many a time long after father and son were laid away to their long rest, the old squire's words with an impromptu application to suit the case, administered a stinging rebuke to the human viper who boasted of his own immoralities and held up his own vices as a smart example for others to follow. No matter in what company or circumstances or who or what the party was, the old squire's sturdy, honest, pithy counsel came quick to memory and inspired an unsparing reproof to the wretched poltroon who sought to poison his juniors with the virus of his own moral leprosy. And not one of them was ever spared.

And now the old man's words repeat themselves to you—" after all the instructions you have had, if you are ever guilty of any improprieties, have the good sense to keep them to yourself." That dont advise you to do wrong and be a hypocrite and tell lies, but if you are tempted and do wrong, dont be fool enough and mean enough to boast of it.

There were some peculiarities about these fellows who acted thus, and who were just called poltroons, and you can judge now if you would like to imitate them.

They were cowards every time; not one of them, no matter how sharply he was scathed, ever dared to take it up and resent it with violence; no, he was not man enough, whatever his size or strength, he hung his head like a calf.

Again, no dependence could be placed on their word; they were never respected by worthy people; they never had any real friends. And when they heard one say, "gentlemen, if what that man says is true, he is not fit to be in any decent man's company; and if he did those things, or would do them, his word is not entitled to the least credit, his own conscience accused, reviled and unmanned his miserable guilty soul, and made him that miserable thing, a coward. And a coward no honest, square, open, upright man need everbe. The conscience, not a guilty conscience—there never was such a thing; but the conscience that accuses and condemns guilt must make the guilty a coward.

THE BAR-ROOM VERDICT.

A promiscuous crowd of gentlemen and loafers were seated in the bar-room of Smith's hotel in Attica, busily engaged in discussing the temperance question. They had about conned over all the stereotyped phrases of the day in regard to it. One said that as long as it was made it would be drank. Another that he could either drink it or let it alone. And another, that whisky was a good thing in its place. One self-important individual stepped up to the bar to take a light drink, as he called it, prefacing the action with the remark that whisky dont hurt anybody who didn't drink it, The words were scarcely uttered when a stout burly looking man who had been an attentive listener all the evening, arose to his feet and said:

"That's a lie."

All eyes were turned on the speaker, for, in saloon parlance, they expected a muss. The burly man paid no attention to the warlike demonstrations of the man he had given the lie, but waved his hand as if to command attention, and said:

"Listen. Twenty years ago, when the packets were running on the 'ditch' that skirts the town, my father moved from a distant state and settled in the village on the canal forty miles east of Attica. He was a hard-working, honest mechanic, a devoted member of the Baptist church, and had never drank a drop of liquor in his life.

"Those were the halcyon days that my friend with the glass likes to talk about, 'when whisky was pure All the difference between then and now is, then whisky ruled the hour, now it rules the day.

"My father being a temperance man, a thing very unusual in the good old days of pure whisky, became the object of hatred to all the whiskyites in the town. The more especially for his being instrumental in saving many misguided men from drunkards graves.

"When spring election day came round it was the gala day of the year for drinking, quarreling, gouging out eyes, gnawing ears and biting off noses. The day ended by being taken home by the best knockers in that 'neck of the woods.'

"About four o'clock on that memorable day for me, when the sport was about over, and several poor fellows were hanging about with gouged eyes, scratched faces and bloody noses, regretting perhaps that they had come to O———, the saloon keeper wishing to have the sport continue as long as possible, suggested that it would be a good time for the boys to tune up the old Baptist.

" 'Glorious thought!' 'Bully boy with a glass eye,' was chimed by the drunken brutes. There was an old bruiser in the crowd who had four 'noble sons,' whom the old man liked to tell about when warmed up by pure old juice. They had never taken the lie from any man who wore hair on his breast,' was his proud boast. They called my father out of his shop, which stood close to the canal lock, pretending to show him some work to be done. He had just gone as far as the balance beam of the lock, when he was attacked by them. My father being a stout man was no coward, grasped the old one by the collar, and shoved him across the beam when the sons tripped my father and his leg slipped into a muskrat hole. He fell backwards, breaking his leg at the ankle, with the bone protruding thru the flesh. While lying there in that condition, the old man and his sons got in their work, kicking my father until coaxed to desist by the saloon keeper who said he guessed that would be enough for him for that time. I was standing in that crowd, a little bare-foot boy, crying for my dear father, my feet trampled and bleeding by those demons who drank pure whisky.

"My father's leg was set wrong by a drunken doctor. He lay on his back for nearly a year; has hobbled all his life, and will go to his grave a crippled, morose, unforgiving man. I was the oldest son and only support of a worse than widowed mother and six small children.

"The gentle redmen who murder ladies are angels when compared with that saloon keeper and his victims.

"That man, gentlemen, who was on the point of taking a 'light drink' is one of the sons who crippled my father. That man made the remark that whisky never hurt any body who didn't drink it. You all heard me give the lie. Was it right?

"Yes! yes! was echoed all around the room. He pushed thru the crowd that gathered around him, to find the subject of his remarks. He was gone! His glass of whisky was lying on the counter untouched. He pushed on thru the crowd to the outer door muttering:

"There's not on earth a lonesome glen
So secret but we'll meet again."

ALCOHOL USED AS A MEDICINE.

Alcohol may sometimes be used as a medicine, and so may strchnine, prussic acid and many other poisons; but while we use these others only according to the doctor's orders and under his supervision, people are continually prescribing alcohol for themselves in some form, for any and all diseases indiscriminately. There are many narcotics besides alcohol, whose use is not attended with nearly so much danger. Physicians, however, never make use of them when possible to avoid it, as they well know that all narcotics leave a lasting bad effect upon the system.

All medicines do more or less harm to the system even when used to counteract the influence of some disease, and not one drop more than is absolutely necessary should ever be taken. Alcohol has been denied a place in the list of foods, and now by many eminent physicians its right to be called a medicine is seriously questioned. They will tell you that in all cases where alcohol has previously been used, other remedies could be taken with much less danger to the patient. We know the effects of alcohol both upon the body and the mind, but just how these effects are produced, just what takes place in the body to produce these effects, is a matter upon which scientists are not agreed. Inasmuch then, as alcohol is so powerful a poison, and its position as a medicine is not well defined, we can see how its use as such is attended with much danger to the patient.

It has been proved beyond question, by experiments in various hospitals, that those patients who are treated without alcohol get along much better, on the average, than those under the ordinary treat ment. One of the greatest objections to using alcohol as a remedy, is the fact that a taste for liquors is frequently acquired while using them in this way.

One of the most cowardly things a man can do, is to drown his troubles in the intoxicating cup. To forget the misfortune is not to repair the mischief; indeed, if one is in trouble he needs the clear use of all his faculties, that he may make the most of his remaining opportunities, or help to comfort those who are with him in trouble. In reality, nothing short of a continued state of drunkenness would be of any avail, because in the intervals of sobriety, feeling sick and miserable from the frequent use of liquor, he would realize his weakness and inability to help matters unless he changed his whole life, and that few men are able to do. It would be much better from the first to occupy his mind with some employment, by which means the sorrow would become gradually less intense than at first, and he would have the satisfaction which always comes with the performance of duty. —*D. MOTHER'S BOYS.

Yes, I know there are stains on my carpet,
The traces of small muddy boots;
And I see your fair tapestry glowing,
All spotless with blossoms and fruit.

And I know that my walls are disfigured
With prints of small fingers and hands;
And that your own household most truly
In immaculate purity stands.

And I know that my parlor is littered
With many small treasnres and toys;
While your own is in daintiest order,
Unharmed by the presence of boys!

And I know that my room is invaded
Quite boldly all hours of the day;
While you sit in yours unmolested
And dream the soft quiet away.

Yes, I know there are four little bedsides
Where I must stand watchful each night;
While you go out in your carriage,
And flash in your dresses so bright.

Now, I think I'm a neat little woman;
I like my home orderly, too;
And I'm fond of all dainty belongings,
Yet would not change places with you.

No! keep your fair home with its order,
Its freedom from bother and noise,
And keep your own fanciful leisure,
But give me my four splendid boys!

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

One day at school
I told the boys
'Twas wrong to chew tobacco;
A six-year old,
Grown very bold,
Presumed to give his veto.
Says he, "I saw
A fellow chew
Because he had the toothache;
'Taint never wrong
For any one
To chew that has the toothache."
The school agreed
With him; indeed
His logic charmed the urchins.
Quite puxzled, I
Could scarce reply
At first to his assertions.
A happy thought,
However, brought
Relief from Greeley's namesake,
"Horace," I said,
"If a girl instead
Should chance to have the toothache
And want to chew,
What should she do?"
Like older ones, by time unschooled
He scratched his head,
And then he said,
"She'd orter have the tooth pulled."

TEACH THE CHILDREN.

At the Ecumenical Conference in London on the temperance day Sep 12 the Rev. Chas Ganett a member of the U. K. Alliance spoke as follows:

He recognized the fact that our young people are being led away by the temptations to strong drink. Organizations of Children and for Children are already in existence which are founded on right principles because they began a pledge of total abstinence. There are in Britain at least ten thousand of these with over a million of members. Can the Church and Sunday School do anything to promote them. The school should adopt the organization and make it an integral part of her own organization. It should be officered at least by a Secretary who should take the oversight of the work. He should see that addresses are given at frequent intervals. Temperance literature should find its place among the periodicals of the school. If this be done good will result to the organizations themselves. New vigor will be infused into the school for the members will be put to work. It will retain the older scholars in the school. It will keep the church in her aggressive work. It will bridge over the chasm which seems to exist between the church and the people. Such an organization, would turn the whole army of Sunday School scholars into Colporteurs and Home Missionaries for the distribution of Temperance Literature and the increasing of attendance at church. It would benefit the young people by protecting them from dangerous companions. The paper was good and true and he was followed by Rev. G W. Peck. He thought we had made a mistake in planning and laboring so much for the old and forgetting the young. The little ones are tempted even in the homes of the so called great and wise, and among some who profess to be the followers of our Lord. The Church must stand by and heartily support these Juvenile Temperance Organizations in the Sunday School by the living word from her pulpits, in the family circle, by personal recognition and cooperation; and by all the means that are needed to perfect this organized work and hasten its triumphs.

Other addresses followed in the same line until the hour was exhausted. They were greatly appreciated and must and will do good. —Prohib. Alliance Doct.

PUSH BAND OF HOPE WORK.

In Ventura Co. it is gratifying to note, so far as I have observed, that the Sunday law is being complied with. In some country places this is going to be a little hard on the boys and men who used to lounge and loaf around the saloons and groceries on Sunday afternoons, learning very choice language, stories and habits. Well, they must have some place to go to; some entertainment must be provided for them. Many of them poor fellows, would rather be whipped than sit down and read good books or papers or seek good society and profitable conversation. But if a live Band of Hope be started; meeting on Sunday afternoons; with attractive singing, speaking, and readings, many of them would respond to cordial invitations to attend as listeners. And the result would be many an impression made for good; resolutions of amendment formed and membership taken. It will help the boys, too, who roam over hills with gun and dog for lack of interesting and attractive Sunday afternoon services. And by the way, would it not be a good idea for all preachers, churches and Sunday schools, to wake up and make all their public Sunday meetings increasingly lively and pleasing to those, old and young, whose store and saloon resorts will now be closed to them? We have said the Sunday law would be a great advantage; now let us prove that it is. J. W. Webb.

NOTES FROM THE GENL. SUPT.

Murphys, Nov. 12, 1881.

Report of Bands of Hope organized from Oct. 9th, to date:

Elder Webb organized five, viz.: Mound, Springville, Hueneme, and two at San Luis Obispo.

Mrs. Stevens organized three at Stockton connected respectively with the Methodist, Congregationalist and Presbyterian Sabbath schools.

Rev. W. C. King organized two, viz.: Fresno City and Kingsburg.

H. R. Hughes organized one at Mariposa.

Prof, Crowhurst organized one at Blacks Station.

Rev. Peter Powers organized one at Marysville.

Organized by local workers two, viz.: Grainland, and Santa Rosa. Total, fifteen Bands of Hope organized.

On Nov. 12th, a circular from this office was mailed to every Band of Hope reported to me by Bro. Bramall, asking statistics and a full report of condition of Band. Prompt replies are urgently solicited. It is necessary to revise the list of Bands of Hope now published in the Rescue; and all Bands failing to respond after a reasonable time will be dropped from the list. Any Superintendent failing to receive this circular will confer a favor by sending me immediately his address.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

PROHIBITION REFORM PARTY.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1884,

HON. NEAL DOW, OF MAINE.

THE GERMANS AND THE SUNDAY LAW.

One criminal or dishonest man attracts far more public attention than a hundred quiet honest well-conducted citizens. One ill behaved rowdy in a procession of a thousand orderly people is more noticed than all the rest with unthinking people. One cheat or thief or outlaw brings discredit upon his whole family or nationality, while the good qualities of all the rest excite no remark.

A few Germans who have no interest in the welfare of this or any other country, have undertaken here and in various other states of the Union to defy the laws of the country and trample under foot some of the institutions and customs which are dear to the American people, as being among the fundamental conditions from which have been derived and accomplished everything we hold of value in our country and its belongings.

They charge the founders of this American system and those who desire to perpetuate the welfare and prosperity of this Union with intolerance, bigotry, exclusiveness, a persecuting spirit, hypocrisy, etc. Now, all the annals of falsehood and injustice and ingratitude from the time of Noah to the present, fail to furnish a parallel to the falsehood and injustice of these charges.

The people whom they are so fond of calling intolerants and bigots, initiated and have exercised both in theory and practice a broad open handed abounding liberality and generosity to the peoples of all nations, such as was never dreamed of, till they proclaimed to all the world a gospel of liberty and generosity which was as new to the nations as if it had been a revelation direct from heaven.

After securing thru the costly sacrifices of a long and cruel war their own liberties and their ownership of this vast garden of fertility and plenty, they invited all who willed to come and partake freely with them. No harassing or annoying conditions were exacted, no police or passport espionage exercised. And with the millions of worthy citizens who came to share in the blessings of a country which the brewery and the grogshop had not polluted and pauperized, there have been admitted shiploads of paupers and criminals and outlaws, which our intolerants and bigots and puritans were never so intolerant as to exclude.

There was one condition however implied, if not expressed, in all this liberality, viz, that the newcomers should obey the laws of the country which afforded them an escape from an oppressive despotism and a more grinding pauperism. It was expected and hoped that the Americans who themselves made this country what it is, and prepared a comfortable home in it for the stranger, should be allowed to retain some influence in it still; particularly in the matter of keeping it from being turned bottom side up and reduced to pauperism and beggary by the importation of the crimes and vices which have desolated and pauperized European countries.

Now the German people should see that they stand right and are rightly understood in this matter. A proportion of them, brewers, rumsellers and the keepers of dens of infamous crime, of deepest debauchery, factories of theft and murder, have combined together to bid open defiance to one of the most excellent and necessary and wholesome laws ever enacted. They have conspired against the peace of the people, and have published a most impudent and revolutionary manifesto which in any other than this abode of "intolerance and bigotry" would consign them to serious fine and imprisonment.

Now these bear the name of Germans and are a disgrace to the name of that famous people. They are the exception that attract more notice than the thousand fold more mumerous respectable law abiding Germans. We have Germans in our pulpits, and there are none more earnest and persevering in the endeavor to do good; Germans among our teachers, capable and worthy in every respect. It is presumed they never meet with an instance of prejudice against them; German Good Templars and church members, and they seem if possible more enthusiastic and active than our own people. None more self sacrificing and devoted and charitable in all our departments of charity and benevolence than the Germans. The real natural German home and family in this as well as in their parent land has no superior as a nursery of good citizens. The industrious, worthy, cheerful, kindly, motherly German matron and the worthy, honest, toiling, thrifty German father in so many thousand homes, are exactly like, in no way inferior to, the worthy and excellent homes and mothers and fathers of the American or other nationalities.

And all these worthy and good citizen Germans dont make as much noise in the world as one of those robber dives in the populous parts of our great and small cities. And when a painted picture of a filthy Gambrinus drunk with pipe and beer mug on the outside of one of these dens appeals to the eye and an all day Sunday roar of drunken obscenity and fighting blasphemy from the inside, salutes the ear of the passer by, he naturally charges the whole German race with it. It is not fair, but it is done.

It is therefore the interest of the worthy German citizen to come forth and show that the outlaw and the brewer's dive are not the true representatives of the German people of this state. That they have an interest in placing some safeguards around the feet of their own children and in preserving this glorious country from the all destroying, all pauperizing, poison influences of the grogshop and the drunken Sunday.

ANOTHER AFFIRMATION.

Another appeal under the Sunday Law has been dismissed; the case of Carson. In this instance the case came before the Supreme Court, "in bank," and the former ruling of Chief Justice Morrison in the Burk case was followed.

The Chief Justice, in his decision of the Burk case, quotes the Supreme Court of New York: "As a civil and political institution, the establishment of a Sabbath is within the just powers of the civil government. * * * It is a law of our nature that one day in seven must be observed as a day of relaxation and refreshment, if not for public worship. Experience has shown that the observance of one day in seven as a day of rest, is of admirable service to a state, considered merely as a civil institution. * * * * The stability of the government, the welfare of the subject and the interest of society, have made it necessary that the day of rest observed by the people of any nation should be uniform, and that its observance should be to some extent compulsory; not by way of enforcing the conscience of those upon whom the law operates, but by way of protection to those who desire and are entitled to the day. The necessity and value of the Sabbath is acknowledged by those not professing Christianity. As a civil institution, the selection of a day is at the option of the legislature; but for a Christian people, it is highly fit and proper that the day observed should be that which is regarded as the Christian Sabbath.

A Pennsylvania decision is also quoted, wherein it is said of the Sunday Law, "It intermeddles not with the natural right of all men to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own conscience; it compels none to attend, erect or support any place of worship, or to maintain any ministry against his consent. It pretends not to control or interfere with the rights of conscience; it establishes no preference for any mode of worship. It treats no religious doctrine as paramount in the state; enforces no unwilling attendance upon Divine worship, &c.

DR. CROSBY.

We have reason to believe that Dr. Crosby regrets having taken the position against abstinence and prohibition, which has brot his name into such unenviable prominence. It is with consuming indignation that he receives the proffered flatteries and invitations to address the men whom we all know to be sordid enemies of the race. He has been a temperance worker all his life, and now to be hugged by these brute-makers is more than he can stand. And we do not wonder at it. He never intended to play into their hands; but he did not trace out the logic of such a position before he spoke. To undo the harm his ill-considered course has already produced, will probably give him full employment till the hastened end of his life.—Golden Censer

Dont believe a word of the above. Dont believe auy man was ever a temperance worker half a day, who boasts of always having been a drinker, and who is a passionate hater of total abstainers; who has fought them bitterly for years. Do believe he is ashamed to be hugged by his fellow workers. Do believe he can stand it. Do believe that if he is a christian man and feels that he has outraged christianity and is sorry, he will come out and say so himself. Will believe him when he does that. Dont believe his grief for having done harm, will ever shorten his life, for if he just once acknowledged his error, there is not man or woman from Maine to California whom he has denounced and ridiculed and assaulted, but would instantly and entirely forgive him, so he need not suffer in that line of penance.

NEW TEMPERANCE TALES.

ONLY TEN CENTS EACH.

"FIFE AND DRUM" SERIES.

The National Temperance Society has commenced the publication of a series of cheap and thrilling Temperance Tales, from the pens of some of the best writers on temperance in the world, giving a greater amount of valuable and interesting matter than ever before, for the small sum of ten cents. The object is to supply a great amount of matter calculated to aid the advancement of the cause of temperance, for a very small sum of money. These stories will be adapted to home and fireside reading, the railroad train, and for the young in every class of the community. Four of these are now ready, and others will soon be added to the list. The following have already been published:

"Fife and Drum," by Mary Dwinell Chellis. (12mo., 79 pages) This is a new and thrilling story, with an excellent spirit and moral instruction, from the pen of this well-known and brilliant writer.

"A Tragedy of the Sea," by Mrs. J. McNair Wright. (12mo., 100 pages) One of the most thrilling temperance tales ever published, and worth ten times the price.

"The Quaker's Rule," by Earnest Gilmore. (12mo., 72 pages) This new work is fully equal to the other writings of this talented author, and is worthy of a place in every family.

"Drinking Jack," and other stories, by Mary Dwinell Chellis. (12mo., 78 pages) This popular author has few equals, and these stories are among her best. We cordially commend them to all friends of temperance, and the right training of children. Let the friends of temperance everywhere unite and send for a number of copies of these interesting stories, and circulate them in every community.

The friends of temperance who desire to see the reform progress, and to have a literature accessible to all classes of the community, have now an opportunity to carry out their wishes. We ask all the friends of the cause to aid us in the circulation of this class of literature. Send along the dimes. Address,

EDITOR RESCUE:—This week has only been partially devoted to the interest of the Rescue, the other part to the cause of Temperance in general. On Monday evening visited the Board of Supervisors, and served each of the city fathers, the Mayor, and Clerk of the Board with a copy of Tract No. 2 annexed with a communication reminding them of a duty not performed in their haste to serve corporations and other private interests. The paper asked their attention to the questions of public morality and decency involved in the substance of the tract and prayed them to call the notice of their successors to it.

International Lodge is progressing, and a deep interest is manifested by the members. Initiated nine candidates, and as many more are on the list for next meeting; the officers are well up in the work, almost "letter perfect."

On Thursday visited Evening Star; noticed several visiting Brothers and Sisters from other Lodges. which indicates that Evening Star attracts to its sphere of action congenial stars of Good Templars; meeting well attended, and put in a "strong appeal for the RESCUE" as a brother expressed it. Friday devoted all day to distribute tract No. 2 in every Departmeni of this city, Criminal, Civil and Executive, and hope the official eye of these Departments will be open to an improvement in Public Morality and and decency, and Honest Government, and trust that the incoming administration will redeem this city from the curse of the wholesale and retail Liquor traffic. Amen, Selah. In the evening visited Constitntion; initiated one candidate, meeting well attended, good program, well rendered. Next Monday evening (Nov 21th,) promises to be a grand intermingling of Good Templars; International Lodge will receive fraternal visits from Valley, Mission Star Lodges, and others. JOSEPH G. MYSELL.

RESULT OF TEMPERANCE.

COUDERSPORT, Pa., May 3, 1881.

JOSEPH G. MYSELL, ESQ.—Dear Sir:—Yours of April 22nd received. In reply would say that at our September term of court, the Court directed that venires issue for 24 grand jurors and 36 inverse jurors to serve at the December term of court. About t hirty days before December court, I published a card in the county papers requesting the jurors not to appear, as there was nothing for them to do; therefore, we had no jury term. Our jail is empty about ten months of the year. We have no poorhouse in the county; never had; have no use for one. We have had no license in this (Potter) county for thirty years. We have a law passed by the Legislature forbidding the granting of license to sell liquor of any kind, either spirituous, or malt, or tonic bitters, such as "Hostetter" and the like. This county paid during the year 1879 $448.87 commonwealth costs only, which is but a drop in the bucket compared to some counties where whisky is sold.

In this borough (Coudersport) it is not necessary to lock our houses or barns, as we scarcely ever have anything stolen. Our people are temperate, honest and industrious farmers, very few paupers in the county, very little use for law and lawyers—the result of thirty years of "No License."

Respectfully yours, O. H. CROSBY,
Prothonotary.

THE TRUE CAUSE OF HOODLUMISM, WHICH DISGRACES SAN FRANCISCO.

There are 3,542 licensed places where liquor is sold, and about 1,000 unknown to law in this city; in the state at large are 3,618 licensed places; total, 8,160, where crime is bred, and licentiousness and obscenity is cultivated.

SAMPLE WORK OF THE LEAGUE OF FREEDOM.

AN INHUMAN PARENT.

T. G. was arrested early on Sunday morning, and charged with drunkenness. Soon after his incarceration, G, stated that his wife was lying dead at his house, No. — Tehama street, and asked to be released. An officer was sent to investigate the matter, and found in an upper room of the house the nude body of a woman lying upon a board which rested upon two sawhorses. The room, with the exception of two chairs, was unfurnished. It was found that about eighteen days ago Mrs. G. had given birth to a child, which died after a short existence. The mother died last Thursday, and was laid out by the undertaker. On Saturday, G. was seen at the house, and said that he had raised $18 to defray the funeral expenses of his wife. When arrested, he had but $3 with him, the rest having been spent in dissipation. Two young children of G. had lived in the house, watching by the side of their dead mother, and entirely neglected by their father for two days. The neighbors have since kindly cared for them, and arrangements for the funeral have been made by friends of the family. In the Police Court yesterday the charge against G. was dismissed.

A BUSINESS VIEW OF TEMPERANCE

A temperance rally held in Natick, recently called together a large number of business men for the purpose of considering the effect of intemperance upon business. "There seems," says the reporter, "to be a general understanding and determination among the manufacturers and business men of the town to deal with the rum question as a business matter.

This is a move in the right direction, and it seems strange that long before this our business men have not regarded the use of intoxicating liquor from a standpoint which relates so nearly and so injuriously to their own interests. If the drink habit could be suppressed the twenty five millions now annually expended in Massachusetts for alcoholic beverages would be distributed thru the various channels of legitimate trade, and every business man would be correspondingly benefited by increased sales. When the appetite is well fixed upon a liquor drinker and his means become contracted, honest dealers in the necessaries of life are first to feel the loss of his custom. It is cash down at the saloon, and as drink must be had, the liquor dealer gets the money, while the butcher, baker, clothier, hatter, shoe dealer and other legitimate shop keepers must give credit for their commodities or not sell at all to a once good customer.

For years temperance lecturers and writers have been trying to impress business men with the magnitude of the loss they sustain thru the drink habit, and we hope the time is not far distant when a new force will appear in the field in the shape of "Business men's Temperance Reform Associations."—Casket.

RUMMY MANNERS.

The day before President Garfields death, Mrs. E. Doan of Geyserville, an active, outspoken temperance worker, received a postal card through the post office, upon which was pasted the following clipping from a newspaper.

"Bliss said, " The President is better. He had a good nights rest, and it was having a good effect. He had taken nourishment freely, and had some milk punch with brandy. The affection of the lung was nearly if not completely under control, it was a local lobular inflamation and would pass away without serious result. At this hour everything looks favorable again."

Under this was written, "Brandy Punch is Bully by Golly. Yours in haste. Long Branch, Sept. 10, '81," and signed James A. Garfield. No doubt the embryo tramps who got that up, were rewarded with a drink of snake poison by the devil's overseer who owns them.

THANKSGIVING EVENING.—There is to be a Sunday-school union concert at the Grand Opera House, Mission street near third this evening with a splendid program. Tickets, adults 50 cents and children 25 cents. Proceeds to be divided among five Sunday-schools.

CRITICS.—An unknown "friend" in Shasta county writes that it is the opinion of eminent critics in his locality that the Rescue in its remarks upon the treatment of the late president by Guiteau and the doctors is "unpatriotic and treasonable" and is under pay and obeying instructions of its papal masters. Let her rip.

ABSINTH drinking is coming into favor in England; it brings on convulsions better than any other drink. It has been analized in London and found to be, absolute alcohol 50 per cent, water 45.65, sugar 1.50, absinth or oil of wormwood 0,33. other essential oils to make it searching 2.52, It is said to be gaining ground in San Francisco also.

THE meanest thing ever put up on Denis Kearney by his enemies, is dragging him into a mythical discussion at the Cliff House, advertizing a quack remedy which people are paid to lie about. Sweet reading is admitted to the pages of religious and secular papers. A lie which it would be degrading to Denis Kearny to tell about quack medicines ought to be beneath the dignity of any respectable journal.

Surely the girls of our bands of hope and temples want to discourage tobacco and wine and beer among their acquaintances. They dont ever intend to marry a rumjug or a cigar box. A piano, cyclopedia, a good library, albums and pictures and a cosy pleasant home are better and nicer. But the beer jug and cigar box have a spite at the other things, they dont agree in a family. If the beer jug and wine bottle are not kicked out they always kick out the piano and the library and the pictures.

YES, said somebody not long ago, we could not remain in the lodge of Good Templars any longer conscienciously. We belong to the church and we think we have a better way of working for temperance than by being Good Templars: that is, praying to God that he may destroy the vines; and besides, the money that the Good Templars get, goes thru too many hands and it might be put to a bad use ! ! ! The party addressed did not feel exactly sure about the sincerity of the consciencious motives, until her consciencious friends sold their grapes at a winery a few weeks afterward. It seems their prayers did not prevail. But keep up the prayers, friends, and keep up carrying your grapes to the slauter pen; if the prayers wont balance the wine, the wine will be sure to more than balance the prayers.

A brewer who was elected in Oxford last year to parliament was convicted of bribery and unseated. 18 Rumsellers and brewers were also reported as having been openly guilty of bribery and corruption at his election. It was therefore sought to prevent 12 of these from having their drunkard maker's license renewed last month. The magistrates granted six of them and refused six. The latter appealed to the County Quarter Sessions, who after an elaborate trial and eloquent pleading on both sides granted the licenses, the parties acknowledging the bribery and corruption "to help their parties." The court held that it did not hurt their character as rumsellers; and they were right. The farce of pretending that drunkard makers and wholesale prostitute manufacturers are or can be men of good character, has been played long enough.

TALLY one more for our Mutual Aid. The Whittington life Assurance Co of London has a temperance section. Its manager Mr. Alfred T. Bowser says he is not a tetotaler but expresses his astonishment and gratification and congratulates the total abstainers on the fact that in the past three years they have only had 7⅔ deaths per 1000 each year while the moderate drinkers have died 16⅔ per 1000. Now if a temperance advocate or lecturer 20 years ago had stated his belief in the possibility of such a showing as that, he would have been hooted as a wilful and odious liar. But there never has been an assertion made by temperance advocates in the past that turned out to be false or exaggerated altho a large number of "friends of temperance" were always mourning and wailing and weeping over those dreadful "exaggerations." Science and statistics have doubled or trebled them all.

THE HALIFAX (N. S.) Watchman is a good live temperance paper, only $1.00 a year, with large dis count for clubs and altho the whole country around is engaged in an active struggle to carry out their prohibitory law, the publisher has to lament the lack of patronage.

As usual; as usual. Listen to cheap john, and let your temperance paper and temperance instruction starve out and die. Dont waste $1. a year on a temperance paper. Better let another generation grow up in ignorance of the rumfiend and its powers. And then the minister will wonder how it is, in spite of all the good example he has set, his boy is a drunkard. The doctor will be surprised to find his son a gambler. The judge wont be able to comprehend how his daughter who married a fine noble young man, has a few years later to escape from the drunken cruelty of a depraved husband. The pious mother will mourn for the boy of her prayers, who stays out all night in vicious company. But perhaps these are lesser evils than wasting a dollar a year in educating the people.

There are two large wealthy communities there called Sackville and Amherst which could each take 200 copies of the Watchman to advantage but it is quite likely they dont take a dozen. Both places are in a constant turmoil with two or three outlaws who will sell rum contrary to law, and whom they cant put down and who are making drunkards of the best young blood of the country—because they never see or learn any convincing reason why they should not drink. Very few of the old folks drink, but thru ignorance many of the sons of virtuous, worthy sober christian parents are captured, because they dont read or learn temperance lessons in the home, in the church, Sabbath or week-day school.

"IT SHALL RETURN UNTO YOU."

Prayers of love like raindrops fall,
Tears of pity are cooling dew,
And dear to the heart of our Lord are all
Who suffer like Him in the good they do.
—Whittier.

A CORN DODGER.

There was a young girl from Bordeaux,
With corns on her little pink teaux,
They gave her such pain
The tears ran like rain
Down the bridge of her delicate neaux.

Her lover—a youth from Cologne—
Fled wildly and left her alogne,
When he found that her feet
With corns were replete—
With never a word he had flogne.

They sent for a doctor from Lynn,
As shining and neat as a pynn.
He looked at her teaux,
The source of her weaux,
And indulged in a gratified grynn.

He prescribed for this maid from Bordeaux
And cured all her little pink teaux;
And now it is said
They too will be waid,
And from sorrow and grief find repeaux.

The sweet-scented youth from Cologne,
Who left her severely alogne,
When he first heard the news
His mind he did lews,
And flitted from life with a grogne.

E. S. Bartlett.

The Haywards Journal poet was driven into a state of exaltation over a drunk who undertook to camp out in his back yard a few days ago. The concluding verses are

From effect of the booze
He was taking a snooze
And dreaming of the mispent summer;
When the Marshall stepped in
And reached out his fin
Gathered up the disconsolate bummer.

Between the iron bars
The rollicking stars
Smiled that night on the miserable sinner;
While the skeeter and flea
Joined hands in their glee,
And enjoyed a most sumptuous dinner.

Next morning the pain
That muddled his brain
Made him suffer worse aches than a colic;
And that, with the fine,
Which he paid with a whine,
Footed up an expensive bachanalian frolic.

By-by you old dunce,
This advice take at once,
If you don't at least then you oughter;
Let go of the rum,
Stop being a bum,
And freeze tight to that beverage called water.

Modesto, Nov. 7, 1881.

Dear Friend:—You will see by the following article from the Tuscarora (Nevada) Times-Review that the old patriotic spirit of '61 has been awakened in the breasts of the noble sons of the Silver State upon learning that the family of Reuel Colt Gridley, the man whose deeds cast such a lustre upon Nevada's proud escutcheon, were sick and destitute of even the necessaries of life, and they are taking measures for their relief. Here in Modesto a subscription was opened last week and contributions are coming in generously. A small sum from each town in the state would aggregate an amount sufficient to lift this worthy family from destitution, and place them forever beyond the reach of poverty. Will you please interest yourself in this charitable and patriotic undertaking, and urge the people of your locality to contribute their mite to this worthy object?

Contributions may be sent to the San Francisco Chronicle or to the Modesto Herald, wherein the names and amounts will be published.

The following article should be copied by every newspaper, and read in every lodge in the state in the interest of charity and humanity.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain a friend to the widow and orphans of Reuel Colt Gridley

J. J. Porter.

A PATRIOTIC APPEAL.

We published a few days ago an item from an exchange, suggesting that some means be adopted for the relief of the family of the late R. C. Gridley, who are now living in destitute circumstances at Modesto, California. We have since received a letter from J. J. Porter, of Modesto, requesting us to lay the matter before the people of the state of Nevada, with a view to the organization of a movement for the raising of funds sufficient for the respectable support of the family of a man whose humane, charitable and patriotic work reflected such credit and luster upon our then infant, battle-born state. It is a fact known to the writer of this, that Mr. Gridley made a great personal sacrifice when he made the trip of the famous Sanitary Sack of Flour, the sale of which brought nearly half a million dollars into the fund for the relief of the sick and wounded patriots of the Union army. He was at the time engaged in a lucrative mercantile business in Austin. This he abandoned to prosecute the work which rendered his name a household word thruout the land, but which at the same time reduced him to poverty. He died a short time after the close of the war, leaving his family little save the memory of a devoted husband and father and the prestige of an unsullied name made national by a glorious work.

While the people of the nation are lavishing upon the family of our martyred president the means to insure them lives of luxurious ease, let not the widow and orphans of Reuel Colt Gridley be permitted to suffer for the common necessities of life. They are the equals in worth to the sorrow-stricken inmates of the farmhouse at Mentor, and their claim to the substantial sympathy of the Union loving people of the Republic is equally valid. Let the people of the Pacific Coast take the matter in hand. We notice that the Austin Reveille suggests that the society of Reese River Pioneers inaugurate the movement. This is eminently proper, and we second the motion. Let them issue a circular suggesting the details of the work, and we predict a liberal response from the generous-hearted and patriotic people of the Pacific states and Territories.—Tuscarora Review.

The "Christian Commonwealth."—First number, published 9 Paternoster Row, London, is received and its offer of exchange accepted with much pleasure. It is a 16 page weekly, very closely resembling the Rescue in size, form and typographical appearance. Its name seems to be rightfully assumed. It promises to be distinctly Evangelical, but not sectarian: believes the commonwealth of Christianity exactly adapted to the requirements of individual and national life. That Christ the Lord only needs to be known, believed received and obeyed, to realize the fulfilment of the angelic refrain, "On earth peace, good will to men." It promises to be liberal, but within the limits of the Word of God; not silent or neutral in politics, temperance, public morals; always a partisan of the right and the truth. It "will not hesitate to deal with periodicals which bear the Christian name in their titles, but deny the doctrine in their columns." It is supplied to American subscribers at $2 a year, and is heartily recommended to them. After writing the above, it is observed that J. W. Kirton, author of "Buy your own cherries," and a vigorous and favorite writer, is one of its editors, and please consider it so much the more worthy of patronage and so much more desirable as a weekly visitor in your homes.

TEMPERANCE LITERATURE.

Below is a list of a few of the most useful and excellent works with which every reformer should be supplied, and in which he should be well posted:

GACCHUS DETHRONED.— A Prize Essay; Cloth, $1; paper edition, 50c. Completely masters the whole subject. Everybody ought to have it.

TEMPERANCE LESSON BOOK.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., M. D., LL. D., F. R. S. 220 pp. Cloth, 50c.; paper, 25c. This is a series of short lessons on alcohol and its action on the body, accompanied with suitable questions, designed for study in public and private schools, and reading in schools and families. Send for it; read what this brightest and and best of medical scientists has discovered regarding all kinds of drinks; be sure to lend it to your family doctor.

TEN LECTURES ON ALCOHOL.—By B. W. Richardson, M. A., F. R. S. Comprising the six Cantor Lectures: "Action of Alcohol on the Body and on the Mind," "Moderate Drinking," "The Medical Profession," and "The Liberty of the Abject." 338 pp. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. The ablest and cheapest lectures ever presented to the American public,

ON ALCOHOL.—By Dr. B. W. Richardson, F. R. S., of London. 12mo., 190 pages. Six "Cantor Lectures," showing the nature and effect of alcohol on the body and mind. Cloth, 75c.; paper, 25c.

OUR WASTED RESOURCES.—By Dr. Wm. Hargreaves. 12mo., 202 pages. The Missing Link in the Temperance Reform, giving the most valuable statistics ever published. Price in cloth, $1.50; paper edition, 50c.

TALKS ON TEMPERANCE.—12mo, 178 pages, By Canon Farrar, D. D. Cloth, 60c.; paper, 25c

This book contains ten sermons and talks by this eminent divine. They are filled with sound, convincing arguments against the lawfulness, morality and necessity of the liquor-traffic, as well as stirring appeals to all Christian men and women to take a firm, decided, out-spoken stand in favor of total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors, Send for that and lend it to the ministers in your vicinity.

ALCOHOL AND THE STATE.—A discussion of the problem of law as applied to the liquor-traffic. By Robert C. Pitman, L.L.D., Associate Judge of Superior Court of Massachusetts. 12mo. 411 pages, $1 50.

It is a book for statesmen, legislators, and all intelligent, thoughtful temperance men and women everywhere. It shows that the Liquor Traffic is the enemy of the State; and the foe of all the objects for which the State exists; and presents such strong arguments, statistics, appeals, authorities, as will add greatly to an intelligent and wise solution of the Liquor Problem. The economy and legislative aspects of the Alcoholic discussion have never been so ably presented, and it should be in the hands of every citizen and in every library in the land.

THE MEDICAL USE OF ALCOHOL.—95 pages. By James Edmunds, M. D., of London. Paper, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AND ALCOHOL.—12 mo., 33 pages. By B. W. Richardson, M. D., 10c.

PROHIBITION DOES PROHIBIT; OR PROHIBITION NOT A FAILURE.—12mo, 48 pages. By J. N. Stearns, 10c.

MODERATE DRINKING.—For and Against, from Scientific Points of View. By B. W. Richardson, M. D. 12mo, 48 pages. Paper, 20c.

BEER AS A BEVERAGE.—24 pages. An Address by Rev. W. Hughey, in reply to the Appeal of the Beer Congress, 10c.

ALCOHOL AND THE HUMAN BRAIN.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 24 pp. An able scientific address, 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND LEGISLATION.—12mo, 24 pages. By Canon Farrar, D. D., 10c.

TEMPERANCE AND REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.—By Rev. Joseph Cook. 12mo, 36 pages, 10c.

Address, J. N. Stearns, Publishing Agent, 58 Reade street, New York.

JULIA COLMAN'S WORKS.

SPECIMEN SETS.—Beer Tracts, Handbills, etc., 6 cents; Leaflets and Children's Tracts, 5c.; Tracts and Leaflets on Wine, 5c.; File case set of Union Leaflets, 18c.; File case set of Children's Tracts, 25c.

These file cases are of strong manila paper, nicely lettered, and they open like a port-folio, disclosing the sets; can be closed and fastened with a rubber ring; can be used for specimens for a long time, and are a great convenience in the use of tracts.

THE TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.—For Juvenile Instruction. By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each.

Contains full directions for the management of young and older people and children, in the study of the nature and effects of alcohol, so that they may never be tempted to learn by experience. The school is conducted on the model of the Sunday-school, both because that is a proper model and because people thus learn with so little explanation. Hundreds of these schools are being opened and are becoming very popular. The Text Books used in this Temperance School are

THE CATECHISM ON ALCOHOL.—By Julia Colman. 18mo., 36 pages, 5c. each; 60c. per doz.

A work for the children. Simple, direct, concise and popular. They enjoy it much; study and learn to recite it all through—and explain it, too, provided the teacher uses also the

JUVENILE TEMPERANCE MANUAL.—By Julia Colman. 12mo., 160 pages; paper cover, 25c.; cloth, 60c.

The object of this book is to assist the teachers in the use of the catechism on alcohol. It is arranged in short lessons, each of which is accompanied with a note giving directions for simple experiments, object lessons, blackboard exercises, followed by a little lecture on the above methods with facts and illustrations and incidents which may be used by the teacher. Every teacher and reader recognizes this Manual and Catechism to be just the thing needed: their suggestions and deductions are those of a thorough practical teacher, completely armed and equipped for that duty. No better help to temperance education has ever been produced; probably nothing that comes near it in usefulness.

These three works are especially intended for use in temperance organizations of various kinds, and there are many helps to go with them, such as the children's tracts above named, one of which is selected for each lesson. Then there are

RIPPLES OF SONG.—Paper, 15c,; boards ($1.60 per doz.), 18c.,

CHROMO TEXT CARDS.—Per 100, $1. Sewall's Stomach Plates, $9. same, mounted on rollers, $12.

And many others named and priced in the Temperance School above named. For teaching Temperance in the Day School, a movement coming now into very general favor, the new book has been prepared, entitled

ALCOHOL And HYGIENE. —By Julia Colman. 16mo., 231 pages, cloth 60c.

An elementary text book for schools. This work is approved by the most experienced and distinguished advocates of Temperance

Miss Colman is always promptly willing to answer questions, and give explanations and make selections with the most scrupulous attention for all who call for her services in the line of temperance literature, and the RESCUE particularly recommends its readers to make liberal use of her admirable publications, and to apply for them at once at her new address,

☞ To get all the works in the two lists above, including 1,100 beer tracts and 1,000 leaflets, will cost about $11 if the books are bound in cloth, or $8 if in paper covers. Every lodge ought to get just the entire outfit at once, well bound for the use of its members.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need, free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

Startling Exposure of the Liquor Traffic.

"DRINKS FROM DRUGS," OR "THE MAGIC BOX." BY ELI JOHNSON.

A book that cannot fail to arouse the American people to the gigantic swindle now being perpetrated. The writer offered $10,000 by a leading brewer to keep still. Liquor not only doctored but made entirely from drugs. Extracts from a whole library of secret books giving receipts for making and doctoring—advertisements of essences, facsimiles of labels, engravings, etc. etc. Claret, port, sherry, champagne, whisky, brandy, gin, rum, etc., all out of one barrel and made at less than 25c. a gallon. Wine that never saw grape juice—cider that never saw apples—beer factories in place of breweries, fine cream ale without barley or brewing, whisky from arsenic, millions of gallons of liquor that pays no revenue tax. The farmer's corn and barley "all in your eye." A wholesale liquor store in a ten foot square cellar—more French wine sold in New York City than is produced in the whole of France.

This book is no mere toy, but an exhaustive work—a work of years of close research and investigation, and cannot fail to prove an invaluable auxiliary to the temperance cause. It forms one volume of our "Popular Temperance Library," and we shall sell it at the following fabulous prices:—Single sample number, 10c. Five or more sent to separate addresses for 8c. each—5 or more to one address 5½c. each—25 or more to one address 5c. each. Special rates on large lots. Book nearly ready for delivery. Orders filled in turn.

We also publish 90c. to $1.50 story books in large newspaper form. One complete book, illustrated, in quantities, at 2c. each. Samples of three books already issued, for 10 cts. A whole library of choice $1.00 to $1.50 story books in book form (paper covers) especially for Sunday-schools and Bands of Hope, for only 5c. each (sample copy 8c.) Eighteen monthly papers at 5c. a year, (samples of each for 10c.) We take contracts to sow towns knee-deep with temperance literature for a song, and that, too, with papers in place of tracts. A full line of Band of Hope supplies so cheap that the penny collection pays for library, weekly paper, badges, pledges and all. Also a host of other temperance documents, all at revolution prices. Send for catalogue. We have the indorsement of the press, societies, and prominent workers in all parts of the country. The following was recently received from Governor St. John, of Kansas:

State of Kansas, Executive Department, Topeka, Oct. 22, 1881.—I heartily approve of your plan of work. Your publications will accomplish great good, and should be liberally patronized by the friends of Christian temperance everywhere. Very truly yours, JOHN P. ST. JOHN.

An Appeal. We wish to reach every temperance worker in the land, man or women, with our samples, catalogue, etc. We can do nothing if we cannot reach the people. Will not every one send us names of workers? It only costs a postal card and a few minutes' time. Please say where you saw this. Address "REVOLUTION TEMPERANCE PUBLISHING HOUSE," DAVID C. COOK, Manager, 148 Madison St., Chicago.

Lecturers' Reports.

The Grand Lecturers employed by the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T., of Cal., are as follows:

REV. W. C. KING.

FRESNO CITY, Nov. 20, '81,

ED. RESCUE.—Our last was written from Tulare City. The meetings there were uniformly successful, and we brought with us only kindest memories of the hospitality and genuine interest of the people. Returning as we proposed to Mendicino, but did not deem it best to press the organization of a lodge. On Saturday eve we found a fine and attentive audience at Red Banks school house with whom we left an appointment for Monday eve following and went to Fairview for Sabbath eve. Altho we had visited this parish twice previously, yet we were greeted with a house full inside and out and had a profitable time both at public and private meeting. Returning to Red Banks, we had the pleasure of securing 33 names to an application for a charter and proceeded at once to organize—22 remaining.

The balance of the week was spent in visiting other lodges, and returning to more fully instruct this one.

I can say nothing more indicative of their genuine spirit than that they ordered four copies of the RESCUE for free distribution at their first meeting. On Saturday, the first session of Fresno Co. District Lodge was held in Fresno City; 8 out of the 10 lodges being represented. A large amount of work was done in a most admirable spirit of zealous coolness and firm purpose to seek only the best good of the cause. A public meeting was held at the M. E. church, after which we returned to the hall and had a meeting of Fresno Lodge. This lodge has just moved into a new and fine hall, and has flattering prospects of growth. Bro. T. M. Burch was recommended by District Lodge for D. D., and will be an efficient officer. We are now off for Tulare Co. again.

J. W. WEBB.

LOS ALAMOS LODGE is doing very well; additions quite frequent. Brother Peter Coiner, W. C. T., is erecting a town hall, and makes a very liberal offer to the Good Templars, who will meet in it and have increased success. Held degree meeting before lecture, and gave instruction, initiating several. At 10 P. M. took stage and traveled all night to meet next appointment. As the only other passenger was drunk, I preferred riding outside with the driver, Brother Geo. Sweeney, of this Lodge. B. of H. quite promising.

SANTA BARBARA'S two Lodges still hold the fort; have frequent open Lodges; stayed long enough to see some earnest workers who gave and received words of encouragement. No. 140 was busy preparing for a public entertainment.

CARPINTERIA LODGE has been at about a standstill, but members are determined and think it will be on the up-grade this quarter. They are making the meetings attractive by debates and a paper. Sister Gracie Bernard, and Mrs. Wheelock, the teacher, are doing well with the Band of Hope. At the lecture, over a dollar was contributed for temperance literature for the Band. Brother L. B. Cadwell, fraternal delegate from this county to Ventura District Lodge, and Bro. Geo. Robinson, drove me and my daughter Lizzie to MONTECITO, where we found the Lodge—which has been the child of some fears—flourishing and commanding public respect. Among the new members is Mr. Conrad, the able and esteemed principal of the school. Was glad to see visitors from Carpinteria and Santa Barbara Lodges; publicly installed the officers, and lectured.

HUENEME. Brothers Cadwell and Robinson again took me on my way. Found Dist. Lodge assembled in good numbers and interest, Bro. L. C. Clark presiding. The Secretary will furnish a full report. Exemplified unwritten work, gave an epitome of Grand Lodge proceedings, advocated distribution of temperance literature; enforcement of Sunday work, circulation of RESCUE and organizing Bands of Hope. Lectured Friday and Saturday nights, the fine large picture of the Home for Orphans, forwarded by Bro. Thompson, coming just in time and attracting much attention.

Preached on Sunday morning, addressed Sunday school and organized a Good Band of Hope, Mrs. T. R. Bard, Supt. This district is beoming well organized, is growing in interest, numbers and power; the politicians are giving the Good Templars considerable attention and are watching their movements with some anxiety. Collection after lectures amounted to twenty two dollars. Besides this Dist. Lodge voted $10 for Cooks cheap literature. Sister Myra Walbridge, Sec., aided me in getting several subs: for the RESCUE. J. M. Brooks Esq. District Attorney immediately on receipt of Supreme Court decision, issued placards and advertisements in county papers to the effect that the Sunday law would be enforced and calling on all township officers to see to it. Dist, Lodge passed resolutions heartily commending his prompt and fearless action and promising him support: Dis. Lodge appreciated highly, Grand Lodge sending lecturer just at this time and kept him busy.

SPRINGVILLE. Two good meetings. Sunday and Monday nights; at latter, Rev. Stephen Riley of Downey, Los Angeles Co., adjourned protracted meeting in School House and came over to the Church and heartily assisted us. Called at school and talked to scholars about Band of Hope. All voted for it and we organized Monday night after lecture with 40. Sister Mary Guthrie, serving her 3rd consecutive term as W. C. T. presided, greatly aided and is Supt. Rev. W. O. Woods, a tobacco user for 20years, quit, was first to sign the roll and is now quite a promising Band of Hope boy. The wife and children of the saloon keeper joined and were elected to offices. Many wishes expressed that Mr. Clark himself would give up the business and keeping Post Office and general store receive the cheerful patronage of all. Sister Guthrie agrees to act as agent for RESCUE and will shortly send a list of subscribers.

SUNDAY LAW.

In San Francisco the temperance people propose to ascertain which liquor sellers are willing peaceably to close their shops on Sundays if the rest do. Then they propose to prosecute those who are not willing to close, but not to make expense for the others. We would advise the people here to persue the same course. In Watsonville the Lewis house, Scandinavian house and Washington house expressed their willingness to close on Sundays if Porter would close the Mansion house, but Porter refused and therefore he was prosecuted. The law can be enforced, we believe, if the business be gone about calmly and with good judgment. The saloon men are organized and have a fund to draw from. Let temperance people organize and raise a fund also, and if this be judiciously expended, success is certain.—Transcript.

But if every one says he is willing to close when the others do, there can be no prosecutions. The main object is to stop the drunkeries on Sunday; and it is believed that then about all other concerns would close of their own accord, or by force of public opinion. It certainly is not politic nor advisable for us to prosecute anything which is comparatively harmless in its tendencies.

FARM FOR SALE.

Nine miles from Los Angeles Court House between Florence and Downey, bounded by Anaheim Railroad and Old San Gabriel river, 270 acres with 270 shares of water in San Antonio Irrigating Company. Orchard of over 2,000 apple and pear trees. House of four rooms, barn, etc,. Splendid opening for large dairy business; 100 cows could be milked at a gross profit of five thousand dollars per annum.

Lands specially suitable for alfalfa—10 tons per acre per anumn. A large portion of the land particularly adapted for the plum, prune, apricot, chestnut, etc., also for Muscat grapes for raisin making which would be very profitable. The whole Farm is fenced and cross fenced, and being well supplied with water, it is one of the very best Stock Ranches in Southern California. There are a few acres in Willows, Forest Grove Station is at corner and School adjoins.

$12,000 was refused for this property by late owner, who valued it at $$18,000. It was sold under foreclosure of mortgage and is now offered for $10,000 cash. Date of redemption is past; and an absolute and perfect title will be given.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

THE Temperance Revolution is about to issue a book, to be sold at their popular price, and which will reveal the general lawlessness of the liquor traffic. The book will cover these general topics among others: The Ostracising and Abuse of Temperance Workers; Personal Abuse and Injury; Intimidation by Threats of Lawless Proceedings; Actual Destruction of Property, etc.; Bribery in Elections and Legislatures. Those possessing definite information upon any of these points which will be of value in a book of this character, are invited to communicate with The Temperance Revolution, David C. Cook, Manager, Chicago, Ill.

David C. Cook has recently opened, at 148 Madison St. Chicago, a Revolution Temperance House, and we are amazed at the amount he offers for a little money. He furnishes excellent and unique material for educating the children. It is a grand work. We advise all to send for samples and buy what they can afford. A little money expended in this way will hardly be missed, and will do you and others much good.—Prohibitionist, Lewiston, Me.

HOME FOR ORPHANS.

In 1869 a capacious and elegant structure was erected near Vallejo, in Solano County, and in 1870, it was dedicated and opened under the auspices of the Grand Lodge, and entitled the "Good Templars' Home for Orphans." Its title is not meant to carry any idea of exclusiveness as to the class admitted to its sheltering offices. On the contrary, it is open to all; the only passport required at its portals is to be a homeless orphan child. Children under fourteen years of age, are received and cared for; and over one hundred orphaned children are now being cared for within its walls the buildings are sightly, capacious, and pleasantly located. The Home is under the general management and control of a Board of Trustees and a Board of Lady Managers—the former comprising nine gentlemen of the Order, who have charge of the building, grounds, (20 acres), and financial matters; while the Board of Lady Managers is composed of eight prominent lady members of the Order, selected from various parts of the State, and has charge of the domestic relations of the institution. The educational affairs are under the joint control and management of the Board of Trustees and Lady Managers. Within the Home a graded school under the "Public school system" of the State, is taught by two competent teachers. Upwards of $140,000 have been expended in the erection, care, and maintenance of this institution. The Good Templars of this jurisdiction have accepted the self imposed duty of sustaining this "Home" gratefully, and the membership is linked together in its support with unfaltering devotion.

ADOPTION.

Children may be adopted from the Home by reliable and proper persons upon application to Board of Lady Managers.

ADMISSION OF CHILDREN.

All letters concerning the admission of children, or their adoption from the Home, should be addressed to the Secretary of the Board of Lady Managers, MRS. M. M. CARPENTER, 150 9th street, San Francisco, who will furnish the necessary blank forms.

IN MEMORIAM.

DIED.—At Lompoc, Nov. 19th 1881, Lydia M. Batkin. Rose of Lompoc Lodge, No. 178, recently suffered a great loss, by death of one of its most amiable and worthy members, the wife of P. W, C. T., L. S. Batkin. At the time of her marriage, only about one year ago, she was W. V. T., and much esteemed both in and out of the lodge. She leaves a sorrowing and estimable husband, a little son but a few days old, and a large circle of warm friends, all of whom tender to Bro. Batkin their sencerest sympathy. May her many virtues be imitated by all who knew her. By order of the lodge,

J. W. Webb.

Port Wine in Oporto, is trodden out by dirty roughs, smoking and spitting; but the dirt dont hurt it at all. It dont spoil the drunk property.

THE drunkard makers in England are fond of calling their business "the trade;" they assume an air of injured innocence, and protest with pitiable moanings at the word "traffic" applied to their work of destroying their fellow men.

SOME publisher offers for sale a beautiful collection of reports of the most noted legal trials that have taken place in Great Britain for 300 years past. There is a charming variety of cases, from high treason and murder down to divorce, sheep stealing, superfluous spelling, etc. Wont they get up a five cent edition so as to let the general public fatten up a little on this feast of sweet things ?

HOME PROTECTION meetings commence on Saturday evening Dec 2 at the Hall of the Y. M. C. A. and will continue every Saturday evening. A most excellent name has been adopted for the movement and under the never-say-die presidency of Dr. R. H. McDonald success is sure.

One man in North Carolina has in a single year furnished ten thousand barrels of rosin to beer makers, who use it in the manufacture of their beer because it greatly increases the thirst of the drinkers, and so tempts them more and more to drink.

Murphys Lodge feels jubilant in its new Hall 66 by 30 feet on the main street and nearly in the center of the town. At the recent session of the District Lodge there was a very large and enthusiastic public meeting and the Good Templars have come there to stay and see the funeral of the whisky business.

THE LODI ITINERANT is published by Rev. C. S Haswell, devoted to religion, temperance and the M. E. church; eight pages monthly, handsome tinted paper, illustrated with cuts, and got up in the very best typographical style. The first number issued November 22d, is a very interesting one, full of useful literature for the home. 10 cents a copy.

The Wesleyan Temperance organization in Eng. has 144 adult societies, and 2033 Bands of Hope; last year it petitioned for Sunday closing with 203,335 names. The primitive Methodists there, have a Band of Hope Union with 50,000 members. Nine-tenths of their ministers are total abstainers, and about the same applies to other Methodist branches.

Subscribers this week. (W. C. King 50 as follows) Madera 1; Herrick Cross 2; Tipton 4; Kings River 6; Grangeville 17; Handford 20. (J. G, Mysell) S. F. 6; (O. K. Jones) Willows 9; (Miss N. Williams) Sonora 4; (O. W. Everson) Mendocino 2; (J. C. Hawver) Placer Co 4; (H. R. Hughes) El Dorado Co 4; (W. Crowhurst) Mokelumne 1; (J. O. March) Grainland 1; (W. D. Gould) Los Angeles 5.

NICK writes to the Sutter Farmer that the Good Templars had a successful open meeting, Sunday 20 at North Butte, Bro. Graves presiding; Bros. Featherstun and Warwick gave most acceptable addresses, the choir excellent music and some temperance literature was distributed. Mr. Nick gives a very favorable account of the affair, and is evidently not the senior member of the Nick family of whom we used to read.

A GOOD TEMPLAR.—According to the Lodge Visitor, Phila., Post Master General James was one of the founders of the first lodge of I. O. G. T. in 1851 There always did seem to be something unusual about that man. He has been such an exceptionally faithful and competent public official; so thoroly efficient too in his management of the postal affairs of this immense country, that we ought to have guessed he had been a Good Templar.

IT is an easy matter to get 50 subscribers for the RESCUE, at $1.25, and secure a "Library of Universal Knowledge," 15 fine volumes, including all of "Chambers' Encyclopedia," and one-third of as much more of American additions; making a most useful addition to any library—in fact, a library itself. No similar work has ever been published under $50. Any one sending 20 subscribers at $1.25 will receive an engraving of the Mrs. Hayes picture.

GIVE US A REST.—Wont some of the illustrated papers make a slight change and afford their readers a relief by turning the portrait of Mrs. Pinkham so as to give us a side view, and then after a few months, slu it around so as to afford a back view. The luxury that was formerly enjoyed by sitting down before that countenance divine, and studying its various expressions of genius and animation, and delightful entire self-complacency, is beginning to be a stale pleasure. Give us something new. Give us another study.

THE London Lancet, the medical oracle, denounces the habit of early drinking, and proposes that the dangerous traffic of the grogshop should not be opened till noon. Wonder what other traffic should be open at all, that would be harmful before noon.

THE gin soakers of San Francisco have patented a new password lately for "let us go and have a drink." They say "let us go and take the pledge." or "have you taken the pledge yet." It is suggested that "let us go and worship our master a little,' "have you sacrificed to Pluto yet? or come and see the devil," would be more appropriate.

IN NOVA SCOTIA they had a Thanksgiving day lately. The mercantile men engaged in honest pursuits closed their stores and shops; the mechanics, laborers and artisans had respect to the occasion and in recognition, abstained from labor. But the Watchman says the drunkard maker in every style made the day of thanksgiving an occasion of an extra harvest of blasphemy and devil adoration.

THE Canadian Government has consented to defend the Scott Act, which is the local option law of the Dominion of Canada, in an appeal made by the drunkard-makers to the Privy Council of England. The Scott Act is a government measure, and it is defended before the courts all the way up by counsel at the expense of the government. It seems a little strange that criminals should have the right of appeal from the Dominion of Canada to anybody in England, but they have it in this case, probably owing to rum-selling outlaws being always highly privileged characters.

KANSAS. At a Presbyterian Synod recently in session at Manhattan Ks. speeches of one minute were called for to report on the working of the new law in the communities represented by the ministers there. Of 61 reports 52 reported favorably and 9 otherwise. At a Quakers annual meeting in Lawrence, all the rural districts as to the law were reported favorable; one party reported 4 adjoining counties whose jails are entirely empty. Kingman county Dist. Court informed its jury there was not a single criminal case for their attention. In Wichita in one week 5 rumselling outlaws were fined $1100 and one of them sent to jail. Thus saith Bro. G. W. Bain in the Signal.

PROTECTION OF VITICULTURISTS.—CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—The following is the resolution which Edwards of California presented in the Tariff Convention yesterday:

Resolved, That the attention of Congress be called to the serions calamity which must ensue to the wine growers of California and the United States generally, if the proposed reciprocity treaty with France is carried into effect, and that, in the opinion of this Convention, the best interests of the wine growers of the United States, and of the vineyard laborers, will be subserved by the retention of the present tariff on foreign wines and brandies.—Chronicle.

ZION'S DAY STAR is the name of a new paper started in New York, eight pages monthly, 50 cents a year, devoted to the exposition of "God's word;" nearly half a million sample copies sent out. The first number explains prophecy, is very much interested about the Jews getting back to Palestine, about Turkish treaties, about the exact meaning of certain dim prophetic texts, about the ancient sacrifices of bulls and rams, etc. No doubt it is the best kind of paper for those who love a religion which consists in studying ancient mythology and future speculations, and have no sympathy with any effort to amend the present condition of the world, and prepare it for the kingdom to come.

WRECKED.

BY REV. W. G. LANE, G. W. C. T. OF N. S.

As o'er the strand the wind of winter drives,
The coast is strewed with countless wrecks of lives;
Dashed up on shore, mid waters cold and gray,
Then carried by receding tides away,
To mighty oceans, fathomless and wide,
That wash the rugged coast with rushing tide.

They started well, in manly strength and pride,
Across the fitful sea of life to ride;
They feared no sudden squall nor shock of wave,
Nor whistling winds, nor sailor's grave;
But all too soon, alas! they met a fearful blast
That snapped in twain each iron-banded mast.

They finished wrecks—they struggled on in vain,
(The rum fiend's laughter echoed from the main;)
They drifted—sport of laughing, mocking gales
That played among the rigging, rent the sails;
Huge seas them swept—not one, nor two, nor three—
Uncounted billows swept them rudderless to sea.

Expectant friends may linger on the shore;
The voice of child and kin is heard no more;
Down—down—deep in the malestrom's eddying deep,
'Mid tangled weeds, they're locked in endless sleep;
Alittle watchful care had furled the sail,
And dropped the anchor safe within the vail."

—Watchman.

ORWELL, NEW YORK, AND ITS COGSWELL FOUNTAIN.

Many readers of the Rescue will remember that its issue of January 20th, 1881, gave an account of the dedication of a drinking fountain in Pawtucket R. I.; the handsome and costly gift of Dr. H. D. Cogswell of San Francisco. And it also stated that another beautiful fountain was in preparation to be erected in Orwell N. Y., a similar gift of Dr. C. who was a teacher in the neighborhood one year, and whose father was a resident there 50 years, and in pleasant relations with all its worthy people.

Among the conditions of the latter gift, it was to be placed right in front of the site of the old village nuisance, the Thomas tavern, which Dr. C. remembers in his early days used to prosecute its daily routine of blasphemy and crime and death, and did so for many years. They have put it within six feet of the old bar, the ancient altar of Satan. And it was to be dedicated to Orwell lodge of Good Templars, which the donor recognized as a reformatory and healing and blessing influence in the community.

Dr. Cogswell seems to have very kindly memories of the scenes of his youth, and is in the habit of giving his old friends and their representatives occasional very practical evidences of his affectionate remembrance. Some two years ago, he gave Orwell lodge a little donation to start a library, which they appreciated very much, and have profited by it. During the year past, he has ordered a copy of the Rescue regularly sent them, and they report (Nov. 10th) that they esteem it highly; a member is appointed to read portions of it at each meeting under Good of the Order. They are pleased with the progress of our California Good Templars, interested in our Home for orphans, and pronounce Cal. the banner state.

Orwell Lodge we may as well consider an honorary member of this jurisdiction, as it is evidently a plucky, go ahead institution. Mrs. Geo. F. Woodbury writes: "We have bot a lot opposite Dr. Nelson's, and have erected a commodious building, 73 x 40 feet, containing a session, a dining and a public lecture room. It has left us some in debt, but with diligence and faithfulness, and God's blessing on our work, we hope ere long to read our title clear to our new hall as well as to a more abiding mansion in the far away. Our fountain, too, is in running order, and is a gift of which our town is justly proud, and for which it is grateful to the generous giver."

Without doubt the kind encouragement of Dr. C. has been of advantage to Orwell Lodge, and all Good Templars owe him a more than usual warmth of grateful feeling for his many practical and useful helps, examples, influences, and costly gifts with which he has aided the interests of temperance in many ways.

It will be admitted that Orwell deserved to be honored with the distinction of this Fountain. It is a little isolated village, composed mostly of farmers engaged in dairying; supplying a central cheese-factory for a portion of the year, and then feeding their stock and keeping themselves from freezing till the spring opens and the snows melt. It is creditable to a community like this to tax themselves $500 by a township vote to provide a stream of good water, and the necessary pipes, etc., to convey it to the Fountain.

And certainly the Good Templars deserve equal commendation for their public spirit in taxing themselves for a hall for the purpose of advancing the principles of temperance and grounding the coming generation in a faith which will be a safeguard thru life from the pitfalls which decoy so many thousands to destruction. Messrs. H. H. Potter, Chas. Allen and Dwight McKinney were the committee entrusted with the final erection of the Fountain. The Rescue of this week will go into Orwell Lodge-room bearing a more than usual kindly greeting from the Pacific sunset.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.

THE OLD SABBATH ASSOCIATION REVIVED BY THE MINISTERS.

The Union of ministers of different denominations met at Y. M. C. A. Hall Monday afternoon. The attendance was unusually large. Rev. Dr. Briggs presided. Rev. Mr. Smith officiated as Secretary. Rev Dr. Gibson presented his report respecting the Old Sabbath Observance Society, and it was voted to revive that instead of forming a new association, changing the name from the California to the San Francisco Christian Sabbath Observance Society. Its object was defined to be "to promote by the presentation of light and motive thru the press, pulpit and other agencies a better observance of the Christian Sabbath." Nearly all those present offered their names to the constitution, and an organization was effected by the election of Rev. Dr. Briggs as President and other officers.

Rev. Dr Briggs said that he regarded the League that had been entered into to defeat the law as something monstrous. It was nothing less than a set conspiracy against law and order, with which any strong Government would deal very summarily. It was a highhanded offense against decency thus to combine to defeat a good and just law. After the election of officers the Official Board was directed to arrange a plan of operation and report at the same place in one week, after which the meeting adjourned.—Chronicle.

WINE'S DOINGS IN FRANCE.

About a year ago Mr. Wetmore stated thru the press that a Dr. Lunier, Chief superintendent of the insane asylums in France had published a report showing that a marked decrease in insanity had taken or was taking place in the light wine districts of his country.

Any one acquainted with such matters knew very well such a condition of things was impossible and it looked as if Dr. Lunier himself was one of the many myths created by the brandy apostles. But now we learn that Mr. Lunier, a prominent member of the French academy of medicine has published some important statistics which are as follows in the London Watchword.

"Wine is now used in France to the extent of 30 gallons per inhabitant. (That makes nearly 1,200 million gallons a year) In 1833 it was only 15 gal. Instead of wine taking the place of other drinks, the latter have increased. Spirits in 1837 were used 2 quarts and now have risen to 3 quarts per head. In defence of wine he says, where most spirits are drunk there are most cases of accidental death, apprehensions for drunkenness are 5 times more numerous in these than where wine is principally used,

Alcoholic insanity is almost everywhere in proportion to the direct consumption of spirits, except in two provinces where they drink only white wines, which he says taken in excess are as dangerous as brandy.

There is not a word about decrease of insanity, but the well known and perfectly natural result is strongly confirmed, that the weaker liquors if used lead to the use of the stronger, and to crime, pauperism, insanity and death.

GENEROSITY AT OTHER PEOPLES EXPENSE.

"Live and let live!" says Ego as he brings in his verdict of "not guilty." Of course, he killed his man. No one disputes that. But it costs so little to be generous, and save a life. Beside, what is done cannot be undone. The criminal is turned loose upon society again.

What a pity the murderer should slay others than jurymen!

Of reason, when evils like lies, come home to roost, the aspect changes, Ego decidely objects to be shot down like a dog by sane or insane. Insanity pleas and dodges wont weigh a straw where and when he is individually concerned. He claims and values personal security and stands on his rights.

Thus work all other and lesser crimes. There is an evil spirit in human nature glorifying in not being the brother's keeper. We have Cain for testimony.

Crime like tares, needs neither culture nor encouragement for increase. If it is not intended that the evildoer shall suffer, we might as well abolish our criminal codes. To the seriously minded we would say that neither prophets of the Lord, apostle, or Christ wasted time or thought to protect criminals against the law—eye for eye, tooth for tooth.

It is not a question of dollars and cents, the evil doer not only smites the state, but humanity in the face. From a truly christian standpoint only, what he does to your neighbor he does to you and all. Morally it matters little whether he lies in wait for the substance of victims of vice and beastliness, turns brigand, or seeks to manipulate political necessities by assassination.

Judith would have gloried in martyrdom had she fallen in the hands of her enemies. No one really believing in and loving a cause, but is ever ready to shoulder the full responsibility of word or act in defense of such. It is only the contemptible and lowlife craven or hypocrite that seeks to shirk and dodge the claims of law and justice; and therefore deserves hanging as much for his plea as for his deed. The sooner thus arrant knavery is healed of temporary or chronic insanity, the better for all concerned.

J. C. Kastner.

The Watchword, (London) complains that some church magazines in England are advertisers of the whisky business. A large Baptist church in the outskirts of London publishes a partly printed paper (like the patent outsides of American newspapers) and the local churches fill it up and circulate it. The sermon of the great central preacher forming the central attraction. The sermon in one of these is from two texts, "They shall walk with me in white, for they are worthy," and "Can two walk together except they be agreed." But the most prominent thing on the title page is the ad of a wine, spirit and bottled beer merchant. Another title page inside has a picture of God's house and time of Sunday and week day services and a notice where to go and get their whisky and beer. Just before the sermon in the middle of the paper is another ad. of wines, spirits, etc; after the sermon a touching story of "How one drunkard was made" and farther on another drunkard maker's advt. The sermon and the drunkard maker walk together and are agreed, but they dont "walk in white."

There has been a terrible amount of that kind of walking together of the pulpit, sermon and grogshop card. Mrs. Todd said at the prison reform convention on Saturday that people for eighteen centuries had been preaching Christ on the inside and living Moses on the outside, and the world was worse now than ever before. She might have better said preaching Christ for two centuries and worshipping the devil. That is the trouble. The devil enthroned in the grogshop is the legally crowned, acknowledged and supreme god of Christendom to-day.

The Prohibition vote in Ohio in October was 16. 687 for governor. In some precincts there were no tickets to be had and no doubt great numbers of votes cast were thrown out as usual not counted, The Alliance News of Columbus, Ohio, 16 pages, same size and form as the Rescue asks for 20,000 subscribers. $2 a year and a good live paper. It was a fatal mistake for the temperance people of Ohio to let their prohibition papers starve out years ago. Had they kept up two such papers as the Alliance News and the Delaware Signal and properly circulated them the past ten years, they would have doubtless elected Mr. Ludlow as governor; but they tried to make bricks with straw only and no clay. No prohibition will ever succeed without a temperance press.

The Lodi Sentinel editorially condemns with much justice the course of the Argonaut in taking the side of the man killers against the Sunday law. But it would be a public calamity to have any change made in the present tactics of that paper. The Argonaut is the safest and surest moral and religious guide we have in the state. Other papers may make mistakes; it never does. To ensure being always right, just watch the Argonaut. Whatever it commends, avoid with care, what it condemns embrace and you are safe. A friend lately writing from a country village, enumerating the evidences of the superior morality of its citizens, wound up with thus; "and there is only one copy of the Argonaut taken here."

EXTRACTS FROM MISS WILLARD'S REPORT.

HYGIENE.

God made and meant us to be well and not sick. His Health Decalogue is as binding as the ten commandments. When a human being is not well and strong, the only question in order is, Who did sin, this man or his parents?" There is no more common sense in the invalidism of men and women than there would be in that of birds and buffaloes. The fact that domestic animals are ever sick results wholly from their keeping the bad company of man. We are a poisoned race—poisoned by tobacco and alcohol and drugs; by bad air, bad food, bad raiment.

Yet, tho hand join in hand, the wicked shall not go unpunished. Their occupation will soon be gone, whose gains depend upon our ignorance. The key of knowledge, tho hidden so long is found at last; and the mothers of the race are grasping it in their firm and delicate hands. The children of the future will perhaps skip the list of irregular verbs in their grammars and allegation medial in their arithmetics, but they will do so that they may gain time to learn God's laws written in their members. Recent heart breaking events will have at least one compensation in the skepticism with which a too docile public is learning to regard that learned profession, the bigotry of whose regular school and the tyranny of whose etiquette is one of the most salient reminders of the dark ages that afflicts the nineteenth century. Yet, all around us there are blessed object lessons to prove how men may live. I know a gentleman inheriting a wretchedly impaired constitution and poisoned in his early life with doctors drugs, who has not in thirty-one years touched a particle of medicine nor administered any to the thousands who have sought and found the guardian angel of health in his Hygienic home. To-day at seventy years of age he is a spared monument to the efficacy of the only medical faculty which will be recognized by the happy people of that future which hurries smiling on—viz. Doctors Diet, Sleep, Exercise and Dress reform. Commend me to this blessed quartette who are today the heaven sent allies of the temperance movement. All hail to Dr. Richardson! who heads the National Sanitary Reform League of Great Britain, and whose recent book, Hygiea, a City of Health, ought to be in the hands of every temperance woman. All hail to Miss Yates with her new gospel of wheatmeal bread now attracting so much attention in England, and concerning which I earnestly commend to your study the article of Miss Bevington in the September number of the Nineteenth Century. And all hail to Col. Felix R. Oswald, whose articles in the Popular Science Monthly ought to be familiar in our mouths as household words. Perhaps as we extend and deepen our researches, learn the profound significance of that rough Saxon saying, "every man has lain on his own trencher; discover that white bread flour, innocent as we deemed it, heats the blood and paves the way for all diseased appetites (as is now declared by the highest scientific authority), we may perceive that our cause has from no other quarter so much to hope as from a careful study by the people of Hygienic Laws. For this is the triumphal era of the natural sciences; when they speak, the world's ear becomes alert, and there is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard. Thank God that at last we have learned to discover His fatherly tones in every utterance of His law, and that they are leading us slowly back to the Health-Eden we lost so long ago, of which supremest loss and deprivation the universal proof has been the appetite for those stimulants which temporarily imitate the bounding exhilaration of that normal estate which we, thru ignorance, had forfeited.

If we read the London Lancet, that highest of authorities in medicine, we should find it taking sides with us on the question of alcoholic medication, and in the last number of the Popular Science Monthly occur the following remarkable statements worthy of our earnest thought, and by us to be brought before the people:

"Drugs only change the form of the disease by turning a confirmed surfeit-habit into a still more obstinate and less commutable alcohol habit; the vile mixtures sold under the name of "tonic" bitters have never benefited any body but their proprietors and the rumsellers; to whose army of victims the patent medicine dispensaries serve as so many recruiting offices."

"Antidotes and certain anodynes will, perhaps, also hold their own till we find a way of producing their effects by mechanical means. But, with these few exceptions, I will venture the prediction that before the middle of the twentieth century the internal use of drugs will be discarded by all intelligent physicians. "If we reflect upon the obstinate health of animals and savages," says Dr. Schrodt, 'upon the rapidity of their recovery from injuries that defy all the mixtures of materia medica; also upon the fact that the homoepathists cure their patients, the conclusion forces itself upon us that the entire system of therapeutics is founded upon an erroneous view of disease."

"An overwhelming testimony of facts has proved that the diseases of the human race can be cured easier without poison drugs—easier in the very degree that would suggest the suspicion that every ounce of poison ever swallowed for remedial purposes has increased the weight of human misery." —Signal.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of New York has entered upon its winter campaign with a two weeks' engagement of Miss Willard, beginning on Sunday, November 6th, in Calvary Baptist Church, Rev. Dr, MacArthur, pastor.

On the evening of November 7th Dr Howard Crosby, previous to introducing Miss Willard in his chapel to speak under these auspices, stated that four years' experience trying to enforce law against saloons of that city had convinced him there was no way out, save thru an independent political party. He said both the existing parties are bound hand and foot by the liquor interest, so cunningly balanced in its relation to Republican and Democrat that it holds the balance of power.

Hurrah for this new and uncompromising adherent, this Daniel come to judgment for whose help we had not looked. He said district attorneys, sheriffs, officers thruout were nominated, elected and installed in the interest of the dramshop.

"Let the home speak," responded Miss Willard, and The Signal says amen and amen !—Signal.

It affords a pleasure to give anything that redeems Dr. Crosby. Who knows but he may one day come out all right and take a fresh departure with authentic compass, sextant and scriptural sailing directions?

Signal Items.—It happened last Sunday that the pastors of city churches were asked to give out the notice of a proposed mass meeting of citizens under the auspices of the Citizens' League, which is called to agitate the amendment of the city ordinances, so as to license only one saloon to every 500 inhabitants. When Rev. Dr. Noble, of Union Park Congregational church, came to this part of the notice, he exclaimed, with an earnestness which does not usually belong to the reading of such: "What have we come to, that we are asked to petition for so much arson, theft, insanity, licentiousness, murder, suicide and crime of every sort to every five hundred inhabitants? Is it possible that this is all that is left of our Christian civilization?" Looked at in such a light, and from the Christian's point of view, the petition is an appalling one.

Mr. Paxton walked into the office of the Central W. C. T. U., of Chicago, the other day, and said that the West Side Police Court had sent for the W. C. T. U. pledge-cards to be kept at its "judgment seat," for the benefit of chastened and repentant cases. It was an omen of the day when the "Lord of hosts shall be for a spirit of judgment to him that sitteth in judgment."

An advance of civilization is thus noted by Sir Wilfred Lawson. He saw, a few weeks ago, a policeman in Edinburg, wheeling a very elegant machine got up with great care and skill. He asked what it was; "it is the new hand barrow that has excited so much interest in this town." It was invented for the police to more conveniently wheel the drunkards to the police station; in that home of education, colleges, sciences and churches. Sir Wilfrid remarks that most tradesmen send their goods home but when the publican has finished an article of his manufacture, we employ the police at public expense to take it home; and, he winds up, the "resources of civilization are not exhausted.

REQUISITES FOR A TEMPERANCE SCHOOL.

The Temperance Schoool $0.05

However dark the way seems, if you love the children and wish to save them, and at the same time to train up workers for temperance send for the above and learn what can be done. Then if you wish to learn how to do it, send for the following list:

LODGE FURNITURE.

In addition to the above, I will attend to orders for Impression Seals, Blank Books, Special Printing, Regalia or Lodge Furniture. This will be done as an accommodation to Lodges and not as a source of profit either to the Grand Lodge or myself; hence all orders filled will be sent per express by the dealers, with instructions to "collect on delivery," unless the money accompanies the order. Address—

GEO. B. KATZENSTEIN, G. W. S.,

THE GALT SUNDAY LAW CASE.—The case of the people vs. C W Harvey of Galt, of which mention was made last week, came on for trial before Justice Coggins of Sacramento on Friday last before a jury.

The evidence for the prosecution upon the trial was to the effect that the defendant kept his bar open on Sundays the same as upon other days. This was not refuted by testimony of defendants witnesses, but evidence was given to show that the bar was in the sitting room, and that the sale of liquors and cigars, or furnishing them to customers, was one part of the business of the hotel, or tavern and of others as generally kept in this state, thru the country, and that while business might be carried on without a bar, it would be much less profitable.

The case as presented by counsel for defense, upon argument, was that hotels and taverns were exempt under the statute, and that if it could be claimed that a bar room was not necessarily or legally a part of a hotel, it was included by the word tavern; which is described by Webster to be "a hotel usually licensed to sell liquors in small quantities." Under this definition and a case reported in the Georgia Reports of similar interpretation, it was held that a bar was included in the exemption of taverns from the statute, and hence defendant had a legal right to keep his bar open upon Sunday the same as any other day.

Upon the other hand, the District Attorney claimed that the definition of Webster was not of legal significance, and that the case cited was upon an ancient law unlike the statute of this state; that if the bar could be held to be a part of the business of the hotel or tavern in a legal sense, then the bar-room could be kept by the hotel proprietor in another building, at quite a distance even from the hotel or tavern, and yet be held to be part of it, because the proprietor claimed it to be so. This the District Attorney said would be absurd. He also claimed that the object of the legislature could not have been to prohibit saloon-keepers from selling upon Sunday, and permit an open bar to be kept in full tide in an adjoining building, simply because it was in a hotel or tavern, or was claimed to be part of one.

The Court, in his charge to the jury, and in response to a question by one of the jurymen charged that if they found that the house kept by the defendant was a hotel, then, as he viewed the law, they would find the defendant guilty, but if the public house he kept was included within the term "tavern," then he would not be guilty.

The jury, after being out some time, were unable to agree and were discharged. It is understood that six of the jury claimed that the place kept by defendant is a "hotel" and the other six that it is a tavern.

SAN FRANCISCO DISTRICT LODGE.—By invitation the G. W. S. was present at the opening meeting of the San Francisco District Lodge on Friday evening last, and as R. W. G. T. installed the officers elect for the ensuing year. It was esteemed a privilege to meet with the brotherhood comprising this body and the vast improvement, in all that constitutes real strength in any good cause, was as pleasing as it was appreciable to the observer. When such men as Brothers Robert Thompson, Dr. R. H. McDonald, C. H. Peterson. Charles E. Naylor, A. K. Stevens, David Kerr, Frank Storer W, F. K. Forsyth and a host of others of equal prominence, whose names are not so well known, bind themselves together and unite to push the work of our Order, with the ready assistance and earnest cooperation of a score of the prominent Sister workers, it argues well for the I. O. G. T. and the reverse to those who stand in the way of it and the cause of Temperance. There is a great work to be done in the Metropolis and the Good Templars, after all these years of lethargy are beginning to awake to a realization of their power and independence, and having earnestly sought to do, will accomplish much.

An important and pleasing feature of the work proposed is to have a weekly public temperance meeting, to be held each Saturday evening, under the auspices of the Order, by having a vice-president from each Lodge to control the movement, which will be known as "Home Protection" meetings, at which a total abstinence pledge will be received from all who will sign. The meetings are to comprise a lecture, recitations and musical exercises. It is proposed to hold a grand public entertainment at Platts or some other large public hall, for the benefit of the Good Templars Home for Orphans. Temperance literature is to be extensively circulated. A system of Lodge visitations has already been inaugurated, and the District Lodge is busying itself generally for the real "Good of the Order." A decided improvement is observable in a majority of the Subordinate Lodges, and altogether the outlook is more hopeful for the Order in the city of San Francisco at the present time than ever before.

The Sunday Law in Sacramento.— A public meeting of the citizens of Sacramento was held last week which drew out a large attendance of the business men. Stirring speeches were made by the prominent citizens, and the meeting by a unanimous vote adopted the following resolutions;

Resolved: That we are in favor of the observance of Sunday as a Sabbath and a day of rest from secular business. Our physical and mental natures need such an intermission of labor, and it is also proper that an opportunity should thus be granted for the people to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences.

2. That we believe it would be greatly for the interest of our city, if all stores, shops, saloons and other places of business, save those expressly excepted by the law, would close their doors on the Sabbath day—Sunday. We therefore call on those who have been accustomed to do business on that day to agree voluntarily to close in accordance with law.

3. That we regard the act of the better observance of the Sabbath as a good and just law, and hence those who close their business in accordance with it, should be protected by their interests by the prosecution of those who violate the law.

4. That we call upon the city and district attorney of this city and county to publish a notice as has been done in other communities, warning business men that unless they observe the Sunday law, they will prosecute such violations of the law as is their duty.'

The District Attorney a few days thereafter published a notice requesting all persons to refrain from violating the law, so as to save the expense of prosecution, and the city attorney followed in a card, proposing to prosecute all violations of the law brought to his notice. The result was charming, and last Sunday was one of he quietest Sabbaths known in the capital. It is believed a rigid observance of the law will follow by common consent, and without the necessity of prosecutions.

Thanksgiving.—Sincere thanks are extended to the members of Chrysopolis Lodge No. 210 of Woodland, for the toothsome gallinaceous fowl, the representative of which, B. Franklyn Esq., thought should have been selected as the emblematic bird of America, which graced the table of the G. W. S. on Thanksgiving day. Uncle Benjamin, the W. C. T., will kindly extend a vote of thanks to the Chrysopolites.

Extract of the circular of the literary committee of R. W. G. Lodge:

"To circulate books, documents and papers, takes money, and we are positively of the opinion that any person whose interest in the salvation of fallen humanity does not reach his pocket-book, is a curse to any moral organization. The Bible is full of promises to givers, but between its covers cannot be found one to stingy, penurious souls.

The history of Good Templarism proves that the curse of our work has been the misers in our Order. The strongest Grand Lodges in America are those that pay most to circulate literature, pay lecturers, support papers—in short, whose per capita tax is highest. The weakest Grand Lodges are those whose members have been incessantly asking not "How much can we give? how soon can we overcome this curse?" but rather, "how can we pay least and have a good time?"

We say to you, dear brothers and sisters, as we look at the terrible battle to be fought and the glorious results of mankind to come from our victory, that we believe it would be better for the individual members, and cheaper in the end, if the per capita tax of every Grand Lodge in the world was twenty-five cents a quarter, and the Grand Lodge Executives thereby enabled to pay lecturers, maintain papers, and do practical work for God and humanity. A church with 200 members pays $3,000 expenses per year. A Grand Lodge with 6,000 members pays $2,400 a year, and yet the members will talk about this cause and work being the grandest in the world Is not such a record a disgrace? Cannot we as men and women, pledged to maintain the cause of humanity against the liquor power, raise as much and give as much in a year as the children in the Sabbath schools?"

A Grand Lodge whose per capita tax is 25 cents a quarter has the smallest basis of revenue that makes successful work at all possible. With less than that any where from 20 to 5 cents, the only recourse is a struggle with an empty exchequer, discouragement, debt and then a general collapse in membership and everything else. Men will desert a sinking ship quite as readily as rats do, if they can. Now is the time for our order everywhere, after the metal badge, cheap john, baby rattle, soap bubble tom foolery is disposed of, to plug up the rat holes and stop the old pastime of making them. To waste time and money and play such miserable games with a respectable order was an indignity which the R, W. G. L. had no reason and less right to put upon the lodges. The next man who proposes any such driveling nonsense in the R. W. G. L. had better be hired at almost any price to leave this order and join the anti secret society where he belongs or the Jesuits or the "united brethren."

Grainland, Nov. 26, 1881.

Ed. Rescue,—Sunday evening, Nov. 20th, Dayton Lodge, No. 285, was favored with a temperance lecture by the lecture hero, Bro. James Logan of College city. After the lecture we took the names of fourteen new candidates and initiated nine of them. The lecture had the effect of bread cast upon the waters, for during this week we have thirteen new names for next lodge night. Bro. Logan left here on Monday morning, accompanied by some twelve or fifteen members of Dayton Lodge for Butte city in Colusa county, some fourteen miles distant where he lectured, and after the lecture there was a paper containing 35 names, asking us to organize them into a lodge. So in the absence of State Deputy we obligated them, took the charter fee and forwarded it to the Grand W. C. T.

The saloon keepers in our town have said their stay in the town of Dayton is to be short. We have the old people aroused in this neighborhood. They say that when the vendors of poison forsake party principles and everything that has a moral tendency, it is time to choose which ye will serve.

SAN FRANCISCO DISTRICT LODGE.

The last regular quarterly session of the San Francisco district lodge convened on Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 25th and 26th at Grand Central Hall, C H Peterson D. D. presiding.

Nearly every subordinate lodge in the district was represented. Over one hundred were in attendance each evening. The R. W. G. T., Geo. B. Katzenstein was present on Friday evening and installed the officers, exemplified the unwritten work and in the good of the order, made an entertaining and interesting speech, paying an eloquent tribute to the principles and purposes of Good Templarism.

The Secretary's report showed the present membership in San Francisco to be 772, an increase of nearly one hundred duringthe past quarter. The three strongest lodges are International with 162, Life Boat, 101; Valley, 93. The three weakest are Headlight with 26, Pleasant Valley, 26 and California.

Resolutions were adopted authorizing the expenditure of $10 by the Ex, Com. for temperance literature and also appointing a committee consisting of one member from each lodge to make arrangements for a lunch to be given for the benefit of the Home for Orphans.

Addresses were delivered during the session by Robert Thompson, G. W. C. T., Mrs. E. P. Stevens Bros. C. H. Peterson and Col. Geo. Babcock.

Everybody was in the best of spirits; harmony prevailed thru all the deliberations, and taken as a whole, the last session of the S. F. D. L. was one of the most pleasant and profitable ever held.

Frank Storer, D. S.

San Francisco, Nov. 26, '81.

Whereas: A great honor having been conferred upon this district by the attendance at the first meeting of this District Lodge session, of the Right Worthy Grand Templar of our order, as installing officer; be it

Resolved, That as a slight appreciation of said honor, services and visit, a vote of thanks be tendered to Geo. B. Katzenstein, G. W. S. of California and R. W. G. T. of the world, for his kindness in officiating at the installation of the officers of the San Francisco District Lodge, Friday evening Nov. 25, '81. Submitted in F. H. and C.,

Hall of Success Lodge, No. 366, I. O. G. T.
Knights Landing Yolo Co.,

Whereas, An association, styling itself the League of Freedom has been organized in San Francisco for the avowed and express purpose of openly and persistently violating a law of the state, passed by the legislature and declared to be in harmony and in accordance with the organic law by the Supreme Court, and,

Whereas—Such a course followed to its legitimate end can terminate only in anarchy, therefore be it

Resolved: That the members of Success Lodge in regular meeting assembled this 16th day of November, 1881, do accept the issue thus made, and we hereby pledge ourselves to the fullest extent of our ability to the enforcement of the law against selling liquors on Sunday, and the punishment of the violators thereof, and

Resolved: That we traverse the declaration of the League of Freedom—that at the next election they will support no officer who is not in favor of repealing the Sunday law—by declaring that in the future we will use all honorable means to prevent the election of any officer who is not opposed to the repeal of the Sunday law.

Resolved: That we appeal to the 17,000 members of our Order in California to take up the gage of battle thus insolently and defiantly thrown down, relying upon the law of the land, the justice of our cause and the help of God; wage an unceasing warfare upon the infamous traffic that bad men seek to elevate above and in defiance of the law—till it be banished from our midst.

The above resolutions were passed unanimously, and ordered sent to the county papers with the request that they be published, and to the Rescue.

The Grand Worthy Chief Templar of the State of West Virginia, Dr. T. H. Buck, the gifted author of "John Rodman's Pledge," and other popular writings, has just completed a new temperance and Good Templar story. Its publication will begin in the West Virginia Good Templar—official organ for the state—at an early day, and every Good Templar in the country should read it. The paper containing the story and much other valuable matter will be sent on trial three months for 20 cents, or six copies for $1. Send for it. Address,

BAND OF HOPE WORK.

The Grand Lodge, I. O. G. T., of California, offers to furnish, free of charge, to Sunday-schools, or other juvenile organizations desiring to adopt them for use, the newly revised Band of Hope rituals together with the ritual badges. The ritual comprises a pamphlet of 48 pages. The badges are of German silver, with a safety pin upon the back. Sample copies of the rituals and badge, or quantities for actual use, will be furnished on application to the G. W. C. T., Robert Thompson, 1,531 Golden Gate Avenue, or the Superintendent of Juvenile Work, Mrs. M. E. Richardson, Murphys, Calaveras Co., or Geo. B. Katzenstein, 328 J street, Sacramento.

TALKS WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.

YOUTHFUL DEPRAVITY.

One day last week, the daily papers tell us, three girls in Philadelphia, 15, 13 and 11 years of age were found drunk in a gutter. The two younger ones were lying insensible, and the doctor who worked an hour to restore them to consciousness, was of opinion they would have died if left alone. They had a little money, and bot liquor at three grogshops that day, but would not tell where. One of them too had lately stolen $11 from her father. And they call this "youthful depravity," and wonder why the children are so wicked.

Now the truth is, (and it is hoped the young folks who read the RESCUE will prize and treasure the truth above all things), it is not a case of youthful depravity at all, this is a case of depravity of the old folks altogether. Children may not do just as their own parents do, but they will do just as their own and other children's parents do. The children of a village or city will be naturally just what the older folks are: there will be exceptions in some instances, and there may be some influences at work in the town which will make the children a little worse and some that will make them much better than the older people.

If the parents and elders are sober, moral and religious people, the children will be as a general thing, just the same; but let a grogshop or a beer dive be permitted to start, and that, with all the safeguards the parents may throw around the children, will make them as a whole, something worse than the elders.

If the parents and the doctors and lawyers and grown people of a community go to the grogshop and swear and smoke and gamble, the children as naturally as water runs down hill, will do just the same; no better, no worse. The fact that children drink, swear, smoke, lie, steal, &c., just as they observe their seniors do, whether their own parents or not, no more indicates youthful depravity or natural hoodlumism, that going to Sunday school does. It is the natural thing for children to follow the example set them, whether it is right or not; again, if some good citizens come there and set up a Band of Hope, a Sabbath school, a Good Templars Lodge, the influences of these things will probably make the rising generation better than their fathers.

The youthful depravity and hoodlumism of the young folks of San Francisco and other cities of California, is the subject of frequent comment all over the civilized world. People in Europe have heard of it and talk about it there; it is a LIE and a SLANDER upon the young folks of this state. It is the depravity and hoodlumism of the old folks; that is what is the matter with us. The young are doubly better than they might be expected under the temptations to evil with which the old folks have carefully surrounded them. They, the old folks, support 4618 schools of theft, and blasphemy, and vice and crime in this city, whose whole business is to change virtuous, innocent children and grown people into hoodlums, paupers and criminals; and it is a wonder that all the boys and girls are not corrupted. They might be only that there are so many good mothers and good teachers and good people of various kinds and professions, to caution and teach and train and save some of the children from perdition.

And because so many people like beer and whisky and tobacco and set the vilest example to the young, and because the people, who live by poisoning and robbing and killing boys and men and by tsarving the poor—have some money and votes—the people who have been religious teachers and the Christian and moral people, the press and the bar and the whole business public, the politicians, police and city authorities have agreed by common consent to deceive themselves and the people and suppress and pervert the truth about the grogshop; and charge their own glaring sins upon the innocent children, whom they have done their best to make hoodlums and succeeded in so many instances.

At stated times enquiries are made by newspapers and others "what is the cause of hoodlumism" and answers are made by all classes of people, even a stray minister sometimes among the rest—answers that are utterly false or utterly idiotic, it dont matter much which. No journal but the RESCUE, no public utterance ever made, tells the truth about this terrible crime, except it is told by the temperance people. They know and every body knows that the Sunday grogshop and the Sunday theater and the Sunday gambling house and the Sunday den of vice and all these things pursuing their deadly work every day and every night, are a full and complete and only cause of the hoodlumism, vice, depravity, pauperism, murder and evil that disgrace and degrade and pauperize this state and its people old and young.

It is the old hoodlum and the beer hoodlum factories he sustains and patronizes, that grind out the young hoodlum. Thank God they cant make them all depraved. In a very short time after the hoodlum factory is abolished we can rent for shoe and carpenter and tailor shops all our prisons, houses of correction and asylums for criminals. The children will vote out the hoodlum factories or blow them up some day.

HOME PROTECTION.

Our Juveniles should know that this is the name of a general effort to rid your home and every body's own home of the curse of the grogshop, which poisons every home more or less. There are societies in various states who are determined that their homes and your homes shall be free from this horrible trap which is always set for the inmates of the home—the rum den—which lives by enticing and entrapping the inmates of the home and leading them to death; which lives by stripping the home of its food and clothes and comforts; steals the children's bread and shoes and school books; destroys its peace; turns it into a wretched abode of misery, quarreling, suffering; wrecks it; destroys it. For a hundred years it has been following the homes planted in this country, and cursing and destroying them everywhere, and people have had enough of it and declare it shall be destroyed itself. In ten years it kills directly a full million of our people, and turns millions of our homes into wretched abodes of starving misery.

The crusade made by the women in 1874 was for home protection. The Good Templars, Sons of Temperance, the W. C. T. U. and the Band of Hope are all societies to preserve and protect the home from the leprosy which the beer wagon peddles around, and the gin-mill retails. There are other societies pleged to vote for only temperance men for office; others who desire that women should vote as well as men. The word "Home-Protection" covers all these in whatever way they see it their duty to work for the protection of the home. And Home Protection is a very beautiful term and should inspire all good citizens with an earnest wish for its success.

MEAN TIME, ETC.

In giving an explanation last week of mean time and apparent time, there was no mention made of the effect of the inclination of the pole to the plane of its orbit, which would produce a slight irregularity in the time of the sun's passing the meridian. The "inclination of the pole" to the plane of the orbit will be undertsood by reference to a globe. If the pole was at right angles to the plane of the path of the earth around the sun, we should always have the sun vertical at the equator at noon, and there would be even day and even night all the world over, and we should have no variety of seasons whatever.

While there are variations in the velocity of the motion of the earth, it must be remembered that they are not irregularities. They occur with a regularity that is perfect; that we can calculate and foretell and describe with absolute accuracy. The time lost in one part of the orbit is precisely made up in another. If you should draw out or imagine on a map the circle or ellipse which represents the earth's orbit around the sun, with the sun in its proper place near the centre; then draw a line from the centre of the sun to each point on the circumference of the orbit that the earth touches every half, or quarter, or tenth or twentieth of a year, it will be seen that the area of each section of the ellipse is exactly equal to every other section which has been traversed in the same time.

This is another very strong indication of the necessity of a grandly wise power, who measured, and weighed, and understood, and calculated, and fixed by unerring law the masses and forces and movements of the heavenly bodies, and commanded their punctual appearance at their several exact stations at the specified second of time for years and centuries, and centuries of ages; and they never get behind, or astray, or lost; never forget their duty a moment.

Besides civil and astronomical time there used to be a "sea time" which at July 1st at noon began its day July 2d, P. M., and ended at noon July 2d, so as to close the day's records every day at noon. It was a silly and unnecessary thing to do, and has been in many ships abandoned.

OUTSIDE—WAITING FOR A PILOT.

It is a stormy day. All night the wind blew fearfully; the mad waves leaped and howled in wild fury upon the beach, and broke with terrifying crash and roar upon the bar at the mouth of the Columbia. Many have been the expressions, around the comfortable firesides, of kindly feelings for the poor seamen tossed upon the mountain billows "outside" waiting and watching for a pilot. Eleven ships are out there tossing day and night in the merciless storm, waiting for a pilot. Eagerly and still hopefully, those tired seamen brace themselves upon the sea-swept deck, with glass in hand scanning the coast and hoping for a pilot to come to their relief.

During long, weary months, and over many thousands of briny miles, have those noble vessels borne their hardy crews toward the mouth of the Columbia for cargoes of wheat to carry to the crowded cities in distant parts of the world. They know they are at the mouth of the great river they wish to enter, but the strange coast, bold headlands, frightful breakers, and uncertain lights, warn them of the peril of approach; and, seeing no kindly pilot boat, they stand out to sea again. One of them, returning, venturing too near, and misguided by the uncertain "lights along the shore," has stranded upon the Clatsop sand-spit, and is an utter wreck.

We should have more pilots, braver pilots; pilots that love God and humanity more than a dollar; pilots that will dare to urge their way over threatening breakers on the bar, and bring the "poor, fainting, struggling seaman" into the peaceful harbor. Now, I fancy I hear a brave boy say, "Oh! I'd like to live there at Astoria; I'd take the chances of that bar when sailors were in peril outside." Now, would you, my young brother? Then you are just the man I'm looking for. I want some men, both big and little, that are made of just that kind of stuff. I'll give them such work in that daring line as the true type of hero loves to find, and the faint-hearted and coward shrinks from in dismay. Are you ready? Then forward is the order. Girls may embark in this expedition, and share the glory with us. But our work of daring is to be upon a darker and stormier sea than this Pacific. Thousands of dreadful shipwrecks are every day occurring upon those turbulent waters. This moment, as I sit here calling to you for help, many thousands of shipwrecked sailors are struggling in the angry breakers about the innumerable bars, and sunken rocks, and maelstroms that render those waters so dangerous to navigators, and every minute some unhappy victim sinks beneath the dark surges to rise no more. The night is dark; the storm is wild, and the heart-rending cries of the perishing are heard on every hand. Hold! Steady! We cannot save those sinking ones! They will not be rescued. They flee from us and cast insult and slander in our teeth. Many life-boats have endeavored to rescue them, but instead of gratefully accepting the offered kindness, they attack the life-boats, and exert their utmost strength to engulf and destroy the crews.

Ours is not a lifeboat, but a pilot: and tho painful, we must pass these sinking ones, and see them disappear to rise no more. O, the anguish and heartrending cries of the loving friends on the near shore! It is ours to seek the unwrecked, and pilot them thru the Straits of the Pledge into the safe anchorage of Band of Hope Bay; and also to supply and maintain such lights as will illumine the whole dark sea, and to this end let us see that our work is done to the best advantage. It appears that all the wrecks are in consequence of the persistent efforts to navigate Moderation Channel. Many young navigators are lured, by false lights on to Cigaret sand spit, and thence, badly disabled, driven into that fatal channel to be certainly wrecked and lost at the bars. We also find at the entrance of that deathly channel, the dangerous shoals of ignorance, in the outer circles of the great Lager Beer maelstrom, whose dull, sluggish, but irresistible vortex entombs its thousands. We want to light up this whole dangerous region; just at the right point we find a very strong tower, constructed of best material, its ample pillars, Faith and Hope, are founded upon the solid rock of God's promise, and support a substantial and beautiful superstructure, chiefly of W. C. T. U, I. O. G. T. and B. of H. From this well built lighthouse already goes out a faint gleam of clear, unmistakable light that guides many a stormdriven bark into the safe harbor, and now for our best unceasing efforts to increase that hallowed light. Let us add largely to the Y. T. Banner gleams, and also hoist the new and wonderful David C. Cook compound lamp, and so illumine the dark sea of life that all its rocks, shoals, whirlpools, sandspits and bars may be clearly visible, and no more terrible shipwrecks, lost mariners, broken home circles, bleeding hearts and bitter wails of anguish shall be known. Fraternally and Affectionately. T. J. Alley.

Astoria, Nov. 19th, 1881.

Since writing the above, another ship is wrecked on Columbia bar, and thousands of men, perhaps, on the more dangerous bars.

A FEW WORDS TO OUR GIRLS.

BY FRANCES H. WILLARD, PRES. W. N. C. T. U.

Let me (being an ex-school mistress) mildly prescribe in this public manner, as I am constantly doing in private, for the mental health and growth of aspiring girlhood. Get the books named in the June number of Our Union, source indicated; write to John H. Vincent, Plainfield, N. J. for the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Course of study, join the growing band engaged in it, following it thru at the rate of forty minutes per day; and five years from now your knowledge of the world and all that's best in it will be five times increased.

With first class literature made as accessible as it is by the cheap publications of the day, no girl has any excuse for spending her time on trashy novelettes and newspaper stories; and what is more, no girl with her life work before her can afford to do so."—Our Union.

That is healthy advice; it is heartily endorsed. Just observe the women of thirty and forty years of age to-day, who have cultivated a taste for useful knowledge and wholesome literature; compare them with others who never read anything but trashy, sensational, lying novels. There is as much difference in the enjoyments of the two classes of women as one can imagine. One enjoys, not daily nor three times a day, but all the time—has always spread before her an intellectual bill of fare of the choicest and rarest and sweetest treasures of taste and knowledge: has not only a fund of enjoyment for herself but is capable of dispensing pleasant and kindly and bettering instructive influences on all around her. The other, the dime novel worshipper, the play goer, etc., for the present and all the future has a store of mental food acquired and stored up, that is about as dry and barren and innutritious as the old red shell of a last years lobster's claw.

There are some of our girls who can fit themselves to take Miss Willard's place some future day and fill it worthily. Their opportunities and facilities may be superior to those which she enjoyed. Her example and advice are well worthy of deliberate patient consideration.

One of the most excellent influences with which our young Good Templars and old too can associate themselves, is that of the Chautauqua Circle. There ought to be hundreds of us reaping its advantages and its enjoyments. Write to Miss S. M. Severance, Gilroy for advice and information if required, she will very patiently and kindly give you necessary particulars.

EXTENT AND CAUSE OF IDIOCY.

Idiots may be found almost anywhere who have brot this calamity upon themselves by the immoderate use of ardent spirits.

Storey says:—

"Many a man of fine talents has drank himself into a fool. Many a bright boy and man of talent has become a fool while becoming a sot."

The intellect of many a child has been permanently injured by a blow from a drunken father's hand. Idiocy, even more than insanity, can be traced to the use of intoxicants, because insanity may be a nervous disease, while idiots are simply stupid, their brain being incapable of being educated. The brain has been so badly poisoned that it scarcely works at all. In an idiot the brain weighs about twelve, and in a philosopher about sixty ounces.

The United States census reports about twenty thousand idiots or fools: but this is perhaps an under estimate, as many parents hate to tell the census officers that their children are fools; for which reason many are reported as sound in mind who are really idiotic.

The number of idiots in most countries, and all ages has been equal to or greater than the number of insane. Therefore we may safely say that there are twenty-four thousand fools in the United States. And then leave out a host of people who exhibit strong marks of idiocy.

And right here I wish to call your attention to a law of human life, namely the law that "like begets like." Children are like their parents. When we plant acorns, we raise oaks, not hickories, When wheat is sown it produces wheat, not corn. Weeds produce weeds. Black children come from black parents; diseased children from diseased parents.

Young man, how would you like to be the father of a fool? Or a whole family of fools? If I ask you to show me your children, you point to a litter of idiots and say, "There, that's the best I could do!" If you do not wish to be the father of fools, then let liquor alone. And if you do not let it alone, the chances are that you will become a fool yourself; and your posterity after you.—D. C. Cook's Quarterly.

THE LITTLE BOY THAT DIED.

DR. THOMAS CHALMERS.

I am all alone in my chamber now,
And the midnight hour is near,
And the fagots crack, and the clock's dull tick,
Are the only sounds I hear;
And over my soul in its solitude
Sweet feelings of sadness glide;
For my heart and my eyes are full when I think
Of the little boy that died.

I went one night to my father's house—
Went home to the dear ones all;
And softly I opened the garden gate,
And softly the door of the hall.
My mother came out to meet her son—
She kissed me and then she sighed,
And her head fell on my neck, and she wept
For the little boy that died.

I shall miss him when the flowers come,
In the garden where he played;
I shall miss him more by the fireside,
When the flowers are all decayed;
I shall see his toys and his empty chair.
And the horse he used to ride,
And they will speak with a silent speech,
Of the little boy that died.

We shall go home to our Father's house
To our Father's house in the skies,
Where the hope of souls shall have no blight,
Our love no broken ties;
We shall roam on the banks of the river of peace,
And bathe in its blissful tide;
And one of the joys of heaven shall be
The little boy that died.—Ex.

A Young man was recently found in the Mersey drowned. On a paper found in his pocket was written: "A wasted life. Do not ask anything about me. Drink was the cause. Let me die; let me rot." Within a week the coroner of Liverpool received over two hundred letters from fathers and mothers all over England, asking for a description of the young man, and saying that the boy they loved had been drawn away into the shining halls of sin and drink.—Eng. Temp. Record.

That is a very touching indication of the extent of the fiendish work that is being carried on everywhere by the mantraps of rum. And there are perhaps a million mothers to-day who will scarcely be surprised to hear of the suicide or murder of their sons thru the grogshop.

USE OF TOBACCO A FILTHY HABIT.

An eminent author says: "Of all habits to which men are addicted, none so conduces to slovenliness and to disregard of the comfort of others as the use of tobacco. No individual has a right to make himself a nuisance." The smoke scented clothes of an inveterate smoker, the disagreeable breath, the unclean lips and mouth of the chewer, are enough to make all lovers of cleanliness disgusted with the cause of it all. Nothing sooner causes a lack of self-respect than untidiness; and when a man gets so that he does not care what becomes of him, he has started on the road of intemperance to ruin.

USE OF TOBACCO MAKES IT HARDER TO KEEP THE TEMPERANCE PLEDGE.

A well-known temperance advocate writes: "I have known members of the church to break the pledge, but it has nearly always been the case that such have been smokers and have blamed the pipe for it.

So far as I have observed, more members of our temperance societies fall from being caught in this snare than in any other."

Rev. A. Sims says:—"To reform a tobacco user is a task doubly greater than the reformation of a drunkard."

In a report of the British Anti-Tobacco Society we find the following: "It is a fact that in most cases of breach of the Good Templar obligation the man has been a smoker. In one district it was proved by an investigation that the smoking teetotalers were a little more than seven times as liable to break their obligation as the non-smoker."

"It is a fact," says Dr. Trask, "that tobacco and rum, like gamblers, play into each other's hands in ruining their victims. The language of the toper is significant: "I love to smoke because it makes me love to drink, and I love to drink because it makes me love to smoke.'" Again he says: "It is a fact that drunkards generally use tobacco; The exceptions I have found to be rare—perhaps one to a thousand,"—D. C. Cook's Quarterly.

EXTENT OF INSANITY IN THE UNITED STATES.

It has been proved that the number of insane people in a country corresponds very closely with the amount of strong drink they consume. Till the introduction of fire-water among the American Indians insanity was unknown.

Even where insanity is not directly caused by the use of alcohol in many cases the predisposition to this disease was inherited from one who was in the habit of drinking. Every lunatic asylum is a warning against strong drink.

Dr. Hiram Cox, a distinguished chemist of Cincinnati, Ohio, acting as a physician to the probate court of that city, examined upwards of four hundred cases of insanity, previous to sending them to the state asylum: and he says that "two thirds of their number became insane from drinking the poisonous liquors sold at the doggeries and taverns of our city and county.

"Many of them were boys nineteen or twenty years of age, some of whom were laboring under a hereditary taint—and perhaps in many of them the mental derangement would never have been developed, had they not drank the poisonous decoctions."—D. C. Cook's Quarterly.

CHEAP BOOKS.

Just think of a dollar book to be had every week for a year for $2.50 and all choice reading. See David C. Cook's advertisement in this paper. No more use for dime novels and miserable literature, when you can get the best that was ever published at five cents a volume. And newspapers too at five cents a year. Send for samples and you will have a pleasant surprise.

FIRST-CLASS AGENTS WANTED.

The great reputation of JOHN B. GOUGH, the magnificent make-up of "Sunlight and Shadow," and the universal demand for it among all classes, makes this the best opportunity ever offered to energetic agents to make money. We want first-class agents in every township, to whom liberal terms will be given. Address, for territory and terms, J. Dewing & Co., 420 Bush St., San Francisco.

The Temperance Revolution is about to issue a book, to be sold at their popular price, and which will reveal the general lawlessness of the liquor traffic. The book will cover these general topics among others: The Ostracising and Abuse of Temperance Workers; Personal Abuse and Injury; Intimidation by Threats of Lawless Proceedings; Actual Destruction of Property, etc.; Bribery in Elections and Legislatures. Those possessing definite information upon any of these points which will be of value in a book of this character, are invited to communicate with The Temperance Revolution, David C. Cook, Manager, Chicago, Ill.

David C. Cook has recently opened, at 148 Madison St. Chicago, a Revolution Temperance House, and we are amazed at the amount he offers for a little money. He furnishes excellent and unique material for educating the children. It is a grand work. We advise all to send for samples and buy what they can afford. A little money expended in this way will hardly be missed, and will do you and others much good.—Prohibitionist, Lewiston, Me.

OUR PRINCIPLES.—We aim for nothing short of a sweeping National Prohibitory law endorsed by every State and Territory of the Union, in the year 1885, and as much sooner as the Christian and Temperance men and good citizens of the country may desire to accomplish it.

THE SUGAR MONOPOLY.

The Chronicle has been industriously ventilating the sugar monoply and the contract system of imported servile labor. which is employed to increase the millions of a small ring of rich sugar Kings.

The reciprocity treaty with Hawaii was a handsome and generous concession, made partly to assist a poor relation and neighbor, and partly to secure a preference on his shores for the commerce of the United States. The U. S. congress no doubt believed too, it would be a kindly pecuniary favor to the people of this coast, who would thus have a little advantage over the rest of the Union in the price of the sugar used here.

It seems a pity that almost every generous act of our National, State or Municipal governments is by some legerdemain perverted to create or assist some ring or corporation to defeat its purposes, secure all its advantages and make it an instrument of oppressing the very people it was intended to benefit.

While the same postage has been paid on a letter to Oakland that carried another to Maine, we have all been content and glad to know that we were enabling thousands of scattered settlers in the wilds of new States and Territories, to get their mails with frequency and regularity at the same price we pay, who otherwise would have to pay a dollar for a letter perhaps. By over charging us a little the P. O. department, most excellently managed in the main, was enabled to deliver a letter with a 3 cent stamp which cost it more than a dollar to carry to some places. But at last we waken up to the uncomely fact, that a star route ring of thieves has been appropriating all the benefits derived from our generous postal system and deliberately stealing millions a year of the people's money.

The people of the United States were grandly generous to the projectors of the transcontinental railroad. They gave them enough to pay for the road, and now we see it perverted into a mighty engine of oppression and injustice, leaguing every other monopoly into rings of dishonest extortion, corrupting legislation in all directions, and building up a tyranny of despotism which is already a menace to the peaceful continuance of our republican institutions.

The granting of a subsidy to encourage steam navigation is perverted into a means of oppressing in place of extending commerce and enabling the oppressors to kill off healthful competition. The supplies granted to Indians have been frequently, nay commonly stolen by pirates and thieves, the invariable camp followers of our political spoils system.

But of all these bare-faced impositions, probably there are none so brazen and barefaced as the manipulation of the Hawaiian treaty into a machine for grinding out of the people of the Pacific coast 2¾ cents a pound on their sugar more than the Eastern people have to pay—or in other words, collecting the two millions and more of sugar duty which should go to the government, and paying that to the Spreckles ring, with another two millions a year for extra profits extorted from the consumers. These four millions, or rather 4⅓ millions being altogether extra and above the profits possible to the sugar importers of the Atlantic coast.

And one of the features of this brazen conspiracy which is the most galling and humiliating to the people, and the most emboldening to the conspirators, is the fact that they depend upon their ability to corruptly purchase the continuance of this wretched ly abortive treaty. It will pay them to use millions in bribery for this purpose if assured that the effort will be successful.

SENATOR BLAIR.

The N. H. Senator proposes to be the Sir Wilfrid Lawson of the United States; for what he has already done, is doing and intends to do, whether he pursues the wisest course or not he will deserve and enjoy the credit of having acted the complete role of a truly patriotic statesman.

The readers of this paper will remember that in Dec, 1876 he introduced a constitutional amendment into Congress forever prohibiting the manufacture, import and sale of any distilled alcoholic liquors or liquors mixed with distilled alcohol after the year 1900. Mr. Blair thinks that the milder liquors will not produce so much drunkenness, and by deferring the warfare against them he will secure more help to pass his amendment.

It is a matter of thankfulness that Mr. Blair is a conscientious, honest man and not working for mere show, and that if his life is spared he has eighteen years in which to learn what is best to be done, and no doubt he will ere long be thoroly posted.

If a choice was given to prohibit the strong or weak liquors, allowing one to remain unhurt, experienced temperance men would say, abolish the beer, wine and cider by all means, and leave the liquors which have 50 per cent and over of alcohol to continue their work.

And for several reasons. No prohibitory law ever was or will be enacted which would to any appreciable extent prevent the free and unrestricted sale and use of brandy, gin, rum and whisky in any of the grogshops or other places where the sale of any of the milder alcoholics is licensed or permitted. The attempt if made to enforce such a law would require at least one policeman stationed at every bar, and it would be so expensive and abortive and utterly fruitless, that it would be summarily abandoned.

Again, supposing such a discrimination could be effctive, altho it is granted that people who drink strong spirits will generally die off a little faster than those who drink mild beer only, it is equally well known, that thousands of women and children learn to be drunkards thru wine and beer, who never would have conquered their natural repugnance to the taste of the stronger liquors, had there been no milder ones to practice on; would never have consented to taste whisky more than two or three times in their lives had there been no other.

Experience shows that all kinds of fermented alcoholic liquors supply all the needs of the inebriate; and where there are plenty of stronger liquors at hand, there are many thousands of the most intemperate Germans, Irish and English, who are constantly in a state of the most swinish intoxication, and drink only beer.

It would evidently cost us quite as much labor and expense to secure a partial fruitless law, as it would a totally prohibitory one; probably more, for a large number of the most earnest advocates of a prohibitory law, would decline to work for a partial act, which they know would be attended with disappointment and utter failure.

But let no one be disheartened; Mr. Blair has been in conference with the National W. C. T. U., and will be again; they will bear him up on angel's wings and evolute him in a few months to a condition of the very highest and fittest development. And when that bill of his passes, as it surely soon will, it will be a complete and effective arrest of the drunkard and pauper making traffic.

STOP PAYING THE NATIONAL DEBT.

After praising the miraculous financial acuteness and ability manifested by Secretaries Sherman and Windom, the cashiers of the nation, it is discovered that in the interest of the National Banks and millionaire bondholders, they have tied up the national debt so that the government cannot pay it off as fast as it is able to, without also paying a number of extra years of interest that need not have been incurred. The officers of a bank or mercantile corporation who would have committed such a gross malpractice as this, would have been generally condemned, but it does not seem that any one sees it his interest to complain of this. It would assail the Republican Party.
